We have repeatedly pointed out the importance of maintaining the rights and liberties of travelling showmen. Shows have an acknowledged right to be held exempt from all building bye-laws whilst following the fairs. This is a valuable liberty. This exemption does not apply (as a matter of right) when shows locate themselves for any serious length of time for private business. With regard to portable theatres the matter is still further complicated by the question of obtaining a licence for stage plays.

It is high time that some steps were taken to abolish the antiquated machinery of the licensing Act with regard to stage plays.

There are scores of towns and village centres where only theatres of a portable type can possibly pay. The life of the workers in these deadly dull places would be all the better and sweeter for the strolling players and the advent of the portable theatre for a short season. It is straining the law to make it an instrument to deprive the people of necessary and wholesome amusement.

The Movable Dwellings Bill.

When Parliament reassembles in October the first measure before the House of Lords will be the Children's Bill. This being a Government Bill, and of the highest value and importance to the child-life of the nation, it will occupy the House of Lords a considerable time. Showmen earnestly support the Children's Bill. Its consideration by the Lords is (in point of time) of deep interest to the whole body of van-dwellers, because the Movable Dwellings Bill will be considered at the same time.

When Lord Clifford of Chudleigh obtained a second reading for his Bill, it was understood that some of its clauses, especially with reference to the education of children (either living in vans or travelling the country with their parents), might be covered by the Government measure, and so would be dropped from Lord Clifford's Bill.

Sanitary Laws Ample for Show Van Life.

If the educational clauses, with which showmen have no quarrel, are dropped out of the Movable Dwellings Bill, there will only remain the question of sanitation, and our contention is that the public health and the health of van-dwellers themselves are fully secured by already existing law. We have repeatedly said in these columns that every known law applicable to houses and dwellings in towns is equally applicable to movable dwellings, vans, and tents. It will be of use and value to our readers who use vans and tents if we quote the various Acts of Parliament affecting van and show life.

In the year 1875 the Public Health Act [38 and 39, Victoria, Ch. 55] set up all over England local sanitary authorities to look after the health conditions of the people. It was a consolidation Act as well as setting up a perfect network of administrative machinery for preservation of health and the prevention of all dangers to the health of the nation.

Section 91 of that Act is of great importance to our argument, for in a later Act—the Housing of the Working Classes Act [48 and 49, Ch. 72]—mention is made of tents and vans, and the penalties for van-dwellers not fulfilling the law are the same as those imposed upon all house-dwellers by Section 91 of the Public Health Act, 1875. The Housing of the Working Classes Act specifically and clearly states in Section 9 that "(1) A tent, van, shed, or similar structure used for human habitation, which is in such a state as to be a nuisance or injurious to health, or which is so overcrowded as to be injurious to the health of the inmates, whether or not members of the same family, shall be deemed to be a nuisance within the meaning of Section 91 of the Public Health Act, 1875. (2) A sanitary authority may make bye-laws for promoting cleanliness in, and the habitable condition of tents, vans, sheds, and similar structures used for human habitation, and for preventing the spread of infectious disease by persons inhabiting the same, and generally for the prevention of nuisances in connection with the same."

Other clauses in the same section provide for the properly authorised sanitary officer having the right of inspection of vans and tents used for living purposes.

Here we have enough law in all fairness for the possible demands of public health and security for the showman and his family life.

Still More Legislation.

The Infectious Diseases (Notification) Act, 1889 [52 and 53, Victoria, Ch. 72], Section 13 (1) provides that the Act applies to "Every tent, van, shed, or similar structure used for human habitation, in like manner, as nearly as may be, as if it were a building."

The Infectious Diseases (Notification) Extension Act, 1899 [62 and 63, Victoria, Ch. 8] makes the Act of 1889 operative all over the country by extending its operation to all sanitary districts that had not voluntarily adopted it.

Some General Conclusions.

Every living van is a house for all health and sanitary purposes. It is as much under the rule and government of the sanitary and health authorities as any other building, permanent or temporary, used for human habitation. There is just the same law and just the same liberty for the van-dweller's home on wheels as the town-dweller's home of wood and stone. In the matter of all necessary safeguards for public health the law as it is is all-sufficient. It is just, because all must obey it. To endeavour to fix special and clearly invidious rules upon the showman that do not apply to householders in permanent homes is an insult and an invasion of his rights and liberties that every showman is bound to resist with all the vigour at his command. He is fully justified in using all lawful and constitutional means to oppose such mistaken and such drastic proposals as those embodied in the Movable Dwellings Bill.

We anticipate that the educational clauses of the Bill will be met by the provisions of the Children's Bill, and we have fully shown that the other parts of the Movable Dwellings Bill that deal with public health are already covered by existing law.

Much as we dislike attributing ulterior motives to the promoters of the Bill, we fear that their real object is not seen in the vague wording of the measure; their real object, we fear, is to get drastic powers by a peculiarly objectionable form of class legislation to penalise and harass van-dwellers of all kinds.

We read of showmen, but seldom of showwomen or show ladies. Anyone who has been familiar with the Show or Bazaar Department of the Alexandra Palace cannot fail to have noticed a nice-looking, agreeable lady superintending a bazaar counter from year to year. No matter who have been lessees this lady has been there with her wares for sale, and so well has she become known that it has been more than once asserted that she was built with the place. The remark has not been altogether uncalled for, because, as a matter of fact, Mrs. Ann Wales (the lady's name) was one of the last exhibitors to leave the burning building on June 9, 1873, to save some of her goods from being destroyed by the fiery element. The late Mr. Thomas Dixon, the first secretary of the Alexandra Palace Company, who died on April 1 this year, used to extol her bravery. In August, 1873, she was a recipient from the Distribution Committee of the Alexandra Palace Stall Holders' Relief Fund, of which the Lord Mayor of London was chairman. A short biographical sketch may be submitted as follows of this show lady, the half of whose life has been spent in the Alexandra Palace, and she candidly tells you that she has been working since she was fifteen years of age and at the present time is not worth sixpence.

Many of our sporting readers may remember when Fred Archer, the jockey, came into notice in 1877 by winning the Derby on Silvio another personage also became prominent, viz., James Wales, "the plunger," who made a fortune (but afterwards lost it) by backing the mounts of the popular jockey, whose fame continued for a matter of ten years. Wales, "the plunger," had an older brother, Richard, who had fallen in love with pretty Ann May, and on Aug. 7, 1870, married her. It may be ungallant to state this fact, that the subject of our memoir was born Feb. 10, 1840. So well does she bear her age and troubles that she looks twenty years younger, and her pleasant conversation has beguiled many a weary hour.

Flower Shows in Somerset.

Cole Brothers, with their well-known combination of show and machine novelties, have been doing good business on the Somerset Round, notably at Wells Flower Show and at Radstock. The helter-skelter tower and steam horses were great sources of delight to the many patrons of the fair. Henry Jennings, with roundabouts and other fairground attractions, was the chief provider of the fun of the fair at both Beckington and Frome Flower Shows.

Notes from the West.

Dartmouth Regatta Fair, under the banner of Messrs. Anderton and Rowland, attracted the majority of the concerns at the great Regatta. The lessees, Messrs. Anderton and Rowland, exhibited their big show and fine set of roundabouts. The other shows included John Jones, with Bioscope and Empire Variety Theatre, Prince Samonda's Temple of Eastern Magic, Birch's two ground booths with freak exhibits, and Valleta, physical culture expert. Amongst the machine exhibits were Messrs. Marshall and Ernest Hill's switchback, F. Haywood's juvenile motor cars, J. Wilson's gem roundabouts, Chapman's overboats, and swings (three sets) by Messrs. Smith, Charles, and Priddle.

Shooting ranges, hoop-la circles, novelty frames, variety stalls, and throwing games by Messrs. Rowland, J. Jones, Oldridge, Hurford, J. Jones, T. Connolly, A. Jones, W. Jones, and Mrs. Lock.

Newton Heath Wakes.

For the entertainment of this great industrial suburb of Manchester for the annual wakes were found T. Crighton's Palace of Life, with high class range of up-to-date pictures and variety programme, Prof. F. Vallus' second eight show, Capt. Leonard Harris with two ground booths, the miniature jungle and the freak exhibit, John Whiting's electric switchback, the Japanese cars, Wm. Mitchell's racing birds, shooting ranges, and other minor attractions by Sedgwick, Vallus, Wilson, Cooper, Toogood, Thompson, Murphy, and others.

Showmen in Council.

The important committee meeting of the Showmen's Guild at Oldham, on Wednesday evening, Sept. 2, was attended by a representative gathering of all the interests in the showman world. The object of the gathering was to receive a report of the work already done by the Guild Executive officials, with reference to the Movable Dwellings Bill, and to determine the line of action in opposition to the measure in the future.

Owing to the great pressure on our space, we are compelled to hold over a full report until next week.

Briefly stated, it was unanimously determined to oppose the Movable Dwellings Bill at every stage, and a resolution to that effect was carried.

Barnsley Feast.

The cinematograph theatres at this fair were Tuby and Son's Coliseum and Hobson's Empire. The other show was the pavilion of Sol. Hague, with black and white boxers and athletes. Tuby's two machines, the motor cars and the four-abreast, Charles Marshall's switchback, Corrigan's steam yachts, and Amos's steam swings were mechanical novelties present. Shooting concerns, throwing games, and all the fun of the fair were provided by Messrs. Rutter, Brennan, Gledhill, Hague, Doubtfire, Westys, Hunt, Black, Corrigan, and numerous local caterers. T. Morley's set of bicycles is at Dodsworth on this round.

Bakewell Feast.

The amusemnts at this Derbyshire fair were provided by Messrs. A. Twigdon, S. Ashby, and S. Pett, who exhibited steam and electric roundabouts, park swings, throwing games, and novelty stalls.

An Interesting Personal Note.

Many showmen are asking Who is Lord Clifford of Chudleigh? The following interesting notice of him appeared in the Daily Chronicle a week ago. We reproduce it for the information of our readers:—"Lord Clifford of Chudleigh is head of one of the oldest English Roman Catholic families, and married a daughter of the ancient house of Towneley of Towneley, now extinct in the male line. A veteran Volunteer and an aide-de-camp to the King, Lord Clifford is also a keen sportsman, and is a familiar figure on the golf links and in the hunting field. Amateur acting is one of his hobbies, and he has often played to applauding audiences in the pretty private theatre attached to his Devonshire seat. Lord Clifford is a Count of the Holy Roman Empire and a B.A. of London University. One of his sisters is married to Lord Denbigh, and two others are nuns.

In the negotiations carried on by the Guild with Lord Clifford his lordship has shown a ready disposition to meet the wishes of showmen. In fact, he is ready to accept amendments that largely mitigate the Bill so far as it touches show life. The important committee meeting at Oldham this week was to submit these suggested amendments and to formulate the next steps in the showmen's opposition to the Bill. The Rev. T. Horne, in whose hands mainly the work has lain, testifies with pleasure to the extremely courteous and conciliatory way Lord Clifford carried out his share of the conference. The Guild Chaplain was glad to meet his lordship and to be the means of correcting many erroneous impressions with regard to show life that obtain in the highest circles of public life.

Barnet Old Charter Fair.

Speaking in anticipation of the ancient Fair which opens to-day (Saturday), the Morning Leader has the following interesting paragraph:—"Barnet Fair, which is by many held to mark the end of summer and the beginning of the pork season, opens next Friday, and for three days the usually quiet town will be full of the noises which go to make up this annual blending of business and pleasure. One of the prime movers in the organisation of the fair is known locally as 'Young Joe Berryman,' who is lessee of the fair grounds, and who is responsible for checking and housing the cattle, and making the sellers, dealers, van dwellers, and travelling showmen comfortable. 'Young Joe' is so called, not because he is sixty-three years of age, but to distinguish him from his father, who in his day held the position the son now holds. Another well-known figure at the fair is Joe Stevens, the caterer, whom most visitors to Epsom, Ascot, and Brighton races must have seen. The horses and other stock, for the sale of which the fair was originated, now arrive for the most part by train. Although as a business fair Barnet is gradually losing ground, in respectability it has risen considerably."

The Reading Bye-law.

The following letter has been sent to the Town Clerk of Reading with reference to the new bye-law noticed in our issue of last week:—

"To the Town Clerk of Reading.

"Dear Sir,—Your proposed new bye-law, relating to mechanically-played music on shows and roundabouts, and to the erection of suchlike amusements, has been sent to our committee by Mr. Jacob Studt, a member and vice-president of the Guild. I am asked to make the following observations:—(1) We note with satisfaction that your fairs are all exempted from its powers. (2) With regard to shows exhibiting at other times than your annual fairs, we beg to point out that the Corporation has already ample powers of reasonable control in the conditions they may impose before letting sites on the market or fairground. Showmen feel strongly that large powers of discretion should be in the hands of the local authority, and to the exercise of such discretionary powers they always render loyal obedience. (3) The new bye-law will remove the control from the local authority and will place it in the hands of individual residents or passengers to harass and penalise our trade and business. We know many instances where the local authority has been forced to take action by extremists whose objection was to shows as such, and not with any view to regulating the music or safeguarding the public. Under cover of bye-laws similar to yours a crusade has been waged by narrow-minded fanatics against the open-air amusements of the people. We most respectfully ask the Mayor and Corporation to keep the discretion and power of regulating in their own hands, not to give power to a single complainant to force them into taking a narrow view and to injure the trade and business of an honourable and industrious body of people. (4) Mr. Jacob Studt informs us that he has visited Reading with his show and other amusements, and has always given satisfaction, and has always been welcomed by the people. Your bye-law would put him at the mercy of anyone passing his show. He has always used the Corporation ground, and has been careful to observe all the conditions of tenancy imposed by the authorities.

"This organisation speaks for the whole body of showpeople. There are 70,000 persons concerned in the show business. We beg, in their name, your most serious consideration of the points we have given above against the confirmation of the new bye-law.—For the Executive Committee,

"T. HORNE,

"Chaplain and Organiser, the Showmen's Guild.

OLDHAM WAKES.

Oldham Wakes is pre-eminently the people's annual fair and the town holidays. All the people cease work; the town, as regards ordinary trade and business, puts up its shutters, shuts down its mills and workshops, and all the people go out to play. The casual visitor to Oldham, or the busy man who rushes through its hilly and tortuous main thoroughfares, will most probably bring away an extremely bad impression.

Its principal street suggests a town that is in the backwash of the great stream of progress that has swept over industrial England. To judge Oldham and its marvellous advance amongst the great centres of industry by casual or by hurried observation would be an error of the first magnitude—to judge it by the same standard you would apply to Manchester, Birmingham, or Leeds, or to gauge its progress by the visible signs of widened thoroughfares and palatial public buildings, as you do other towns, is to misjudge Oldham and to fail to do its people justice.

Read the Living Documents.

To know Oldham you must read the living documents, not mere bricks and mortar. Oldham makes things, and sends them off to Manchester and Liverpool to distribute them all over the world. To know Oldham and to measure its true life you must rise early in the morning and listen to the clank of the wooden shoon; you must watch its vast industrial army—men, women, and children—tramping off to the cotton mills and to the machine shops. These are the real palaces of Oldham.

The true standard of the people's progress is shown in the better and happier life of the workers, and that, after all, is better than straight-cut boulevards and palatial buildings.

As regards the real and the lasting things of life, Oldham is a generation or two ahead of more pretentious cities.

Judged by the general level of comfort of life and means to enjoy it; judged by the real tests of industrial progress—thrift, co-operation, and combination—to uplift human life, Oldham takes a proud position amongst the great towns of the Empire.

Some Historic Notes About the Wakes.

Writing 100 years ago about the wakes at Oldham, "Rowbotham," the local historian, says in his "Annals":—

"August 26th. — Being Oldham Rushbearing Saturday, and a fine day, was very fully attended, and owing to the briskness of the Fustian business there were 8 Rush Carts.

"On Sunday, a fine day, and very throng, and Five Rush Carts, which was a thing uncommon, there was plenty of brewing with Familys which a short time since where very poor, besides notwithstanding the exhorbitant price of Butchers meat there was plenty of Beef and Cabbage, and joy appeared in every countenance."

Our memory of the fair goes back forty-eight years, and we, too, remember the rushbearing carts and the Merrie Morris dancers. We have witnessed the tremendous changes in the life of the people that the last fifty years of national progress have brought about.

The rush cart and the Morris Dancers still survive in certain of the more archaic corners of "Cotton Land," and at all "May Day Festivals" on the grand scale, such as May Day at Knutsford, the rushbearers and the Morris Dancers shod in "their wooden shoon" form an interesting feature.

Oldham has moved ahead since the days of the rush cart, and is to-day the pioneer city of the adventurous cheap tripper. Oldham has made more than one "City of Pleasure and perpetual Fair by the Sea." Oldham is the creator of Blackpool, and the chief benefactor of Douglas, Morecambe, Southport, Llandudno, Rhyl, and a dozen other seaside resorts. When Oldham sends forth its strenuous sons and daughters at the "resting-time of the wakes," the hungry souls of a score of pleasure resorts at the sea, inland, and abroad, rejoice and are glad, for the day of their long expectation has come, and all is well with the company, housekeeper, and the caterers of amusement and recreation at the sea.

Some Economic Facts.

This year, despite the depression in the cotton trade and its allied industries, nearly half a million of money has been drawn out of thrift banks, going-off clubs, co-operative societies, and trade societies—not to be wasted, as the cheap-and-nasty critic imagines, in an orgy of pleasure and sensual excess, but to be well and wisely used for the worker. In the first place, for necessary rest and recuperation after fifty full weeks of grinding and exhausting toil; and in the second place for the replenishing of clothing and the necessities of home life.

Think of it, ye carping critics of the people's life! What a sum it looks to the jaundiced eye of the penny wise and pound foolish economist. Half a million of money! Yet, divide it amongst a million and more of people who have the spending and the enjoyment of it, and it remains still a marvel of economic fact and thrifty management.

Well, the heart and centre of "the going-off club movement" is Oldham. But for the savings clubs, which are the very essence of thrift, many of them would not be able to secure that change of air and scenery so very necessary to rehabilitate a system enervated by a year's strenuous toil. Various calls would swallow up the small weekly contributions which are made to the funds, and at holiday time many would find themselves without the necessary facilities for a respite. All logical reasoning is opposed to the argument that people who exhibit sufficient thrift to save the whole year round would, in the course of a week, dissipate the fruits of this self-denial. A very cursory examination on the spot would soon dispel the fallacies. Tradesmen can speak of the few days preceding the holiday, when the funds are distributed, as among the most prosperous of the year, for with some of the money distributed articles of personal comfort are purchased or some desire for the improvement of the home gratified. Much of the money, too, is reinvested.

Holiday Railway Traffic.

The augmented staff of railway porters who have been drawn from other towns stare open-eyed, and wonder when the exodus is going to cease. The railway companies, dealing as they do with over 100,000 excursionists, have to make their strongest effort to cope with it. Naturally they make big returns during Wakes week, and it is to their advantage to compete with each other for business. Keen rivalry exists amongst them, and their special facilities for travelling are billed all over the town. Such demands on railways have inevitably cut the cost of travelling down to a minimum with the maximum of comfort. There is no other town in England perhaps where the population makes such a sudden and tremendous exit as in Oldham. Other towns and cities with larger populations seem to take their holidays at their leisure and go away at various periods during the season; but there are few places that approach Oldham in the number of people who leave on one day. To cope with such a gigantic task is herculean work on the part of the railway companies, but experience of previous years shows that they do their work well, and all is got over in the best possible way.

But the Wakes holiday in Oldham is not confined entirely to the mill operative class, as outsiders so frequently imagine. People from the highest point of the social ladder to the lowest rung will pursue the hunt for pleasure; and perhaps at Blackpool, the Isle of Man, or some other pleasure spot an alderman, magistrate, or councillor will jog elbows with the humblest ratepayer and mill operative. The great leveller has been at work, and class distinctions at the seaside are at a discount.

Some Social Facts.

The Lancashire lass, with the throwing off of her shawl and clogs, has forgotten that she hails from "Owdham." Many a hard-earned penny has gone in the laying in of a costume with which to appear smart at the seaside. Of course, she has a perfect right to spend her savings as she desires, and one can trust her that none will be really wasted. Much may go in vain frivolities, and in satisfying idle wishes; but this, it must be remembered, is the only time when she gets her full share of the world's pleasures. It all has an end and a purpose, and contributes to make the holiday a complete success. As a matter of fact, much can be learned by others from the way in which the Lancashire mill operative conducts herself on holiday.

Altogether Lancashire working people on holiday are a delightful crowd. They can never be described as "downhearted," and though merry and full of the gaiety which means so much in favour of a holiday, they are always orderly, and gain the respect and admiration of everyone.

But, separate and apart from the million who travel, over a million toilers remain who cannot, manage to save or afford to go to the sea. For this vast mass of human life the itinerant showman and novelty caterer provides, and the old historic fair-ground known as Tommyfield (the playground of Oldham lads and lassies from time immemorial) is the theatre of their effort.

On the eve of the fair, as we neared the main street and noted the trend of human life in the busy thoroughfares of the town, we were especially interested in the outward and visible signs of a whole town and people bent on taking a holiday.

The heart of a toil-worn people seeking rest—seeking not only rest from toil, but change, recreation, amusement, and some little joy of life.

The Enduring Power of the Wakes.

To the stay-at-home people Tommyfield, even on the eve of the fair, was the "Mecca" of their pilgrimage.

On Saturday, however, the main fair day, you would have been puzzled to realise that any exodus had taken place at all. From every railway station thousands came in to the town, for it must be ever remembered that Oldham is easy of access to dozens of busy centres of life, and that "Owdham Wakes" is dear to the heart of Lancashire. To visit Tommyfield is a local duty as well as a never-failing delight.

By five o'clock the streets looked very lively, and as time wore on crowds continued to arrive by trams and trains till nearly eight o'clock. Then, indeed, Oldham presented an animated picture. Nothing was dull or monotonous, and the amount of business done must have been enormous. Of course, it was in Tommyfield the principal portion of the amusement was centred. There the usual fair was again held, its attractions this year being more novel and pleasing than we have seen for a good while. Variety was almost endless as far as progress was concerned, but the old-time amusements which so delighted our ancestors seem to have been entirely lost sight of. There were gay charioteers after the Oriental fashion there in galore, but where was the rushcart and all its memorable associations? We know that old people would have very much preferred to see one there; it would have conjured up old thoughts; it would have brought them back to the past; but is the modern idea of recreation turned in another direction? It seems to be, and to meet the requirements of fashion modern inventions were requisitioned.

From seven o'clock till after eleven Tommyfield was packed to the extreme, standing space being at a premium, while at times it was rendered difficult to retain a position owing to the crushing of the human surging mass which pressed on and on from one variety to another till all taking part in it had seen the different displays. And no sooner had they made the way clear than they were succeeded by an equally numerous throng, walking along speechless, all eyes on the alert and all minds centred on the attractions around. The effect was quite panoramic, and one standing at the end of any of the long unoccupied passages which marked the boundary between one set of amusements and another, and from there surveying the multitude of faces, could witness a scene to delight the eye. With the brilliant light of the electric arcade lamps, and the glowing flames of the more modest gas, and the pleasing countenances of the throng, everything seemed in harmony and everyone seemed to be enjoying themselves.

Shows, Machines, and Novelties.

Col. Clark's Palace of Animated Photography, Capt. Tom Payne's New Electric Coliseum, P. Collins and Sons' Wonderland II., the Palace of Orpheus, and the same firm's set of Gordon-Bennett motor-cars, Westwood's Colonial giant boy and girl exhibition, Leyland's Empire pictures and varieties, Pattison's Dime Museum, and several interesting side-shows.

The Mitchell family exhibited their excellent machine sets—the motor-cars, the steam yachts, and the racing birds; and Messrs. John Green, John Collins, Wm. Holmes, Helm, and J. H. Geoghegan exhibited big machines—motors, gallopers, and steam horses; gem horses by S. Mercer, and S. Mallor, and swings by Platt.

Shooting Ranges and Novelty Frames.

As far as the fair-ground could accommodate them—and, in fact, the ground was overcrowded—minor novelties were displayed. These were in the capable hands (amongst many others) of Messrs. George Cornwell, R. Ingham, Martin, Hughes, Ormrod, Harrington, Platt, Matheson, Harrison Bros., and local caterers.

Roundabout Proprietors and Showmen's Union.

Following the important meeting at Oldham this week, the executive of the Union summon a meeting at Armley Feast at 2.30, on Tuesday next, Sept. 8. See advertisement for other particulars.

The Showman and the Snake.

Great excitement prevailed in a Berlin restaurant last week in account of the vagaries of a huge snake. It was dinner time, and the restaurant was crowded, when suddenly a mottled monster some 6ft. long dropped quietly, apparently from nowhere, into the centre of one of the largest tables. The scene was indescribable; ladies screamed, men uttered "donnerwetters," and chairs were overturned by the flying crowds. The snake alone remained unmoved, lying perfectly oblivious of the commotion which it had created. Finally a waiter bolder than the rest approached cautiously, others followed, and soon it was evident that the reptile was sound asleep. It seems that the reptile belonged to a showman who had a room on the floor above. It had escaped through a hole, and curled itself around the chandelier of the restaurant. The smoke of so many German cigars stupefied it, with the aforesaid result. The snake was captured without being awakened and restored to the showman.

INVENTIONS.

[The particulars furnished below of recent applications for patents are taken from the official records. Correspondence is invited with our readers on all matters relating to new ideas and inventions, with a view to affording them advice and assistance. Letters should be addressed to the Manager, Inventions Department, "The Era," 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, London.]

Inventors and others who have no business representative are invited to communicate with the Manager of the Inventions Dept. as above.

APPLICATIONS.

17,257.—Marion McAllister Paterson, of London. Improvements in targets.

17,307.—Moritz Lieske, of Hull. Improved merry-go-round.

17,326.—David Henderson Waddell, of London. Improved exit doors.

17,411.—James Francis Kendal, of London. Improvements in or connected with apparatus for exhibiting animated pictures.

17,473.—Edward Joshua Blackburn Scratton, of Glasgow. Improvements in and relating to gramophones and such-like instruments or talking machines.

17,487.—Hans Prieber, of London. Improvements in roundabouts.

17,645.—John Alexander Kennedy-McGregor and Edward William Bonson, of Knowle, Warwickshire. Improvements in toboggans, switchbacks, and the like.

17,678.—Alfred Hames, of London. Improvements in roundabouts for recreative purposes.

COMPLETE SPECIFICATIONS ACCEPTED.

18,638.—Mitchell. Target practice apparatus.

18,645.—Wertheim. Apparatus for exhibiting pictures or advertisements.

18,879.—Mitchell. Target practice apparatus.

23,818.—Robson. Optical lanterns and the regulation and control of light-producing agents, electric arcs, limelights, or the like, used in connection therewith, and apparatus therefor.

3,510.—Ross. Targets.

7,514.—Christensen. Apparatus for taking and representing living pictures on the multiple-colour method.

SPECIFICATION OPEN TO INSPECTION.

14,409.—Sallé. Means for producing theatrical effects.

ABRIDGMENTS OF SPECIFICATIONS.

9,665.—Emergency exit fasteners. Galley, J. G., of Leytonstone, Essex.

Single or double doors, for the emergency exits of theatres or other places, or for private houses, are fastened by a pair of spring-controlled bolts (b), which are shot by the cam (*a*1), rotated by the handle (*a*3), and locked by projections (j) engaging recesses (*h*1) in a sliding spring-controlled disk (h) connected to a push-bar (g). On operation of the push-bar (g), the bolts are withdrawn by the springs (c). The projections (j) are preferably formed on the cap (d) of a cylinder (a) integral with the cam (*a*1). The push-bar (g) may be replaced by a knob or button, and the handle (*a*3) by a ring with a milled edge.

9,770.—Targets. Phillips, H., of Plaistow, London.

A disk or wheel (a) is formed with recesses (*a*1) for receiving the shanks of targets (b) of pipeclay, glass, or other brittle material, and is rotated by a shaft (d) or otherwise from the firing position to bring one target at a time into view from behind a protecting plate (k), formed with a recess (*k*1). The targets are retained in position by springs (c) and can be readily replaced. Two or more wheels carrying targets may be driven simultaneously by a cross-shaft and bevel gearing (i). The shaft (d) may be mounted loosely on roller bearings and retained in position by U-shaped yokes.

9,801.—Games. Johnson, A., of Leeds.

A device to be used in playing the game consists of a representation of a kicking donkey. The figure is made of a number of parts suitably jointed, and it is fixed to a base (A) by a stay (S) at its back. It is retained in the standing position by a circular block (I) attached to a spring (J) engaged in a notch in the legs (H). A second spring, which is attached to the base (A) and a clip, draws the donkey's head downwards when the block (I) is caused to release the legs (H) by being struck by a pellet fired at it from a spring pistol by a player. On the back of the figure is mounted a boy (M) with one or more baskets in which are placed balls (B). When the block (I) is struck and the donkey kicks, the boy (M) is projected into a box (T), marked out into numbered squares. The score is counted by the numbers of the squares on which the balls come to rest.

URBANORA 420 WEEKS' RUN AT THE ALHAMBRA.

AN EXPLANATION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Notwithstanding the prominence given by the general trade and professional Press to the fact that Urbanora was withdrawn from the Alhambra Theatre by the Charles Urban Trading Co., Ltd., after a record run of 420 weeks, the impression seems to prevail in the trade generally, both at home and abroad, that the renewal of contract was declined by the Alhambra management. As this false impression is calculated to injure the reputation and business of the Charles Urban Trading Co., Ltd., the fact that the initiative was taken by this company cannot be too strongly put forward. Shortly before the expiration of contract a letter was sent to the Alhambra management stating that this company would not renew the agreement for a further period.

The Alhambra management, in giving publicity to the change of arrangement for filling the gap, made the statement that an open market of the world's animated picture productions is preferred by them to the monopoly they have enjoyed during the term of the Urbanora agreement.

Urbanora for eight years held its own as one of the chief drawing powers of Alhambra audiences.

Competition for attractive general items in a variety entertainment is just as keen as is that for the provision of motion pictures of a sufficiently drawing nature, yet the Alhambra management has for years given a practical monopoly of supply to one firm of agents! Even were the case otherwise, success in the motion-picture exhibit depends entirely upon the nature of the display. Urbanora has, from first to last, provided subjects which, on the unanimous vote of Press and public, have furnished the most attractive half-hour of the whole performance, not only drawing the audience, but keeping the seats well filled until the last picture left the screen. Greater Press publicity has also been accorded to the Alhambra by the very fact that the constant change of topical and other pictures secures constant journalistic notice of the theatre at which they were first and exclusively produced.

The Palace management, realising that better returns are possible by the inclusion of Urbanora in its bill than by any other known motion-picture method, have, as aforesaid, departed from the practice with which the Alhambra are now satisfied.

We are reluctantly compelled to make the above facts known, inasmuch as our trade competitors are endeavouring to make capital of the withdrawal by insinuating that we had no option in the matter, which is quite the reverse of the truth.

A SHOWMAN'S CLAIM.

Captain Lovelace, owner of the airship at the Franco-British Exhibition, was summoned at West London before Mr. Garrett, at the instance of Charles Mortlake Bentley, of 15, Sulgrave-road, Hammersmith, who claimed a sum of £6 6s. 8½., balance of wages due.

Complainant, who described himself as a showman, said he was engaged by Captain Lovelace as assistant mechanic at a weekly salary of £2 10s. He worked down to the 15th, when all work ceased, and he was only paid £2.

James Hamilton, manager to Captain Lovelace, stated that the complainant was engaged as an "outside" man at the show, and was told that the limit of wages was £2 a week, but that if he did extra work in connection with the show he would be paid accordingly. He did a little odd work, such as putting screws in, &c.

Complainant, recalled, denied that his wages were only £2 a week. When they told him that the limit of wages was £2 he said he was engaged at another show, viz., "Pharaoh's Daughter," at £2 10s., and he could not take less money. As regards the mechanical work he did, he made stays for the airship and assisted with the others in filling the balloon.

Mr. Menchen, manager of "Pharaoh's Daughter," was called, and denied that he ever engaged Bentley.

The magistrate made an order on the defendant to pay £4, with 2s. costs.

Captain Lovelace: I should like to say, sir, that after the disaster occurred to the airship I called all my men together, and I said, "Boys, I have £30 in the bank, and I am willing to divide it amongst you." I paid them each £2, and I should have paid them more later, but the insurance company will not pay until after the inquest, which has been adjourned to Sept. 7.

The Magistrate: That showed good feeling on the part of your men, and of course everyone sympathises with you; but legally this complainant is entitled to the money.

MR. HORACE SHELDON, son of Mr. Sheldon, of Aberdeen and Dundee, who has been the musical conductor at the Willesden Hippodrome since the opening, has been deputising at the Holborn for Mr. Sales, who has been on a holiday, and has now gone to the Canterbury.

FILM GOSSIP.

Showmen and Managers throughout the United Kingdom, and in every English-speaking country, will find in this column particulars of some of the best and newest Films in the Market. Many of these Films we have seen ourselves, and can confidently recommend showmen to add them to their list of attractions.

Charles Urban Trading Co., Ltd.

THE GOLD PROSPECTOR is a film which reveals to us a thrilling drama, teeming with exciting situations and full of incident, realistically enacted amidst most picturesque scenery of mining camp and forest. The photographic quality is perfect, remarkable stereoscopic effects being presented. The story, which enthralls and holds the audience breathless from the opening scene to the denouement, is one of exceptional interest, relating to the receipt of good news by a miner, a rich legacy, a rival's usurpation of his character and personality, a foul attempt at murder, sympathetic treatment of the wounded man by rude but kindly hands, and remorse of the usurper, unhappy in his illegal prosperity. Restored to health, the real legatee follows the villain, and a powerful and dramatic scene of denunciation, confession, and restitution concludes the series.

WITH THE TERRITORIALS ON SALISBURY PLAIN.—In this we are given the British Home Army in pictures, including remarkable representations of life in camp. Citizen soldiers and regular troops arrive, pitch their tents, retire, and emerge newly awakened by the réveillé bugle. In vigorous manly, and martial exercises troops of every arm of the service enjoy to the full the health-giving, pleasant, and profitable fortnight recently spent on Salisbury Plain. Part I. of this series deals with infantry. In it we see the camp of the South Midland Division at Netheravon, a Surrey battalion on the march, 23rd Battalion County of London erecting tents, the Inns of Court, after kit inspection, returning kits to the tents, guard-tent of the East Surrey Battalion sentry-go, réveillé, and the early morning ablutions. The series is interesting, amusing, and instructive.

EXTRACTION OF POISON FROM A VENOMOUS SNAKE.—The other day a private experiment was carried out at the studios of the Charles Urban Trading Co. Osca, the snake-handler, produced a four-foot spreading adder in very angry mood, and pictures were taken at close quarters of the deadly reptile. Securely held, the creature expanded its head and "struck," ejecting its poisonous fluid into a receptacle held in readiness. The fact that the greatest care is necessary in handling venomous snakes, even by experts, was proved by Osca, who held out for inspection a scarce-healed forefinger which had been struck by the same adder a few days previously. Osca, immediately he felt the puncture, bit a piece out of his own finger and sucked the wound. "Otherwise," he remarked, "I should have been a dead man in a quarter of an hour." This ejection of deadly venom by a poisonous reptile forms one of a series of fascinating snake subjects secured by the Charles Urban Trading Co. which will be published immediately.

URBANORA AT THE PALACE THEATRE.—There has just been included in the Urbanora exhibit at the Palace Theatre an exclusive and stirring series of animated pictures of the operations of the Territorial Army on Salisbury Plain. A cable from Geneva, by the way, states that Mr. Ormiston Smith, the climbing cinematographer of the Urban Co., ascending the Jungfrau last week with four Grindelwald guides to take animated pictures for Urbanora at this theatre, encountered near the summit four young German Alpinists, including two women, crouching in holes in the ice and half dead from exposure and exhaustion. With great difficulty the operator and his guides got the Germans to the Concordia hut, where, after three days' medical treatment, they were sufficiently restored to be removed to Grindelwald. But for the timely arrival of the Bioscopists the doctor who still has the case in hand states that the tourists would certainly have perished from the cold. These should be scenes to evoke enthusiasm in Palace audiences in the near future.

Pathé Frères.

WONDERFUL FERTILIZER.—Here we are treated to an intensely comical Pathé production. The story is as follows:—A scientist has just discovered a lotion possessed of the power of transforming sap into spontaneous and luxuriant vegetation. In his rapture he tells his house-porter of his great discovery, and in order to test the new invention, he besprinkles the worthy man's nose with the liquid, and pimples grow on it, to the amazement of the porter. The scientist goes out, followed by quite a crowd of people eager to hear of and test the virtue of the stuff. A drunkard coming home with a small rose tree he has just bought for his wife's birthday stops short in front of the bottle, which he appropriates; but as he drinks it the hair immediately covers his face, while the puny rose tree of a while ago, which has received a few drops of the wonderful lotion, assumes the proportions of a tree. The drunkard's wife is less flattered by this cumbersome present than cross at sight of her shaggy husband, to whom she shows by blows what she thinks of him. The scientist, having been able to secure the bottle again, pours out a few drops of its contents into the hand of a woman, and lo! there she sees a big cabbage, and inside, a small baby.

A ROMAN IDYLL is of the dramatic and realistic order. Saphora, the proud and beautiful daughter of one of the most ancient and noble families of Rome, has fallen in love with a plebeian, Marcus Petrus, who is renowned for his strength and beauty. But Marcus Petrus is engaged to Lydie, a girl of his own class, and Saphora cannot make him love her. As she learns the secret of her failure, she thinks she can still bring Marcus to her feet. One day Lydie, with a pitcher on her shapely shoulder, is going to fetch water among the beautiful scenery of the country around Rome when Saphora has her taken by her slaves and thrown into a dark dungeon, where the poor girl thinks with despair that she is going to die slowly. A kindly slave has pity on her, and Marcus, having been informed by him of the whereabouts of his sweetheart, comes and sets her free, after which he inflicts on Saphora the very same treatment she had been so near imposing on her young victim. She is thrown alive into the horrible dungeon, and the story does not say whether she ever escaped her dismal fate.

DONKEY-SKIN.—Thus may this fairy-tale be told. Once upon a time there was a king so beloved of his people and so charming in every way that it was not too much to say he was absolutely the greatest favourite of living monarchs. But as the vicissitudes of life do not respect kings more than their subjects, trouble came at last to this household. The queen was seized with a very serious illness, so terrible and so grave that science could do no good whatever. When she died there was general desolation throughout the Court and kingdom. The king could do nothing but bemoan his fate. But even great sorrows cannot last for ever. At length the Ministers of State gathered round the king and told him he must re-marry, as a prince was necessary to quiet the nation and finally set matters right. The king promised to think it over and see if he could please them. Unhappily, however, he took into his head that not only was his daughter, the Infanta, very beautiful and intelligent, but even more charming and delightful than her mother had been; and he went to her and told her he had made up his mind that she must marry him. The young princess, virtuous and modest, was much concerned when she heard the news, and ran to her godmother, the fairy of the Lilacs. This fairy advised her to ask her impossible lover to get her a dress as bright as the sun, or otherwise she would not listen to him. The king, on hearing this, summoned the cleverest workmen of the time, and told them what he wanted, and that within twenty-four hours. Seeing this was likely to be accomplished, the young girl ran again to her good fairy, who told her this time to ask for the skin of a donkey whose stable every morning was covered in gold sufficient to supply the needs of the whole royal household. Alas! though the king was much surprised, this, even, was not impossible; and the young princess, in desperation, decided to run away in the donkey-skin, which disguised her entirely. She ran ever so far away, and was found by a farmer's wife, who was looking for just such a girl as she to wash the dishes and help with the pigs and poultry. On a certain fête day, having put on her bright sun-coloured coat, a prince saw her, fell in love with her, and went direct to his father's palace. He was so much in love, indeed, that he was rendered quite ill. He asked his mother, who begged him to tell her the cause of his sudden illness, to let him have a cake made by Donkey-skin. Inside the cake he found a tiny ring that the Infanta had dropped, and he declared he would marry none other than the girl whose finger would fit the ring, whoever she might be. The princess was the last to be called, and the ring slipped on her finger quite easily. The marriage took place with great rejoicing.

THE SAILOR'S DOG.—The fisherman's faithful dog is running to the beach, sniffing the wind the while—this dreadful wind, which brings on its wings death to the head of the small family whose little cottage can be seen in the distance. The dog's instinct has not played him false, for after a short time he discovers the body of his master, thrown there by the tide and half hidden by the sand and seaweed. He takes his master's cap in his mouth and comes back to the little cottage, thus imparting to the widow the horrible tidings of her bereavement.

Gaumont Company.

THE DOG'S REVENGE.—A mother and child alight from a light cart drawn by a large dog and enter their house. They leave the cart in the street, where it is quickly espied by a rough-looking man dragging a heavy barrow. This individual hastens to transfer the dog to the shafts of his own vehicle, in which he seats himself and forces the dog to pull him up-hill. The animal resents the ill-treatment meted out to him, and resolutely tries to bring about a disaster, and the tramp has a series of narrow escapes, finally finding himself before the house of the dog's mistress once more in a highly exhausted state, where he receives corporal punishment from the real owners of the animal.

THE TRAITOR.—The soldier son of a poor couple, living in the country, is seen leaving home for barracks. On the way he falls in with two men who ply him with drink, and obtain a promise that he will secure some valuable plans of government fortifications for them. This the soldier is seen doing in subsequent scenes, and with his booty deserts and makes his way to the frontier, stopping at his own house on the way to obtain some of his possessions. Here he is followed by his old father, who manages to get the plans from him. But a sentry who sees them fires at the younger man with fatal effect.

OUR INDIAN EMPIRE.—This is a most attractive series, dealing as it does in interesting fashion with the people, the place, the life, and the principal features of the great cities in our Eastern Dependency.

Nordisk Films Co.

BEAR-HUNTING is the title of a film which introduces scenes of exciting incidents. We see the party's progress through the forest, the loading of their guns, and the dividing into two companies for the purpose of reconnoitring the district. The first bear is soon sighted. It stands peacefully enjoying the sunshine on an enormous granite block. With a well-directed shot the mighty fellow is felled to the ground. The peasants cover the booty with branches, mark the place, and go away. Both hunting parties have splendid results to show after an exciting hunt. In all five powerful animals have been killed. The third one comes into view so suddenly and so close to the hunter that he has no time to make use of his gun, but is obliged to attack with his spear. Mortally wounded by terrible stabs, the bear darts hither and thither between the rocks and the trees, where he finally falls to the ground, hit by a well-aimed shot through the head. On lath-sledges, which are made on the spot, the powerful animals are now dragged to the camp, where the hunters indulge in a luxurious lunch.

THE Corporation of Wimbledon have granted Mr. Alfred H. Botwright the use of the Baths Hall, Latimer-road, every Saturday night for eighteen weeks, from Nov. 14, for the purpose of running popular entertainments, at which the Walturdaw World's Bioscope will be the leading feature.

Edison Manufacturing Co., Ltd.

TALES THE SEARCHLIGHT TOLD.—Leaving out of the question the comedy and picture value, the panoramic bird's-eye view and illumination at night make this film unique. It gives us a picture of Coney Island—that great pleasure-ground of the New Yorker—and places before us the experiences of the farmer on a round of sight-seeing. We are introduced during the daylight to the numerous diversions operated to draw the money from the pleasure-seeker, and, as darkness descends, the process of lighting up. Now from the port of observation our farmer friend follows the searchlight, and, being humoured by the operator, cuts some funny antics as a result of his observations. As a result the unexpected happens, and the observation tower is invaded by indignant visitors. These mob the searchlight operator, and punish him by dipping him repeatedly in the sea, where he is discovered by his whilom friend, the farmer, who tries his hand at operating the light.

THE Sheffield Photo Co. are taking a special and exclusive film of the race for the St. Leger. It should be eagerly featured by all showmen.

The White City, Old Trafford.

ALTHOUGH the weather has been more like April than August, there are times when large crowds seek amusement in this beautiful park. The splendid ballroom receives much patronage from people fond of dancing, and the fancy-dress carnival this week drew a "full house." The skating rink, under the superintendence of Prof. Alec Payne, a well-known champion skater, is also very popular. Princess Trixie, the wonderfully educated mare, draws full houses at every performance. The Phillipine natives—Bontoc Igorrotes—continue to gain in popularity. Professor Sergeant, with his clever illusion exhibition by Cleopatra, the Egyptian wonder, completely mystifies the crowded houses; and the scenic railway, figure 8 railway, Hale's tours of the world, the Katzenjammer Castle, and the many other amusements are often taxed to their utmost capacity.

ELEPHANTS' WATER CHUTE.

MR. GUSTAVE HAGENBECK, the proprietor of the elephants which "chute the chute" in the Indian Arena at the White City, has received the following letter from Mr. Hew Dalrymple-Clark, who is described as a well-known authority on the elephants of India:—

Dear Sir,—I am in receipt of your letter of Aug. 24 regarding the elephants "chuting the chute" at the Franco-British Exhibition, and asking me if, in my opinion, there is anything unnatural in such a performance, or if it is an act which necessitates any cruelty in its production. "Verbum sat sapienti." Your elephants are in magnificent condition, and no amount of feeding would produce such condition if cruelty were used to them.

To make or induce an elephant to slide down an inclined plane into water is making or inducing it to do nothing that it does not frequently do of its own free will in its natural and wild state. I have frequently seen whole herds of wild elephants slide down steep places in hills and down cliff banks of rivers into water.

In my opinion it may be less useful but it is no more cruel to make or persuade an elephant to "chute the chute" than it is to make a donkey go in harness. The amount of persuasion I have seen used at your performance is as cruel as touching a horse with a whip.—Yours faithfully, HEW DALRYMPLE-CLARK.

P.S.—Perhaps I had better add that neither you nor any of your people knew when I was present watching your elephants, with the exception of my visit yesterday.—H. D.-C.

A "PORTABLE" CONSUMED.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Will you kindly insert an appeal in your paper on behalf of Mr. William Kelso, portable theatre proprietor, whose theatre was burnt down yesterday, Sept. 1, damage being done to the extent of £200, and who is now not only ruined but lying on a bed of sickness, having been severely burnt about the face and hands in his heroic endeavours to save his property. It will be some considerable time before he is able to use his hands again.

Mr. William Kelso is an old performer, and well known to the profession, and I feel sure that his brother and sister artists and managers will rally round him, and do their best to put him on his feet again. He has now lost all and cannot help himself, being laid upon a bed of sickness and unable to move, and he has a wife and three children depending upon him.

Trusting you will allow subscriptions to be sent to your office, and thanking you for your kindness.—Faithfully yours,

J. B. SOMERSET.

Dumbarton Fair.

A SHOWMAN correspondent sends us the following interesting report of Dumbarton and its fair:—"The dominating feature of Dumbarton is its historic Castle, dating back to the fifth century. At one time it held the famous Wallace sword, but by order of the War Office the sword was sent to its present resting-place, the Castle of Sterling. The ancient burgh is also famous in more modern times as the builder of Shamrocks (not limericks), built to the order of Sir Thomas Lipton, with the intention of winning the America Cup. It is to be hoped that the next Shamrock from Dumbarton toon will bring back the Cup. Now for the fair. Present were Henderson's up-to-date Scottish cinematograph, Clark's ghost illusion, Biddall's circus, Wingate's cinematograph, Chipperfield's menagerie, Johnson's circus, Newton's varieties, Montana Bill's Wild West. Machines were worthily represented by Mr. John Wilmot's Scottish steeplechase, also his splendid motors and tunnel railway, Howard's steam yachts, Wingate's bicycles, juvenile horses by John Wilmot, jun., and Talbot. Stalls and varieties were represented by Henry Strand, John MacKindre, Matchett Wright, Wilmot, jun., Mackintosh, Caddick, Steen, Mrs. A. Strand, James Day, George Brockley, H. Knowles, J. Anderson, Moores, Knight, and Graham. On Thursday evening of the fair a concert was held, by kind permission of Mr. Henderson, in his cinematograph exhibition, towards the funds for opposing the Movable Dwellings Bill. The concert was organised and carried out successfully by daughters of the fair, Miss Ellen and Miss Elizabeth Wilmot, in conjunction with Miss Amelia Strand. It says something for the rising generation when the ladies take up the cause of Trade Defence. In spite of drastic legislation, there is a future for the showman. What a galaxy of talent, twenty artists, and every song well rendered! The following artists appeared:—Sandy McQuade, Scotch comedian; Misses Amelia, Martha, May, and Clara Strand, Miss Emily Clarke and Miss Rebecca Henderson, Messrs. McLoughlin, Henderson, Glover, Dixon, Stringer, Docherty, Ross, Mackie Russell, and our own inimitable Irish comedian Dan Kelly. The proceeds amounted to £1 16s., which has been forwarded to our chaplain, the Rev. T. Horne, for the Defence Fund. Hoping to hear of more concerts and better results is the earnest wish of 'A Showman.'"

Animals Named by Actresses.

FOUR charming actresses chose names for four of the strangest "babies" imaginable at Bostock's animal arena, Earl's Court, on Thursday, Sept. 3. Attired in a pretty robe, a baby alligator, which Miss Winifred Hare decided to call "Mabel," did not appreciate the ceremony, and struggled hard to escape from the arms of its sponsor. The baby lion, thoughtfully provided with a feeding-bottle, on the contrary, behaved exceedingly well and showed obvious delight when Miss Millie Hylton informed it that its name was to be "Carnegie." The sea-lion calf, to which Miss Madge Temple gave the name of "Flip Flap," was in a bad temper and was glad to get back to its aquatic nursery, while a hairy young sloth was not sufficiently interested in its name, which Miss Annie Braddon decided should be "Esau," to wake up during the ceremony.

A GRAND fancy dress carnival and confetti fête will be held at the Crystal Palace on Wednesday next, commencing at 7 p.m., and some handsome prizes will be given. An entirely new variety show will be given twice daily during next week, the programme including Astley's American Circus. For the week commencing Sept. 14 Mr. W. D. Mackenzie and company will pay a return visit with their popular entertainment Moments with the Masters.

FOR the annual outing of the employees of the New Brighton Tower an excursion will be made to Blackpool on the Monday following the closing of the Park on Saturday, Oct. 3. The employees have had a savings club for several weeks, and without exception every person engaged at the Park has been a member; not only the employees of the Park but practically all the concessioners and their employees have joined in, and the excursion and picnic to Blackpool will be perhaps the most successful ever given from this end of the peninsula.

MR. W. MOULD, of the Central Palace, North Shields, has had 5,000 copies printed of the "Old Collier's Story," a song sung by Jimmy Shields, and from the pen of J. W. Hall. The song is being sold at one penny each, and the whole of the proceeds will be devoted to the Wigan fund.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow:

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON,
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. MATTON WHARTON,
Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT BULMER,
The Empire, Liverpool.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT MITCHELL,
Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. J. CHRISTIE,
Empire Theatre, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

JUST AN IDEA.

"What has become of the Laureates of the Music Hall stage?" Thus enquires the "Daily Telegraph" of Aug. 29, 1908, and further adds that an accomplished vocalist complains, more in sorrow than in anger, that, although she is willing to pay a high price for a good song, she is quite unable to obtain that commodity.

SAY NOT SO, FAIR MAIDEN.

Come to the Home of Melody and Song,

WITMARK'S

and let us pour sweet strains of music in thine ear.

WE HAVE NO PRICE—HIGH OR LOW.

We will devote our time and attention to finding you a vehicle with which to exploit your talents if you will take the same time and trouble to hear our gems of song. We will again suggest to you that "the" SONG makes the singer and the SINGER makes the SONGS. We would call your attention to the most popular song in Great Britain to-day,

"LOVE ME AND THE WORLD IS MINE."

Perhaps you have heard it?

Our catalogue is so extensive and our novelties are published in such rapid succession that we are enabled to reserve exclusively FROM OUR NEW ISSUES for a certain time any number suited to your style of work. Come and hear them. We have a staff of pianists ready and willing to demonstrate our publications and to fit you with a suitable song, WITHOUT MONEY and WITHOUT PRICE. Do not procrastinate, but come at once. Make an appointment with our Manager, hear the beautiful strains of our infectious melodies, select the song most suitable to your requirements, and go your way rejoicing. Do not bring your cheque-book. We do not need the money.

NOTE.—Our Recent Successes.

"SOMEBODY'S BEEN ROUND HERE SINCE I'VE BEEN GONE." Sung by Mr. EUGENE STRATTON.
"JUST SOME ONE." Sung by Miss LIL HAWTHORNE.
"SOME DAY YOU'LL COME BACK TO ME." Sung by Miss EDITH COURTNEY.
"FADED ROSE." Sung by Miss MEREDITH MEREDRO.

NEW NUMBERS.

"LOVE MAKE MY DREAMS COME TRUE." "IN GRANDMA'S DAYS," and a beautiful harmonising number by ERNEST R. BALL,
"YOU'VE ALWAYS BEEN THE SAME OLD PAL."

THE BOY WHO STUTTERED AND THE GIRL WHO LISPED.

An absolute sensation as sung by MISS LIL HAWTHORNE. An immense success wherever sung.
NOTE.—Miss Lil Hawthorne has the exclusive singing rights for Music Halls of "The Boy who Stuttered and the Girl who Lisped" and "Just Some One."

Note to all.—Enclose 7 Stamps and Programme for Professional PIERROT PACKET. Otherwise silence a polite negative.

THIS WEEK'S NOVELTIES.

THE RIVAL CABBIES.

Code Word, "EPHEBE."

It is a fact that the more women clamour for their rights, the more men are against them, for they think they are taking their places, and very often one can witness in the street an amusing scene such as the one depicted below. A cabman refuses to drive a cabwoman, whom he thinks an unfair competitor, and he uses the most awful language in order to emphasise his arguments. The policemen have to come up and try to make them cease their noise and disturbance. But, because she is pretty, the "cabby" after a time gives in, and peace is restored between the two rivals.

165ft. The Subject, £2 15s. 0d. Toning, 6s.

DONKEY-SKIN.

Code Word, "EMBARDEE."

Once upon a time there was a king who, being a widower, was made to think about marrying again in order that there should be an heir to the throne. Unhappily, he took it into his head that his daughter, who was so beautiful and charming, should marry him. But she ran to her god-mother, who was a fairy, and the latter advised her to ask her impossible lover for a dress as bright as the sun, or otherwise she would not listen to him. Seeing that her wish was likely to be granted, she went back to the good fairy, and this time she was advised to ask for the skin of a donkey whose stable every morning was covered in gold sufficient to supply the needs of the whole royal household. As this second wish of hers was also complied with, the young princess, in desperation decided to run away in the donkey-skin, which disguised her entirely. She ran ever so far, and was found by a farmer's wife, and was made to wash the dishes and help with the pigs and poultry. On a certain fête day, having put on her bright sun-coloured coat, a prince saw her, and was so much in love with her that he was rendered quite ill. Having asked for a cake made by donkey-skin, he found in it a tiny ring that the princess had dropped, and he declared that he would marry none other than the girl whose finger would fit the ring. The princess was the last called, and as the ring slipped on her finger quite easily, the marriage took place with great rejoicings, which lasted three months.

THE SAILOR'S DOG.

Code Word, "ESTHETE."

The fisherman's faithful dog is running to the beach, sniffing the wind the while. His instinct has not played him false, for after a short time he discovers the body of his master, thrown there by the tide, and half-hidden by the sand and sea-weed. He takes in his mouth his master's cap, and comes back to the little cottage to impart to the widow the horrible tidings of her bereavement.

264ft. The Subject, £4 8s. 0d. Toning, 10s.

THE WORRIES OF KING SLAP-ON-THE-HEAD.

Code Word, "ENSEIGNE."

Young Noodle, the son of an unknown magician, is so much in love with the king's daughter that he must propose for her hand. The king, furious, shows the impertinent the door. But he had reckoned without the magician's power, which can be felt from a distance, and which takes the form of a daily flogging, at all and any hour of the day. Life is not worth living for the king, with such a punishment always threatening him, and he at last gives his consent to his daughter marrying the more than tiresome young man.

676ft. The Subject, £11 5s. 4d. Toning, £1 4s.

A ROMAN IDYLL.

Code Word, "ESPRIT."

Saphora, a proud and beautiful Roman patrician, is in love with the plebeian Marcus Petrus; but as Marcus is engaged to Lydie, a girl of his own class, Saphora has no chance of bringing him to her feet. One day Lydie, with a pitcher on her shapely shoulders is going to fetch water, when Saphora has her taken by her slaves, and thrown into a dark dungeon, where the poor girl thinks with despair that she is going to die slowly. Yet a kindly slave has pity on the prisoner, and he informs Marcus of her whereabouts. After setting her free, Marcus inflicts on Saphora the very same treatment she had planned for her young victim. She is thrown alive into the horrible dungeon, and the story does not say whether she ever escaped.

WONDERFUL FERTILISER.

Code Word, "EPISODE."

A scientist has just discovered a lotion possessed of a wonderful quality, that of transforming sap into spontaneous and luxuriant vegetation. He tries his stuff on several people, with the most comical results. Here it is a man whose top hat becomes about a yard higher, there it is a lady who grows a beard, or a drunkard, whose rose-tree just bought for his wife's birthday becomes as high as a big cherry-tree, &c., &c. Very amusing.

495ft. The Subject, £3 5s. 0d.

THE KINDLY GENDARME.

Code Word, "EPINGLE."

Gendarme Quid is the friend of all the poor in his village; the peasants love him, and "have" him, too, for he is very indulgent to the high road tramp, as well as to the old woman gathering twigs for the coming winter. It is also with a merry twinkle in his eyes that he looks at boys and girls going out on a fine day; but good old Gendarme Quid is also fearless, and he does not hesitate to throw himself between the hooligan and his victim when needs be.

LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT.

Code word, "ESSAIM."

In the street a lady passes a gentleman, who looks at her, and follows at once, muttering softly to himself: "This girl or none." With the complicity of the maid, he comes into her house, disguised as a hairdresser, then as a plumber. But he is soon found out, and the maid is dismissed. The young lover secures her place for himself; but here he has to contend with all sorts of unexpected happenings, and the film ends with his being found out again, amongst very amusing circumstances.

660ft. The Subject, £11 0s. 0d.

UNCLE'S FORTUNE.

Code Word, "EPREUVE."

An uncle, on his return from America, where he has made his fortune as a planter, and anxious to make out his will in favour of the most worthy of his nephews, tells them he is poor. After being welcomed by some and repelled by others, he knows their feelings towards him sufficiently well to make his will in such a way that each of them receives his due.

643ft. The Subject, £10 14s. 4d. Toning, £1.

HURRAH FOR FREEDOM!

Code Word, "ESSAYAGE."

A gentleman, after delivering a speech on the topic of liberty and freedom, lets loose dogs, and pigeons, and rabbits, captive balloons, &c. He also sets a motor-car in motion, and releases the drunkards which are being marched off between two policemen. But the result of all his well-meant actions is for him a series of blows and a small cell at the police station, where he has plenty of time and a good opportunity for shouting: "Hurrah for freedom!"

362ft. The Subject, £6 0s. 8d.

MAGIC album.

Code Word, "ESCAPADE."

A magician receives the visit of an old marquis who is anxious to know his tricks. He takes a large book, on which several people silhouette themselves; then they become alive and step out of the album, performing at the same time funny and amusing pantomime, to the delight of the nobleman.

Yachting in the Solent.

The "Germania" winning the German Emperor's Cup, &c. Exhilarating and breezy incidents of the most memorable Cowes Week ever celebrated. Swallows of the yachting world—"Britomart," "Carina," "Cicely," "Creole," "Meteor," "Shamrock," and other racers of all classes, with magnificent spread of canvas, skim gracefully past the camera, cleaving their way through rough seas with beautiful and realistic effects of rising and falling waters which impart to the onlookers a sense of actual motion. No. 2244. Code, "Cleave." Length 370ft. Price £6 3s. 4d.

Motor Boat Race from Paris to the Sea

A remarkable journey, remarkably performed and superbly illustrated. The competing boats make a wild start, and travel at exhilarating rate past the picturesque towns and villages on the river banks until the passage through the Flood Gates at Targerville is reached. After a slight pause the journey is resumed, and again a sense of rapid and breezy motion is experienced as the open sea is reached and the strange little vessels flit hither and thither like things of life.

No. 4067. Code, "Flit." Length 335ft. Price £5 11s. 8d.

UNUSUAL AND ORIGINAL SNAKE SUBJECTS.

Indian Python and Wild Rabbits.

A twelve-foot python awakes from its torpor to find three rabbits playing in its enclosure. After curious investigation both snake and rodents play harmlessly for a time. Ultimately a rabbit is "struck," and the process of dislocation of the python's jaws, as well as the muscular motions of its trunk as the carcase is assimilated are minutely recorded.

No. 2242. Code, "Coil." Length 390ft. Price £6 10s.

Extracting Venom from the Fangs of a Puff Adder.

A short film, but an excellent scientific demonstration of the extraction of deadly poison from the venomous puff adder. A close view of the open mouth discloses the fangs which, on release, are angrily dug against the sides of a china receptacle held to receive the ejected poison. Methods employed in snake catching are also illustrated. No. 2241. Code, "Adder." Length 100ft. Price £1 13s. 4d.

THEATRE ROYAL, WHITEHAVEN,
FOR SALE.

TO BE SOLD BY AUCTION,

by MESSRS. JACKSON and MURRAY, at their MART, WHITEHAVEN,
on THURSDAY, the 17th of SEPTEMBER,
at 3·0 p.m.,
The Freehold Property known as
THE THEATRE ROYAL,

Situate in Roper-street, Whitehaven, lately occupied by Mr. Joseph Clark, Lessee thereof, with frontage to Roper-street 65ft. 6in. and extending backwards 70ft., together with the yard behind the same, and also all the Furniture, Fixtures, Fittings, Scenery, Stage Accessories, Stock Properties, and other effects of the Vendors therein.

The Theatre is a substantial stone structure, with ornamental porch, and it contains spacious Auditorium, Stage, Dressing-rooms, Property-rooms, Refreshment Bars, Offices, &c. The Auditorium affords seating accommodation for 600, and comprises Stalls, Pit, Private Boxes, Dress Circle, Upper Circle, and Gallery. The Stage is in depth 26ft., in width 43ft. 10in., and in height 20ft. 4in. to the "flies," and 33ft. 5in. to the "gridiron." There are five Dressing-rooms, two Property-rooms, and two Refreshment Bars.

The Premises are conveniently situated, and have been successfully used as a Theatre for many years past, and the rent paid by the outgoing Lessee was £200 per annum. Certain alterations required by the Corporation of Whitehaven as to additional Exits, &c., can be carried out at a moderate cost.

There being no other Theatre in Whitehaven, or in the wide district between Workington, on the North, and Barrow-in-Furness, on the South, the present sale affords an exceptional opportunity for enterprising theatrical managers.

Immediate possession can be given. Mr. John Tyson, 11a, King-street, Whitehaven, House Agent, will show the property. For Conditions of Sale and further particulars apply to
MUSGRAVE AND McKELVIE,
Solicitors, Whitehaven;
or to
BROWN, AULD, AND BROWN,
Solicitors, Whitehaven.

PALACE, CLACTON-ON-SEA.
FOR SALE.—Bicycle Circus, Halstead's Roundabout (12 Jumping Horses and 4 Motor-cars), Race Game (Les Petits Chevaux), Aeroflyte (4 wires), La Mort, and 6 other Illusions, Universe Bioscope Resistances, 2 sheets. New this season. Offers to Secretary, as above. Delivery after Sept. 12.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1908.
Morning Advertiser, Jan. 20:—
That very useful, one might with truth add indispensable, publication, "The Era" Annual, has once again made its welcome appearance, and once again it is crowded with information concerning the theatrical doings of the past year. Those who purchase it (it is sold at the modest price of 1s.) will have in their possession a complete and succinct history of the year's drama in this country, and a record of the plays produced in Paris and Berlin. As an appetising hors d'œuvre to the solid information, the book contains a number of interesting short stories and amusing anecdotes by well-known actors and theatrical managers.

THE ROYAL COURT THEATRE
ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES, WARRINGTON, LANCASHIRE.
DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.

TO BE SOLD BY AUCTION

by MR. W. H. ROBINSON, at the ALBION HOTEL, PICCADILLY, MANCHESTER, on TUESDAY, the 15th Day of SEPTEMBER, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon prompt, subject to Conditions of Sale to be then and there produced.

LOT 1.

THE ROYAL COURT THEATRE,
Situate in Rylands-street, Warrington, Lancashire.
The site contains 965 square yards, or thereabouts, with a frontage of about 33 yards to Rylands-street.
This Lot is leasehold, and held for the residue of a term of 999 years from the 2nd day of July, 1860, subject to the payment of the yearly ground rent of £15 6s. 7d.
The property occupies a most central position in Warrington, which is a town of 70,000 inhabitants.
The Theatre is absolutely up to date, having been rebuilt last year from plans prepared by Mr. F. Bennett Smith, F.R.I.B.A. It is thoroughly equipped for the most elaborate dramatic and stage representations, is fully licensed, and contains, besides the usual Auditorium, with Circle and Gallery, two Bars, 10 splendid Dressing-rooms (heated), three property-rooms, engine-room (containing gas engine (National, 1907) and complete electrical plant), and four extra rooms under stage. The Theatre is beautifully decorated, is brilliantly lighted by electricity generated on the premises, duplicated by a complete system of gas lighting throughout, and is heated by hot water, well ventilated, and capable of accommodating 1,800 persons.
The purchaser shall take over all the Bookings from the date of the completion of the purchase, a list whereof can be inspected at the Offices of the undermentioned Manchester Solicitors 14 days prior to the date of the sale, and shall also take over the wet stock and cigars which shall be upon this Lot at the time of the completion of the purchase at a valuation, as provided by the Conditions of Sale.

LOT 2.

THE ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES
(previously known as the "Theatre Royal"), situate in Scotland-road, Warrington.
This Lot is freehold of inheritance and free from chief rent.
This Theatre has a dramatic licence. It was built in 1883, re-seated and decorated in 1907 by Messrs. Dean, of Birmingham, and contains Pit and Pit Stalls, Centre Circle, and Side Circles. During the past 4½ years it has been run with great success on the two-houses-a-night system. The existing Bookings do not extend beyond the date to be fixed for completion of the purchase.
The purchaser of each Lot shall take over the scenery, loose furniture, and trade utensils, chattels, and effects in and upon the premises included in the Inventory thereof signed by the Auctioneer, at a Valuation to be declared at the time of Sale. The Inventories may be inspected 14 days prior to the date of sale at the Offices of the undermentioned Manchester Solicitors, from whom, also, orders to view the Theatres can be obtained.
For further particulars apply to the Auctioneer, Cromwell Buildings, 11, Blackfriars-street, Manchester; Messrs. Henry Greenall and Co., Solicitors, Warrington; Messrs. Nasmith, Coutts, and Co., Chartered Accountants, 40, Brazennose-street, Manchester; or to MESSRS. LAWSON, COPPOCK, AND HART,
Solicitors.
18, Tib-lane, Cross-street, Manchester.

By Order of the Receiver.

PETERBOROUGH.

WINSLOW'S RINK SKATES FOR MEN FITTED WITH "WEB" STEEL BALL BEARING ROLLS.

WINSLOW'S Skates

THE BEST ICE AND ROLLER SKATES

The Standard of the World for more than Fifty Years. Are used in all the best Rinks in the United States, and the greatest number of Rinks everywhere. Are noted for speed, beauty, strength and durability. Roller Skating is more popular to-day than ever before. A Rink can be established in any hall, irrespective of its size or shape, and will prove to be a very profitable investment. The only essentials are a good floor and good skates. We refer, by permission, to C. P. Crawford, Esq., General Manager of the large and excellently appointed Rinks now being operated in Tournament Hall, Liverpool; Exhibition Hall, Newcastle; Hippodrome, Llandudno; and the American Roller Rinks at Sunderland and Edinburgh. In all these Rinks Winslow's Skates are used exclusively.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDEEN.—His Majesty's Theatre—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—Mr. Milton Bode's company met with much success in The Belle of Mayfair. Mr. Harry Parker revels in the part of Sir John Chaldicott, and Miss Florence Imeson makes a delightful Julia; both in singing and dancing she charms the house; Mr. Percy Yorke plays the part of Lord Mount Highgate with quaint effectiveness; Mr. Lawrence Wensley acts with much spirit and energy; Mr. Edward Hugonnel is successful in a heroic rôle, and Mr. Lauri Lisle gives an admirable representation of the Count. Miss Blanche Astley plays a maid's part with much vivacity; and the Misses Tandy and De Lorriere are greatly admired as the Princess and the principal Gibson girl. Mr. Frank Seddon conducts the orchestra with the utmost skill.

Palace Theatre.—Lessees, The United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—The Ten-ji Troupe of Japanese magicians give a very striking and highly original performance, which is applauded to the echo by the enthralled audiences; Mme. Carrie Laurie's Juveniles play with exceptional brightness a delightfully humorous sketch, The Kindergarten; Miss Lily Flexmore is a capital comedienne who dances cleverly; Sandy and Carl are most amusing as burlesque boxers; McDonald and Huntingdon smartly imitate various American characters; Mr. Jimmy Shields, the dancer, is as much a favourite as ever; Mr. George Bernard is deservedly popular as an actor-vocalist, and Talberto and Douglas contribute a highly interesting acrobatic comedy act.

Beach Pavilion.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. David Thomson.—Principal among the artists this week are the Le Bruns, exceedingly clever jugglers, with little Miss Edie Le Brun, who varies her part of the business with one or two piquant songs; Miss Topsy Johnson, an excellent contralto, and Vulcaris, the society entertainer, are excellent. A first-class display of cinematograms is given by the London Safety Bioscope Company.

Alhambra Music Hall.—Proprietor, Mr. John Sinclair; General-Manager, Mr. George B. Lee.—Mr. Jack Brindall, comedian, sings with skill and dances very cleverly, and a capital entertainment is provided by the versatile trio Miller, Ormonde, and Mac, who are equally successful as instrumentalists, vocalists, and comedians. The house now provides its own cinematograph. The films shown are highly creditable to the taste of the selector and the skill of the operator. The Saturday matinées, which were recently started, have proved a great success.

ACCRINGTON.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley, Travis Green, and Arthur Hinton's company are presenting here The Power of the King in a manner deserving of much praise. Mr. Charles Whitlock plays with fervour and dramatic power as the King of Vallambrosa; Mr. Gerald Blake is manly and convincing as Captain Rupert Landgrave; Mr. Travis Green as the rascally Prince Oscar acts with distinction; Mr. P. Morton Wright ably sustains the part of General Stenovie, and Mr. John Campling makes an efficient Alberto. Miss Leila Zillwood's Lady Annastasia is a praiseworthy effort; Miss Georgina France as Lady Florina shows ability; Miss Iza Lyndon does well as Phillipe, and Miss Grace Barton displays vivacity and charm as Margot. The dresses and scenery are exceptionally pretty.

ALDERSHOT.—Royal and Hippodrome.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Jack Gladwin.—A capital programme for the wind-up of this season's variety is presented this week. Mr. Arthur Rigby and company, in a smartly played Eastern episode, The Isle of Ooma, tops the bill. Mr. Rigby is well received for his song, assisted by a dozen damsels daintily attired in Eastern costume. Lieut. Albini and a Lady in Black (tied to a chair) go through a mysterious performance, which finds favour; Les Marsumas are clever trick and knockabout cyclists, their daring riding and tumbles causing one to marvel how they escape injury; Johnny Fuller repeats former successes with his wonderful cat imitations and wire walking; Letty Lingard sings; and Will Crackles, as an eccentric comedian, is well received. The Bioscope pictures are also greatly appreciated.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—Mr. W. W. Kelly's London company is still touring the historical play A Royal Divorce. Mr. Keith Fraser's rendering of the "Man of Destiny" is capable; Miss Margaret Watson brings out prominently the fine traits of Josephine's character; Miss Maude Lacy makes a charming Stephanie, and Miss E. Magna France and Miss Violet Hudson ably interpret the parts of Blanche and Angelique. As Marie Louise Miss Winnie Tempest wins applause; Miss Ethel Love as the Little King of Prussia and Miss Loyal Frere as the Gouvermante are most efficient. A prainstaking study of Talleyrand is given by Mr. Percy H. Vernon, and a powerful rendering of the Marquis de Beaumont is presented by Mr. Stanley Harrison.

Empire Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—We greet old favourites here in Wyndham and Waters in their laughable drawing-room act. Edith St. Clare is a good singing comedienne; the little Hebrew artist, Ikey Moe, is a wonder in précocious talent; variety is furnished in a laughable playlet The Sleep-Walker, by Walter Ellis and Co. The Sisters Lotus, juvenile operatic duettists, give a good turn; David Poole is an accomplished ventriloquist; his entertainment is of a finished character; the Musical Morrellis furnish an entertainment of music and humour original of its kind and highly pleasing; Jessie Jukes has admirers of her speciality in song and dance; the troupe known as Szarvasi Ferencz is an acrobatic turn extraordinary; the Sisters Valli give their mixture of expert and graceful stepping to unique musical performances on the banjo.

ATTERCLIFFE.—Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Pease; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harry Sanders.—A dramatic playlet, entitled A Daughter of the Revolution, is presented by Miss Georgette Thierry's company, and meets with a hearty reception; Morimura, Japanese illusionist, deftly performs a number of tricks, most of which are new; Mr. G. H. Keith, character vocalist, is popular with his taking songs; Morrisey receives well-deserved recognition for a novel and unique equilibristic musical act; Miss Dolly Ross is a pleasing vocalist and dancer; the Three Behans are on a welcome return visit in a quick-change comedy act; Mr. Sam Redfern stimulates the audience to laughter by his "philosophy"; and the Attergraph pictures are, as usual, interesting.

AYR.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—Rollicking Rory was presented here on Monday by Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Mackey and company. Mr. Mackey appears himself in the title-rôle, and the character fits him admirably; Mrs. Mackey takes a double part, and acts each perfectly; Miss Nana Flensberg is a delightful colleen, and Mme. Constance Bellamy charms the audience with her singing of "The Minstrel Boy" and "Kathleen Mavourneen."

BARNSTAPLE.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, the Long Bridge Trustees; Manager, Mr. Harry Ashton.—Mr. Edward Graham-Falcon's company appeared here on Monday and Tuesday with The Private Secretary. Much fun was created by the absurd characteristics of the Rev. Robert Spalding, undertaken by Mr. C. Price-Evans. Mr. Tom Tailor-Vinson as Mr. Marsland supplied a diverting interpretation of a "gay old dog"; Mr. Charles Sims was eminently successful as the gruff old uncle, Mr. Cattermole; and Mr. Ben Barnett, Mr. Wentworth Fane, and Mr. Charles Clayton fulfilled their respective parts with distinction. Miss Camilla Norrys displayed quite a fund of humour as the obstreperous landlady; and Miss Josephine Richards and Miss Sybil Chester did well as Eva Webster and Miss Ashford.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—Royalty Theatre and Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. Harry Foxwell's company in A Broken Heart is here. Mr. Stanley Bedwell is a capable John Barnard, sustaining the interest admirably; and Mr. Geo. M. Newall gives full effect to the villainies of Stephen Rayton; Mr. Edward Rawlinson is a capital Gash Gills and Mr. Harry Foxwell a typical Rev. Mr. Staunton; Mr. George Addison as Skrimp and Mr. Harrison Tate as John Strong both do well; Miss Marguerite Thorne is a motherly Mrs. Barnard and Miss Sheila Walsh a capital Mary Barnard.

His Majesty's.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Mr. Fred Karno's company of comedians in His Majesty's Guests is here. Miss Edith Ager sings sweetly, as also do Miss Aggie Morris and Mr. Hesto, who as Sergeant Lightning is the life and soul of the play. Mr. Charles Usher is a capable Mr. Miffin, and Mr. Robert Strutfield ably sustains the part of Lord Essem.

Tivoli.—Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edgar G. Laban.—Charles Kitts, Rhoda Windrum, and company are the premier turn here this week, and their exceedingly amusing performance was most favourably received. Ted E. Box is a capital comedian and sifteur; Bert Williams is an uncommonly good ventriloquist; Frank Leon proves himself a very clever dancer; Lizzie Kirk is a very pleasing comedienne; the Two Walonells, knockabout ragtime gymnasts, provide a very good turn; Wolmer Young quite took on with his topical songs; a good show by Vernon's Bioscope brings the entertainment to a close.

New Hippodrome.—Owners and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—A host of pleasing and entertaining pictures are presented here this week to capital houses. Miss Lily Garrick contributes very considerably to the entertainment with some pleasing songs and dances.

BARRY DOCK.—New Theatre and Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Director, Mr. Arthur Brogden.—The Lighthouse Robbery, by Mr. E. H. Knight's company, is presented here with great success. The forcible acting of Mr. Wallace Curnock is much appreciated; in the part of Rose Prescott, Miss Hilda Baynton is exceptionally good; William Farren and James Hammond are adequately sustained by Messrs. Wm. Annesley and Percy Beresford; Mr. Sammy Foster is very successful as Sam Kidder; and the other characters were well sustained by Messrs. Herbert Lewis, Chas. Mackay, and Geo. Thompson, and Misses Alice Oliver, Maggie Stewart, and Ethel Lovett. The piece is well staged.

BATH.—Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—Great interest is centred around the Biograph this week, as it unfolds a series of views of the Bath Horse Show secured by the local operator of Raymond's Bio-Tableaux, in adition to which is shown the esteemed manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth, arriving at the Palace in his 24 h.p. Napier car. The turn that arouses the most enthusiasm is undoubtedly that of Hayes and Merritt, whose feats upon the bounding trampoline are simply marvellous. Another act of skill and muscle is that of Les Zeloves, who are likewise most cordially received. Hilarity reigns while Harry Weldon holds the stage with his humorous ditties and banter; the Smythsons cause great laughter in their sketch, Love Germs; Josephine Crook, in illustrated songs, is a favourite; as is Norah Stockelle, comedienne and dancer. Jessie Burnett secures approbation with her songs.

Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—Dear Old Charlie is admirably presented by a smart little company, in which Mr. George Lestocq carries off the honours as Charles Ingleton. Two parts that require a sense of humour to portray are Gabriel Peploe and Thomas Dumphie, and in the hands of Mr. C. Douglas and Mr. R. S. Trelawny respectively these are exceedingly well enacted. Mr. Stanley Arthur makes much of Purkitt, his facial expression being clever to watch; Colonel Fishbourne and his wife are undertaken by Mr. Duncan Young and Miss Leonora Braham, and these experienced artists sustain their reputation for good work; Miss Marjorie Chard is a charming Agnes in both presence and demeanour; Miss Molly Stanton does all that is required of her as Reeve. The Cause, a domestic dramatic episode of Russian life, precedes the comedy, and is well played by Miss Leonora Braham and Mr. Cyril Vernon as Mother and Son.

BEDFORD.—Royal County Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—The Monckton Hoffe Comedy Company, by arrangement with Miss Lena Ashwell, is presenting Irene Wycherley. Miss Maude Henderson as Irene plays with a passion and verve; Miss Grace Illingworth and Miss Evelyn Cecil as Carrie Hardinge and Hilda Preston respectively display elegance and charm; Miss Muriel Carmel is quite refreshing as Linda Hetheridge; Miss Beatrice Mervyn is a stately and dignified Lady Wycherley; Mr. Ralph Hutton, an old Bedford schoolboy, submits a carefully studied rendering of the part of Sir Peter Wycherley; the unpleasant and difficult part of Philip Wycherley is in the able hands of Mr. Charles Garry; and Mr. Edward Sorley is extremely natural as Harry Chesterton; Miss Phyllis Stuckey is a vivacious Muriel; and Miss Olive Warne acts with grace and distinction as Lily Summers. Mr. Claude Haviland as Chas. Summers is forcible and emphatic.

BELFAST.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Mr. James Welch returned to this city after a lengthy absence on Monday, and with his talented company produced When Knights Were Bold. In the rôle of Sir Guy De Vere Mr. Welch was simply irresistible, keeping the audience in shrieks of merriment. The popular comedian achieved a great success on Monday, being recalled at the close of each act again and again. Miss Audrey Ford, a delightful actress, must also be included in the honours, as she furnished an exceedingly clever impersonation of Lady Rowena Eggington. It would be difficult to equal Mr. Arthur Grenville's impersonation of the Jew, Isaac Isaacson, which was a perfect delineation; and praise is due to Mr. George Desmond for his capital impersonation of the Hon. Charles Widdicombe; Miss Helen Palgrave furnished a dignified portrayal of the Hon. Mrs. Waldegrave; and the rôle of Sir Owen Gwynneth was in the safe hands of Mr. Cecil Kinnaird, who made the most of his opportunities; Mr. Guy Lane was good as the Rev Peter Pottlebury, D.D.; and the rôles of Lady Millicent Eggington, Lady Marjorie Eggington, and Kate Pottleberry were charmingly sustained by Miss Gwendoline Rayne, Miss Annie Furrell, and Miss Annie Chippendale; Miss Daisy Cordell as Miss Sarah Isaacson aquitted herself creditably; and other rôles were filled by Miss Lalo O'Hea, and Messrs. Geo. F. Tully and Gordon Tomkins. The Changeling formed a capital curtain-raiser, being capably presented by Miss Helen Palgrave, and Messrs. J. H. Carson and Geo. Tully.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General-Manager, Mr. J. De Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. A. Salmond.—The leading feature of the bill here is provided by Mr. Joe Peterman's Singing Servants; the Andos Troupe perform some remarkable feats with ease; and the vaudeville act by Donovan and Arnold is certainly very smart; the acrobatic performance of the Garganys Trio is amazing, and the sweet tenor vocalism of Mr. Godfrey James has been loudly applauded; Miss Nita Clem is a charming comedienne with good songs; and also in the programme are Conan and Doyle, comedians; Cambo, the musical man-monkey; Nat Watkins, comedian, and the Palace Pictures.

Royal Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Messrs. Fred Willmott and Will Sley; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—Miss May Moore Duprez tops the bill, and this accomplished comedienne has been most successful; the comedy bar act by the Brothers Artois is one of the big features of the programme; and the marvellous performance of Carl Rosine, who is assisted by Mlle. Margaret, gains the utmost approval; the mimicry of Miss Ruth Molloy is really remarkable, and Nightingale and Stigant create much merriment with their comedy duologue Two Sides of a Wall; Miss Alma Gray appears to great advantage in her songscena; and others here are Daleno and Stream, singing comedians, Les Rallis, and the Hipposcope.

Empire Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—Mlle. Sahara, who is aptly described as the young and graceful dancer, tops the bill and affords infinite pleasure with her several dances, including the well-known Salome dance and Cleopatra; a welcome return visit is being paid by Harry Tate's company, who produce in Motoring one of the funniest sketches in existence; Mackintosh and Royal exhibit the acme of perfection in their dancing act; and Miss Bessie Butt is a clever comedienne and dancer; Clarke's Nippers, a decidedly smart combination, appear to great advantage in their speciality act; and also in the bill are Mr. Albert Sharp, a clever coon delineator; Howe and Ardie, comedy gymnasts, and the Bioscope.

New Alhambra Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Will White.—Good business at this hall continues. This week the following films have been exhibited: Brigands of Calabria, Burglar and Midnight Surprise, An Indian's Friendship, A Fish Story, Father's Quiet Sunday, Don Juan, Thieves and Tree Trunk, and Elixir of Strength. Popular turns are also supplied by Miss Alice Ferndale, a charming illustrated songstress, and Mr. James H. Bowman, Irish comedian, whose dancing is remarkably smart.

St. George's Hall.—General-Manager, Mr. Robert Wilson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur.—Described as "the masterpiece of animated photography," The Silver King is being exhibited here, in addition to the following films:—Clockmaker's Secret, The Mesmerist, Forest to Fireside, An Unpleasant Legacy, Miss Pimpernel's Gown, The Picker's Dream, &c. Miss Joan Deering, a good vocalist, and Mr. George Ambler, whistling mimic, also appear.

BILSTON.—New Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Battersby.—Our popular lessee and manager has his own company here this week with The King of Crime, and a large audience on Monday gave both play and company a most enthusiastic reception. As Ronjarre Mr. F. B. Woulfe scored a decided success; the blind wife of Ronjarre, Henriette, is affectingly and sympathetically portrayed by Miss Mildred Eversleigh; Miss Nance Battersby makes a graceful and charming Mathilde; Miss Edith Loraine and Mr. Sam Willford prove highly entertaining as Clarisse and Louis Muscovot, and Mr. William Miller gives an admirable character sketch of Gandelu the Miser. The scenery and effects are really good. For Thursday a special programme was announced for the complimentary farewell benefit to Mr. Battersby.

BIRKENHEAD.—New Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant; Secretary, Miss Isabel Morris.—Mr. Walter Melville's Her Second Time on Earth company opened to an excellent house on Monday. Miss Edith Blande gives a finished and effective rendering of Lola Grey; Mr. Otto Minster is admirably suited as Captain Norman; Mr. Robert Purdie is a manly Jack Carlton; Mr. Ellis J. Preston makes the most of Guy Brand; Mr. A. Fellows Bassett is effective as Beppo; and Mr. Ernest G. Batley is a good Tom Norman. Miss May Dallas is an admirable Laura Norman; Elizabeth Burke is carefully represented by Miss Emily Stevens; and the necessary comedy element is abundantly supplied by Mr. Jack Bigwood as Teddy Butterfly and by Miss Gladys Newcombe as Kitty Rosebud. The staging is on a liberal scale.

Argyle Theatre of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—A thoroughly enjoyable entertainment is supported by Mr. Harry Ford, who is enthusiastically received, and Mooncy and Holbein's amusing comedy sketch, Oysters, One Shilling a Bucket, which goes with a swing. Mr. C., double-voiced vocalist and raconteur, is a decided acquisition; Miss Maud Courtney (the talkative American) furnishes a most agreeable turn; and the Pasquali Brothers, clever equilibrists and acrobats, execute some astounding feats. Spry and Austin, entertaining comedy artists, are on a welcome return visit; as also is Miss Lily Langtry, a most animated comedienne. Natalia and Diana are accomplished and graceful lady gymnasts; Mr. Frank Boyce is a good character comedian; and Brown's Royal Bioscope is an interesting feature.

Olympian Gardens, Rock Ferry.—Lessees, Messrs. Adeler and Sutton; Manager, Mr. Edwin Adeler.—Mr. Malcolm Scott, a great favourite here, heads an excellent company, which also includes Mr. Albert Chapman (baritone), Mr. Herbert Franklyn (light comedian), Miss Edith Benson (comedienne) Miss Gwladys Roma (comedienne), Mr. Tom Stuart (comedian), and Mr. Forshaw Kershaw (accompanist).

BIRMINGHAM.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—Tom Jones is being played by Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company. Mr. Dan Rolyat's performance as the "tonsorial" hero Partridge causes the audience to positively ache with laughter; Mr. Ambrose Manning represents the irascible Squire in his own admirable manner; Mr. Harry Welchman is excellent as Tom Jones, both in voice and presence; Mr. J. T. Macmillan is a most apt Gregory; and Messrs. John Morley, Deane Percival, and others lend valuable support. Miss Florence Smithson's success as Sophia is very pronounced, her pretty looks and exquisite singing and acting sending the audience into raptures; Miss Isabelle Dillon shines as Honour, the maid; Miss Alice Oppitz is noticeable as Lady Bellaston; Miss Mary Southwell is successful as Miss Western; and Miss Cecilia Wilman is an excellent hostess.

Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnson.—The Thief, with Mr. George Alexander and Miss Irene Vanbrugh, has filled the theatre every night. Mr. Alexander in the part of Richard Chelford receives a great reception; Miss Vanbrugh is winsome and impassioned in turn as the erring wife; Miss Nina Sevening is distinguished as Isabel Leyton; Mr. Dawson Millward suits the rôle of Raymond Leyton, as does Mr. Reginald Owen that of his son Harry; and Mr. E. Vivian Reynolds is conspicuous as Mr. Protheroe. The Nursery Governess is put on first, with Mr. Ashton Pearse, Mr. Harcourt Williams, Miss Jean Sterling MacKinlay, and Miss Barbara Hanway in parts.

Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. T. Guest.—Florodora, with Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company, is a great hit here, the advance bookings alone having filled the theatre each night. Mr. Fred Eastman as the versatile and volatile Tweedlepunch has come in for a big reception, his success being great; Mr. Stanley White as Gilfain is quite master of the part; Mr. Savill Foster is manful and melodious as Frank Abercoed; Mr. Herbert St. John is well up in the rôle of Captain Arthur Donegal; Mr. Edwin Oxlee is duly forbidding and sinister as the overbearing overseer Leandro; Miss Edith Housley is distingué and frank and charming as Lady Holyrood; Miss Lily Gullick acts prettily as Angela; Miss Maisie Ellinger as Dolores shows both vocal and histrionic ability; and the maid Valeda and the typewriter are in good hands, with Miss M. Van Dieman and Miss B. Middleton respectively.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—Woman and Wine fills the bill here, with Miss Mary Austin and Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds's company, who are playing to good houses. Miss Cissie St. Elmo gives full vent to the character of the wilesome Marcel, and her prey, Dick Seymour, is presented to the best possible advantage by Mr. St. Edmonds; the heroine, Mary Andrews, is made a very charming and sympathetic rôle by Miss Violet Sims; Mr. J. Milne Taylor elicits much sympathy in the rôle of the "hero's" father, Hugh Seymour; and others exceedingly good are Mr. R. Foulis as Beaudet, Mr. Edwin T. Kisby as "Caliban," Mr. W. Manning as the Professor, Miss Octavia De Noel as "La Colombe," and Miss Ethel Vinroy as Janet Marlow.

Carlton Theatre, Saltley.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—The Midnight Mail is playing to enthralled audiences here, with Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Willard's company. Mr. George Harvard gives a stirring portrayal of Harry Steyne, the engine-driver, and the wife, Mary, is tenderly enacted by Miss Trissie Humphreys; Mr. Charles Carte displays much skill in his presentment of the drunken stoker, Billy Brewer; Mr. Charles H. Longden shows judgment in his treatment of the character of Leonard Royle; Mr. C. P. Wentworth acts well as the adventurer, Hassan Padisha; and other rôles well played are those by Mr. G. Wilkinson, Mr. J. Mann, Mr. J. Wilkinson, Miss Daisy Clifford, Miss Jeannie Weston, and Miss Ethel North.

Theatre Royal, Aston.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Lake.—Home, Sweet Home is being played by Mr. Frank Lindo's company. Mr. Lindo's frank, manly acting and engaging presence have told well in the part of the hero, Stephen Armitage; Mr. D. Lawrence Doyle enacts the father, David, with much force; Mr. Archer Brown acts with dignity as the Duke of Ancaster; and the insincerities of the secretary, Lyle, are brought out cleverly by Mr. Helsby Wright; the Hon. Percy is safe in the hands of Mr. Norton Shields; Mr. R. Walsh gives due emphasis to the rôle of Dick Redmayne; Miss Maud Leslie-Cudd is successful as Sybil Fay; and Miss Marion Wakeford delivers a very interesting study of the foster-daughter, Joan.

Palace Theatre, Bordesley.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Goodwin Woodward.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company is here in The Ugliest Woman on Earth. As the unhappy veiled heroine Miss Beatrice Homer acts with commanding dignity, and with grace and tact; Mr. Philip Darien makes a very acceptable Jack Merriman; Mr. Leyton Cancellor is a determined and resourceful Hubert Gold; Mr. Leonard Thackeray is clever as Luchesi; Miss Violet Macaree makes an interesting character of Morita, the Italian girl; Miss Gertrude Harrison is successful as Rose Courtenay; and Mr. Freddie Bentley as Tubby and Miss Nellie Jackson as Aggie Brown create much diversion during the play.

Grand Theatre of Varieties.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—The Dog Between, a bright and pleasant sketch, is being presented here this week by Mr. Laurence Irving and Miss Mabel Hackney. It is splendidly acted throughout, and is highly appreciated. A remarkable gymnastic display is given by the Bellclair Brothers; Maud Rochez's monkey variety theatre is exceedingly amusing; James Eadie and Cissie Ramsden have a smart musical comedy duo; the lightning sketching of Rossi Ashton is clever; Fred Lincoln and Dion Wade keep the audience in laughter with songs and patter; Les Martineks' act, The Rag Doll, is decidedly clever; and Sinclair and Parr render some Irish ballads humorously.

Empire Palace.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—The bill here is headed by Harry Randall, whose amusing songs and witty patter keep the audience convulsed with laughter. The juggling and musical entertainment of Charlene and Charlene is excellent; Herbert Shelley has an Irish play, Dan the Outlaw, in which he sustains all the characters; and the Maples have an original skit, How to Treat a Burglar. Other popular artists here are the Crown Trio, Phil and Nettie Peters, Ike and Will Scott, and the Jackley Trio.

Hippodrome.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Lyons.—The great Lafayette is at the head of the bill here, his mystifying, quick-change, and juggling entertainment being very fine; Willette Whitaker and F. Wilbur Hill are loudly applauded for their classical act; and the Lyons Trio are clever pantomimists and dancers.

Gaiety Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—An excellent bill is presented here under the direction of Mr. Albert Bushell. Yukio Tani, Japanese wrestler, offers prizes to professionals and amateurs; the Norman and Leonard Trio have a musical sketch which is above the average; Dora Lyric is loudly applauded for her song "All that glitters is not gold"; Lotto, Lillo, and Otto do some clever trick cycling; and Kurkamp and Terry and Bentley, in their comedy act, complete the company.

King's Hall.—Lessees, Messrs. Moore and Kennedy.—This building reopened Monday, after having been elaborately decorated. There is an excellent programme, the pictures being highly interesting; while J. P. Johnson and Darwin, the man monkey, are most prominent.

BISHOP AUCKLAND.—Eden Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. Huntley.—Mr. Lingford Carson's company is here this week in The Power of the Cross. Mr. George A. de Grey again gives great satisfaction in the part of Baron Woulfe Curzola; Mr. Robert Hall is all that can be desired as Jerald Fairfax, and the same can be said of Mr. A. J. Haviland for his portrayal of Dr. Leslie Fairfax; Mr. Francis Serle is very good as Benjamin Hawke; Mr. Tyrone Power keeps the house full of merriment as Tim O'Dowd, and is wonderfully well assisted by Miss Etta Turner as Dolly Gray; Miss Annie Hylton is greatly admired as Margaret Seaton, and Miss Phyllis Vaughan is a delightful Blanche Kingsley; and Miss Stella Carmichael gives a painstaking and finished rendering of Rita Lascelles.

BLACKPOOL.—Her Majesty's Opera House.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Mr. and Mrs. Kendal are playing The Whirlpool here this week with great success. In the part of Elijah D. Tillottson Mr. Kendal contributes a fine piece of acting; and Mr. Bassett Roe proves his sterling qualities as Rertram Livingstone. Another excellent characterisation is presented by Mr. Edmund Gurney, whose Ephraim Johnstone is a great study; whilst Mr. Metcalfe Wood makes the best of Chappin. Mr. Wellesley Draper as Cunningham Cutter and Mr. T. Holding as Reginald Killiegrew also do their work very well indeed. Mrs. Kendal's assumption of Constance Livingstone is quite up to her own high standard; and small parts are creditably played by Mrs. Tapping and Miss Ethel Dane.

Grand Theatre.—Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—After a brief interval, Mr. Seymour Hicks and company are here again with The Gay Gordons. That the re-engagement is fully warranted is proved by the nightly tightly-packed houses. The only alteration in the cast is the substitution of Miss Ellaline Terriss for Miss Zena Dare in the part of Peggy. Needless to say, Miss Terriss is fully equal to all demands. Mr. Hicks is a great favourite as Angus Graeme; whilst the topical songs of Mr. Johnny Danvers are rapturously applauded.

Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Mons. Auguste Van Biene tops this week's bill, and appears with considerable success in a playlet, entitled The Mad Musician. Fred Russell, a capital ventriloquist, also contributes a good sketch; whilst Arthur Aldridge charms everyone with his fine tenor voice. F. A. Martell is a wonderful equilibrist; and Mlle. Naveeda gives a clever illusory act. The Ellimans, musical entertainers; Paul Vandy, juggler; Maud Prenton, comedienne; and Ethel Whiteside, with her piccaninnies, are also well received.

Hippodrome.—Lessee, Mrs. Fioni.—The International pictures top the bill here this week. Other turns are provided by Hess and Lisbon, scientific skaters; the Neilson troupe of vocalists and dancers; and Lillia Fair, a charming descriptive vocalist. Two performances are given daily.

BLYTH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur C. Moody.—Messrs. Garside and Knowle's company has once more presented the sensational drama entitled Her Marriage Vow.

Gaiety.—Lessee, Mr. Wm. Yates Gregory; Resident-Manager, Mr. Thos. Baugh.—The Boston Twins, speciality comedians, top the bill and are well received; Lesbia, juggler; Nance Harden, comedienne; Rodin, in acrobatic cycle act; McAskell, comic conjurer; Bob Pueblo and Katie Cropp, trick sand dancers; Leo King, vocalist, and the usual pictorials make up a most attractive programme.

The Hippodrome.—Lessees, Doyle and O'Connell; General-Manager, Mr. Tom Doyle.—The pictorial display shown on the Bioscope continues to prove attractive, and the variety portion of the programme, as supplied by the Fordycis and Young Franki, has a hearty and enthusiastic reception.

BOLTON.—Theatre Royal, Lyd.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Moncur.—A Chinese Honeymoon was staged here on Monday by Mr. Milton Bode's principal company. Mr. Rudolf Kloss was clever and humorous as Hang Chow and Mr. P. Allerton Turner was good as Chippie Chop. Mr. Leonard May's embodiment of Hi Lung proved very acceptable; Tom Hatherton was capably dealt with by Mr. Harry Jennings; the Mr. and Mrs. Pineapple of Mr. Will Harman and Miss Veronica Brady respectively were both careful readings; Misses Dorothy Radcliffe, Phyllis Grosvenor, Mary Gray, and Cecilia Leslie were prepossessing bridesmaids; Miss Ada Booth and Miss Kathleen Ronayne as Soo-Soo's maids of honour were well placed; Miss Hilda Stewart was successful as Mi-Mi; and the Mrs. Brown of Miss Maud Adams gained deserved appreciation. The part of Soo-Soo was pleasingly played by Miss Elsie Skillings; and Miss Gwennie Harcourt was admirable as Fi-Fi.

Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—Foremost here this week are the Five Juanitos, in their marvellous speciality act. Other turns are Rosa Loader, the merry musical mimic, in "The happy slavey at the piano"; J. C. Scatter, comedian and dancer; Hans and Lux, the argumentative college chums; Les Uniques, in their gymnastic pot-pourri on perpendicular ladders; Peter Bermingham, Scotch patter comedian; Mark Merry, comedian; Miss Maude Mortimer, comedienne; Miss Madge Grey, Lancashire comedienne; and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope.

Empire Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves, sen.; General-Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. R. Harrison.—Bert Wickham, a champion all-round athlete, heads the bill here, with his extraordinary feats of physical strength, and is capably supported by Harrison Bros., comedians, patterers, and dancers; Vardon, ventriloquist; Jenny Sydney, vocalist and dancer; Wartans Trio of jugglers, &c.; the Bros. Obo, laughing comedians and comedy duologue artists; the Boccaccios, Italian singers and instrumentalists, including Signor Franclo, mandolinist; Cyclumina, a wonderful electric cycle, produced by H. Adams; and the Bioscope.

BOSCOMBE.—Hippodrome, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Ball.—The top of the bill this week is occupied by Cissie Lawson and company in The Devil's Sunday. Mrs. Lawson's acting of Fay Faber is much appreciated. Jessie Merrilees, as "La Cigale," is another excellent turn; Ted Cowan, quaint comedian, has a good reception for his humorous songs; Zara and Arno are extremely funny in their comedy horizontal bar performance; Jules Kiaro, a clever equilibrist, receives loud applause; and other turns are Morelli and Moore in their comedy act; and Millie Howell, vocal comedienne. The Hippo. pictures are quite up to date.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Sole Proprietors, David Allen and Sons; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Hubert Dunbar.—Mr. Herbert Sleath's company, in A White Man, had an enthusiastic welcome here on Monday. Mr. Frank E. Petley is at his best in the rôle of Jim Carston, which he plays in an easy and manly fashion, and receives strong support from Mr. R. A. Brandon by his effective rendering of the foreman, Bill; Mr. Eric Hudson's Tab-y-wana is excellent; so is the Shortly of Mr. Thomas Swem. Mr. Lewis Broughton as the Earl and Mr. H. W. Peal as Sir John Applegate are both good; and a capital rendering of the Sheriff is given by Mr. John Wilmer. Miss Norah Wadeley's performance of Lady Mabel is charming; and Miss Rhoda Ray gives a clever sketch as Nat-u-Ritch, whose son Hal is prettily played by Miss Rosina White.

Shaftesbury Hall.—T. J. West's exhibition of animated pictures is still doing excellent business in this, the seventh week of their sixteenth season. The keynote of this week's programme is travel at home and abroad, and includes Russia and Her People, Country Life in France, The Southern Andes, and Beautiful Bournemouth, the latter being taken especially for West's pictures. Romantic stories are told in Love's Sacrifice and The Outlaw. The comedy element is provided by such farcical subjects as Invisible Fluid, The Hypnotic Policeman, and The Apostle of Liberty.

ing acrobatic turn; Nellie Wallace wins enthusiastic applause with her quaint songs; George Dance's company provide much amusement in the musical sketch The Burglar's Ball; B. Troba gives a good juggling turn; the Three Braggs are clever acrobats; Tom Yorke is a capital character and coster comedian; Minnie Hunt and Rhys Thomas are well received in the comedy duologue Her Birthday; the Brothers Dean are good dancers; Violet Lorraine contributes dainty songs; and the Barrascope pictures are excellent.

WEST PIER.—Secretary and Entertainment-Manager, Mr. A. D. Norman.—Messrs. Taylor Platt and Trevor Lowe's company opened here on Monday with You Never Can Tell. Mr. Trevor Lowe was delightfully effective as the old waiter; Mr. Leslie Hamer as Valentine was admirable; Miss Katherine Stuart submitted a good portrayal of Mrs. Clandon; Miss Gwladys Morris as the "advanced" young lady, and Mr. J. Edwards Pearce as the quick-tempered father were well suited; Mr. Athol Forde as the lawyer was very effective; and able support was given by Mr. Donald Calthrop and Mr. George Howard.

PALACE PIER THEATRE.—Miss Olive Wilton, Mr. Langhorne Burton, and company are here this week with Mrs. Gorringe's Necklace. Miss Olive Wilton acts with charming vivacity as Mrs. Gorringe; Mr. Langhorne Burton makes an admirable Captain Mowbray; Mr. R. Henderson is well placed as David Cairn; Miss Kathleen Russell gives a delightful impersonation of Isabel Kirke; Miss Elsie Keith Lytton is entertaining as Mrs. Jardine; Mr. Arthur Hare is capital as the fussy Colonel Jardine; and able support is given by Mr. Gilbert Clark and Miss Eileen Terence.

COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. M. Barrasford; Secretary and Manager, Mr. Fred Bauer.—There is an excellent series of animated pictures here this week. A capital story is conveyed by The Memory of His Mother, A Breeze from the West is realistic, and others meriting notice include The Pirates, The Inquisitive Professor, True Till Death, and A Chase for a 'Bike. Mr. James Harvey contributes tenor songs in very artistic style; and warm praise must be accorded to Mr. Arthur W. Briggs for his admirably descriptive pianoforte accompaniments to the pictures.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute. — Messrs. Vedrenne and Barker's company is here with Man and Superman. The play was both well staged and well acted, Mr. Granville Barker presenting a fine embodiment of John Tanner. Miss Frances Dillon acted cleverly as Ann Whitefield; Mr. Michael Sherbrooke supplied a good character study of Roebuck Ramsden; Mr. David Powell was sufficiently sentimental as Octavius Robinson; Mr. Richard Haigh was smart and dryly humorous as Henry Straker; the Two Malones were capitally taken by Mr. Frederick Lloyd and Mr. James Hearn; Violet Robinson was cleverly played by Miss Auriol Lee; Miss Helen Rous was well placed as Mrs. Whitefield; Miss Frances Wetherall was sufficiently severe as Miss Ramsden; and Miss Maud Burton made a trim parlourmaid. There was a large attendance in all parts of the house. Arms and the Man is also billed.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. C. Alty.—The Midnight Wedding is being well played here by Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company. Mr. Paumier presents a fine exposition of Paul Valmar; Miss Yvonne Orchardson displays much skill in her sympathetic performance of Princess Astrea; Mr. Mayor-Cooke supplies a good study of Captain Rudolph; Mr. John Nesbitt is dignified and impressive as the Crown Prince Leopold; Mr. Winnington Barnes is well placed as Lieut. Eugene von Strelsburg; and the comic parts of Kathie, Sergt. Max, Corporal Otto, and Private Bobo are capitally taken by Miss Ada Champion, Mr. James E. Page, Mr. Harry Richardson, and Mr. Algie Spalding. The drama is admirably staged, both in the way of scenery, dresses, and uniforms.

PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—Leonard Gautier's Animated Toyshop, introducing highly-trained ponies and performing dogs, heads the programme successfully; Florrie Forde, comedienne, is highly appreciated; Tom Bryce and Miss Price entertain with their musical sketch, The Dude's Wooing; Russell Brandon, coloured dancing comedian, obtains applause; Yvonne Lamor is a pleasing comedienne; Steeley and Dowton amuse as burlesque artists; Sim Maree, "the human coil," does a good act; and the performance concludes with The Illustrated Picture Postcard Artist, by Vernon's Imperial Bioscope.

EMPIRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—Carlton, comedian and card manipulator, heads the bill, his turn obtaining appreciation; the Sisters Eugenie do a daring and graceful act on the trapeze; Clifton and Burton, comedians and patterers, obtain applause; Esmond and Evelyn amuse with their sketch, The Express Baby; Lanoe and Montes provide a good tumbling act, &c.; Daisy Hicks is a pleasing comedienne; Herbert Rule, eccentric comedian, has a good reception; and Les Belles Americaines are pleasing vocalists and expert acrobatic dancers. The performance concludes with animated pictures.

COLSTON HALL.—Ralph Pringle's animated pictures are attracting good houses. The pictures are all very good, but special mention may be made of A Wife's Devotion, A Trip to Savoy, and The Legend of the Ghost. There is a good band, and also a capable variety company.

BROUGHTON. — VICTORIA THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—His Lordship's Arrival, written by William Trevor, with music by William Devin, is this week presented by H. Keate-Hale's company, under the management of Hamilton Baines. The full chorus and augmented orchestra, under the direction of the composer, do very well. Miss May Yates as Estelle cleverly sings and works well into the good graces of the audience; Mr. Arthur Lenville is an amusing William J. Binks; Billy (the buttons) is a comical character by Mr. Johnnie Schofield, jun., a clever young comedian; Lord Francis Hurstbury is well sustained by Mr. J. Mansell Stringer; and Mr. J. Herbert Willis is very funny as the dude, the Hon. Algernon. Miss May Lind as Vivienne works hard and wins much approval; Lady Hurstbury and the Countess de St. Vyres are respectively well represented by Miss Ethel Arden and Miss Gladys Harvey. The scenery and dresses are very pretty.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—The holiday fare provided here is Mr. Brandon Thomas's company in Charley's Aunt. Mr. Hastings Llynn as Jack Chesney is natural and pleasing; Mr. Basil Lynton as Charlie Wickenham and Mr. G. A. Seager as Lord Babberley and the impostor "Aunt" are seen at their best, the laughter created being continuous; Mr. Theo McCausland Stewart as Sir Francis Chesney plays a difficult rôle to perfection, and Mr. Roy Byford adds a touch of the ridiculous to the part of Stephen Spettigue. Brassett is capitally performed by Mr. Sydney Compton; and the young ladies, Kitty and Amy, are charmingly represented by Miss Olivia Glynn and Miss Grace Russell; Miss Evelyn Gray is also pretty in her part, and the real aunt is well performed by Miss Vere Gerald. The comedy is preceded by The Lancashire Sailor, a playlet in which pathos and humour are intermixed, and in which the acting is very good.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Miss Alice Raymond, cornettist, and a quartette of instrumentalists, in A Night in Egypt, are responsible for a high-class musical treat. The Payen auto pierrot gymnasto illusioniste, presented by Miss Lucie, is a novel mechanical doll turn; and Karr and Kooney are clever comedians with good songs. W. B. Raby is encored for a parody on "Put me among the girls"; Walter Aubrey is a good coon vocalist and dancer; and the Milfords, comedians and dancers, take well. The Empire Theatroscope pleases with up-to-date films.

PALACE THEATRE AND HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—Considerable enterprise is displayed in the programme given here. A great attraction is Miss Ada Colley, soprano vocalist, who is possessed of a magnificent voice of wide range. Her music though difficult is rendered to perfection. A funny couple are Howard and Collinson, who present a comedy acrobatic sketch, A Bit of Dresden China, with good acrobatic feats and irresistible humour; Lawrence Barclay, comedian, proves a success with his songs; and What a Life is the title of a comedy duo provided by Edwards and Dacre. "A Yorkshire Rustic at the Piano," by Jack Lane, is a turn full of fun; and Jim Cheetham, siffleur, is a real treat in bird imitations; Emma Don, character comedienne, sings in pleasing fashion; Billy French does smart wooden shoe dancing, and Raymond's Bio-tableaux are good.

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett and Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. B. de Hague Body.—An excellent variety programme is being presented here this week. The Cameo Troupe give a comical acrobatic turn; the Three De Venas contribute a fine exhibition of juggling and club-swinging; Mr. Austin Lenton and Miss Agnes Lane, capital comedy artists, win much applause; Mr. Frank F. Street, the story teller, is popular; and other turns which do well are Miss Katie Epiett, comedienne; Miss Madge Pollard, vocalist and dancer; and the Brooklyn Comedy Four.

BURY (LANCS.).—THEATRE ROYAL AND PALACE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—The star turn is Ivan Tschernoff, the animal trainer, in Entertainment in a Sporting Yard. Other items include the Hilgert-Arkas company of acrobats; Jack Martin, baritono vocalist; Speedwell, the wizard painter; the Tivoli Girls, dancers; Lisbon and Barker, comedians; Calile and Walker, comedy artists; and Percy Johnson, humorist. The pictures include some very good views of the Abram colliery disaster, and on Monday Mr. Culling handed over two-thirds of the gross receipts to the sufferers.

THE CIRCUS.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Animated pictures form the fare here. The films are all good, and include Features of the Wood Industry in Morvan, Daily Life in Naples, The Legend of a Ghost, Gipsy Model, Uncle's Picnic, Smuggling by Motor-car, Walter, the Rural Postman, and The Amateur Acrobat.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Sons.—The performances here this week are being very much appreciated. In the bill are the Royal Welsh Entertainers; Gala and Norris, in a musical duologue; Burke, Andrus, and Frisco, and their clever horse; Cara Magda, gymnast; Wal Robbins, in a musical comedy turn; Lily Hayes, comedienne and dancer; George Edney, character comedian; and George Griffin, comedian.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS. — THEATRE ROYAL.—General-Manager, Mr. Auguste A. Peuleve.—This theatre opened its autumn season on Monday with Mr. Louis Calvert's production of Sunday. Mr. William Giffard handles the rôle of Colonel Brinthorpe with dignity and manliness; Mr. T. Norman Walter plays Tom Oxley with unqualified success; Mr. Wilson Blake gives just the right touch of villainy to Arthur Brinthorpe; and Mr. James Shea (Towzer), Mr. A. C. Holmes (Davy), Mr. James Hursey (Lively), and Mr. Alec Alves (Jacky) submit character sketches of the "boys," each perfect in its way. Miss Marjorie Murray in the title-rôle is admirable in her mingling of girlish sweetness and deeper feeling; Miss Helen Edwins appears as Mrs. Naresby with distinction. The play, which is faultlessly staged, met with an overwhelming reception from a crowded house.

BUXTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Buxton Gardens Company, Ltd.; Secretary and Manager, Mr. Arthur Willoughby.—Brewster's Millions drew good houses on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday evenings this week, and was well patronised at the matinée on Wednesday. Experience has taught us to trust in the Hutchison management, and again we were not disappointed. The title-rôle of Monty Brewster is played by Mr. Percy Hutchison with admirable tact, and he kept the audiences in roars of laughter. Mr. Hutchison is well supported by Mr. Cyril Rawdon as Charlie Harrison, Mr. Robert Forsyth as Mr. Grant, Mr. A. Andrews as Colonel Drew, Mr. Henry Hampson as Archie Golding, Mr. Aubrey Mather as Joseph MacLeod, Mr. Charles Esdale as Frank Bragden, Mr. Douglas Greet as Tommy Smith, and Mr. Frank Hill as the butler, Rawles. Miss Violet Ley had all too small a part as Mrs. Dan de Mille; and Miss Frances Davie was entirely satisfactory as Miss Janice Armstrong. Miss Eva Stuart was a dainty Barbara Drew; and Miss Sybil Walsh a taking Trixie Clayton. The piece is beautifully mounted, and the yacht scene a marvellous piece of stage mechanism. Mrs. Ponderbury's Past fills in the remaining three nights.

CARDIFF. — NEW THEATRE. — Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—After a short absence we have a return visit of the popular musical comedy The Merry Widow, played by Mr. George Edwardes' company. Mr. Leonard Mackay as Prince Danilo is excellent in every way; Miss Constance Drever's appearance as Sonia evoked unusual enthusiasm by her vocal powers and bewitching manner; Mr. Eric Thorne, as Baron Popoff, was absolutely too funny for words; Mr. W. H. Rawlins, as Nisch, was entirely at home; Mr. Theodore Leonard deserves praise for his General Novakovitch; and as Count de Jolidon Mr. W. Talleur Andrews was able to give full scope to his fine voice. Miss Ethel Cadman was particularly charming as Natalie.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—Reano and his favourite band of thirty instrumentalists give a fine performance of high-class selections. An unusual protean sketch is presented by Mr. Henry Coutts and company, entitled Outflanked, in which Mr. Coutts himself is responsible for some smart quick changes; the Three Laurels are exceptionally talented acrobats; a high-class turn is provided by Fred Elton, who sings and plays in pleasing style; the Great Lumars introduce sensational acrobatic items; Albert Christian "goes down" with his well-sung numbers; and the Three Cape Girls prove expert long-boot dancers. Kate Cohen sings her numbers with much effect; and a pathetic picture on the American Bioscope completes a fine programme.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Under the management of Mr. Rollo Balmain.—After a long absence, Mr. Horace Stanley and company are paying a welcome return visit in the sensational melodrama The 10.30 Down Express. Mr. Horace Stanley is still seen in the amusing rôle of Sam Wagstaff, and his representation fully sustains his reputation; as Jack O'Malley, Mr. T. Arthur Plummer gives an excellent rendering of the part; Mr. Fred Wilberforce depicts the villainous character of James Inderwick with ability; and Mr. William Hayward capitally acts the broken-down gamekeeper Seth Coombes. Miss Cora Linda is seen to advantage as Bessie Leigh; and Miss Kate Kilpack is exceptionally humorous as Peggy Potts. The Train scene in Act 3 is a marvel of stage effects.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Burton.—Gunner Moir and Bioscope pictures of the Moir v. Burns fight are prominent attractions here. Other excellent turns are provided, however. Dave Samuels, a Hebrew comedian, is amusing; the Florodoras prove entertaining in a musical sketch; Munroe's Black and White Team "go down" well with their vocal and humorous items; W. G. Wesley as a comedian is decidedly above the average; and Browning and Wally, acrobats and dental athletes, and Charles F. Best complete the bill of fare.

CARLISLE.—HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—Mr. Victor Du Cane's company, in The Stowaway, is enjoying a full share of patronage. In the title-rôle Mr. Du Cane scores a success, his singing being a feature of the performance; in the heavy part Mr. St. Clair Forbes's powerful and impressive acting made the character conspicuous throughout; the hero is impersonated by Mr. J. M. Oliver, who filled the part to everyone's satisfaction; Miss Winifred Maude's charming presence, backed up by some clever and effective work, made her an ideal heroine, and as a vocalist, too, her success was immediate; Miss Amy Maitland as Chucky soon became a favourite; Messrs. Maurice Jones, Rupert Talbot, Arthur Denmead, and Mrs. Wingold Laurence have good parts, which they fill with credit.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Morgan.—Crowded houses are the rule here this week. Miss Minnie Mace has a dainty presence and a nice voice, which she uses with excellent effect, and her dancing, too, is graceful; Oakdene's ventriloquial act is sufficiently novel to command unstinted applause; a comedian with a really funny style is Arthur Stacey, who as a laughter-maker scores heavily; the Elite Harmony Boys top the bill, and give a smart and enjoyable performance, their concerted numbers being cleverly rendered; Drenda and Green are popular juggling comedians; and Silbon's cats, a comedy animal act, arouse enthusiasm.

CASTLEFORD.—ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Councillor Hy. Masterman, J.P.—On Monday The Ticket of Leave Man was presented by Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Draycott and company. Mr. Charles Draycott's Bob Brierley is frank and engaging; Mr. Harry Scatchard is an amusing Melter Moss; Mr. George Steel, who plays Hawkshaw, is an actor of good presence and possesses a rich and cultivated voice; as Dalton, alias The Tiger, Mr. G. Arthur's work has clever touches; Mr. Chas. H. Herberte supplies an excellent little picture of Mr. Gibson; Mr. Wilfred J. Short makes his points as Green Jones; May Edwards is given a pathetic and intelligent portrayal by Mrs. Chas. Draycott; and Miss Louise Millward is a most entertaining Mrs. Willoughby. Miss Issa Steel's acting does full justice to the rôle of Emily St. Evremond; and Miss Eva Norman is the precocious Sam Willoughby.

QUEEN'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Proprietors, Messrs. Chas. Beanland and W. H. Emerson; General-Manager, Mr. Will H. Emerson; Acting-Manager, Mr. James Travis. — The Loyal Dominion Co.'s animated pictures are still drawing large audiences. By way of variety, Kerr and Shaws manipulate many musical instruments skilfully.

CHATHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard.—This week Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch is paying her first visit to Chatham, Mrs. Madge Carr Cooke's delightful interpretation of the title-rôle being thoroughly appreciated by all. Miss Rita Carlyle is eminently successful as Miss Hazy; the Misses Mable Durrant and Violet Vivian are admirably suited as Mrs. Eichorn and Mrs. Schultz respectively; Miss Christine Rayner makes a sweet little Lovey Mary; Miss Mary Deverell is natural as Miss Lucy; while the juvenile members of the company fairly revel in their various parts. Mr. Frederick Forrest's Mr. Stubbins is a good bit of work; and Mr. Walker Cameron does well as Mr. Wigge.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—Haley's Garden of Girls tops the bill here, and are much admired for their singing and dancing; Phillips and Terry make a welcome reappearance in Taming the Lion; another old favourite is Mabel Thorne, whose choruses are rapidly picked up by the gallery boys; the Donatos, one-legged clowns, surprise all by their dexterous acrobatic feats; Flo Challis, in neat imitations, the Bright Trio, comedy entertainers, and Alf Davis, vocalist, complete the variety turns; while Immaterial Man is a smartly-manipulated film, presented by Lacey's Erascope.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Capt. H. E. Davis.—A long and strong bill is attracting splendid audiences here. It includes Lily Esplin, Fred Bronte, Marie Grof (a well-liked serio), Johnny Holland and Co. (who continue to create unbounded merriment in The Boat-Builder), Jack Lorimer (whose turn is one of the leading items), Stella Stahl (comedienne), Blanche Vincent (with a very popular number, "My Cuban Belle"), and Alec Hurley (who makes the hit of the evening with "Liz" and "I ain't nobody in particular," afterwards appearing with his company in The Coster's Friendly Lead). The Edisonograph supplies fresh pictures to interest and amuse.

CHELTENHAM.—OPERA HOUSE. — General-Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—On Monday evening Mr. Chas. M. Bestic's company is introducing The Flower Girl. Miss Dorothy Firmin does well in the title-rôle; Mr. Martin Adeson, a tower of strength as Joe Wheeler, scores in his songs; Mr. Alfred Donahoe does good work as Johnny Wheeler; Mr. Robert Howard is an acceptable stage lover as Hon. Billy Greenhill; Mr. Norman Bowyer is indefatigable as the dude; Miss Jeannie Holmes acts cleverly as a pronounced suffragette; and Mr. Henry Adnes and Miss Florence Wilton as the couple from gay "Parce" introduce some amusing business.

MONTPELLIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. Alfred W. Newton.—This week "The Dandies" pay a return visit, and add to their reputation; Mr. H. J. Corner is irresistible; Mr. Stephen Fitzgerald scores a distinct success; Miss Josephine Gordon and Miss Rhoda Gordon sing and dance in a charming manner; Mr. Edward Whitehall accompanies.

CHESTER. — ROYALTY THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—Good audiences are being attracted here. Topping the bill are the Xentrix, in The Garden of Terpsichore, which proves highly successful; J. C. Edwards, baritone, ably renders "The deathless army"; the Saletos, in their head and hand balancing act, are repeating the hit they made on a former visit; Burg, Hand, and Wise are as entertaining as ever in their funny pantomime sketch, Ye Brown Cow Inn; Ted Waite, eccentric comedian, is quite a favourite; Marie Kay is a smart juvenile, her songs being distinctly sung, and her dancing neat; Fred Mulvey and Minnie Miriam are again scoring heavily with their duologue "The Reporter"; the Premier Imperial Pictures are better than ever.

CLACTON-ON-SEA.—THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. P. W. Willard.—A strong company here this week, is headed by Kay and Calden in refined comedy and eccentric dancing; Eugenie Boland has a fine contralto voice; the Two Sprees are clever in the scena "Twickenham Ferrry"; the Three Sisters Thurban are delightful vocalists, dancers, and instrumentalists; Miss Vera Patey is still a great attraction as the Summer Girl; Johnny Fuller, the animal impersonator, is very funny; and Pablo is an able comedian. The Palascope presents some fine films.

WEST CLIFF GARDENS. — Proprietors, Messrs. Graham Russell and Bentley.—Here, in addition to the genial proprietors, we find Mr. Walter Montagu, the raconteur and musical crank; Miss Ethel Grimes, a soprano of considerable ability; and Mr. Harry Barratt, a favourite baritone.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessee, Mr. Harold Montague; Business-Manager, Mr. G. Ivor Sparke.—Harold Montague and his Vagabonds continue to receive their full share of patronage from large and appreciative audiences. The performances are of the usual sparkling order, every number being well received.

OPERETTA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. F. W. Jury; Business-Manager, Mr. Dudley Harcourt.—Crowded houses are the order here, and the films shown are of the usual high standard. They include Travel Scenes in Morocco, Black Princess, Wanted, a Son-in-Law, and John Gilpin. Miss Clairetta Florence, vocalist, is a great favourite.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Graham Macdona.—Miss Maude Western's company, in the drama A Mother's Salvation, opened a week's engagement here on Monday, with Miss Western herself as Becky. Mr. J. O. Stevenson successfully appeared in the rôle of Reuben Smith; Miss Ada Hender was well placed in the dual characters of Naomi and Miriam; Mr. Terence Nerry capably undertook the villainous part of The Owl; and Mr. J. Chapman represented his confederate The Old 'Un. Mr. Carl Vallender elicited laughter as Billy Bumpkin; and Miss Kate Newton made a good Mother Turntail. Mr. John Levey made the most of Lynton Desmond.

HIPPODROME.—Joint Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Moullot and Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. Jack de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—At the top of the bill is Mr. Sidney Bacon's company in the musical comedy sketch The Duchess of Tooting, of which Mr. Stephen Adeson ensures success; the Duchess troupe of dancers execute a series of attractive items; Peggy Pryde meets with an ovation as a result of her "Mr. Moon," her hold on the locals being stronger than ever; Leah Adell, who possesses a cultured voice, is pleasing in a sweet chorus song; the Three Ascots appear in a comedy act; and the bill is completed by Wally Scott, comedian and dancer.

CONSETT.—NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—Mr. Millar Anderson is paying a visit here this week with the drama For Her Husband's Sake. Mr. Robert Faulkner is an able Lieut. Jack Seymour, and as Herbert Grey Mr. Millar Anderson is exceptionally good; Mr. Fred Elvin does well as Joseph Dene, and Mr. Albert Rogers as Abraham K. Silas and Mr. Walter Long as Pietro acquit themselves creditably. Mr. Finn Doyle is very funny as Terry O'Neill. Miss Mabel Mannering gives a highly talented impersonation of the part of Estelle Beaudet, and Miss Maude Townsend is interesting as Maria Dene; Miss Doris Laine is excellent as Eileen Silas, and as the child Vi Gem Lloyd is really clever.

CORK.—PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Thomas F. O'Brien.—The principal star here this week is Marie Loftus. Her songs and sketches secure great applause. She is quite inimitable, and scores a tremendous success. Tom Lloyd, a clever comedian, contributes some capital parodies; Denby and Dent are a pair of comedians; Lydia Rale plays solos on the mandoline and banjo in a pleasing manner; Dunn and Reano, gymnasts, give a smart performance on the rings; Lilian Neville possesses a soprano voice of good quality; Nellie Nora contributes a violin selection; the Sisters Ely, duettists, sing well-arranged duets; and the Palascope shows a series of pictures of the Franco-British Exhibition.

ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—Manager, Mr. Alexander McEwan.—Messrs. Harry and Fred Poole's Myriorama opened a week's engagement here this week with a first-class entertainment. The views and scenery shown are very beautiful. There is an all-round clever lot of vaudeville and other artists with the company. The entertainment is drawing good houses.

COVENTRY.—HIPPODROME THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. S. T. Newsome; Resident-Manager, Mr. R. Wright.—A fine programme this week. The first to head the list is Mr. Harry Roxbury, in The Prince of Monte Carlo. Mr. Roxbury takes the part of P.C. Longfellow (of Scotland Yard) himself, and keeps the whole house in roars of laughter. Miss Florrie Galimore, a great favourite with Coventry audiences, sings three songs with great success; Mr. Fred Earle, the eccentric comedian, is inimitable in his contributions; Tray and Rich tell some quaint stories; Clive Watts is a clever dancer; the Bohemians are attractive in their refined entertainment; Miss Edith Chantler has a good voice; and cinematograph pictures conclude.

CREWE.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. G. Dudley Bennett; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. Howard.—A capital all-round programme is headed by Walton and Lester, "the world's worst wizards," who are well received; the Glenroy Troupe are clever dancers; Ted Young, comedian, has some good songs; the Three Sisters Grosvenor sing in capital style; De Ora, acrobat, gives a thrilling performance; Hamilton Hill, Australian baritone, is a favourite; Beatrice Elstree, comedienne and dancer, is a clever artiste; and on the Operascope the latest films are shown.

CROOK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Wallace Davidson, Ltd.; Resident-Manageress, Mrs. Wallace Davidson.—Hill and Ayrton's repertoire is here in The Woman from Russia. As Frank Haldane, Mr. Robert Ayrton is a great success; and Miss Adria Hill is very clever as Wanda. Mr. G. Mortimer Hancock submits a clever impersonation of Ezra, and Mr. Basil Mitchell is good as the Hon. Reginald Fitzgerald. Mr. Fred G. Ingleby makes a capital Captain Alexis; Miss Maggie Hobart is a charming Edith; and the humour is supplied by Miss Maud St. John as Mary Ann and Mr. Frank Wheatcroft as Jerry.

CROYDON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Roland Daniel; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Ernest Archer.—The Egyptian comic opera, Amasis, is causing much amusement and entertainment here. The dresses, scenery, and chorus are all that could be wished, and Messrs. Jose and Young have carefully selected the talented company. Miss Winifred O'Connor captivates all with her charming rendering of Princess Amasis; Miss Mabel Burnege is a pleasing Natis; and Misses Mabel Lovett, Gladys Carlisle, Annette Voile, Lilian Lane, and Doris Cameron are enchanting as the wives. Mr. W. H. Denny makes a palpable hit in the rôle of Pharaoh; Mr. Edward McKeown is well placed as Prince Auhotep; Mr. Arthur Stroud deserves praise as Cheiro; Mr. Fred Hudson is capital as Nebenchari; Mr. Frank Attree is good in the character of Ptolemy Theopompous-Allakama; Mr. W. D. Brodie is satisfactory as Sebak; Mr. Frank Wood ably sustains the rôle of Psamtik; and minor parts are carefully played.

HIPPODROME AND NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Samuel James and Newman Maurice.—Mr. Ronald Bayne and Miss Evelyn Hope present a fine sketch, Only a Dream, also a farcical comedy, entitled The Love Cure. In both pieces Mr. Ronald Bayne and Miss Evelyn Hope exhibit great talent. Bert and Dora are good comedy artists; the Hamiltons prove themselves excellent comedians and dancers; Lottie Bray's skipping-rope dancing is applauded; Harry Wright is a capable vocalist; Nellie Gannon, descriptive vocalist, gives a praiseworthy turn; and some interesting animated pictures are shown by Raymond's Bio-Tableaux.

PUBLIC HALL.—Messrs. Gale and Polden's King's Service Animated Pictures are now the sole property of Mr. Ernest Mansell, who is showing them in Croydon with marked success, the Public Hall being crowded each evening. The series is full of interest. Miss Maude Evelyn introduces illustrated songs.

DARLINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Bell; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hal Cummings.—Mr. Julian Malvern's company is here with I Defy the World. Mr. Percy Ballard as Leon Darville is excellent; Mr. Charles Conway in the dual parts of Laroche and General Delaporte is convincing; Mr. J. Leicester Jackson as Count de Beaulieu realises his responsibilities; Miss Violet Crauford as Blanche Darville gives an effective rendering; Miss Laura Marshall is a clever child artist; Miss Blanche St. Albans as Pauline Delaporte plays with feeling; Mr. Frank Wheatley as Andre is well fitted to the part; and Mr. Charles M. Julian and Miss Maud Lillian are responsible for the humour.

NEW HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Hersee.—The leading feature in the current week's bill here is Jock Whiteford, Scotch comedian; Miss Lydia Yeamans, assisted by the popular pianist Mr. Fred J. Titus, is a popular mimic; the Fimans are very funny in their scena, The Fire Station; and other numbers include Wilman, instrumentalist; Le Crens, eccentric dancers; Sisters St. Julian, duettists and dancers; Florence Esdaile, the Australian nightingale; and the Pepiscope.

DARWEN.—PUBLIC HALL, PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Lessees, Messrs. Thomson, Leivers, and Bennett; Residential-Manager, Mr. J. E. Thomson; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Kerrigan.—The Living Pictures are still of the best, and a good variety programme is provided by Marie Neilson, a charming comedienne and dancer; Edwin Austin, who excels on the concertina; and Earle and Hylton, patter comedians and whistlers.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley.—This popular house reopened its doors to the legitimate on Monday night after a successful variety season. The attraction was Mr. Oscar Asche and Miss Lily Brayton's Shakespearean company, the initial play being The Taming of the Shrew. As Petruchio and Katharina respectively the distinguished artists repeated their everywhere acknowledged success, and obtained an enthusiastic reception. Mr. Asche also appeared with distinction as Christopher Sly in the Induction. Bianca was capably portrayed by Miss Muriel Ashwynne, whose reading was delightfully fresh and pleasing; Mr. Herbert Grimwood was a capital Baptista; and Vincentio was ably accounted for by Mr. J. Fritz Russell, who also appeared with advantage in the Induction as a Lord. Lucentio was well impersonated by Mr. Kay Souper; and as Grumio and Hortensio, Mr. Caleb Porter and Mr. Reginald Ian Penny did themselves great credit. On Tuesday night The Two Pins was played. Othello is also in the bill. The orchestra is under the clever bâton of Mr. Christopher Wilson.

PALACE. — Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes.—The variety season reopened here this week with an excellent programme, headed by a clever illusion, entitled The Magic Carpet, presented by John Warren and company. Dorothy L. Clarke is possessed of a pleasing voice, and contributes several cleverly rendered songs; Bert Terrell is a successful Dutch comedian; Ada Gatley appears to advantage in a pot-pourri speciality of juggling and slack wire balancing; Zellini, comedy juggler, is both diverting and clever; Whimsical Walker and company present a bright and sparkling little sketch, entitled Captain Hamilton, V.C.; and Kendrick and Laura are praiseworthy singers and dancers. The Bioscope concludes with an amusing film.

DEVONPORT.—METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. G. S. King.—At Duty's Call, a stirring drama, is on view here. Mr. John Gerant as Harold Alison, an Anglo-Egyptian, acts the villain to perfection, and Mr. Charles C. Calvert is equally successful as the hero; as Salema, a slave, Miss Ada Roscoe acts powerfully, and Miss Beatrice Western as Dora Drummond is very dignified. Naturally, the play, being a Service one, is well received.

DOUGLAS.—GRAND, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Hemming; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. E. Wood.—Mr. Edward Compton, one of the most popular of actor-managers, is playing to crowded audiences here. On Monday evening David Garrick was staged, and Mr. Compton delighted all and sundry with his excellent presentment of the great tragedian; the Alderman Tresham of Mr. Henry Crocker displayed striking characteristics; Mr. Henry Worrall was excellent as the Hon. Tom Tallyhaut; the Rumbelow of Mr. Philip Gordon was humorous; Mr. E. W. Johnson was an effective Sowerby; Simpkins lost nothing in the hands of Mr. Ivan Leslie; Miss Marie Hasseli acted with a just perception of comedy as Mrs. Rumbelow; Miss Kathleen Lugh was dainty and pathetic as Violet Tresham. The other comedies billed were She Stoops to Conquer, The Gentleman in Grey, The School for Scandal, A Reformed Rake, and The Rivals. The pièce de résistance was preceded by a smart little curtain-raiser, The Desperate Lover, delightfully presented by Miss Viola Compton as Mistress Prue and Mr. Henry Worrall as Harry.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Palace and Derby Castle, Ltd.; Secretary and Manager, Mr. Charles Fox, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Gray.—John Glayde's Honour, with Miss Violet Vanbrugh and Mr. Arthur Bourchier, has proved a great success at this house. Miss Violet Vanbrugh is an actress of infinite resource, and her Muriel Glayde is not the least considerable of her stage creations. Mr. Arthur Bourchier's John Glayde has quality: he is the American gentleman sans peur et sans reproche.

THE PALACE.—Proprietors, the Palace and Derby Castle, Ltd.; Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Fox, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Brittain.—Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Lucas, in Scenes from Dickens; the Misses Florence and Rose Showell, charming duettists; Mona Vivian, vocalist and dancer; Messrs. Hinton and Wootton, in a novel and daring act, A Football Match on Cycles; Mr. Wilson Hallett, entertainer, a specialist in the idiosyncrasies of infancy; A-Ba-Bee's Picture Postcard Album, a pretty setting of picturesque tableaux viv

William Lee and Helen Bentley and company, in a smart and amusing racing sketch, entitled A Sure Thing, get a flattering reception; Will Poluski, jun., is an original dancer and capable comedian; C. I. Johnson, the Black Diamond, is responsible for much merriment; as a ventriloquist Verando makes a decided hit; and Harry Hutin, comedian and dancer, also contributes successfully. The Empire pictures are interesting.

TIVOLI.—General Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—The principal item here this week is furnished by Hayman and Franklin, whose amusing sketch, A Matrimonial Agency, gains for them enthusiastic applause; Marguerite Broadfoote, a charming comedienne, achieves much success for her songs; Eva Lumley and company are highly diverting in their original comedy skit, Jimmy All of a Twist; Harry Taft is an entertaining whistling comedian; Comical Walker and his Nippers provide a capital turn, as does also Walter Buxton, baritone vocalist; Charles M. Daly and company are laughable in their farcical comedy, I Must Have It; Phil Bransby is a good coster comedian; Globella, a clever rolling globe performer, and the Bioscope concludes.

ROUND ROOM ROTUNDA.—The Irish Animated Photo Company, which has entered on its fifth week here, is still drawing full houses, both at afternoon and evening performances. The new series of pictures includes: The Dublin Horse Show, Tour through Venice, Irish Cottage Industries, Motor Boat Races, Paris to the Sea, The Enchanted Mantle, A Gendarme's Tribulation, A Timid Lover, The Sorceress's Daughter, Three Maids and a Bull, A Pierrette's Talisman, &c. The musical programme, in which Miss Agnes Meehan (contralto), Mr. William Sheehan (baritone), and Mr. Patrick O'Shea (tenor) contribute, is much appreciated.

PAVILION, KINGSTOWN.—Lessees, Messrs. Adeler and Sutton; Manager, Mr. Jack Macdermott.—Miss Marjory Moore, an engaging comedienne, has proved a big attraction; Mr. Fred Walmsley, a capital entertainer, is warmly received; Mr. Marriott Edgar, a lively comedian, elicits applause; Mr. Clifford Morgan, baritone, sings his songs in good style; Paddy Dupres is an amusing comedian; Mr. Bernard Knox, solo pianist, is well received; and Mr. Jack Macdermott is going as strong as ever.

WORLD'S FAIR AND MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—The programme here includes: Nellie and Billy, harmonising duettists; Edie Greene, soprano vocalist; Harry Rose, comedian and dancer; Marion Blake, descriptive vocalist; Tom Casey, comedian and dancer; the Percys, duettists and dancers; and the Cinematograph.

DUDLEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—A Soldier of France, a good, rousing military drama, presented by Messrs. Glenville and Osmond's company, met with a good reception here. Mr. Leonard Aardale in the rôle of Father Jean acted in bold and manly fashion, and Mr. Albert Guyon was sufficiently villainous as Juras Delara; Mr. Edward Hobart in the dual rôle of Captain Loraine, afterwards Lieut. Lois, proved himself an actor of ability; Miss Florence Zillwood in the difficult part of Pauline Loraine acted with dignity and power; Miss Jennie Clare was decidedly chic and vivacious as Margot, and she ably assisted Mr. Freddie Edwards in his humorous portrayal of Pollyput Jollyboy; Mr. Milton C. Curtis gave a dignified rendering of Duke D'Laval. The piece was well staged.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. H. Waters.—The management again provide excellent talent for the patrons here. Matthews and Brown, coloured eccentrics, occupy the top of the bill; the Breton Troupe are clever and amusing in The Tramps' Picnic; the Milsted Bell Trio infuse plenty of "go" into their sketch Threee Sharps in a Flat; and the Sisters Wingrove are winsome Military Maids; Johnny Dwyer, favourite comedian, with good songs, is in great request, as usual, and Forrest and King give an enjoyable dancing act; Harry Bland is a good comedian.

DUMFRIES.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Payne Seddon.—We are favoured this week with a visit of Miss Nora Carton's company in Captain Drew on Leave. Mr. Claude King is a marked success in the rôle of Captain Drew; Mr. Tom Mowbray as Mr. George Moxon plays his part in a capable manner; Mr. Gerald Venning is good as Mr. Chester Hassell; Miss Cynthia Brooke as Mrs. Moxon is charming; Miss Nora Carton is very smart as Miss Mills.

DUNFERMLINE.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts.—Mr. E. Marris's company, in The Dandy Doctor, appeared here the first three nights of the week, opening to a good house. Mr. George Brentwood as Melchisadek Brown proved highly amusing; a good deal of the success of the piece was due to Miss Florence Smithers as Jane; Mr. Herbert Pearce as Colonel Pendred was also highly successful; Mr. C. Burronston Williams as Arthur Vandyke made an excellent lover; and Mr. A. Leslie Martin as Bertie Bolingbroke was very entertaining. Miss Mollie Wynne as Ivy Pendred admirably filled her part. Specialities by Miss Lottie Stone's Empire Girls and Little Dutch Girls were cordially received. Herbert Skardon and H. Sherwood Martin's company, in The Way of the World, was billed for the last three nights of the week.

EASTBOURNE.—PIER PAVILION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Mr. George Dance's company, appearing in The Girls of Gottenberg, is proving powerfully attractive. Mr. Bertie Wright as Max has a part in which he fairly revels, and on Monday evening the crowded house roared with laughter at his clever and funny work. Mr. Tom Shelford achieved a big success as Otto, and his songs were given in very effective style; Mr. Howard Cridland, sharp and smart, makes a good deal of the rôle of Brittl-Bottl; Mr. David Miller is an excellently brusque and military Finkhausen; Mr. Tom Squire gives a fine picture of the weak, sentimental Adolph; Mr. Hugh Hensen is a capital Albrech; and Mr. Martin Rickards does duty creditably as the Burgomaster. To Miss Ellaline Thorne must be given a generous meed of praise for her brightly attractive and musically pleasing performance as Mitzi. Miss May Marshall repeats her highly commendable success as the simple Clementine; Miss Gladys Guy is a pretty Elsa; and Miss Susie Beardon a pleasing Katrina. Mr. Otto Manns is the conductor, and Mr. G. E. Draco the manager for the company. Mr. Harry Lauder appeared here on Tuesday afternoon, and a vast audience filled the building from floor to ceiling to hear the celebrated Scotch comedian.

DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Murray King and Clark.—Mr. H. B. Irving and his company are appearing with great success here in The Lyons Mail, Charles I., Louis XI., and The Bells. Mr. H. B. Irving as Matthias in the last-mentioned play gave a very powerful exhibition of dramatic ability. In the last act he reached a depth of tragic acting which held the audience in tense attention, and on the fall of the curtain he was recalled several times. Mr. Eric Maxon was a handsome manly Christian; Mr. Charles Dodsworth as Father Walter contributes quite a little masterpiece of acting; Mr. Tom Reynolds was a jovial Hans; and Mr. Frank Tyars was an impressive President of the Court. Miss Elly Malyon used her exceptional ability to make the part of Christine a conspicuous success; Miss Phyllis Embury was a girlish and pleasing Annette; and Miss May Holland a capital Lozel. King Rene's Daughter preceded, and in this Miss Dorothea Baird presented very poetically the sweet, tender, maidenly charms of the blind Iolanthe; Mr. Frank Tyars was a kingly, dignified Rene; Mr. Eric Maxon was an earnest, romantic Tristan; and Mr. Arthur Curtis a particularly praiseworthy Count Geoffrey.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Holloway.—At the head of the bill are Charcot and his automatic man, and the original show of mesmerism proves popular; the Goldinis are clever and skilful carpet spinners, and they present their show very attractively; Fyne and Hurley are a couple of capable comedians; Mr. George Melvin is a Scotch comedian of decided ability, both as singer and dancer; Miss Phœbe Mercer and company have an effective sketch; and Mr. Leonard Teel and the Denebos, and Miss Margaret Rudcliffe, burlesque artist, complete the bill.

ECCLES.—CROWN THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. F. Slatter.—Mrs. Sam Duckworth's drama Her Nameless Child is here. Miss Pattie Hastings takes the character of Phyllis Ford in a most capable manner; Lady Sybil Woodville is cleverly depicted by Miss Mona Grey; Miss Geraldine Verner is a good Crayont, Lady Sybil's maid; the acting of Mr. J. W. Evelyn as Anthony Ford leaves nothing to be desired; Mr. Arthur Pringle, as Lord Henry Woodville, gives a good account of himself; and Mr. Frank Thompson fits the part of Mongrole admirably.

EDINBURGH.—ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE, LTD.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minahull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—Mr. George Edwardes's company is drawing large houses here with The Girls of Gottenberg. Additional interest is imported to the performances by the inclusion of Mr. Edmund Payne in the cast. The quaint comedian is at his best in the character of Max Moddelkopf, and by his droll acting and his clever singing and dancing he calls forth repeated applause. Happy Fanny Fields plays with irrepressible vivacity as Mitzi, and is frequently encored. A very charming Elsa is found in Miss Thelma Raye, whose graceful acting and cultured singing is especially noteworthy; Miss Maisie Gay is a dashing Clementine; while the numerous girls of Gottenberg are admirably represented by various fair maidens. Mr. Leslie Holland acts with marked neatness and dances with much skill; Mr. Fred Payne's Brittlbottl is an entertaining piece of work; and Mr. Louis Denver's make-up as Adolf is appropriately quaint. Capital sketches are contributed by Mr. Fred Allandale as Albrecht, Mr. A. Chentrens as Kannenbier, and Mr. Arnold Lucy as Colonel Finkhausen. The choruses are sung with precision and effect, and the mise-en-scene is beautiful.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—The Sign of the Cross is very effectively produced by Mr. William Greet's chief company, now in the eleventh year of their phenomenally successful tour. Mr. Cyril Austin-Lee's striking personality and dramatic qualifications find fitting opportunity in the rôle of Marcus Superbus, which is acted with great power. The Emperor Nero and his councillor Tigellinus are well portrayed by Mr. C. Yorke and Mr. Charles Aldred; Mr. J. Weatherall is a satisfactory Licinius; and the character of Glabrio is amusingly embodied by Mr. Frank Wood. The leading feminine Pagans are aptly represented by Miss Beryl Hamilton as Poppœa, Miss Lily Ward as Berenice, and Miss Cissie Carlton as Dacia; Miss Constance Little's impersonation of the Christian Mercia is full of pathetic feeling and gentleness; and the part of Stephanos finds fitting interpretation at the hands of Miss Edith Drayson.

KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Edinburgh Construction Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Amand Muscard.—For the re-opening of this fine house an entertaining and attractive programme has been provided, and enthusiastic audiences have crowded the huge building throughout the week. The versatile musician Vasco heads the bill with his famous mad scena, in which he plays well upon almost every known instrument, celestial, terrestrial, and infernal, infusing also a spice of humour into his performance, much to the enjoyment of his hearers; another manifold instrumentalist appears in the person of Herr Karoly Czynski, the Hungarian musical expert, whose great speciality is drum solo playing, wherein he produced very weird and wonderful effects. The turn contributed by the Seven Perezoffs is quite unique in its way, their juggling with table lamps, decanters, billiard balls, articles of furniture, and so forth being as bewildering as it is marvellous; the Three Comerfords supply a clever acrobatic and tumbling act; very ingenious and admirable trapeze balancing feats are gracefully performed by Mdlle. Alexandra and Mons. Bertie; Farr and Farrland entertain with patter and banjo playing; while good single-handed turns are given by Miss Betty Green, juvenile comedienne and dancer, and by Jack Chambers in his "Neogratic" entertainment and dance; and some very excellent films are exhibited by the Bioscope.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Aynsley Cook.—Mr. Edward Lauri and company provide a very entertaining sketch, entitled In Her Boudoir, in which several clever quick changes and some admirable singing and dancing are accomplished; Mr. Daley Cooper and Miss Mabel Lait and Co. are seen in a farcical piece, The Tea Shop, Mr. Cooper's fooling as Hungry Joe being extremely amusing; Big Ben Brown and George Le Clerq are, as usual, very funny in Black Justice; and Lady Mansel presents a company of smart children in a musical sketch called A Concert Rehearsal; Mr. G. H. Elliott receives enthusiastic applause for his masterly rendering of coon songs; Mr. J. P. Ling gives a successful travesty of a country concert; Miss Ouida Macdermott shows proof of versatility and power in her sketches; the Gothams blend tuneful singing and diverting business in their quartettes; Ralph and Nelly Howard are responsible for an excellent musical piece, The Military Maid; and the Bioscope displays effective films.

ERDINGTON (near Birmingham).—PUBLIC HALL.—The Gustave Roselle's Merry Zingaras are here for six nights. Mrs. Roselle appears in her interesting clairvoyant seance, and sings several high-class songs. The programme also includes Mr. Gustave Roselle, in his ventriloquial entertainment; Miss Vera Winston, soprano; Miss N. Lewis, character vocalist; Miss V. Nana, singer and dancer; Miss M. Rogers, comedienne and dancer; Miss A. Andrews, song and dance artist; Mr. R. J. Goldston, comedian and vocalist; Three Merry Pierrots; and Mr. G. Roselle, violinist. Animated pictures also interest.

EXETER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—Mr. Eugene C. Stafford is presenting The Private Secretary before large and appreciative houses. Mr. Donald Price Evans makes a delightfully limp Rev. Robert Spalding; Mr. W. Hargreave's Mr. Cattermole is a clever representation of that humorous, pugnacious, and lively gentleman; Mr. Frederick Tyrrell is excellent as Gibson, the tailor; Mr. Frank Stanley is good as Mr. Marsland; and Mr. Andrew Wight and Mr. Lawrence Grove are all that could be desired as the two nephews. Miss Dorothy Ripley and Miss Edith M. Savery are respectively charming as Eva Webster and Edith Marsland. The Wild Man from Borneo is the curtain-raiser.

FALKIRK.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—Managing-Director, R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Horace W. Ebbutt.—This week Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company is appearing in The Village Blacksmith. Mr. Sam Livesey, who takes the part of the blacksmith, acts throughout with great power and effect; as Kate Strong, the wife of the hero, Miss Maggie Edwards, acquits herself with conspicuous ability. The other notable characters in a piece which is well staged and capitally played are those of Captain Leo (Mr. Albert Sinclair), Billy Twigg (Mr. Fred Haming), Ruth Parkins (Miss Cassie Le Grande), and Martha Mopps (Miss Edith Giddens).

GATESHEAD.—KING'S THEATRE.—Lessees, United County Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager and Licensee, Mr. Harold Arnold.—Here this week are MacKinnon's Scottish Meisters, who do a delightful "turn"; Dusty Rhodes never fails to create laughter; Ernest Montefiore's dainty sketch, The Little Colonel, is popular; the Claymores are clever dancers; Hunter and Maris supply an original comedy act; Zenora does some wonderful acrobatic feats; Mirsky, the Polish boy vocalist; Harry Bold, comedian; and pictures by Vernon's bioscope make up a good programme.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; General-Manager, Mr. R. G. Elder.—Mr. Hamilton Baines is presenting Dark Deeds of the Night here. The principal figure is that of Dr. Mortimer Caine ably portrayed by Mr. Frank Eaglesfield; Mr. Lewis de Burgh makes an almost ideal Jack Brandon; Mr. Alfred Terris is a breezy Joe Norton; Tim O'Mallory is capitally depicted by Mr. Albert Hayzen; Miss Hilda Merrilese is a dignified Dora Bardsley; Miss Gwen Stewart shows uncommon histrionic ability in the part of Ruth Maitland; Miss Jennie Bostock looks well after the part of Mrs. Brandon and Miss Edith Bottomley is a lively Polly Prince.

GLASGOW.—ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys.—The new version of The Christian, as presented by Mr. Wentworth Croke's excellent company, is appealing powerfully to patrons here with its bountiful setting and well-selected cast. Mr. Henry Renouf's fine stage presence and quiet, dignified method befit him admirably as the heroic and severely-tried John Storm. Miss Doris Gilman exhibits great ability in her reading of Glory Quayle, investing the more strenuous scenes with much power; Mr. Edwin Ling plays Father Lamplugh with care and finish; Horatio Drake is effectively sustained by Mr. Oswald Marshall, and Mr. E. R. Hollway does commendable work as Lord Storm; Miss Sinna St. Clair acts cleverly as Mrs. Callender, and Polly Love is played with quiet pathos by Miss Margaret Brodie.

KING'S LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison present this week Lady Frederick for the first time in Glasgow. The cast includes Mrs. Brown-Potter, who gives a fascinating representation of the wayward Lady Frederick, and Mr. Philip Cuningham, whose Paradine Fouldes is a fine study of a good-natured bachelor. Mr. Shirley Lee as Admiral Carlisle supplies a breezy picture of an irritable old gentleman and Miss Edith Deverell as his daughter Rose acts charmingly; Mr. Cecil Bevan as Captain Montgomerie enacts a villain of unusual mildness, who excites no resentment in the upper regions of the house; the Mme. Claude of Miss Phyllis Manners is a clever exposition; Sir Gerald O'Mara is pleasingly portrayed by Mr. Reginald Van Ranney and Miss Audrey Campbell makes an equally agreeable Lady Mereston; Mr. Herbert Garthorne amusingly depicts the embarrassments of Lord Mereston.

ROYALTY, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Carpenter.—The reopening of the Royalty and the reappearance here of Mr. Edward Terry drew a large house on Monday. The popular comedian opened in the new play Flander's Widow, and his portrayal of the good-hearted old farmer with an aversion to matrimony was exceedingly good; Miss Edith Coleman made a charming widow, and acted the varying moods of the character with fine effect; Mr. Edmund Hollick was a picturesque lover as Richard; Miss Sophie Lingwood contributed a most amusing sketch of character as Mrs. Belbin, and her son Sam was equally well acted by Mr. Kenneth Brampton. The other types of villagers were cleverly played by Messrs. William Dexter, Penn Hamilton, and C. Macmanus and Misses Evelyn Ormonde and Ella Dixon. Boucicault's one-act play Kerry was given in front, with Mr. Edward Terry in his clever performance of the old Irish servant. On later evenings of the week Liberty Hall, The Magistrate, and Sweet Lavender were played.

ROYAL PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—London With the Lid Off is played here. The self-sacrificing young clergyman, the Rev. Allen Gordon, is admirably played by Mr. Stanley Carlton; Mr. Wm. Marshall as the blind burglar is especially good. As the brave lady detective, Madge Randall, Miss Amy Allen shows great talent. The comic element is well sustained by Mr. Lancelot Usher as Percy Plunker and Dolly, the lady typist, by Miss Emily Lewis; Miss Rubie Maude as Astra Bell, the friendless orphan, proves herself a pleasing actress; Miss R. H. Belexo as Mrs. Glendale and Miss Amy Ellam as Sarah Shafto, of the "Diamond Gang," are also worthy of mention. Large appreciative audiences have given sufficient evidence that the piece is a success.

METROPOLE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—Messrs. Sidney Rennef and G. M. Copping's company is this week giving a thoroughly good performance of Love Rules the World. The part of the hero, Harold Kingston, is played in romantic fashion by Mr. Richard Vane, and a sweet and winning Maud Carruthers is seen in Miss Gertrude Sterroll. The villainy of Stephen Blight is delineated in firm and effective style by Mr. Stephen Langton; in the rôle of the adventuress, Flo Morton, Miss Constance Medwyn acts and dresses well; as Tim Dixey, a reformed burglar, Mr. Sidney Rennef does good work; and in Mr. Walter Dale (Binks) the company possesses an excellent comedian. Miss Annie Brunette makes a characteristic Mother Grimble; Kitty Snowdrop is pertly represented by Miss Kitty Russell; Mr. Matt Russell is good as Farmer Carruthers, and the other parts are well filled by Messrs. Alex. Wilson Wynne, G. H. Langley, and Fred Astley.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—Following a successful week at the Royal Princess's, the detective drama Sexton Blake was introduced to Govan theatre-goers for the first time. Mr. Horace Hunter in the title-rôle gives a finished performance. Mr. Brian Daly as Farmer Blackburn, Mr. William Felton as the farmer's son, Mr. Stephen Nicolls as Squire Lovell, Mr. Charles East as Randolph Lovell, Mr. John M. East as Faggas, the burglar, Miss East Robertson as Philadelphia Kate, and Mr. Algernon Syms as the Rev. Edward Gray all do excellent work. Acceptable humour is introduced by Mr. Billy Ross as Tinker and Miss Lena Delphine as Euphemia Pattacake.

EMPIRE.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Manners.—Arthur Roberts heads an excellent bill here, and the volatile one is seen to much advantage in the sketch Till Sunday, ably assisted by Miss Ruby Celeste and the members of his company. The Poluski Bros. are as funny as ever in their cross-talk business; Arabella Allen again shows her versatility in scenes from Shakespeare and Dickens; Jennie Johns is a coming favourite, and her new scena, A Middy in the King's Navy, should go far towards her success; Johnson and Bert contribute a smart and original comedy and knockabout turn; Rosa and Kitty Simms are neat dancers; Daras gives a varied turn as a conjurer, dancer, and impersonator of famous composers; Will Cornish's musical entertainment is much enjoyed; Harold Thorley sings well; and the Bioscope pictures of Niagara Falls, &c., are particularly good.

ZOO-HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Councillor E. H. Bostock; Assistant-Manager, Mr. E. H. A. Bostock.—The top turn this week is that of Fred Karno's comedy company in their uproariously funny sketch London Suburbia. Maud Hillman and Maurice Russell give a pleasing musical sketch called The Somnambulist; Harry Claff and Alice Tremayne present an excellent travesty of a pantomime demon and fairy, the former having a fine bass voice and the latter a sweet soprano; Harry Marlow and May Manton enact a comical sketch called Winning a Wife; the Dorrington Family do some amazing feats on bicycles and unicycles; Eileen Barnard sings Irish songs with a good voice and a refreshing brogue; Daisie Morell is a powerful singer of coon songs; Willie Stopit is an eccentric and versatile comedian; and the Bioscope rounds off a good entertainment.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Evan Good.—G. W. Hunter is starring here, and in song and story keeps the audience in the best of humour; Sammy Shields is as great a favourite as ever; George Leyton remains another week, and is presenting his scena Lucknow, in which he introduces a dozen fine old veterans of the Indian Mutiny; Curtis Leo is a smart conjurer; Harry Rogerson is a great favourite in his burlesque drama; an ingenious acrobatic and dancing act is given by the Maids of the Mill in a novel setting; Oakley and James in a varied turn take well; Bessie Herbert gives a descriptive song; and Mario, juggler, completes a good bill.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich Waldon; General-Manager, Mr. Harry M'Kelvie.—The bill here drew good houses on the opening night. La Pia, "the enchantress," indulges in art dances, which are truly described as dazzling and artistic; Harry Conlin, comedian, has a cordial reception; other notable turns include Wal Croft, the favourite Scotch comedian; the Coes, musicians and vocalists; Coram, a clever and expert ventriloquist; Barrett and Knowles, smart comedians and dancers; Dolly, Agnes, and Maud, vocal trio; Alfred Graham's Premier Juveniles, vocalists; and the Bioscope, with interesting pictures.

COLISEUM.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—A condensed version of the sensational drama Paul Kauvar is given here by Arnold Bell and company, and proves very exciting. John Humphries and company present an amusing sketch, Ancient Britons, which goes well. The Donaldson Bros. are very funny in their Sports in the Jungle; Charles Coborn receives the welcome of an old favourite for several of his clever songs; Nellie Coleman's male impersonations are smart and humorous; Stewart and Morgan sing well in their Leaving Ireland scena; Nora Emerald is a smart soubrette and dancer; Luis Hardt shines as a strong man; Mary Dundas's illustrated songs prove popular, and the Bioscope pictures are up to date.

GAIETY, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Harry Bowerman.—The Toreadors have the top of the bill, and are responsible for a lively ten minutes with their Spanish bull-fight, in which they introduce their well trained donkey; Fred and Lillie Monckton present a farcical sketch, Two in a Flat, which takes very well; Carlton is amusing as a comedian; as acrobatic grotesques the Bros. Bradshaw are admirable; Eunson and Kempton are clever comedians and dance neatly; the Sisters Poole-Pelham do exceedingly well in the same line of business; and the Bioscope, as usual, proves interesting. Capital attendances are the rule.

PANOPTICON.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. E. Pickard.—The Bioscope provides a good part of the entertainment, and the pictures are original and interesting. Betty Starr, who possesses a capital voice; Will Titman, character vocal comedian; Nellie Vann, comedienne and dancer; and W. H. Rollason, favourite baritone, are also in the programme.

GLOUCESTER.—PALACE.—Owners, Messrs. Poole's Theatres, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. C. W. Poole.—The Ten Loonies, with excellent fooling, combine in some good music, and Bert Danson makes a hit; the Columbia Trio are humorous and tuneful; Maston is a clever mimic, and Wright and Elton sing, dance, and tumble in an entertaining manner; Stan Aubrey has a good reception for his legmania business; the Two Rays are applauded for their scena The Nightingale; the Onyx Duo introduce a quick-change singing and dancing speciality, and the Palacescope puts on a good film.

GOOLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Fred Greaves.—The Manxman is being presented here by Mr. Alfred B. Cross and company. The piece is attractively mounted and the company work well together. In the rôle of Pete Mr. Alfred B. Cross captivated the whole house by his clever portrayal; Miss Minnie Watersford submits a most impressive and artistic portrayal of Kate Cregeen; Mr. Harold B. Lewis plays Philip Christian with marked success; Cæsar Cregeen is admirably depicted by Mr. Fred Mace; Mr. Fred Charles ably presents Ross Christian; Miss Blanche Lee makes a stately and dignified Miss Christian; Miss Nancy Mitchell is highly successful as Nancy, and Miss Maude Aldred is a pleasing Bella Kelley. The minor parts are in capable hands.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—ROYAL AQUARIUM THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Mr. Seymour Hicks' company produced The Gay Gordons on Monday for the first time in Yarmouth. Miss Maie Ash is a captivating Peggy, sharing chief honours with Mr. Frank Lincoln, an exhilarating Angus; Tom Graves is a funny Nervy Nat; Edward Nainby an excellent Edmond Siddons; Nellie Lonnen a delightful Victoria Siddons, her dancing being very graceful; and Ida Laurie a quaint Charlotte Siddons. Andrew Quainton is well played by Mr. Edward Beecher; and Mr. Norman Forrest is good as Corporal John Smith. The orchestra is ably directed by Leonard Leslie.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Charles Frohman's excellent company is presenting The Hypocrites here. Mr. H. Lawrence Leyton gives an admirable impersonation of the Rev. Mr. Linnell; Mr. John Denny is excellent as Leonard Wilmore; Miss Laura Graves gives a fine portrayal of Miss Wilmore; Miss Muriel Mason is a charming Helen; Mr. Frederick Morland an ideal family lawyer; Miss Muriel Pope cleverly plays Rachel Neve; and the Vicar of Weybury is well acted by Mr. F. G. Thurstans, good work being also done by Mr. E. H. Ruston.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. George Gilbert.—An excellent programme is being presented here this week. The Lizzettes troupe of lady acrobats astonish everyone by their marvellous feats; A. D. Robbins performs exceptionally clever tricks on the bicycle; Alexander Prince is an expert concertina soloist; Leicester Cooke appears in a clever equestrian act; John Watson is funny as Lady Godiva; the Sisters Judge introduce some cleverly trained birds; the Four Dorians present a smart gymnastic act; Rochez's ponies and dogs are very entertaining; Ada Webb and her water nymphs are still very popular; and Doodles, assisted by Poodles, adds much to the merriment.

BRITANNIA PIER PAVILION.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Nightingale; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edward Gray. Wittie Wattie Walton is repeating his success of last week; Mabel Green is very popular; Sidney Lee is a clever conjurer; the Keiths present a novel musical turn; Fred Herbert is an up-to-date topical vocalist; Maud Welton and Marie Welton are very pleasing; La Petite Corlera delights everyone with her clever dancing; and Amos Howard is a smart dancing comedian.

WELLINGTON PIER PAVILION.—Proprietors, the Great Yarmouth Corporation; Manager, Mr. Arthur Cash.—An excellent programme is presented here this week. Alix Lukos shows ability in a scena entitled "The Language of Fate"; Maggie Rimmer, attired in picturesque costume, sings excellent songs; Robert Dunning is a first-rate ventriloquist; Daisy Reed a clever speciality dancer; Chas. Craston a funny comedian; Nancy St. John, beautifully gowned, sings a catchy song; George Robins gives clever imitations of music hall artists; Emily Hayes is a good soprano vocalist; and Chris Van Bern, comedian, and Kahn and Kahn, clever necromancers, are also in the bill.

CHAPPELL'S PROMENADE CONCERTS.—Proprietress, Mrs. Sarah Lawton; General Manager, Mr. Harry Barker.—The new turn here this week is George D'Alvar, a clever gymnast.

THE GEM.—Proprietors, the Gt. Yarmouth Amusement Centre, Ltd.; Resident-Director, Mr. C. B. Cochran.—Excellent films are being shown at this popular establishment.

GREENOCK.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—The Ohms present their performing ponies, bears, dogs, and monkeys, the animals giving evidence of careful and patient training; an amusing sketch entitled Home from the Honeymoon is cleverly acted by Mr. Arthur Jefferson's company; Cynthia is a juvenile artist of much promise; Simms and Simms please immensely with a musical speciality; Drum and Major are no less entertaining as duologue artists; Flo Cecil and Daisy Dashwood are both successful comediennes, and the Alexandroscope pictures are the latest.

EMPIRE.—Lessees, The Greenock Empire Syndicate; Responsible-Manager, Mr. Edward McCormick; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. J. Colquhoun.—The Enchanted Iona, a comedy illusion by Charles Frazer and company, is proving a big attraction; Lloyd's Gondolier Glee Singers are greatly appreciated; Edgar Forrest and company submit with success a comedy sketch, Sunshine After Rain; little Baby Sophie, who appears as an extra turn, gains applause for her vocal items; and we are further entertained by Lillie Hales, a charming comedienne, and Arthur Wallis, descriptive vocalist. The Prince Edward pictures are again a capital collection.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry L. Skivington.—The top of the bill is a delightful musical extravaganza entitled The Belle of the Orient, by Mr. Joe Peterman's company; Les Piccolinos score a well-deserved hit with their clever and unique turn; The Dinner Hour is the title of a pantomime absurdity, which is responsible for much hilarity; Charles Rose, comedian and dancer; Lena Leslie, comedienne; and Frank Lester, vocalist, also give good turns. The Dramascope pictures are excellent.

GRIMSBY.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. North.—The Girl with the Angel Face is here this week, under the direction of Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Willard. In the singular character of Angel Leigh Miss Florrie Green does excellent work, representing the strange temperament of the girl with admirable force; Mr. H. Naylor Grimson, in the somewhat mysterious personality of Sir John Wentworth, is excellent; Mr. Fred G. Evison is responsible for good character acting as the aged Jasper Death; Miss Phyllis Dailley is equal to all requirements as Ena Wentworth; Miss Mildred Carr gives a vivacious impersonation of Mollie Maitland; Mr. Cecil Mannering is good as the Rev. Gordon Cross; Mr. Allen Charles acts well as the Hon. Percy Paget; the same may be said of Mr. Austin Mortimer as Stephen Arkwright; whilst Mr. Dicky Bird is amusing as Jim Bates; and the part of the child, Nellie, is nicely played by Miss Winifred Delevanti.

THE PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. Rhodes Parry.—Van Allen is an accomplished musician, contributing excellent 'cello and banjo solos, and has also a fund of droll stories; Claude Feldman's Beau-Ideal Juveniles are a clever troupe, introducing a variety of pretty songs, dances, &c.; the Mayvilles, human marionettes, are distinctly amusing; the three Sisters Tree repeat their former successes, their hunting scena being popular; Joe Archer scores as a comedian; Chummie La Mara is a pleasing comedienne; and Kenneth and Kane appear in a capitl comedy sketch.

GUERNSEY.—THEATRE ST. JULIAN'S.—Lessee, Mr. Ed. Marris.—A return to vaudeville entertainment this week drew an appreciative audience. Great Scott delighted all by his performances on a perpendicular unsupported ladder; Alf Drinkwater, a comedian; Bella Harcourt, vocal comedienne; Jack Binns, in a similar line of business; and Jack Hamilton, patterer and dancer, are all good; Morelli and Moore, in their all-sorts speciality act, and Zara and Arno, gymnastic comedians on bars, complete the programme.

CANDIE GARDENS.—The Sabots, a costume concert party, are here. Although somewhat handicapped by the weather, business is good.

HALIFAX.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Messrs. Sutton and Raynor's répertoire company is at the Royal this week with Moths, Camille, and Harvest. Moths was played on Monday and Tuesday. Mr. Cecil Wynne did full justice to the part of Prince Zouroff; Mr. Raynor made himself popular as the cynical Lord Jura; Mr. C. Lodge-Percy (Duke of Mull), Mr. Conrad Heywood (Raphael de Correze), Mr. C. R. Bickell (Boris), Miss Nellie Statham (Lady Dolly Vanderdecken), and Miss H. Schrier (Fuchsia Leach) are well placed. Miss Dorothy West-Symes was accorded a good reception for her rendering of Vere Herbert; Miss Cecilia Dare gave a fine interpretation of the part of the Duchess.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Reg. H. Foster.—W. E. Gillin, now on a second visit to the Palace, has charmed audiences with his clever ventriloquial entertainment and smart patter; the Bob Pender troupe cause considerable amusement in The Long and the Short of It; Georgina Middleton sings with effect; and Minnie D'Aubyn, chorus vocalist; Chas. Banks and his clever dog, "Woof"; the Three Alskarnos, Risley comedians; the Three Gregsons, in The Dummy; and Jimmy Laurel, patter comedian, also appear. Raymond's Bio-Tableaux are popular.

HANLEY.—ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Acting-Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—Lucky Durham pays another visit to the Potteries, and is attracting large and enthusiastic audiences. Mr. S. Herbert Humber as John Durham is exceptionally brilliant; the humorous rôle played by Mr. Arthur Leigh could scarcely be improved upon; Mr. T. R. Lockw

Nisch; and Mr. Albert Kavanagh was well-placed as Marquis de Cascade. Mr. Basil S. Foster made an excellent Prince Danilo, and soon made himself a favourite. Miss Mary Grey made a dignified and passionate Baroness Popoff; Miss Dora Langham danced her way into the hearts of all as Frou Frou; and Miss Clara Evelyn was most excellent as Sonia. The celebrated valse scene, with Mr. Basil Foster, was encored again and again. The Merry Widow was mounted and dressed in lavish style, and all the small parts were well filled, the chorus being excellent. The orchestra is under the bâton of Mr. Harrison Frewin, and Mr. Douglas Miller is general-manager.

THE KURSAAL. — General-Manager and Musical-Director, Mr. Julian Clifford; Assistant-Manager and Secretary, Mr. R. Eldrid.—For this week the Hollanders, entertainers, are announced; together with special matinée and evening on Tuesday with Mr. Bransby Williams in his Dickens and other well-known impersonations. Mr. Julian Clifford is still too unwell to officiate, but his place is taken by his able leader in the orchestra, Mr. John Bridge.

HARTLEPOOL.—EMPRESS.—Proprietors, Messrs. Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charlie Ferrier.—Pictures continue to be the principal attraction here. Variety is introduced by Brown and Polson, two clever comedy acrobats, and an illustrated song, "Anchored," capitally rendered by Mr. Charlie Ferrier.

MARKET HALL.—The Premier Pierrots continue to do well here. Will Smith on Wednesday was the recipient of a complimentary benefit. The regular programme was supplemented by a neat exhibition of comedy conjuring by Marvello, some well-rendered tenor songs by Mr. Harry Townsend, coon songs by Miss Josephine Noble, baritone songs by Mr. Cotterell, and violin solos by Mr. Bert Donald.

HASTINGS. — GAIETY THEATRE. — Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—Mr. Frank Curzon's company was here on Monday for a three days' visit in My Mimosa Maid. Miss Marie Studholme as Paulette acted very pleasingly. Mr. Charles McNaughton gave a good impersonation of Victor Guilbert; Mr. Charles E. Payton was a humorous Max Guilbert; and Master Archie McCaig attracted considerable notice as Bock. Mr. Percy Carr, as M. Emile Gerrard, has some excellent songs; and Mr. John H. Goldsworthy created a good impression as Captain Louis de Laurier. Miss May Garstang was an effective Mme. de Pilaine; and Miss Mabel Hirst a vivacious Popitte. Mr. Arthur Jackson played quaintly as Grone.

HIPPODROME. — General-Manager, Mr. H. Vivian Fisher; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Walter Norman. —The programme here is interesting, and opens with the dainty comedienne, Miss Lizzie Daniels; a good turn is given by the acrobats, Harry and Rose Knotella; some up-to-date subjects are effectively pictured on the new Hipposcope; the Celtics (Leslie, Lyn, and Willie) introduce plenty of laughable material in their music, mirth, and melody. The patter comedian Arthur Blount is greeted with encouraging applause; a novel and clever musical phantasy is illustrated by Chimes, the "crazy butcher"; Geo. Brooks, an excellent comedian, is another welcome addition to the programme; and Cadwall and Verne (Fred and Daisy) appear in a delightful comedy scena, entitled Early Closing Day.

PIER PAVILION.—Entertainment-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—Miss Annie Vestris Grew, an accomplished contralto, sings with much sweetness and expression; a series of new pictures are shown by Payne's Bio-Photoscope; the dancing and musical abilities of Miss Lilian Rigby, are greatly applauded; the Five Sisters Warwick, trick cyclists, are always warmly welcomed; highly amusing and clever is Mr. Ernest Hastings, the society entertainer; and some skilful acrobatic feats are exhibited by the Five X-Rays, who style themselves the "mad athletes."

ST. LEONARDS PIER.—Entertainment-Manager, Mr. Elvey Thomas.—Mr. Ian Maclaren is presenting The Tyranny of Tears. Mr. E. Rigby plays the part of the novelist, Clement Parbury, with great judgment and unfailing ability; Mr. Linson Wells as George Gunning is admirable in every respect; Mr. A. B. Douglas takes the small part of Col. Armitage; Miss Doris Digby plays with exquisite grace and finish as Mrs. Parbury; Miss Marguerite Cellier is charmingly natural in the part of Hyacinth Woodward, and her comedy is excellent.

HORWICH.—NEW PRINCE'S.—Lessees, the Horwich Theatre Co.; Manager, Mr. R. H. White.—Mr. Gilbert Payne's The Honeyman, very aptly described as a musical comedy oddity, is the holiday attraction this week, and a packed house on Monday followed the various situations for three hours, with continuous roars of laughter. Mr. Payne as Nathaniel Noodle is irresistible; Mr. H. F. Housden is excellent as the irascible Col. Vandyke Brown; Jack Armstrong receives full justice at the hands of Mr. Leslie Erle; Mr. Edward Ray as Archie plays the part on accepted conventional lines; Mr. Gus Tomlin as Victor L'Estrange is a typical Frenchman; and Policeman X.O. has a capital exponent in Mr. Joseph Wallace. Miss Hetty Lind is a charming Madge; Miss Connie Meadows's dancing and singing are much applauded; Miss Clara Mascotte as Stella plays capably.

HUDDERSFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. J. Phillips.—Mr. George D. Day's company is here with The Prodigal Son. In the leading part of Oscar Stephenson Mr. Albert Ward repeats a performance which has gained breadth with closer study; Miss Pauline Emeric in the parts of Thora and Elin show much cleverness in the two characters; Mr. H. J. Crane is thoroughly sound as the dour Magnus; Mr. Jackson Hayes has a full appreciation of the possibilities of his part as Stephen Magnusson; Miss Pearla Gardner is fascinatingly passionate as Helga Neilson; Mr. J. E. Savery makes a dignified Doctor Olsen; and Miss Florence Lovell is satisfactory as Anna Magnusson.

HIPPODROME, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—At the top of the bill is Mr. Horace Pollock and company in Hester's Mystery. Also appearing are Miss Clarissa Talbot and Albert Pearce in the pretty musical duologue, Yo-San; Ward and Davis, in their sketch, Wanted, a Typist; Russell Wallett, comedian; Miss Jane Eyre, a vocal comedienne, with delicacy of style; Alf. Holt, a highly skilled mimic; the Four Jumels, in a musical turn, and a dramatic film on the Bioscope.

HULL.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Mortons, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. W. F. Morton.—For the first time Mr. Somerset Maugham's work is now being seen in Hull, and Lady Frederick will make us wish for more. The title-rôle is delightfully filled by Miss Mabel Love. Her brogue is cleverly assumed, and the striking pathos of the play finds its outlet in this lady's fine acting. Mr. Robt. Minster achieves success in the rôle of Paradine Fouldes; the Lord Mereston of Mr. E. F. Meads is sufficiently convincing; Mr. E. Bondfield's Capt. Montgomery is a pleasant conception of the part. Miss Love has excellent support all round. A suitable curtain-raiser is found in The Peacemaker.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Manager, Mr. Tom Bogue.—The Belle of the Ball, a modern Cinderella story, furnishes Mr. Johnnie Schofield with opportunities for mirth, and Mr. Chas. Adeson likewise gives vent to his comicalities. Miss Gertrude Melville is a pleasing Cinderella; Miss C. Lestrange and Miss Ethel Bertram play the parts of the sisters with some success. The miniature brougham, with its four tiny horses, is one of the most striking features in this show.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Morton's, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—For Mr. Walter Melville's play, The Girl Who Wrecked His Home, there is much to be said in commendation. Miss Louise Hampton makes the principal rôle striking and strong, and gives every evidence of dramatic power; Mr. Fred W. Goddard is a fine hero; Miss Ida Thompson works well as Winnie Marshall; and Miss Georgie de Lara shows hereditary talent as Val Raymond. Mr. Francis Hope effectively introduces the comic relief necessary.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—Messrs. Matthew H. Glenville and Fred Osmond's company, in The Still Alarm, is quite an attraction. Miss Beatrice Shirley gives a pleasing impersonation of Elinor Fordham; Mr. Matthew H. Glenville's capital illustration of Jack Manley deserves praise; Miss Mabel Veriton is an excellent Mrs. Manley; and Mr. Tom Beasley as Willie Manley makes the most of his opportunities. Miss Hettie Zillwood is a smart Carrie Wilber; and Mr. Fred Osmond an amusing Doc Wilber.

IPSWICH.—LYCEUM.—Mr. Ian Maclaren's excellent company occupies the house for the week with old English comedy, opening on Monday with The School for Scandal. Mr. Ian Maclaren played Charles Surface, Mr. George Relph Joseph Surface, and Sir Peter Teazle was in the hands of Mr. Murray Hathorn. It would be scarcely possible to have better exponents of these well-known characters. Miss Violet Sterne was Lady Teazle, and Miss Muriel Dole played Mrs. Candour. The remaining parts were well filled. The performance well deserved the enthusiastic plaudits with which it was received.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Manager, Mr. Stead.—The Wakeman Quintette established themselves as popular favourites on Monday by the excellent quality of their singing; Blake and Amber, mock operatic singers, are amusing; Minnie Olive and Bob Owen have a realistic scena, entitled The Roadside Tinkers; Wild Willie and West are smart acrobats; the Three Arleys, trick cyclists, have some cleverly trained terriers; George Helm and Emmie Cozens give a sketch entitled The Doctor and the Patient; Bert Kemble, comedian, and Kathleen and Carter Pickford in a comedy duologue complete an excellent bill.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Rex Sugden.—Mr. and Mrs. J. Rice Cassidy and company are paying a return visit with In Holy Russia, and drawing good houses. Mr. Henry Compton gives a capital account of Colonel Forrest; and Mr. Frank Copeland is seen to advantage as Sir Harry Beresford. Mr. J. Rice Cassidy is responsible for the comedy in the part of Mickey Nolan; Mr. Joe Cuthbertson is very powerful as Baron Von Pleve; Mr. Jerold B. Reed does full justice to the rôle of Michael Natolski; Mr. Rolf Leslie looks and plays Count Gregori Petrolski to perfection; and Mr. George H. Doyle is well placed as Laurice Sterrgoff. Misses Alice Holland, Agnes Durham, and Roma Tremayne contribute impersonations which add much to the success of the performance; and Mrs. J. R. Cassidy, a most accomplished actress, scores a pronounced success.

JERSEY. — OPERA HOUSE. — Lessee, Mr. E. Marris; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley Hope.—This week's turns include D. W. Watson, the one-armed instrumentalist; Hilda Mascot, comedienne and dancer; Jack Foley, character comedian; and Will Farrell, an agile comedian, who tells some racy yarns; whilst the palm falls to the effective singing of Miss Louis Harman. A new feature in the programme is the introduction of Miss Carlotta De Yonson's company in a couple of tabloid melodramas, entitled Crime and the Criminal and Sexton Blake. Animated pictures close the performance. On Thursday four handsome prizes were given for the best turns by local amateurs.

ODDFELLOWS' HALL.—Poole's Myriorama continues with unabated success. Eileen and Mayne, the Dutch musical dancing sisters, receive a nightly ovation.

TRIANGLE PARK.—The Dutch Serenaders, being unable to reach Jersey in time to appear here on Monday night, their place was taken by the Morlez, who provided a delightful evening's entertainment.

KEIGHLEY. — QUEEN'S THEATRE. — Proprietor, Mr. R. Kendal; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Carson.—Much interest is centred on the visit of The Coal King, owing to the recent Wigan disaster. Mr. Clifton's Alderson's company is a well-selected one, and the play is realistically staged. Mr. Alderson is to be complimented on the manner in which he portrays the part of Tom Roberts, manager of the mine; Mr. George Hanbury is a typical crafty designing villain; Mr. Sam Roberts as Jim Williams has plenty of work to do, and there is not a dull moment whilst he is on the stage; Mr. Frank Dalton acts with distinction as Dick Shirley; Mr. Ulick Burke scores as Sir Reginald. Grace Shirley has a sweetly sympathetic exponent in Miss Winifred Love.

KETTERING. — AVENUE THEATRE. — Proprietor, Mr. Frank Payne.—The attraction this week is Mr. J. F. Preston's company with Rogues of the Turf. Mr. Preston presents a talented rendering of the character of Joe Flaxman; Mr. Howard Barlow as Captain Clifton is excellent; Mr. Howard Macroy is immensely funny as Moses Solomons; and Mr. Leslie Hawkins scores as Arthur Somerton. Miss Mabelle Barlow contributes an artistic performance as Lady Heathcote, and Miss Ethel Rainworth is deserving of praise as Nellie Flaxman.

KIDDERMINSTER. — NEW OPERA HOUSE.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. C. Gudgeon.—Mr. Chas. Constant's company paid a visit the first part of the week with Florodora. As Anthony Tweedlepunch Mr. Gus Danby excels himself; Mr. Jack Packer is an excellent Cyrus W. Gilfain; and Mr. Martin D. Pitt an able exponent of Frank Abercoed. Dolores is charmingly enacted by Miss Daisy Lake; and Miss Lillie Blythe gives a sweet impersonation of Lady Holyrood. The play is beautifully mounted.

KIRKCALDY.—HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. G. W. Walker.—Bob Hutt and company are topping the bill with Captain of the Boys, and are causing no end of laughter; Spencers and Marks, comedians and dancers, come next with a very smart contribution. A popular turn is that of the Real Mackays juvenile singers and dancers, who are undoubtedly clever; Miss May Lillian Levey, chorus singer, has a warm reception; and equally successful are Miss Connie Gilbert and Miss Vi-Adele, comediennes. The pictures again form an important part of the programme.

LANCASTER.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. J. Porter and W. J. Fergusson. —A good all-round programme is again arranged here, with the Carmos, in a clever juggling act, at the top; Fred Spry and B. S. Monti have a good reception; and Harris and Worth, comedians, have some good patter. Beau and Belle sing well together; Charles Russell, vocal comedian, is acceptable; Beatrice Willey, in a melody of old flower songs, is pleasing; and Ivy Aberdare dances exceedingly well. The Hippograph still proves an attraction.

LEEDS.—GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—An enthusiastic welcome was here accorded that popular player, Mr. Fred Terry, on Monday evening, when he presented The Scarlet Pimpernel. Mr. Terry has on this occasion Miss Miriam Lewes for his leading lady, and her conception of the heavy rôle of Lady Blakeney is of all round excellence, and won general recognition from a crowded audience. Mr. Terry's portrayal of Sir Percy Blakeney was as usual masterly and artistic in every phase. Later in the week, the new piece, Matt of Merrymount, was promised.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston. —That famous play, The Silver King, is paying another visit to this theatre, a capable company by Messrs. G. M. Polini and Austen Melford being in evidence. Mr. Fred D. Davis's presentation of the part of Wilfred Denver will bear comparison with many successful predecessors, whilst in the rôle of the Spider Mr. Stanton Sharp is especially good. Miss Edyth Goodall is to be congratulated on a capital effort as Nellie Denver; Miss Flossie Davis ably realises the part of Cissy; and the remaining prominent rôles are in good hands.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Moss' Empires; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—That amazing and amusing trio, Le Roy, Talma, and Bosco, are the leading turn this week, and with an unparalleled conjuring turn, prove an irresistible attraction; Alexandre and Hughes, always strong favourites here, enhance their reputation with a bright contribution; Jack Pleasants continues a very popular humorist; and the Five Olracs are high in favour with a clever and amusing acrobatic speciality. Other strong turns are supplied by Aida Martine, Lester Brothers, Cecilia Maude, Lena Verdi, and Little Keeno.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—Harry Roxbury and company are here, showing a sensational new sketch, What Women Do, to the accompaniment of general applause; Lee and Kingston provide a good share of the fun with a laughter-provoking sketch; Winifred Ward is very successful as a male impersonator; and Mlle. Yetta again demonstrates her wonderful abilities on the high wire. Of the rest, Kerr and Koe are particularly well received.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Thos. Barrasford. —Popular Jake Friedman presents his bright entertainment, Happy Holland, and meets with an enthusiastic and well-deserved reception; that clever pair, Tom and Marie Motrams, again prove vastly amusing; Tom E. Hughes scores heavily in a comic character effort; an expert and graceful gymnastic speciality by the Three Rubys is a successful item; and Zeta Grey and Co. secure much applause for their sketch novelty. Another favourite pair are Beaty and Blanche; Bains and Reed are to the fore with a neat acrobatic show; and Hayes and Watson also make a successful appearance.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Jones.—An amusing sketch, cleverly presented by Mathews and Cowper, is the leading item here, securing generous applause; Cassie Walmer proves very successful with various coon delineations; a novel musical show, by the Musical Markies, goes extremely well; as also does a very neat comedy act by the Orchids; Haig and Novel are prominent with a capital turn.

LEICESTER. — ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. Charles Hermann.—We are being entertained this week with a first visit of Mr. George Alexander's company, in The Thief, which is preceded by the one-act curtain-raiser, Too Happy by Half. Mr. Stephen T. Ewart, an actor of undoubted ability, scores a conspicuous success as Richard Chelford; and Miss May Congdon as Marise Chelford is responsible for a performance of exceptional merit. Mr. Gerald Ames deserves high eulogium as Raymond Leyton; and Mr. Alfred Lugg as Harry Leyton. Mr. Cyril Cattley as Mr. Protheroe, and Miss Mary Dibley as Isabel Leyton, also do full justice to their parts. The play is well mounted.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—A cordial welcome awaited Hardie and Von Leer's company here on Monday, when they commenced a return visit in Two Little Vagabonds. In the title-rôles, Miss Chrissie Francess, as Dick, and Miss Ethel Frances Greene, as Wally, are very popular; Miss Dora Frank Harvey plays sympathetically and with good effect as Marion Thornton; and Mr. George Denham as Richard Thornton is also good. Mr. Herbert Standing, jun. is capital as Captain Darville; and Mr. Herbert Russell as Bill Mullins, and Miss Ethel Lodge as Biddy Mullins are both successful. Miss Leonora Castelle is deserving of much praise as Barbara Scarth; and Mr. F. Litchfield, jun., as Dido Bunce, Mr. Hal Charlton as the Coughdrop and Mr. Harry Reynolds as Jim Scarth, are others in the cast calling for praise.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. S. Buccleuch.—At the head of affairs this week is the inimitable George Robey, who, it is needless to say, is again scoring an immense success; Alec Keith, who is making his first professional appearance in his native town, and Julia Kent, create roars of merriment in their really funny comedy duologue; Bonnie Goodwin's four Apollo Piccaninnies, assisted by Miss Lily Vipe, give an extremely clever and popular exhibition of dancing; Ethel Haydon charms all with her delightful vocalism; Frank L. Gregory Troupe score a well-deserved success in a marvellous exhibition of hoop-rolling and juggling; Olga and Elgar are cordially received in their refined vocal and musical act; Fred Wilkinson, assisted by Miss Betty Wallar, gives a neat and well-worked illusionist act; and Adey Spencer, "the girl from the hat shop," and Kisbey, the call boy, are also entertaining. The Bioscope is a feature, with Napoleon and the English Sailor.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joe Lawrence.—Large audiences are giving a hearty greeting to Mr. H. Leslie Bell's company on a return visit, in the dramatic incident, The Blackmailer, and the New York society episode, The Red Letter, both of which are staged and played in a manner calling for special commendation. The variety portion of the programme is contributed to by the Ives, in a fine exhibition of ball-punching; the Wiltons, in a mirth-provoking skating act; E. W. Selman, a comedian, who raises plenty of merriment; and Irene and Morton, in an entertaining comedy and smart dancing act, The Tramp and the Maid. Guest and Newlyn, in song, story, and dancing, are very good; Eva Lois is a capable burlesque artist and acrobatic dancer; and Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope retains its popularity with A Sailor's Romance and The Unseizable Pickpocket.

THE EMPIRE.—Lessees, The New Bioscope Trading Company: Acting-Manager, Mr. C. A. Hurley. —The principal moving pictures this week include The Black Princess, The Wigan Colliery Disaster, A Husband's Revenge, The Gipsy's Daughter, Man and His Bottle, For a Crown, Adventures of an Ardent Lover, The Pneumatic Policeman, Child's Prayer, The Colonel's Story, and A Young Lady Would Marry. Entertainment is also provided by Bessie Cookson, vocalist, and Jim Meeson. The twelfth singing tournament is taking place this week.

LEIGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wallace Childs.—Mr. C. Watson Mill's company is here this week, with A Wrecker of Men. Miss F. Melrose Millett acquits herself with ability as Risca Mallison; Miss Gwendoline Talbot as Doris Melville, plays with considerable feeling; Mr. Eric Campbell submits an excellent impersonation of Jim Murley; Mr. Arthur Robinson gives full effect to the rôle of Guise Strange; Mr. J. Ansdell Wilson is a successful Railton; Mr. Milner Noble skilfully interprets the character of Pharosaphus; and Miss Beatrice Reynolds causes amusement in the rôle of Vavasole Slopper. Mr. Thompson Carruthers creditably portrays Eric Melville.

LINCOLN.—ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Payne Seddon and Ernest Pope.—Mr. Clarence C. Corri's company is presenting The Dandy Fifth with much success. Mr. Percy Baverstock scores heavily as the fiery Colonel; and Mr. J. E. Fraser sings finely as Dick Darvill; whilst Miss Pauline Hague is a charming Kate Lorrimer. Mr. Jack Crichton as Trooper Brown, Mr. George Beverley as the Sergt.-Major, and Miss Hora Morra as Polly, help to keep the fun going. Mr. Clarence C. Corri conducts in person. On Thursday Miss Lydia Donovan and her company were to commence a three nights' visit with East Lynne.

PALACE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. R. R. Black.—Walter Stanton, with his giant cockatoo and cockerel impersonations, is here, and his work is accounted wonderfully clever. Thornbury's pictures in smoke and oil, are smart; Harry Nelson's Suffragette song goes with a roar; and Minnie Warner, Jacko, Carr and Rose, Violet Nunn, Charles Tuppen, and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux help to make an effective show.

LIVERPOOL. — ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—A capital all-round production of The Dairymaids, sent by Mr. Robert Courtneidge, has drawn large audiences here throughout the week. Miss Phyllis Dare was again the Peggy, and it was generally remarked that that bright little artist had considerably improved, both in voice and movement, since her previous visit to Liverpool; a most flattering reception was accorded her. Mr. Percy Marshall as the ship's doctor proved highly amusing; Mr. Harry Dent sent his audience into convulsions of laughter with his Joe Mivens; Mr. E. Statham Staples added greatly to the fun as Sam Brudenell; Mr. Fred Leslie, jun., infused plenty of spirit into the rôle of Lieut. Meredith; the accomplished Miss Edith Blanche proved an elegant and winsome Lady Brudenell; Miss Gladys Ivery in the rôle of Winifred sang several numbers in particularly tasteful manner; Miss Lottie Serjeant made a funny Eliza; and Miss Rose Edouin Lewis satisfactorily undertook the part of the academy mistress. The staging and dresses were excellent.

SHAKESPEARE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wentworth Croke; Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—Are You a Mason? paid still another visit here this week, Mr. Charles Macdona sending his chief company. As the exceedingly humorous Amos Bloodgood Mr. E. H. Paterson made his audience shake with laughter; Mr. H. Langdon Bruce helped greatly with his George Fisher, his versatility being of a high order; Miss Adelaide Grace did everything necessary as the imperious Mrs. Bloodgood; and worthy support also emanated from Messrs. Francis J. Bithell (Frank Perry), Erskholme E. Clive (Hamilton Travers), Wilton Ross (Ernest Morrison), and Miss Ploensgaius (Franchon). The curtain-raiser was A Bad Penny.

ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—Here this week A Lion's Heart has attracted good audiences. Mr. Joseph Bebb's company was a most capable one, included in it being Messrs. Henry Bedford, whose Rizardo met with general favour; Stephen Scanlon, of "Traitor" fame, who made a powerful Gaspard; Edward Lowrie, a most humorous Puggs; Leonard Booker, who played Dick Lorimore with earnestness; Archie Helsby (Villefort), Edward J. Coyne (Jack Bealey), Miss Madge Beresford (Bessie), and Miss Ada Oakley (Louise).

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's stirring dramas have always proved popular in Liverpool, and during the week one of his best, The Assassin, again found acceptance here. Mr. Augustine Knight, who brought a well-balanced all-round company, undertook the rôle of Prince Demetri with his well-known dramatic skill; Miss Ella Vane distinguished herself as Countess Wanda, a difficult part; Mr. H. Bonhote Wilson made a most convincing Ivan Ipanoff; Mr. Edwin Lever did credit to the character of Duke Carl; excellent comedy was provided by Mr. Edward Swinton (Baron Alphonse) and Miss Hettie Senior (Connie Jonathan); the generous-hearted Captain O'Neill found in Mr. Edwin Jenner a capable exponent; and commendable work also came from Miss Marie E. Robertson (Katrina) and Miss Eva Trevanne (a pathetic Nita). The play was staged and costumed in excellent style.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Cole.—The able and favourite R. A. Roberts topped the bill here throughout the week with his sketches, Dick Turpin and Ringing the Changes; Queenie Leighton had a cordial reception for her popular songs; Mabel Bardin, assisted by Hugh Ardale and Leila Russell, gave a neat little playlet, entitled Nell of the Halls, which was much enjoyed; Rhoda Paul brought her latest songs, including "It's the Gay Gordons," for which she was loudly applauded; Rauschile's impersonations of famous men were clever and quickly executed; Tom Woottwell proved as acceptable as ever; Les Marbas went through some funny acrobatic dancing; and also in the list was Alice Blandford, vocalist.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Granville.—Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart's company has been here this week with Sherlock Holmes.

LYRIC.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold.—Foremost here this week has been John Lawson, with his répertoire of four sketches, all of which commanded much patronage; H. O. Wills found great favour by reason of his humorous songs; Maxford and O'Neil proved a couple of exceedingly funny cross-talk comedians; some daring work on the trapeze was performed by the Fitzroys; a smart vocal and instrumental turn came from the Three Comedy Chanters; the Four Regals, blacksmiths, gave a remarkable exhibition of strength; Alf Ripon had an interesting ventriloquial turn; and others who appeared were Ruby Bijou, comedienne and dancer, and Lucy Coventry, comedienne and eccentric dancer.

ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan. —The popular and lively Kate Carney was top of the programme here during the week. She and her company caused shouts of laughter with The Yiddisher Boy and Good Morning, Mr. Postman. The merry Dale and O'Malley were also well to the fore with their racy songs and patter; a clever act on the silver rings was gone through by the Three Orros; Horace and Olga pleased greatly with their troupe of dogs and cats; the Brothers Ashley kept their audience in excellent humour with the boxing sketch, Next, Please; Picitt and Lizette earned loud applause for a clever magical turn, The Crazy Cook; some surprising whirling on the wire was gone through by the Riotous Trio; and contributions also came from Lillie Lassah, comedienne and dancer, and the Brilliants, xylophonists.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole. —Capital business continues to be done at this popular house, where a capable stock company present favourite pieces twice nightly. A Beautiful Fiend was the attraction during the week, the principal rôles in which were apportioned to Messrs. David G. Noble (Ivan), Sydney Grant (Count Fedor), Leo Montgomery (Sergius), Robb Wilton (a funny Crackles), Cecil Ravenswood (Nicholi), Miss Florence Palmer (Nadine), and Miss Lilian Radbourne (Wanda). Mr. Anthony Brown's Bioscope showed the latest films.

WESTMINSTER.—Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—The Bioscope pictures are still here. During the week the following artists provided turns, in addition:—Lily Davis, comedienne, and Arthur Woodville, vocalist and eccentric dancer.

OLYMPIA.—District-Manager, Mr. Albert Bulmer; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wighton.—Mme. Hanako and company were foremost here this week with the clever dramatic Japanese play Otake, which was followed with keen interest; the Three Meers went through an astounding wire act; an uproariously funny trifle, What About my Change? was given by Wood, Wells, and Wilkins; T. B. Vaughan and John Lawson's company presented a smart sketch, The Boatswain's Mate; as jugglers and equilibrists the Avrignye showed great skill; Will English delighted with his coon songs; an acceptable turn was provided by the Six Lancashire Lasses, vocalists and expert clog-dancers; Harry Drew, possessed of a rich bass voice, rendered several popular songs; and Orpheus, instrumentalist, also appeared.

PAVILION.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. Henry Hearn.—This latest addition to local places of amusement has become a mightily popular resort. Top of the bill during the week was a capital production of the funny Bank Clerks, given by Charles Baldwin and company; Martin Conway "walk-round Martin," had a rousing reception; Radie Furman pleased immensely with her character songs; Angelina proved herself a particularly clever lady juggler; some astonishing conjuring was done by Ormonde Penstone; George Westland, a very able Scotch comedian, brought his latest London hits, including the chorus song "Mary"; as speciality comedians Fame and Fortune were capital; Celest, the American gymnast, submitted a sensational wire act; and the list also contained the names of Picquo, comedy gymnast; Elliott and Warne, with a novel duo scena; and Frances Haulon, comedienne and dancer.

LLANDUDNO.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Ritson.—Mr. James Bell's company appeared here for three nights on Monday in The Idol of Paris. Miss Annie Bell as Flare-Flare, a variety star, does justice to an unusually complex part; Prince Sergius is capitally portrayed by Mr. Gordon Robey; Phillipe D'Esterre is in the safe hands of Mr. Wilson Howard; Mr. Charles Stafford does excellently as Victor Cashelle; and Mr. Ellis Carlyle is suited as Tatava; Miss Beatrice Fitzhugh is commendable as Mme. Sancterre, and Miss Annie Megson is well placed as Ann. Peter's Mother was announced for the remainder of the week.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. A. G. Pugh.—Mrs. Ponderbury's Past was presented here on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday by Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company. Mr. George Mudie gave a most comic impersonation of Mr. Ponderbury; Mr. Alfred Ibberson did well as Peter; Miss Florence Wix was quite at home as Mme. Polaca Modjeski; and Miss Annie Stalman was duly acidulated and sarcastic as Mrs. Ponderbury. Brewster's Millions was announced for Thursday, Friday, and Saturday.

LOWESTOFT.—MARINA.—Manager, Mr. E. A. Smith.—For the first part of the present week Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company appeared in The Belle of Mayfair, in which Mr. Sidney Burt undertakes the principal part of Sir John Caldicott, Bart., in a most successful manner. Miss Denny Fitzherbert (Lady Caldicott) and Miss Grace Mackay as "the Gibson Girl," are also suitably placed; while mention should also be made of the good work submitted by Mr. Stephen Hall, Michael Raven, Tom Lyle, and Stanley Ravenscroft.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert; Manager, Mr. Frank Freeland.—Capital business continues here. The British Biograph Company is showing some highly attractive pictorial subjects, of which special mention should be made of A Tour through Russia, The Stone Industry of Sweden, and the Paris Fire Brigade. The variety turns include the Three Scottish Belles in vocal and instrumental selections; Jim Jimson and company, in The Burglar's Surprise; Frank Coyle, comedian; and Campkin, tramp cyclist.

LUTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Manager, Mr. Louis J. Beard.—Mr. T. Edward Ward has sent a strong company to this theatre this week in The Love of the Princess. Miss Ward perfectly impersonates the Princess Idalia, with whom everybody falls in love, from the King of Ilarnia, Josef, admirably portrayed by E. H. Dobell, down to Lieut. Orlana, of the King's Guards, performed by Mr. Beckett Bould. Mr. Wilson Coleman's Prince Conrad is an ideal hero; Mr. E. E. Imeson's Count Danillo is a capital villain; and his accomplice, Count Scarfe, is equally good. The Prince Regent of Mr. W. F. Stirling is a well-rendered character; Miss Nellie Garside gives a pretty and pleasing performance of Lady Irene Ramona; and Boris, servant to Prince Conrad, is in the capable hands of Mr. Edgar Morgan. Lieut. Zaroff is ably performed by Mr. Graham Winsford; as Constantina Miss Helen Elmar is impressive. The dresses are elegant, and the scenery new and bright.

MACCLESFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—Mr. Montague Beaudyn's company, in the military drama Send Him Victorious, commands extensive patronage. Mr. G. M. Montanini gives a powerful and engrossing study of Col. Heinrich Kauffmann; the part of the hero, Captain Frank Allison, is cleverly sustained by Mr. George Derrick; Mr. Arthur Tomlin is exceedingly good as Georgie Walker; as the King of Ravonia Mr. Frank Holy cake supplies a fine rendering; and Mr. J. Baxter, as Major Carl Straus, and Mr. James Burt as Sergeant Max, both do well. Miss Marie Robson as the political adventuress Countess Kara von Mechlinberg, acts with great dramatic skill and power; Miss Cecilia Crawford scores a success as the sprightly Gretchen Holtz; and Miss Netta Mitchell invests the character of Ethel Harding with grace and charm. The piece is capitally mounted.

DRILL HALL.—Proprietress, Miss Fan Francis.—The Canadian Animated Picture Company opened here on Monady with a fine assortment of moving pictures. Some excellent films are produced, including The Red Man's Child, A Sailor's Heart, The Woman Who Wasn't, Troubles of a Flirt, Irascible Father, and The Bank-note Forger.

MAIDENHEAD.—PAVILION PLEASURE GARDENS.—Proprietor, Mr. George Gude.—The concerted numbers by the Cadets are particularly well prepared, and gain much applause; Miss Florrie Delamere, who takes a well-deserved benefit this week, sings and dances well; Miss Adelaide Twort displays the possession of a cultivated voice; Mr. Colin Gent's vocal efforts are re-demanded; Mr. Jack Anders scores with comedy; Mr. Leo Fallowfield has undeniable encores in similar items; and Mr. Will Harris is as funny as never.

TOWN HALL.—Secretary, the Town Clerk.—Professor Anderson on Tuesday night gave a most interesting entertainment, consisting of conjuring, illusions, and clairvoyance.

MAIDSTONE. — PALACE. — Manager, Mr. S. Baskerville.—The bill is headed by Miss Alexandra Dagmar, a comedienne with a large stock of funny tales and smart songs; Gene Selby is a smart coon singer and bone player; the Davis and Gledhill Trio gave a cycling act on their patent track which rouses enthusiasm; and Claude Gardner is a popular vocalist. Lilian French, comedienne, and the pictures complete the programme.

MANCHESTER. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmondstone Shirra.—A great reception was accorded to the recent Lyric Theatre success, A White Man, which was played here on Monday by Mr. Herbert Sleath, Miss Ellis Jeffreys, and the Lyric Theatre company. Mr. Herbert Sleath's performance as Captain James Wynnegate was a triumph of heroic impersonation, evoking such enthusiasm that at the close he was called upon for a speech. Miss Ellis Jeffreys, as the Countess of Kerhill also came in for a large share of approbation. The play is not loudly melodramatic; it has features of novelty and realism distinctly unusual, imparted by characters who are apparently native to the scenes depicted. Mr. George Fawcett as Big Bill, the foreman cow-puncher, stands out, and so does Mr. Menifee Johnstone as Cash Hawkins, among many striking figures. The performance was an unqualified success.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—Mr. George Dance's company is here this week in Miss Hook of Holland. Miss Marie Wilson fills the title-rôle in a manner recalling the charm and excellence of Miss Isabel Jay; and Mr. Arthur Reynolds shows himself capable of exploiting effectively the humorous possibilities of Mr. Hook. Miss Mabel Sealby as Mina and Mr. Percy Davidson as Ludwig Schnapps contribute much to the amusement; Mr. Fred Lyne retains his rôle of Simon Slinks, the loafer, to advantage; and Messrs. Fredrick Hobbs and Powis Pinder figure well as the rival artillerymen. Other parts are admirably played, and the chorus and orchestra leave nothing to be desired.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Mason.—Mrs. Frank Bateman and Mr. Stuart Lomath's company are appearing here this week in No Wedding Bells for Her. As Lola Delaspierre Miss Lizzie Montague shows herself to be an actress of exceptional ability, and she has a capable assistant in Mr. Edward Vivian as Abney Stone; Mr. Stuart Lomath presents a fine study of the Rev. Frank Hatherleigh; Mr. Percy Shaw submits a clever outline of Dick Delvor; and Mr. George Herbert adds a smart character study of Horatio Fane; Miss Cecily Clutterbuck is seen to advantage as Doris Fane, and some acceptable comedy is supplied by Mr. Harry C. Momber as Simpkins and Miss Ellen Owen as Marie Flail.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Hewitt.—Messrs. Paumier and Howard's company in The Prince and the Beggar Maid remains here another week.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietor, Miss A. E. F. Horniman; Manager, Mr. B. Iden Payne.—The re-opening of this theatre on Monday, after alteration and re-decoration, was marked by a large attendance of playgoers interested in the enterprise and objects of Miss Horniman and her company. The programme opened with a performance of Mr. Basil Dean's new playlet, Marriages are Made in Heaven, a notice of which appears elsewhere. Then came Mr. Charles McEvoy's When the Devil Was Ill, a four-act comedy noticed at length last week. This amusing piece amounts to a readjustment of common notions upon "the simple life," which is ridiculed through comedy, and subordinated to the usual demands of drama in any form by the introduction of a not very credible or interesting love episode. The feature of the whole performance was the fine acting of Mr. Charles Bibby as Leatherhead, though pleasing work was put in by Mr. Iden Payne as the jaded novelist, Mr. Jules Shaw as Owen Davis, Miss Penelope Wheeler as Isopel, and Miss Ada King as Lady Mendle-Parrish. Mr. Hugh Fremantle's scenery is picturesque and natural, and added much to the realistic effect.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. Andrew.—Mr. William Holles and Miss Nannie Goldman's company are here in a domestic drama entitled The Stepmother. Mr. William Holles as Bob Bristow and Miss Dorothy Duncan as Amy Bristow are particularly well suited; while as Bob's son Miss Nannie Goldman plays with considerable cleverness and sympathy; Mr. Wilton Reed is good as the tramp, and Miss Eve Mansell as Annie Vickers (the Stepmother) is worthy of special praise.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—The programme here this week is headed by St. Alban and Moore's company in a condensed version of Les Cloches de Corneville, in one scene. The piece is vocally acceptable and well put on. The droll Griffiths Brothers share the honours, with their comic patter and inimitable wrestling match. Other good turns are Elly Adair, comedienne; Venie Clements, clever mimic and comedienne; Sados, a smart juggler; the McConnell Trio, comedians (replaced, through indisposition on Tuesday, by Ernie Mayne); J. W. Hall, comedian; Ed. E. Ford, the Australian Sundowner; and the three Brothers Huxter, marvellous somersault jumpers.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Resident-Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—Joseph Hart's exciting racing playlet entitled Futurity Winner, is well presented here this week. Tom Foy causes roars of laughter with his well-known absurdity, The Yorkshire Lad in London; the Jackson Family give a delightful and high-class musical turn; the Proveanies are a wonderfully clever troupe of lady trick cyclists, and are well received; Larola, a clever man with funny ways, makes a big hit; Rose Cabani, a refined comedienne, sings pleasingly; Ernie Mayne is a capital comedian; and Iben-Obed is a wonderful Arab equilibrist in a surprising turn; Miss Gertrude Howarth, of the choir, is a beautiful singer, her rendering of "Angus Macdonald" being excellent.

KING'S, LONGSIGHT.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. James R. Trippett.—The Onlaw Trio, in a wonderfully clever wire act, top the bill here this week. Fanny Robina, a favourite burlesque artist, makes her usual hit; Florrie Cooper sings nicely; the Brothers Ford are exceptionally good dancers; the Carney Brothers sing well in a vocal scena; Dunningarto is smart at sleight-of-hand; Rowland Hill and Billie Bint, both well-known artists, are as good as ever; and Will Doran and company cause laughter in a sketch, An Inventor's Troubles; acting as deputy for the Denaro Brothers, juvenile acrobats, the Merrions of local fame, provided an enjoyable turn. Pictures complete.

PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Freece; Manager, Mr. Fred Leighton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. J. Carter.—Lew Lake and company top the bill here this week in The Bloomsbury Burglars; and Haley's Juveniles are also prominent in a very pleasing carnival scena; Clarice Mayne adds a charming comedy mimetic act; Nat Clifford is seen in humorous songs; and other entertaining items are provided by Dot Hardy, character comedienne; the Six Albyns, in a musical comedy act; Lloyd Morgan, vocal comedian; the Pichel Troupe of risley acrobats and tumblers; and Bradley and Barns, the American vocal duo.

TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—The Armanis are to the front here this week in a delightful instrumental and song scena, A Night in Naples. Daisy James, the charming comedienne, meets with a good reception; Violet King entertains at the piano, and plays the violin exceedingly well; Henry Curwen and Marie Belle give a smart versatile act; Maud Esmond, burlesque artist, has some good songs, and sings nicely; Edith Muir and Hubert Bartlett are amusing in sketch, The Collar Stud; Ivy Proudfoot sings dainty songs in a very pleasing manner; and Fred Smarte is a comedian of the light order. Ruffell's Pictures complete.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Meek.—Morny Cash, the popular Lancashire comedian, causes much laughter here this week, and is a great success; Atlas and Vulcana, society athletes, assisted by the Sisters Atlas, give a graceful weight-lifting and physical posing act in good style; Percy Curry, comedian, has a good reception; Henri Vernon Harcourt is a smart protean artist, mimic, and singer; Rousby and Rene present a pleasing sketch of Lancashire life; Ada Jenner, ably assisted, scores in an amusing sketch, The Lady Barber, including a capital dance; Kirk and Saraski give a clever exhibition in natation art; and Charles Rowen, comedian, takes well. The Shipwreckers, shown on the Bioscope, is a realistic film.

HULME HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Day.—Harriett Vernon, a favourite burlesque artist, scores a big success here this week in a new and original song-scena, A Yule-Tide Story, presented in excellent style; Tubby Edlin is highly amusing in The Cowboy Millionaire, a mixture of mirth and melody, well presented by Harry Roxbury's company; L. W. Harris, a capital light comedian, takes well; Herbert and Linden, comedians, are very good dancers; Baddow scores as a ventriloquist; D'Artigan loops the devil's wheel successfully; Larry Lewis, comedain, is good; and Leslie Race, comedian, is popular. The Organ-Grinder's Daughter on the Bioscope is interesting.

RUSHOLME PAVILION.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Leslie; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. Phillips.—The programme here is excellent, and includes the following turns:—Cecil Warwick, tenor vocalist; Bertram Noel, comedian; Elaine Reed, vocalist; Margaret Cathcart, comedienne; Jessie Buckle, comedienne; Kemsley Scott-Barrie, vocalist; Jack W. Hughes, vocalist; Willmott Fowler, at the piano; and Dick Tubb, a capital comedian.

MANSFIELD.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, Mansfield, Sutton, and District Theatres, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Capt. Cecil Clayton.—Mr. John Leopold's company has provided most amusing and entertaining fare here in New Frivolity and The Houseboat.

MARGATE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Edward Michael; General-Manager, Mr. W. W. Keene; Manager, Mr. Chas. R. Hardy.—A three nights' visit of the musical comedy The Dairymaids, from Monday to Wednesday inclusive, met with considerable success. It was adequately staged and admirably played by Mr. Robert Macdonald's company, with Miss Empsie Bowman in the role of Peggy, a part she sustained delightfully. As Joe Mivens Mr. Dan Agar was inimitable and his humour irresistible. A charming interpretation of Winifred was given by Miss Vera Crichton; and Miss Carrie Lacey deserves praise for her clever impersonation of Lady Brudenell. Miss Doris Dickens was good as Helen; and a capital impersonation of the stern schoolmistress, Miss Penelope Pychase, was given by Miss Lucy Edwin. A diverting rendering of the part of Sam Brudenell was furnished by Mr. Richard Telford; and Miss Nellie Bowman, an accomplished comedienne, was exceedingly droll as the maid-of-all-work, Eliza. Mr. J. Scott Melville appeared to advantage as Lieut. Meredith; Mr. Bernard Vaughan was admirable as Dr. O'Bryne; and the remaining characters were all in capable hands. The chorus was an efficient one. For the remainder of the week The Beloved Vagabond was billed.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—Marie Kendall, in her popular songs, has been a great attraction this week; and another entertaining contribution has been the performance of the Cavalotti Bros., clever instrumentalists. Jose Collins, comedienne, has rendered her songs effectively; T. E. Finglass, delineator of negro songs, has met with a good deal of appreciation; and others on the programme include Dorothy Sephton ("The White Girl"), James Fawn, comedian, and Steve McCarthy, comedian and dancer. The Marathon Race was shown on the Bioscope this week.

HALL-BY-THE-SEA.—Sole Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; General-Manager, Mr. Charles Evans.—The varied programme at this place of amusement this week has been liberally appreciated. Miss Fifi Gordon and her talented troupe of girls, in the song scena, "My tiny firefly" and the Dutch operetta New Sabots, have scored a great success; Harry Edson and his cleverly-trained dogs, Doc and Tige, elicit well-deserved applause; and Dora Poole and Fred Maguire are smart comedy duettists; Arthur J. Hill, with his liliputians, George Kenway, mimic, Leoville, lady wirewalker, Mostol, in a musical entertainment, and Aeolia, who appears in a high trapeze act, are all good. The after-concert ball each evening attracts good numbers.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees, the South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Albert Jackson.—Married to the Wrong Man is presented by Mr. Fred Melville's company. Miss Gertrude Boswell presents an able performance of the dumb girl, Ruth; Mr. Oswald Cray displays ability as Jack, and afterwards as Captain Gladwyn; Mr. H. Lane Bayhff is successful as Captain Deering; Mr. Chas. Vivian is capitally suited as Jasper Skinner; Mr. Joe Livesey is convincing in the part of Sergent Manners; Mr. Paige Lawrence acts well as Archie Bird; and Mr. Syd Claydon is a humorous Timothy Clinker. Miss Mery Pemberton is pleasing as Rose O'Connor and an effective impersonation of Mother Snaggs is rendered by Miss Violet Vincent.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—Stanley Liggin's company of coloured vocalists please with their singing; Emmie Ames is popular in "Emmie's Christmas Tree"; Franco's Midgets are smart illusionists; Harry Bancroft scores with his vocal items; and other popular turns are provided by the Scoreys, in a musical mélange, Chas. Grantley, Ariel and Astarte, and Sinclair, juggler. The Biograph still furnishes an important part of the entertainment.

METHIL.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Methil Theatre Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Sydney Arnold.—Mr. Harry Tilbury's company appeared on Monday in his own drama His Dishonoured Wife. Mr. Victor Rae was an excellent Frank Lindon; Mr. Horatio Sinclair played with success as Lord Devant; Messrs. Bernard Webb and Edward Brown were well placed as Tom Redman and Geoffrey Harvey respectively; Mr. Harry Tilbury and Miss Etta Spalding made Mickey Doolan and Araminta Dustpan a very amusing pair; Miss Belle Tilbury shone in the part of Florence Lindon; Miss Arline T. George was capital as Alice Harvey; Miss Phyllis Spalding was very successful as Mabel Lindon in Acts 1, 2, and 3; and Miss Annie Newall equally so in the same character, Act 4.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Edmund Tearle, supported by Miss Kate Clinton and an excellent company, is here this week in a number of Shakesperean and other plays. On Monday Othello was presented, Mr. Edmund Tearle giving a studied and artistic rendering of the title-rôle. Miss Vera George played with dramatic instinct and intelligence the part of Desdemona. Other artists of merit were Miss Mary Campbell, Miss Helen Macrae, Mr. Bernhardt Turner, Mr. Stuart Black, Mr A. W. Jones, and Mr. Fawcett Lomax. On Tuesday, Richard III. was presented; Wednesday and Saturday, It's Never Too Late to Mend; Thursday, Jennie Deans, with Miss Kate Clinton in the title rôle; and Friday, East Lynne. Miss Madge Raper, Miss Ethel Storey, Miss Leah Fabri, Mr. Vernon C. Crabtree, Mr. Thos. Price, Mr. Herbert Tawse, &c., are also in the cast.

NEW PICTURE HALL.—Proprietor, Will Hunter.—Manager, Mr. E. H. Jones.—A picture representation of the late Wilson Barrett's great drama, The Silver King, is the leading feature of the bill this week. Fatherhood and Drunkenness, The Changing of Souls, The Incendiary Foreman, The Charmed Sword, and A Cruel Joke, are among other good films.

MIDDLESBROUGH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson.—Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson and his company are this week producing the romantic play Who Is She? Mr. Mitchelson, the writer of the play, in the rôle of Prince Bora, gives a capital account of himself; into the title-rôle Miss Violet Carlyle infuses some power; Mr. Graham Woods is a success as the King; Mr. Sinclair Holden is excellent as Captain Gower; and of the part of Sergeant Metroff Mr. Arthur McCullough is a capital exponent.

OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Jno. Ed. Jowsey; Manager, Mr. W. Ker Chatto.—The Girl Who Took the Wrong Turning is being presented here by Mr. Walter Melville's company. Mr. F. Ronald Adair as Willie Mason gives a fine impersonation; Miss Jessie Belmore, as Sophie Coventry plays the rôle of the erring girl with marked ability; Mr. Raymond Wood is convincing as James Harcourt; as Vesta le Clere, Miss Nannie Meade gives a strong reading; Mr. Frank R. Robertson is good as Jack Fenton; and Miss Zoe Davies does well as Lucy Coventry.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Chas. G. Rembges.—A King For a Day is the title of an entertaining musical sketch, which is being presented here this week by Mr. S. Dooley and Mr. C. Seymour's company. Gertie Gitana is accorded a hearty reception, her singing and dancing being very clever; a smart acrobatic display is given by the De Wynne Bros.; and Letine is a capable character impersonator. Stacy and Williams, comedy artists, are good; and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Finden do well in a sketch. George D'Albert is also in the bill.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Manager, Mr. A. B. Nicholls.—The star turn here this week is provided by the original Humpsti Bumsti, a clever comic tumbling act; a charming turn is given by the Ten Dixie Girls; the Bros. Babusio are clever head to head acrobats; and J. A. Wilson is very good in a sketch. Other items are given by Walter Emerson, comedian, Rosie Archer, Pat Rafferty, and May Marton.

OXFORD PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Alf. Graham; Manager, Mr. R. L. Griffiths.—Tom Kelso and company provide an exceedingly funny sketch, entitled Yorkshire Srevant; and Almon, the upside-down marvel, does well. The Pictures are popular.

MORECAMBE.—ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Lessee, Lieut. Julian Malvern; General-Manager, Mr. Chas. M. Julian.—That highly amusing farcical comedy What the Butler Saw has met with great success, as presented by Miss Ada Blanche and Mr. Lionel Rignold's company. Miss Ada Blanche is completely successful as Mrs. Barrington, and as the butler, Pink, Mr. Rignold secures constant laughter. Both artists attain a brilliant and popular success, which is thoroughly deserved. Much credit is due to Mr. Charles Fawcett for his Jack Barrington, and he hits off the rollicking Irish gentleman to the life; Mr. Harry Rignold is excellent as Wienstein; and other characters are well sustained by Messrs. Raymond Dudley, Geo. Ascot, G. Nelson Wallace, Howard D. Tracy, Louis Lingard, and Hornby Warburton. Misses Christine Jenson, Rose Carew (capital as Maria), Mona Garland, Lilian Rose, Babs Stuart, Gladys Lloyd, Julie St. George, Beatrice Egerton, and Agnes Ewing are well cast. The production is well mounted.

ALHAMBRA PALACE. — Manager, Alderman John Gardner.—The bill here is headed by Bosanquet and company, in The Fiddler's Windfall, an episode with musical effects, which goes well; Caban's Circus is doing well, and the ponies are exceedingly well trained; Satsuma's Japanese conjuring is most effective; really clever contortionist work is presented by Ada Marjutti, in a dazzling setting; Nabac's Dogs are interesting; the Brontes are seen in a new statuesque duologue, Stoney Broke; Will Owen has a number of well written songs, and his Dutch imitations are good. The coloured comedienne Nancy Renshaw, who is also an expert bone soloist, has proved an attraction.

WINTER GARDENS.—General-Manager, Mr. Tom Atkinson.—This week's programme has included Tom Joy, with quaint songs; the Olmars, in their Roman statuary acrobatic business; the Ramlos, with a smart comedy triple bar act; the two St. Johns, musicians, dancers, and clever campanologists; the Debreans, Japanese juggling and effective shadowgraphy; Ted Curtis, with his black and white piccaninnies, in lively song and dance; the Sisters Terry, bright and charming in Irish and Scotch songs and baby mimicry; Lola Patey, in Dutch and Irish numbers, with catchy melodies; and the Five Musical Tritons, in a new spectacular musical act, which goes well at each performance.

CENTRAL PIER.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. Emilius Hill.—Mr. Bert H. Delmar's band of artists, the Comets, have entered upon a short season here.

WEST END PIER.—Secretary, Mr. J. Bastow.—Mr. Sydney James's Royal Strolling Players are filling a pleasant week's engagement here, and possess a very varied répertoire.

MOTHERWELL. — NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Hales.—The attraction here is The House That Jack Built. The company, that of H. B. Levy and J. E. Cardwell, is composed chiefly of juveniles. The staging is satisfactory and the singing and dancing throughout are creditably performed by the young artists. Graham and Barron, comedians, are duly appreciated, and Jimmie Watson as Aunt Purdy is responsible for much laughter. The parts of Jack and Jill are capably sustained by Miss Daisy Wood and Miss Dolly Dodds respectively.

MUSSELBURGH.—TOWN HALL.—The late Wilson Barrett's version of Hall Caine's novel, The Manxman, was presented here on Monday. The company was that of Mr. John Clyde, and a packed house gave him and his company a very hearty reception. Mr. Clyde's portrayal of the simple, honest, but stout-hearted Pete was most impressive. He was supported by a powerful company, including Miss Lena Levenston as Kate Cregeen, Mr. Eugene Wellesley as Philip, Mr. H. Macaulay as the canting Cæsar Cregeen; and Mr. David Blair as Ross Christian. Other parts were in the capable hands of Misses Denise Huntley and Jeanie Mackintosh, and Messrs. James Gibb and Leonard Graham. Excellent scenery is provided.

NEW BRIGHTON.—WINTER GARDENS.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Jones and Douglass.—Crowded houses are the rule. A turn of great merit is presented by Mr. Fred Maitland, who poses as a Parliamentary candidate and touches upon topical questions, and proves extremely funny; the well-known Mr. Harry Liston, assisted by Miss Lord Lumley, are enthusiastically received for their clever and refined sketches, &c.; Wragg and Wragg give tit-bits from the tournament, and score heavily; Miss Cissie Trent, the quick-change dancer, gains loud applause; and Herr A. Spiegler plays two violin solos with skill and technique. The animated pictures are really beautiful.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessees, Messrs. Adeler and Sutton; Manager, Mr. W. G. Sutton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Parker.—A good programme is found here in the production of a musical sketch entitled Old Virginia, which lends itself to the introduction of items, versatile and funny, besides admirable vocalism. The parts are undertaken by Mr. H. Buckland, Mr. Leonard Russell, Mr. Kit Keen, Mr. W. Pringle, Mr. Bert Erroll, Miss Nellie Sheffield, Miss Mildred Bryan, Miss Odeyne Spark, and Miss J. Ellis. All work well together, and the result is satisfactory.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—TYNE THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—Miss Lena Ashwell and her London company are here this week in Diana of Dobson's. This is Miss Ashwell's first appearance in Newcastle since she launched into management. Her Diana is a charming piece of acting. Mr. C. M. Hallard as Captain the Hon. Victor Bretherton is likewise a success, and receives hearty appreciation; in the part of Sir Jabez Grinley, Bart., Mr. Dennis Eadie finds ample scope for his abilities; and Miss Frances Ivor as Mrs. Canteloupe is seen to advantage. A powerful dramatic study is that of Miss Beryl Mercer as the Old Woman. Other leading rôles are ably played by Miss Gertrude Scott, Miss Ada Palmer, Miss Doris Lytton, Miss Muriel Vox, Miss Mary Barton, Miss Nannie Bennett, Mr. W. Lemmon Warde, and Mr. Norman McKinnel. It is preceded each evening by an episode by Wilfred T. Coleby, entitled The Likes o' Me, in which Miss Beryl Mercer and Master Philip Tonge deserve great praise. Irene Wycherley was to be presented on Friday evening.

PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. T. W. Rowe.—Mr. Carlton Wallace's company, in The Love that Women Desire, under the management of Mr. Hugh Wallace, is the attraction here. Mr. Sydney Leyton distinguishes himself as Philip Carnaby; Miss Aimee Gratton Clyndes, in the rôle of Sybil Thorburn, is responsible for a natural, womanly rendering; Miss Jessie Elvin is a powerful Madge Abingdon; Mr. Hugh Wallace does excellent work as Frank Hardy; Mr. J. O. Stewart is at home in the part of the stern Squire Abingdon; Mr. Morris Maud as the villainous Richard Abingdon acts cleverly; and Miss May Neilson, Mr. John Hignett, and Mr. J. W. Wilkinson all do well in their respective characters.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. F. W. Bolam.—Alfred Sutro's great play The Walls of Jericho is presented here this week by Mr. Arthur Bourchier's company, and is proving a great success. Mr. Alfred Goddard as Jack Frobisher gives a manly portrayal; and Miss Nancy Beresford as Lady Alethea makes the most of a difficult rôle. The other leading characters are all capably played.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—At the head of an excellent bill this week is Mark Sheridan, "the genial one." He is in great form, and his typical and up-to-date patter goes down immensely with his many admirers, and crowded houses each night are greeting him. A capital turn is given by the famous Craggs in their sketch, Billy, and they share, as they deserve, the honours of the evening; a most artistic turn is the living statuary troupe, in Makers of History; J. W. Rowley still maintains his great reputation as a comedian, and never fails to amuse; whilst Gus Le Clerq contributes a clever dancing turn. Other good artists appearing are Harry May Helmsley, child impersonator; Lottie Govell, comedienne and dancer; Harry Rogers and company, in a sketch, Told in a Flat; and Marie Empress, dainty soubrette; the Bioscope completing.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thos. Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—Charles Prelle's wonderful troupe of performing dogs heads an entertaining bill here this week; Lowenwirth and Cohan, Hebrew comedians, prove vastly amusing; Sibb and Sibb give a daring trapeze turn; whilst the Schiavonis, a troupe of acrobats, are decidedly funny. Other artists appearing are Lillie Soutter, Mlle. Renee, Mark Henton, Percy Farrimond, and Carrie Laurie's Juveniles. the Barrascope completing.

NEWPORT.—LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—Mr. Morton Powell's company is producing here The Mystery of Edwin Drood. As Edwin Drood Mr. George Ridgway Thorn does capitally, and Mr. J. Henry Twyford as Neville Landless and Mr. Datchery is all that could be desired; and Mrs. Morton Powell as Rosa Bud is a decided success; Mr. Richard Harris makes the best of the part of Mr. Septimus Crisparkle, while Miss May Beatrice as Helena Landless and Miss Addie Adair as Princess Puffer display marked ability; Mr. John Bartlett as John Jasper gives a striking interpretation of the character, in which the audience is moved, Durdles (Mr. David Phillips) introduces comic business that is acceptable, and Deputy, capitally played by Miss Jennie Risley, is worthy of praise. The piece is well mounted, and the whole production enjoyable.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Major Gallagher.—A strong bill is provided here this week. Geo. Gilbey hits the taste of audiences here as Spouty (the goal-keeper); the Bros. Egbert keep the house in roars with their clever knockabout turn; May Edouin presents a turn novel in conception, and her quick changes and charming variety of costumes are much appreciated. The Leonards (Bob and Jennie) are very successful; Happy Tom Parker with his jokes and patter meets with approval; the Sisters Pine give a pleasing performance, as do Ella Shields and Margaret Arnoldi. Dave Austin's duologue, His Wedding Morn, is also here.

NORTHAMPTON.—THE NEW PALACE THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Director, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Manager, Mr. Thos. A. Evans.—The Eight Olympians head the bill here, and their demonstration of the Japanese methods of self-defence, known as ju-jitsu, is highly appreciated. The gentlemen also engage in a series of wrestling competitions with local athletes. The Maisanos present a clever eccentric musical act, which gains great applause; the Four Monte Carlo Girls, vocalists and speciality dancers, give a brilliant display; Harry Carsdale finds favour as a rustic comedian and animal mimic; the Bros. St. Clair appear in a comic knockabout act, in which they show great cleverness; Geo. Langdon and company furnish scenes from famous plays; George Don, "the quaint oddity," justifies his title by his odd appearance and methods; Rosie Morris, comedienne, is cordially received; and Gena Manon is a dainty soubrette. Interesting and amusing Palace Pictures complete the programme.

NORTH SHIELDS. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Mr. Reginald Dance's company, with Raffles, is proving an attraction here this week, and has drawn large and delighted audiences. As Raffles Mr. Lewis Edgard gives an excellent portrayal of the part; and Mr. C. Kean furnishes a capital impersonation of Curtis Bedford. Mr Arthur Bell successfully sustains the rôle of Harry Manders; Mr. Oswald Griffiths is admirably suited as Crawshay; Mr. P. Alexander achieves distinct success as Lord Amersteth; and Mr. Rivers Bertram proves a capable Lord Crowley. Miss Brenda Gibson is clever as Mrs. Vidal; Miss Eva Bevington makes a smart Marie; Miss Ethel Stalman is effective as Lady Melrose; Miss Beatrice Marsdene creates a good impression as Gwendoline; and Miss Frances Titheradge makes the most of Lady Ethel. Jerry and the Sunbeam is introduced as a curtain-raiser.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. William Mould.—The bill here is headed by the Three Zedicas, who introduce a smart and very funny act, for which they are loudly applauded; Corneza, electrical entertainer, is also very clever; and Mr. J. G. Cutken, Scotch comedian, has made a great hit. Miss Amy Letters, comedienne; Messrs. Brays and Doon, comedians; the Blakes, speciality artists; and the Mouldoscope also contribute successfully to the programme.

NORTHWICH. — THE PAVILION. — Proprietress, Mrs. P. E. Fletcher; Manager, Mr. Henry S. Dacre.—Stockham's unique company of harpists and entertainers, in a varied humorous and vocal entertainment, are a big attraction this week. Another great attraction is Wishart, illusionist, conjurer, &c., and his escape, although handcuffed, from the locked iron giant bottle into the double box is a most sensational feat.

CENTRAL THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. S. Golden.—Mr. Campbell-Kelly's company is here in The Gamble with Life. Mr. Campbell-Kelly gives a powerful portrayal of the triple parts of Sidney Marsden, Jack Blont, and Old Waring; Mr. George Porteous is decidedly effective as Neville Marsden, and Mr. Henry P. Kenn does good work as Sir James Marsden; Miss Kathleen Payne is an excellent Chris Armstrong, and Miss Nana Cameron plays with delicacy and pathos as Freda Hazlett. The comedy element is in the capable hands of Mr. Fred Weston and Miss Florence Spencer.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. Fred Granville's company, in It's Never Too Late To Mend, is the attraction here this week. Mr. V. W. Carlyle is successful as George Fielding; and Mr. Chas. F. Johnson is appreciated as the Rev. Francis Eden. Mr. E. Howard Templeton as Tom Robinson receives marks of approbation; Mr. Harry Cave is excellent as Peter Crawley; Mr. Henry C. Ward as Mr. Meadows and Mr. W. R. Wilson as Mr. Hawes ably assist; Miss Gertrude Entwistle charmingly portrays the character of Susan Merton and Miss Millie Wilson is good as Josephs. Mr. Leonard Marshall does well as Jackey.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—Arthur Watson, Miss Flo Stanley, and company, in The Cruise of H.M.S. Victory, please both in humour and dancing; the Lombards as athletes display marvellous strength; the Cheers in some scenes from Dick Whittington introduce their performing cats, which show skilled training; Walter and Lake are amusing in their cross-patter; the Lyric Mummers are much appreciated for their vocal duets; the Strads, in a musical sketch, are much appreciated; Harry Simons is good as a comedian; and Madeline is a pleasing comedienne. The Hippo. Bioscope pictures are interesting.

NOTTINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—Mr. William Mollison and company are here this week in a répertoire of plays, including Macbeth, As You Like It, The Merchant of Venice, Othello, Richard III., and The Bonnie Brier Bush. As Macbeth, Mr. Mollison gave on Monday a strong and impressive study; Miss Evelyn McNay as Lady Macbeth was natural and intelligent; Mr. William Calvert played Macduff with earnestness and dramatic force; the Banquo of Mr. Harold Neville was well conceived; and Mr. W. A. Mackersy made an excellent Duncan. Mr. Henry Deas doubled the parts of Malcolm and Donaldbain; Misses Edith Blair-Staples, Josephine Woodward, and Gladys Gower were the weird sisters.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Harry Upton.—Laughter reigns supreme while the company of Fred Karno exploits the extravaganza Saturday to Monday. As the Bridegroom, Mr. Gilbert Childs makes an altogether eccentric figure, and his passages with the Bride (Miss Julia Bassett) provoke irresistible mirth. Miss Bassett invests her part with delightful naïvete; Mr. Harry Fischer is alert as Mr. Potts; and Mr. C. Allendale interprets the Frenchman with unusual vivacity. Miss Ada Maskell assumes the spinster sister, Belinda, in highly diverting fashion.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—The visit of Neil Kenyon has aroused the greatest interest, and the clever and popular comedian demonstrates his versatility and smartness both in song and patter; an item that proves attractive is the sketch, Kleptomaniacs, presented by Miss Bertha Northam and Messrs. Fred Edwards and W. Myles; the expert feats of Reichen's Dogs evoke appreciative applause; and to the Lukushimas, headed by Otara San, is given a warm reception. The acrobatic work of the Bros. Raymond is deserving of praise; also the cross-talking and dancing of Tennyson and Wallis. A popular note is struck by David Stewart, in his illustrated songs; and the "tit-bits" of Gus Garrick meet with due reward. The programme is further enlivened by Marion Scott, comedienne, and the American Bioscope.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE AND ENTERTAINMENTS CO., LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Bryan.—Mr. Henry Swinerd

demonstrate, and, be it Theresa or May, the one of the two who imitates various popular music-hall stars scores points; Tom Garland, ventriloquist, catches the public fancy from gallery to stalls, and is decidedly out of the common; Jack Monks has a powerful and sympathetic voice; Ida Bell, a comedienne, enlists the goodwill of the audience from the start; Zimpa imitates anything, from a gramophone to a heifer and calf; G. W. Webber sings some sound bass songs, and has a wonderful voice, especially in the lower register; the Reays, silver chain acrobats, are graceful and agile; Bert Anderson does what he will with cards and coins; Rose and Wold combine daring with humour in their sketch, The Sentry and the Maid; and the Alexandra Bioscope have some new and good pictures.

PONTYPRIDD.—ROYAL CLARENCE THEATRE.—Owners and Proprietors, Messrs. Trenchard and Jones; Manager, Mr. Charles Trenchard. — The attraction this week is Mr. Percy Norman's company, in A Woman Worth Winning. Mr. A. B. Mackay cleverly impersonates General Borinski; Mr. Carthage Caldcleugh vividly represents Ivan Bardoff; Miss Chrissie Dunbar is a prime favourite as Roma Pauloff; Bertie Scribbles is admirably delineated by Mr. Louis Newman; Peter Popples is ably presented by Mr. Ernest Kendrick; Lola Kalnovky is well played by Miss Trixie Leighton; and Miss Ida Mackay is effective as Katrina.

PORTH.—PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. C. W. Poole; Manager, Mr. Walter Bynorth.—Capital houses are the order of the week. R. Victor Morgan's electrical musical transformations delight the audience; Violet Beatrice is a clever boy impersonator; Haverley and Homer are droll comedians who create no end of amusement; the Three Lloyds acquit themselves creditably in their double bounding cable act; the Sisters Ford, character comedy duettists, sing well; Kloof and Ramsey deserve credit for their admirable burlesque musical act; Matt Wilkinson and Co. are responsible for roars of laughter in their funny comedy act On the Flip Flap; the centre of attraction, is John Marx the modern Hercules, who lifts twenty-five full-grown men at one time; the Palascope has some fine pictures.

PORTSMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—Miss Zena Dare, Mr. Stanley Brett, and an excellent company are presenting here The Gay Gordons. Mr. Brett, a soldierly Angus Graeme, plays with unflagging energy and gaiety; Miss Dare is a delightfully winsome Peggy Quainton; Nervy Nat Siddons finds an unctuous exponent in Mr. Edward Lewis; Miss Nellie Dade is a capable Charlotte Siddons; Mr. Wilfred Norman plays Edmund Siddons in amusing fashion; and Andrew Quainton is well taken by Mr. Ernest Torrence. Victoria Siddons is charmingly portrayed by Miss Madge Vincent; and Miss Eugenie Vernie impersonates Janet McLeod with sincerity.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—Miss Marie Dagmar and Mr. Fred C. Somerfield and a capital company are here for the week in The Tyrant, Miss Dagmar taking with distinction her original character Tisbe, in which her great histrionic gifts are manifest. Mr. Fred Somerfield as the avenger, Homodei, his original part, submits a powerful delineation; Mr. Percy Fortesque also doing excellent work as the sinister Angelo. As Rudolph Mr. Edward E. Louis acts with manly impressiveness; Mr. James Sherwin depicts Lieut. Taska with ability; Miss Margaret Frame plays the long-suffering wife with much success; and Miss Emmie Burns impersonates Daphne cleverly.

KING'S THEATRE. — Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Claude Marner; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—An attractive programme is offered here for the week. Miss Topsy Sinden, with her dainty terpsichorean art and charming manner, is captivating all hearts; Elmo and Rego, comedy acrobats, are diverting; Will Sullivan, comedian, does well; Maud and Gill, in an eccentric acrobatic act, are smart; Cedar and Elgar, comedians, have an original comedy act, Ye Days of Olde; Francini Olloms, with his Page, is responsible for an interesting act; George Blunt and E. H. Knight's company, in The Grip of Iron, are powerfully dramatic; Ritter and Foster, eccentric comedians and dancers, are a capable pair; J. C. Piddock and company, in musical fantasy, The Capture of Venus, are most entertaining; and animated pictures by the Barrascope are of an exciting character.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Capt. Warren Wright; Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—Mr. Fred Lindsey, the famous Australian whip wonder, is heading the programme here. Florence Schuberth is a pleasing burlesque actress; George Antill, eccentric comedian, dances well; the Three Sisters Dixon, banjoists and dancers, are heartily welcomed; Mr. Frank Elliston and company, in My Lady Betty, score well; Albert St. Clair submits a strong vocal turn; Richard Fineberg gives character studies from famous plays; Lottie Lennox, the favourite comedienne, in her latest song-scena. "Jack and Jill," is most popular; and Payne's Bio depicts an excellent series of scenes of Australian Bush Life.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris; Acting-Manager, Colonel F. W. Roberts, V.D.—Miss Vesta Victoria is prime favourite here this week, submitting many of her most popular numbers and gaining much applause; Mr. Chas. Penrose, comedian, gains approval for his contribution; Sidney and Partner, comedy cyclists, for a smart and daring act of trick-riding are vociferously applauded; Miss Edie Veno, a comely and brisk comedienne, with dashing style, has a warm welcome; Mr. Phil Ree's Stable Lads are clever; Selby and Myers, comedians and dancers, are a capable pair; Alfonso Silvano, equilibrist, presents a marvellous hand-balancing act; and Miss Amy Augarde is here in Carmencita.

PRESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Executors of the late W. Johnson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—Mr. Herbert Greville's company is this week presenting I. Zangwill's comedy, Merely Mary Ann. Mr. Martyn Roland gives a powerful impersonation of Lancelot; Mr. Stanley Logan is a breezy Peter (his friend); as the Rev. Samuel Smedge Mr. Robt. Entwistle is quite at home; Messrs. Herbert Smale, Arthur Foster, and Harold Everard are equally good in their respective parts of Herr Brahmson, O'Goman, and Jim Blades; while Mr. H. Montague Love as Lord Tottenham and Mr. Jas. R. Smith as Howard are both successful. In the title-rôle Miss Jessica Soloman is a great success; and Miss Violet Greville as Mrs. Leadbatter is most refreshing. Miss Florence Radcliffe is excellent as Rosie; and Misses Enid Hall and Vera Lisle are capital as the Sisters Trippett; Miss Lester Stephen as Lady Chelmer and Miss Ethel Carlyle as Countess of Foxwell give a good account of themselves; and Miss Stella Farmer as Lady Gladys Tottenham, Miss Grace Lovell as Rowena, and Miss Mary Colquhoun as Lady Glynn complete a most excellent and capable cast. The comedy, which is well staged, was greatly enjoyed by good audiences.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G Kimberley's special company are this week meeting with a capital reception with the military drama, A Solder's Honour. Mr. Jerold Ord gives a manly rendering of the part of Captain Deane, and is ably supported by Mr. T. A. Ellis, who, as Captain Gerard Temple, is an ideal soldier; Mr. C. Stirling shows sufficient villainy as Henry Thornton; Mr. H. Elmore Frith is good as General Rochester; and Mr. Harry Lyndon is a really capital Second Lieutenant Percy Brattle. Mr. A. Anderson is a subtle old Holly, a hypocrite; and Messrs. Vernon Cooper as Burly Bill, Fred Mewburn as Smarty, G. Franklin as Joe Philpots, Alfred Thompson as P.C. Wilson, and O. Myth as Alphonsus, are each good in their respective parts. Miss Carlotta Anson as Cora Lee (a notorious thief) enacts the part in a very realistic manner, and deserves much praise; while Miss E. Barton as the heroine, Doreen Illingworth, wins the sympathy of the audience, and soon establishes herself as a firm favourite. Miss Edith Trapnell is a clever child actress, and is excellent as Queenie Deane; Miss E. Macklin causes much laughter as Jemima Eliza; Miss Lily Bales is a capital Gwendoline Temple; and Miss Sylvia Vickers makes an excellent Florence Deane; the part of Fanchette is also very ably portrayed by Miss Norah Bedford. The drama is excellently staged, and is under the direction of Mr. Harry Lyndon.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank E. Bardett.—The Six Brothers Luck present a very amusing sketch, The Hermit, and, needless to say, succeed in creating plenty of laughter, and meet with a capital reception. Marcus Boyle is a comedian who serves up some old songs in quite new versions; Edythe and Toto, contortion ists, give a capital turn, and win much applause; Fred Athalan gives some clever feats of head-balancing; Moon and Morris are clever dancers, and fully deserve the applause they receive; the Colonials (including Lillie Kennion, James Grant, R. Orlish, and Fanny Rowe) present a capital musical comedy scena in Unexpected Guests; Ada Whitton, male impersonator, gives some really good songs, and is well received; Petro and Leon (Hattie and Pete) give a remarkable exhibition on the double trapeze and flying rings; Too Old to Work, a pathetic story on the Bioscope, concludes another capital programme.

RADCLIFFE. — GRAND OPERA HOUSE. — Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jas. Boothman.—We are favoured this week with an up-to-date musical play, rendered in a most efficient way by Mr. Julian Graham's company, and entitled The Gay Goddess. Mr. Charles Leverton personates Timothy Twinkle in excellent style; Miss Kate Graham Beck, as Juno, displays the possession of a rich voice, and her acting is graceful; Mr. Fred Carrington, Mr. Richard Teasdale, Miss Fannie Morce, and Miss Marie Beresford gain favour in their respective parts; and the Salome dance by Miss Dolly Shaw is exceedingly clever. The Les Papillions also give speciality dances which are well received.

RAMSGATE.—ROYAL VICTORIA THEATRE.—Sole Lessee, M. Jules Richeux.—A vast amount of amusement has been caused among big audiences here this week by the performance of Charles Marlowe's desperately funny farce, When Knights Were Bold. The play is staged in first-rate style by Mr. James Welch's company, which includes Mr. Henry J. Ford in the part of Sir Guy de Vere. The impersonation is a distinctly clever piece of acting, and it has been greatly appreciated. Miss Bruce Joy is admirable as romantic Lady Rowena; Miss Phyllis Back plays with effect as Miss Isaacson; Miss Ethel Royale is a stately Hon. Mrs. Waldegrave; and other parts are sustained with skill by Miss Violet Grahame (Lady Millicent), Miss Gretchen Yates (Lady Marjorie), Miss Bessie Walters (Alice), and Miss Adrienne Yates (Kate Pottlebury). Mr. George Rowlands successfully interprets the character of Sir Bryan Ballymote; Mr. William Lockhart is a delightful Dean Pottlebury; Mr. Cecil Clayton contributes to the success of the piece as the somewhat vacuous Widdicombe; Mr. Vernon Sansbury is an excellent Isaac Isaacson; and the parts of the faithful servitors, Wittle and Barker, are capably undertaken by Mr. Talbot Homewood and Mr. Reginald Hunter respectively. A curtain-raiser, The Wrong Side of the Road, precedes When Knights Were Bold.

ROYAL PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; Manager, Mr. Dan Forrest.—Hall Caine's famous play, The Bondman is admirably presented by Mr. Wentworth Croke's powerful company, and the audiences have been capital in point of numbers. The play contains some thrilling situations, and particularly effective is the representation of an explosion in the sulphur mines in the third act. Miss Georgina Wynter appeared as Greeba, the heroine, and quickly enlisted the sympathies of her auditors; Mr. Lionel Attwill finely portrayed Michael Sunlocks; while the manner in which Mr. R. Scrope Quentin sustained the part of Jason left nothing to be desired. Mr. W. H. Rotherham contributed a fine piece of character acting in the dual rôle of Grandfather and Father Ferrati; whilst Mr. Oswald Lingard played Adam Fairbrother, father of Greeba, in manly and attractive style. The remaining members of a very heavy cast all did excellent work in the respective duties assigned to them. The scenery and general mounting of the play was of a high standard.

MARINA THEATRE.—This place of amusement has again been well attended. The films shown at the two performances each evening are of the highest class; the one entitled A Crazy Quilt is a laughter-maker of the first water. Mr. Bert Belton, comedian and mimic, had been advertised to appear nightly with his excellent entertainment, but on Monday Mr. W. J. Attack, the courteous manager, announced that Mr. Belton had unfortunately been obliged to cancel the engagement on account of sudden illness. In his place the Sisters Bronson, duettists and dancers, had been secured, and their contribution to the programme was received with approval.

RAWTENSTALL. — GRAND THEATRE. — Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; General Business-Manager, Mr. A. B. Feather.—A crowded house awaited the presentation of A Country Girl in London at this theatre on Monday by Messrs. Alfred Northway and W. V. Garrod's capable company. As Frank Gordon, Mr. W. V. Garrod gives a manly interpretation; and Mr. J. B. Sheridan is excellent as the Squire of Langdale. Mr. E. W. Avery is an exceedingly clever Heinrich Oppenheim; and Mr. Seymour Perry is also everything desirable as Puddyphat. Mr. Morton Williams gives a fine impersonation of Godfrey Clinton; and Mr. Clifford Earle is good as Joe Smithers. Miss Bertha Kingston, as Marjorie Hamilton, gives a most artistic portrayal; and Miss Josephine Colona and Miss Leslie Adair, as Gwendoline Gordon and Adelaide Puddyphat, are clever exponents of their respective parts. The staging is good and the dresses and scenery charming.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Benton. —Mr. Lewis Waller's company is appearing here this week, under the direction of Mr. F. Clive Ross, in Robin Hood. Mr. Ethelbert Edwards enacts the title-rôle with conspicuous ability; Miss Lilian Stennis is very successful as Lady Marion; Mr. H. E. Hall is good as the crafty Prince John; Mr. J. N. Briant acts with dignity as King Richard; Mr. Richard Fielding is effective as Hugo de Longespee; Miss Laura Flockton is sympathetic as Adela, Lady Marion's attendant; Miss Irene Malvesyn appears to advantage as the Queen Dowager; Mr. Spencer Lloyd acts and sings well as Allan A'Dale; Mr. Lawrence Tessier and Mr. F. Clive Ross create great amusement by their humorous acting as Friar Tuck and Little John.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Howard Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. E. Draco. —The Bob Hanson Troupe perform some exceedingly clever gymnastic feats; Roma and Romani are accomplished musicians, and perform on a variety of instruments; the Ten San Tan Girls appear in a gorgeous vocal and terpsichorean scena entitled An Eastern Slave, with great success; Walter King is a very droll comedian; J. F. Elliston's company produce a sketch, The Art of Deception, which affords Shaun Glanville scope for displaying his ability as an acrobatic comedian in the character of a tramp; Wisper shows his dexterity as a comedy juggler; Beattie Bloom, comedienne, is well received; Miss Carrie Joy gives a clever impersonation of a coster girl; and some excellent Bioscope pictures complete the programme.

ROCHDALE. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, the Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Hague. —Why Men Love Women is the attraction here. Mr. Oliver Rogers portrays with vigour the part of Gerald Fielding; Mr. Lionel Gadsden cleverly acts the part of Captain Staniloff; Mr. N. Carter Slaughter is well placed as Lieut. Tommy Fitzherbert; and Mr. Basil Horsfall makes a typical Maharajah of Balore. Much amusement is created by Mr. Harwood Roberts as Orlando Figgins and Miss Hogarth Beresford-Glynn as Mrs. Figgins. Miss Maud Court enacts the part of Muriel Zoluski with skill; and Miss Ellen Snow gains distinction as Violet Livingstone.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves. — The Daunton-Shaw Troupe of trick cyclists top the bill here this week with clever and daring cycling tricks; Fred Curran is amusing in his parody songs; other artists include Montague Biggs, the male Marie Lloyd; Victor Courtney musical comedian and mimic; the Two Errols, in a tumbling and leaping act; Charles Santon, double-voiced vocalist; Fraser and Haley, vocalists; and the Empire Bioscope pictures.

ROTHERHAM.—HIPPODROME, LTD.—Lessee, Mr. Edwin J. Fox; Resident-Manager, Mr. Claude Shaylor.—Les Fleurs Sisters, duettists and dancers, are highly pleasing; Herbert La Martine is deservedly applauded for his eccentric dancing; Miss Ada Fawn scores with her latest success; Fred Sinclair and Gracie Whiteford, refined comedy artists, are highly appreciated; Fred Horsefall, double-voiced comedian, receives unstinted applause; the Great Carpos Brothers supply acrobatic novelties; Stephens and Rennier, a couple of funny comedians, create great hilarity; and a laughable sketch, Ferdie's Ma-in-Law, is admirably presented by Mr. Arnold Richardson, Mr. A. Gordon Laws, and Miss Ethel Lonsdale.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company had a good reception on Monday, when they presented the play The Lancashire Lad. David Elmore is acted very effectively by Mr. A. Alexander; Miss Stanley Burt is a charming Jessie Wincote; Mr. T. G. Vane powerfully portray Max Carlton; Miss N. Oliver cleverly plays the part of Lorna Wincote; Mr. Percy Maitland acts well the part of Jem Wincote; John Willie Wardle is a good study by Mr. Bob Anderson, and much fun is made by Mr. George Watson as Tim-o'-th'-swilltub; Mr. Will Brereton as Professor Napoleon Boulanger, and the other members give good support. The variety entertainment on the pier, Blackpool, in the third act is well sustained.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—Ever ready to help those in distress, the management of this theatre followed out their custom by devoting a matinée on Saturday, the 5th inst., in aid of the fund for the sufferers by the terrible colliery explosion near Wigan, and a large number of artists from other theatres appeared, resulting in a welcome contribution to the fund. This week an excellent programme is headed by Chanti in his excellent quick-change act; W. Fullbrook and company are very amusing in the sketch Astronomy; Sivroni, assisted by Gladys Hicks, keeps the house in roars with Mixtures; Rappo and Ella give a very smart gymnastic performance. Other good turns are given by Rose Re Val, comedy and dialect artist; Lill Elfreda, vocalist and mimic of popular artists; the Westbrooks, in novelty dancing scena; Belmoir Sisters, comediennes and dancers; Ernest Rees, the droll; Yolande Noble, comedienne; and Cyril Carle in dramatic scena, "Dreams."

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; General-Manager, Mr. H. Winstanley; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Wentworth.—The Ramsey Trio in Birdie's Welcome head an attractive programme this week; the sketch, The Tale of the Stockings, by the Four Netherlands, provides an enjoyable turn; Patrick Playfair, assisted by Vera Davis, presents a papiergraphic speciality; George Young is a skilful concertinist; Ethel Loftus keeps the house in excellent humour; Eva Chadwick, soprano vocalist; Morander and Darius Trio in The Garden of Melody; Camerons, in funny and smart duologue; Major Moss, singer of old songs; and The Farrows (Harry and Louie), sketch artists, also give much pleasure.

OPERA HOUSE AND ASSEMBLY ROOMS, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Lester King.—Mr. Tom S. Sherlock's singing of the illustrated song, "The Green Isle of Erin," goes well. The pictures include the Wigan Colliery Disaster, a sensational drama, Maria Martin, Vengeance is Mine, Flower Girl's Life Story, John Gilpin, and the comic pictures Lazy Man, Select Hotel, and Love at First Sight.

SALISBURY. — COUNTY HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. Arthur Whitehead; Business-Manager, Mr. T. Brinsmead.—Full houses have welcomed Miss Inez Howard's company in the romantic play Her Love Against the World. Mr. Leonard Yorke as Eric acted in manly fashion; Miss Josie Beltram as Lionel was a great favourite; Mr. Henry C. Cooper was good as Prince Ulric; and the same may be said of Mr. H. G. Ingram as Prince Othmar. As Princess Iris Miss Margaret Savill acted in a most charming way.

VICTORIA PARK.—Director of Entertainments, Mr. F. D'Alton Tebby; Manageress, Miss Jessie D'Alton.—Miss Lilian Ramsdale is as bright and winning as ever; Miss Beatrice Witham is called upon to give encores nightly; Miss Edna Lynne, ballad vocalist, sings in a most successful manner; Mr. Albert Laurence's female impersonations are clever; Mr. Bert Earle deserves special mention for his comic songs and patter; Mr. Wal Kent works hard and successfully; Mr. Clifford Harrold is an unusually capable pianist.

SCARBOROUGH.—LONDESBOROUGH THEATRE.—Proprietors Messrs. Waddington and Son; Manager, Mr. J. T. Carpenter.—Baron H. Harriss's company in The Prince of Pilsen is here. Miss Sophie Harriss as Mrs. Maddison Crocker did well; Mr. Harry Kilburn as Hans Wagner created plenty of fun; and Mr. Arthur Geary undertook the part of the Naval Lieutenant successfully.

SPA THEATRE.—Proprietors, Cliff Bridge Co.; Manager, Mr. Francis Goodricke.—This week Mr. F. R. Benson and his Shakespearean company provide the bill of fare. On Monday The Taming of the Shrew was performed, with Mr. Benson as Petruchio and Mrs. Benson as Katharine.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. Garside; Manager, Mr. Fred P. Morgan.—Walter Howard's company in Her Love against the World is here. Mr. Fred Emery in the rôle of Eric gave a clever interpretation; Miss Grace Haywood as Princess of Idalia took her part gracefully; Mr. Lewis Gilbert as Ulric was exceedingly good; and Mr. W. H. Hallatt did well as Prince Othmar.

THE NEW HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Manager, Mr. Fielding Smith.—The star turn here is Miss Helen Roberts, who appears in classical dances and the famous Salome performance. She is an artist of refinement and grace. John D. Brandon and company appear in a sketch, The Girl and the Tough; Victor Widdicombe and company also submit a sketch entitled Her Devonshire Lad; the Three Rohrs give a sensational cycling turn; the Cecilians are able lady instrumentalists; and Mike and Lean and Hyram Travers, comedians, also appear.

THE AQUARIUM. — Secretary and Manager, Mr. Walter Kitchingman; Assistant-Manager, Mr. E. H. Holland.—Miss Annie Hall sings well; Texas Hattie on the tight rope is clever; as a dialect comedian Will Douglas is pleasing; Maxwell and Francis, vocalists, are an acceptable turn; the Tiger Lily is a neat dancer; Fritz Von Liston gives good imitations of animals; and the Henres and the Sentrys also appear.

THE SPA BAND.—Conductor Mr. Charles Godfrey, jun.—A fine programme of music has been submitted during the past week by a company of forty artists. This year the band has been more popular than ever under Mr. Godfrey's conductorship.

SEACOMBE.—IRVING THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Kiernan.—Mr. William MacLaren's company is here this week with Claudian. The fine presence of Mr. William MacLaren eminently fits him for the title-part, which he plays with delightful ease and power; the declamatory passages of the Holy Clement are well delivered by Mr. Ernest Lodge; Theorus receiving earnest interpretation from Mr. G. Edward Dunstan, and Serena being well portrayed by Miss Amy Hardcastle. Mr. Bernard Elliott depicts the craft and cunning of Thariogalus with commendable skill and Mr. Chas. T. Chaloner causes much amusement by his humorous rendering of Belos. Agazil is vigorously enacted by Mr. Douglas Earle and Alcares is in the able hands of Mr. Weston Hubbard. As Rhamantes Mr. Cecil Maynard is excellent and as Edessa Miss Ruth Trafford acts in good style. The Almida of Miss Lily C. Bandmann is full of dramatic power.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. A. C. Harrison; Manager, Mr. H. D. Lyle.—The popularity of Man to Man was demonstrated by a crowded house on Monday, when the drama was presented by Messrs. Edward Lloyd and Frank Adair's company. George Gordon is powerfully depicted by Mr. Ed. Lloyd; the villainy of Richard Ellerton is vividly shown by Mr. Frank Adair; Mr. A. Val Shane is capable as the Rev. Philip Ormond; Mr. Clifford Brown as Bill Burkley and Mr. H. Brun Williams as Samuel creditably supply the lighter vein; Mr. H. Holland as Matthew Ellerton is very good; Miss Louie Adair wins warm praise for her Ethel Maythorne; Miss Phyllis Oakley is smart as Ned Doyle; Miss Adeline Lester is a satisfactory Miss Livinia Dove; and as Gipsy Madge Miss Evelyn Warde is acceptable.

SHEERNESS. — HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, the Sheerness Hippodrome Co.—A powerful attraction is provided here by Mr. Ernest R. Abbott's company in Sapho, adapted from Daudet's celebrated novel by Miss Ada G. Abbott. In the title-rôle Miss Ada Abbott displays ability of a high order; Mr. Ernest R. Abbott's fine impersonation of Jean Gaussin is one of the successes of the play; and Uncle Césaire, as played by Mr. Frank Stephens, keeps the audience vastly amused. Mr. C. Doughlas plays Flamant in just the right key, his acting being full of quiet strength; Mr. Herbert Morgan as old Legrand, a cabman, supplies an effective character sketch; Henri Dechelette is well played by Mr. W. Grant; Miss Lillian Morgan as Aunt Divonne is effective; and Miss Florence North is a bright and prepossessing Lucy.

CO-OPERATIVE HALL.—Lessees, the New Bioscope Trading Co.; Manager, Mr. F. R. Griffiths.—An attractive array of pictures are being shown here this week, and good houses nightly are the result.

SHEFFIELD. — LYCEUM THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—That The Belle of New York has lost none of its charm for lovers of melody and spectacular display was again evidenced on Monday. Mr. Arthur Ricketts revelled in the amusing part of Mr. Bronson; and the son, Harry, was brightly represented by Mr. James A. Watts; Mr. Frank Lawton as Blinky Bill acted, danced, and whistled with his well-known verve and cleverness; Mr. J. R. Tate's impersonation of the Polite Lunatic was good; Mr. William Hartigan submitted a humorous sketch of the old-time American touring manager as Doc' Snifkins; and the burlesque business of the comical actor, Kenneth Mugg, was well done by Mr. Alex Godfrey. The delightful part of Violet Grey was charmingly interpreted by Miss Hebe Kneller; Miss Winnie Browne repeated her dashing performance of the handsome "Queen of Comic Opera"; Miss Dorothy Doria looked well and sang her pretty songs effectively as Fifi, and the other characters were played with spirit by other members of Mr. Bannister Howard's company.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—Mr. George Kirk's excellent company began a second week's sojourn at the classic Royal on Monday, appearing to a good house in the realistic drama From Shop-Girl to Duchess. Miss Mary Neil in the part of the persecuted but ultimately triumphant heroine acted with great sincerity; and the humour of Miss Florrie Groves was much enjoyed.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. William D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—Splendid scenery, fashionable clothes, and good acting can always be depended upon when the name of Melville figures on the bill, and therefore there was a big and enthusiastic audience here on Monday, when Her Forbidden Marriage, by Frederick of that ilk, was again performed; Mr. Henry Lonsdale was again seen at his best as George Maddison; and the villain Devereaux was represented with force and polished craft by Mr. Louis Hector. Miss Geraldine Le Sage was a pleasing and sympathetic Lucy Lancaster; Miss Grace Lester displayed her Paris confections to advantage as the beautiful but scheming Lady Lucretia; Miss Maude Merrick was a comely and lively Pattie Jenkins; and other characters were well acted by Miss Agnes Imlay, Little Lucy, Messrs. C. Davidson, Henry Milton, Conrad Stratford, James Raymond, W. Brookes, Vincent Loraine, Fred de Vere, Geo. Elsworthy, H. Gomer-May, and Leslie Rutter.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Moss Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dumbar.—The "extra special" star this week is the original "London idol," Miss Vesta Tilley, with new songs and old and loudly-demanded favourites. The current programme is also contributed to by the pretty, graceful, and accomplished vocalist and dancer Miss Eila Retford; the smart Dunedin Troupe of bicyclists, in an elegant act of daring and skill; Mlle. Eldée a charming poseuse; Mr. W. Wade, vocalist; Barlee and Smith, musical comedy artists; the Auxeto Gramophone, and the Musical Schaffers in a pleasing and refined entertainment. There is also the Bioscope, with new pictures.

THE HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. P. D. Elbourne. — Mr. John Tiller's effectively-staged spectacular burlesque Jolly Jack; or, the Lass That Loved a Sailor, with a strong company of comedians, a well-balanced chorus, and a graceful corps de ballet, is delighting large audiences nightly. An original and pleasing strong-man act is given by Mons. Gerard, who is deservedly applauded; and other capable performers engaged this week are Radford and Valentine, comic jugglers and fun-makers; Jack Rae and his intelligent little performing dog; the agile and mirth-provoking Hyde and Cody Trio in a diverting interlude; Mr. Ernest Rees, comedian; Driscoll and Felino, comic entertainers; Miss Rose Elliott, with chorus songs, and the Barrascope, with an artistic picture comedy of the "square cut" period, the Pretty Flower-Girl.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. A. W. Turpin.—Mr. Watts-Phillips, the popular dramatic artist, is appearing here in a one-act play, Her Just Reward, supported by the Lloyd Phillips' company. The bill of fare also includes the Northcotes, comedy artists; Les Frères Millicent, acrobats; Happy Attwood, comic; Mr. Leslie Mitchell, as "The Miser"; a comic sketch by the Phillips' comedy company, and some first-rate moving photographs by the Raymond Bio-tableaux company.

ALBERT HALL.—Manager, Mr. J. Peace.—Mr. Joshua Dyson's Diorama, Bioscope, and Swiss Choir opened here for a two-weeks season on Monday. There was a large and evidently well-pleased audience.

THE PAVILION.—Thoroughly cleaned and redecorated, this hall (late Wonderland) has reopened for the season as a picture theatre, with the latest dramatic, topical, local, fantastic, and humorous films.

SHREWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Business-Manager, Mr. W. C. Dornton.—Mr. H. B. Levy and Mr. J. E. Cardwell's energetic company is here this week with the light and amusing fare A Merry Maid. Mr. Vivian Wakeman is thoroughly successful as Larry O'Hooligan, and his novel musical turn and mimicry are clever; Mr. Neil Hardy is most amusing as the Hon. Cecil Taft; Mr. Howard Lawrence sings effectively and acts capably as Thady Clancy; Mr. H. Tracey is exceedingly droll and hard-working as the Dutchman Von Swank; Mr. C. W. James plays satisfactorily the part of Lawyer Scrivener; Miss F. Adamson merits praise as Angela Vere de Vere; Wee George Wood, a juvenile pantomime favourite, sings with plenty of life and ability, and acts capitally; Mr. W. S. Hutchinson takes the part of Biddy O'Hooligan in a praiseworthy fashion; Miss Ray Watson is bright and pleasing as Flossy Kixie; Mr. B. Moore and Mr. R. Richardson are an able pair of conductors from Cookson's and Deanson's; and Miss May Gibson makes a bright and pretty Peggy O'Hooligan, her songs and dances being effective.

SMETHWICK.—ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. Barnard; Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson.—Mr. Wilson Benge and company are paying a welcome return visit with The Eve of Her Wedding. Mr. Benge is very effective in the rôle of George Tremain; Mr. Arthur Keand gives a fine rendering of Squire Leverton and also of Bill Groggins; Mr. Henry Danson does full justice to the part of Dick Laverton; Rudolph Earle has a clever and amusing exponent in Chas. Digby; Mr. Fred Rivers is well placed as Giovanni; Mr. Wallace Campbell plays with force and skill the part of Dean Clifton; Mr. Chas. Groves, jun., successfully doubles the rôles of Paul Cairshaw and Hyram P. Younger; and Mr. Arthur E. Holland gives a faithful representation of Jack Herne, a cripple. Miss Effie Bartlett merits praise for a well studied and skilful delineation of Rene de Telle, an adventuress; Miss Daisie Cook handles the character of Gwendoline Younger with skill; Miss Sadie Smith is a charming Mavis Leverton, investing the part with pathetic interest. The scenery is excellent. The American Bioscope shows a new series of up-to-date pictures.

SOUTHAMPTON. — GRAND THEATRE. — Lessee and Proprietor, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Weston.—The Merry Widow is being presented here for the first time, and packed houses give the merry little lady a hearty welcome. The title-rôle of Sonia was played with a rare spirit of gaiety by Miss Mysie Devine, whose charm won all hearts; Baron Popoff was inimitably played by Mr. Edward D'Arcy, who kept the house in roars of laughter; Mr. Fred Fowler invested the part of Nisch with quaint drollery; Natalie was admirably played by Miss Ada Thomas, her singing being excellent; and the rôle of Vicomte de Jolidon was well portrayed by Mr. Ripley Evans, another fine vocalist. The difficult part of Prince Danilo was in the capable hands of Mr. Fred Greene, whose singing, acting, and dancing gave great pleasure. Miss Katie May (Frou Frou) proved herself a dainty dancer; and others who did well were Mr. Clifford Seyler (General Navakovitch), Mr. F. Pedgrift (M. de St. Brioche), Mr. William Allison (Marquis de Cascada), and Miss Daphne Glenne (Olga), &c. The staging was superb, and the augmented orchestra did well under the baton of Mr. E. Vousden.

PALACE.—Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wm. Trussell.—Mlle. Vonetta gives an astonishing exhibition of jugglery, and her illusions are very smart. Bowman and Morton's comedy duologue, She loved a Policeman, keeps the house rocking with laughter; the Tossing Austins are clever jugglers and dancers; Gravetta and Parr excel in a dancing speciality; Kelly and Agnas are a smart couple; and others who entertain are Alpho, ventriloquist, and Gracie Hunt, comedienne.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager Mr. J. de Frece; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold P. Howell.—Howard and Harris are a wonderful couple, their turn being exceptionally clever from start to finish; the Delevines are popular in their clever act, Flipp and Flopp, with their up-to-date scarecrows, causing roars of laughter; Tom Leamore is a quaint comedian; and the Three Sisters Sprightly score all along the line. Harry Brown (coloured comedian), Fred Hallam (comedian), Harry Leybourne (female impersonator), Lena Wylie (soprano vocalist), and Lennie and Hast, in A Sea Nymph, also appear with success.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA. — EMPIRE THEATRE CO., LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Conquest; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—Lovers of opera are excellently entertained here by the Moody-Manners Company. The company is a large one, including a well-trained chorus of thirty-five voices and a talented corps de ballet, the orchestra being augmented by fifteen musicians. Carmen, the initial attraction, proved immensely enjoyable. Mr. John Child, who was seen in a good impersonation of Don Jose, shared singing honours with Miss Rosina Beynon, in the title-rôle; Miss Rosa O'Farrell as Michaela and Mr. Marshall Vincent as Escamillo were also very successful. Tannhäuser, Faust, Rigoletto, Lohengrin, Maritana, and Madame Butterfly are also in the répertoire.

THE

Florence Wynn; Miss Kathleen St. George sustained Jane, their servant, with credit. Sir George of Almack's was billed for the remainder of the week.

SOUTHPORT.—Opera House.—Proprietors, the Southport Opera House and Winter Gardens Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. R. Singleton.—Beau Brocade was presented to a large and appreciative audience on Monday by Mr. Reginald Dance's well-selected company. The rôle of the dashing and debonair highwayman, Captain Jack Bathurst, was admirably portrayed by Mr. Reginald Dance; Miss Ruth Mackay enacted the part of Lady Patience Gascoyne with artistic effect; the Earl of Stretton was well played by Mr. Frank Darch; the villainous Sir Humphrey had an excellent representative in Mr. Frank Powell; Mr. Dalziel Heron's impersonation of John Stich was one of the best character sketches; Mr. Asheton Tonge was highly amusing as the parish beadle, Jeremiah Inch; Jock Miggs was characteristically and cleverly depicted by Mr. Edward Irwin; Miss May Brook proved an admirable exponent of Betty (the maid); and the minor parts were well represented by Mr. A. E. Mayne as Squire West, Mr. J. W. Brighten as the Sergeant, Mr. R. Hayes as the Duke of Cumberland, and Mr. Stanley Lathbury as Mr. Mittachip, the lawyer. The piece was preceded by a new one-act play, entitled The Proof, a notice of which appears in another column.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. John and Fred Coulson.—Mr. Allan Wilkie's Répertoire company opened here with Richard III. on Monday. Mr Wilkie in the titular rôle brought out the salient features of this sinister character in bold relief. The histrionic abilities of Miss Carrie Baillie were seen to advantage as Lady Anne; Miss Mildred Surrey as Elizabeth and Miss Agnes Geoghegan as the Duchess of York were all that could be desired; Mr. Alexander Marsh submitted a careful and convincing study of Clarence; the Buckingham of Mr. John Paley was a good performance; Richmond was in the able hands of Mr. Frank Royde. During the week The Merchant of Venice, She Stoops to Conquer, Julius Cæsar, Garrick, Sleigh Bells, and The Two Orphans were to be performed.

Empire Palace Theatre.—Proprietors, The South Shields Empire Palace, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—Bella and Bijou are excellently received in The Suffragette, in which sketch good comedy and singing are introduced with effect; George Newburn gives his inimitable impersonations; Mlle. Pocahuntas wins favour by her pleasing singing; a clever musical exponent is Thelma De Waal; and Will Johnson, comedian; Beale and Broadway, in a dancing act; Daisy Martell, comedienne and dancer; and the Bioscope complete a good bill.

SPALDING.—Corn Exchange.—Mr. George Grossmith appeared here on the 3rd inst. in musical humorous sketches. Mr. Grossmith was at his best, and delighted the audience with his excellent performance.

SPENNYMOOR.—Cambridge Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; General-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance; Resident-Manager, Mr. David Collins.—Mr. R. A. Roberts's company in Straight form the Shoulder (under the direction of Mr. Chas. Boult) is the attraction at this house, and "House full" has been the cry during the week. The caste is of exceptional strength. Full justice is done to the rôle of Millicent Grant by Miss Beatrice Burdett; Mr. Matthew Boulton's assumption of Harry Bletchley is artistic; Major Lucas is in the capable hands of Mr. Leonard Clarke; highly commendable are Messrs. George H. Child (as Rev. John Armitage), Mr. Fred Beck (as Jim Green), Mr. George Fisher (as Fred Stafford), Miss Edie Casson (as Miss Brittle), and Miss Beatrice Moore (as Gladys Brittle). The scenery and effects are alike admirable.

STALYBRIDGE. — Hippodrome.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Fioni; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. A. Jackson.—Another programme of exceptional excellence is presented, Horace Wheatley taking precedence after an absence of some years. He is brimming over with Irish witticisms, and also sounds a deeper note when singing a pathetic ballad. Shirley and Ransome depict a touching episode in coster life, 'Arf a Quid; Lilly Lurgine, an instrumental specialist, performs with ease and grace; Donna Morgan is a comedienne who has reason to pride herself on her voice; the Sisters Lee are a trio of acrobats, vocalists, and dancers; the Maitlands, the vaudeville couple, are amusing as Weary Willie and Tired Tim; and Kinnard, the merry magician, performs some clever tricks.

ST. HELENS. — Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Proprietors, St. Helens Theatre, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. A. McLeod Loader.—Mr. Frank J. Pitt's company in £1,000 Reward is on a return visit. Mr. J. Wilton assumes the rôle of Gilbert Lisle in an acceptable manner; Mr. Edward de Vere and Mr. William Gibson are good in their respective parts; Mr. Frank J. Pitt as Vincent Rainsworth and Mr. Frank Dallas as Inspector Gilbert are both capital; Meg is nicely taken by Miss Marjorie Seymour; and Miss Minnie Goepel as Kitty is full of life. Miss Kathryne Eckart shows power in the character of Mme. Sanson.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Sley, and Willmot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould.—Bonnie Scotland heads the bill this week, and the 100 or so local children shew much evidence of careful training by the famous Selkirk Family. Mike Cray and his dog are very amusing; F. V. St. Clair receives much applause; Percival performs excellently on the piano; the Delomes are fine dancers; and other acceptable turns are given by Smart Bros. (acrobats) and Oliver Conroy (comedian).

STOCKPORT.—Theatre Royal and Opera House. — Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Revill, jun.—When London Sleeps, with its many sensational incidents, is as popular as ever here this week. Mr. Harry Wren as the villain, Captain Rodney Haynes, acts with skill and ability; Mr. Edward E. Ashby gives an able impersonation of David Engleheart; Sammy Blythe and the Hon. Bertie Broomhead are amusing characters, admirably portrayed by Mr. Douglas Campbell and Mr. Frank Howard respectively; and Mr. Harry Emerson makes a capable Mark Blackwood. As Queenie Carruthers, Miss Mabel Scudamore acts with delightful charm; Hilda Carode is effectively played by Miss Lilla Wilde; whilst Miss Mona Hall as Carrie Jones, Miss Christine Middleton as Maudie Frere, and Miss Bella Power as Signorina Robertio Jonesio, are in every way excellent.

Empire. — Proprietors, the Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Black. —At the head of a strong array of talent are the Cumberlands, acrobatic cyclists, who display marvellous ability; Hampton and Bauman, in Down in Kentucky, depict typical characters in pleasing style; Allis and Cassati are mirth-provoking entertainers; the Three Romas are a trio of talented strong men; Williams and Warden, patterers, are genuinely amusing; Cecile and François, acrobatic dancers, are highly successful; Phillips and Merritt are society entertainers of ability; and Gracie Lawn is a pleasing comedienne.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES. — Castle Theatre. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Chas. Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Cecil Imeson.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company presented Mrs. Dot here on Monday. Miss Decima Moore in the title-rôle thoroughly fascinated the audience with her excellent impersonation of Mrs. Dot; Miss Emma Hutchison as Lady Sellinger was also warmly received. As Nellie Sellinger Miss Ethel Grahame acted with ability; James Blenkinsop is admirably presented by Mr. Frank Lacy; Mr. Philip Leslie as Freddie Perkins was well suited for the character; Mr. James Gelderd as Gerald Halstane deserves much praise; and Miss Celia Gordon is seen to advantage as Miss McGregor. A very amusing curtain-raiser preceded, entitled Her Dearest Friend.

Hippodrome.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Stainton.—Charles Majilton's company of comedians presents here a funny sketch entitled The Trippers, and creates much merriment; the Gilberts, in a tight-wire act, show great skill; Wallace Whitney, the comedian, makes a hit with his song "Tubby, the Footballer"; Bert Woodward does a daring cycling act; and other amusing turns come from Beattie Foster, comedienne; Doyle and Gibson, comedians and dancers; Les Tafanos, in a novel musical act; and Billie Burford, comedienne.

Grand Theatre. — Proprietor, Mr. John Batty; Manager, Mr. Walter Batty.—Mr. M. Montgomery's company presents an exciting drama entitled Send Him Victorious. Mr. Ernest Wingfield gives a commendable impersonation of Captain Frank Allison; Colonel Heinrich Kauffman is in the able hands of Mr. Fred Terris; Mr. Leslie Nolan as Major Strauss acts well; Miss Lilian Beaumont as Ethel Hardinge gives a capital rendering; and Miss Lina Naseby as Countess Kara von Mechlinberg gives a forcible expression. Payne's Bio-photoscope concludes with an excellent picture, Tragedy of Japan.

STOKE-ON-TRENT.—The Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; General-Manager, Mr. H. F. Miller.—The much-talked of "Salome" dance is presented successfully here by the Countess Romano; Duncan and Brasque appear in a smart little skit entitled Bluff; the Narow Brothers, as comedy cyclists, are clever and amusing; Sterling and Love introduce vocal and instrumental selections; Alex. Lofton, coloured comedian, is quaint; and also appearing are Ethel Dove, Sergeant Mumford (on the wire), and Horace Jones.

STOURBRIDGE.—Alhambra Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Douglas C. Phelps.—A return visit is being paid of the renowned opera company under the direction of Mr. J. W. Turner. A good audience welcomed the veteran artist, who received quite an ovation. The opera for the first night was the old favourite, Maritana, in which Mr. Turner appeared in the well-known rôle of Don Cæsar de Bazan, and acquitted himself admirably, his rendering of the song "Let me like a soldier fall" reminding one of his palmiest days. The title-rôle was undertaken by Miss Christine Gomez, who sang delightfully; Mr. Sidney Clifford was in good voice, and made a pleasing Charles II.; Mr. Tom Griffiths acquitted himself admirably as Don Jose; and Miss Jessie Dennis as Lazarillo found much favour for her singing of "Alas! those chimes." Chorus and orchestra are deserving of praise.

SUNDERLAND.—King's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. S. F. Davidson; General-Manager, Mr. A. Telford.—Hardie and Von Leer's company are appearing here in the well-worn play Two Little Vagabonds.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Grieveson.—The attraction here is Mr. Fred C. Somerfield's Geoffrey Langdon's Wife company, Mr. Paul Beckett successfully portraying Felix Beverley. Mr. Wilson Summers is fully adequate to the part of Jack Stirling; Mr. Wilford Cheetham submits an exceptionally good rendition of Geoffrey Langdon; Miss Cissie Bellamy's enactment of Mary Langdon is full of histrionic power and ability; Miss Elsie Capell is excellent as the Hon. Mrs. Sands; Miss Katie Lever makes a capital Sweet Nancy; and Mr. A. Lowry as Arthur Bellairs is also good.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—The chief position on this week's bill is held by Fred Ginnett's company in an improved edition of Dick Turpin's Ride to York, an item that never fails to please; Charles Parker's Six Æolians prove exceptionally smart and versatile in their clever vocal and dancing act; Stelling and Revell are an amusing couple; the New York Nippers are as entertaining as ever; Nellie Martell, comedienne, Jock Mills, Scotch comedian, Naughton and Gold, Scotland's premier comedians, and the Bioscope pictures complete the bill.

SWANSEA.—The Grand.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Oswald Brooks; Acting-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. Walter Dean.—Messrs. Armitage and Leigh's company is here in Leah Kleschna. Mr. William Clayton, who again appears as Kleschna, gives a masterly reading of the part; Bessie Rignold, too, reappears as Leah, and her portrayal of the character shows the polished actress; as Paul Sylvaine, Mr. Hamilton Dean is impressive; Mr. Gilbert Heron is an unqualified success as Schram; as is also Mr. Algeron J. Hicks as Raoul Berton. Mr. Charles Barrett and Miss Violet Thorold provide excellent comedy as Valentine and Sophie.

The Star.—Manager, Mr. William Coutts; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. J. Powell.—For Love and the King is the attraction this week, presented by Mr. C. Watson Mill and company. Mr. C. Watson Mill as Jarval gave a noteworthy performance; Mr. John Burton, as Michael Obrenovic being also good; Miss Rosalind Tate made a delightful Princess Athene; Miss Joan Ellis (Natila) and Miss Marie Ault (Grazia Obrenovic) were also excellent.

The Empires, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. P. C. Rowe; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. H. Lennon.—The Boissets present The Bricklayers here this week; Charles Whittle's songs go well; Drew and Alders present a humorous sketch, The Coastguards; and La Belle Nello deservedly owns the title of "The Queen of Equipoise"; a distinctly refined and clever musical act is given by the Carina Sisters; Violet Ray is a soprano vocalist of ability; and Edie King dances and sings well. Charles Stevens, character comedian, and the Bioscope concludes.

SWINDON.—Empire Theatre.—Proprietors, The Wiltshire Entertainments Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Manners.—An excellent programme here this week includes Freddie French and company in the farcical sketch entitled Suffragettes, or Votes, Votes, Votes. E. H. Allen, comedian and patterer, is good; and Walter Pearce, descriptive vocalist, is well received. The Two Lillies are seen to advantage in their mirror dance; a clever whistling turn is that of Arthur Slater, whose bird imitations are very realistic; much fun is derived from the songs and patter of Nash and Noel, comedians and dancers; a great reception is accorded Dan Whitley, eccentric comedian; and the Great La Faile Troupe give a clever gymnastic performance. The Empire Pictures include one of the Marathon Race.

TON-Y-PANDY.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. W. Ventom.—This week good business is being done owing to the striking success of Mrs. Sam Duckworth's company in The Conscience of a Judge. As the judge Mr. Kenyon Musgrave fully upholds his reputation; Mr. Reg. Maurice is well suited as Cecil Bentley; Mr. Sam Courtney scores heavily as Sir E. Mervyn; and Mr. W. Clarke makes the most of Geoffrey Granstone. Messrs. Frank Ayrton and F. W. Graham create plenty of humour as John Summers and Horatio Winter respectively; Miss Nellie Howitt fits the part of Jessica Draycott to perfection; and as Ethel Vaughan Miss M. Coleman is responsible for a sympathetic rendering. Miss Madge Seymour makes a vivacious Mary Wilson.

Hippodrome.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Will Stone; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edgar Harper.—An excellent programme is again provided here, with good results. The Yorkshire Mill Girls, in harmony and song, make a hit; Grey and Welford are smart boxing comedians; and the Kenmors are well received in their acrobatic sketch. Lew Towers, comedian, Harry Keeble, ventriloquist, and Millie Hayden, chorus singer, add to the evening's success.

TORQUAY. — Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Pearse.—Miss Hook of Holland is being presented here this week by Messrs. Dudley Bennett and T. C. Wray's company. Miss Amy Grey is particularly pleasing in the title-rôle, and her vocal talents are much appreciated; as Mina Miss Muff Carewe is very vivacious, and causes plenty of fun; Mr. Edmund Russell is exceedingly droll as Mr. Hook, and evokes continuous laughter; whilst Mr. J. B. Fox does excellently as Captain Paap, and Mr. Adrian Burgon is seen to advantage as the Bandmaster; Mr. Fred Dark makes the most of his opportunities as Simon Slinks, and Mr. Robert Corray plays admirably as Schnappe.

Princess Pier Concert Hall.—Proprietors, the Torquay Town Council; Manager, Mr. A. T. Tremlett.—Mr. Stuart Alexander's company, The So-and-So's, are paying a return visit here this week, and were accorded a warm reception on Monday. Miss Maude Davis has a soprano voice of considerable talent, which was much appreciated, and Miss Maud Phillips is a good contralto; whilst Miss Lilian Leoffeler renders some clever step-dances. Mr. Stuart Alexander is a tenor of particular ability, and Mr. George Sharratt is a light comedian of much acceptance; Mr. Harry Quinnborough is a great favourite, and is repeatedly encored for his songs and character sketches, whilst the style in which the concerted numbers is rendered is deserving of mention.

TYLDESLEY.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. W. Brierley, A. Brierley, and W. German; Manager, Mr. W. W. Brierley.—Mr. Lingford Carson's company is drawing good houses here in a répertoire of plays, including A Modern Adventuress, The Octoroon, and The Ticket-of-Leave Man. In A Modern Adventuress Miss Amy McNiell is most convincing as the wicked Maud Delby; Wallace Dauton is played with considerable skill by Mr. Thomas Jardine; Mr. E. J. Fare achieves success by his portrayal of Pietro Donelli; Mr. Rob Borlande is well placed as Mr. Delby, and Harry Delby has a capital exponent in Mr. Frank Kelland; Mr. D. Donaldson is well suited as the detective. William Beal; Mr. C. Taylor is impressive as Steve Meredith; Mr. Will White makes a quaint John Crompton; Miss Mervyn a sympathetic Vivetta, and Miss F. Ferina a lively Sally.

TYNEMOUTH. — Palace-by-the-Sea.—Proprietor, Mr. J. H. Graham; Manager, Mr. Lindon Travers.—The programme here includes a full variety entertainment by the versatile combination, the Smart Set (under the direction of Walter George), who are deservedly popular. They have plenty of new business, and encores are frequent. Other interesting turns are those of Primaversa, a smart cue and ball manipulator; and the Bioscope pictures. Wednesday, the 10th instant, is set apart for a complimentary benent to the manager, Mr. Lindon Travers.

WALSALL. — Her Majesty's Theatre of Varieties.—General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—A great sensation is created here this week by the Elliott-Savonas, in The Palace of Orpheus, who give selections from the greatest composers, including the storm scene from the overture of William Tell; the Sisters Grovini prove themselves graceful and clever acrobats; J. P. Carrot is a skilful tambourine manipulator; Mitchell and Cain give a capital turn; Barry Lupino provides a very enjoyable item; the Chronomegaphone gives engrossing selections; Jeannie Mackay, soprano vocalist, is good; and the American Bioscope has again some interesting pictures.

WARRINGTON.—Royal Court Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred J. Reece.—Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company is reappearing here this week in Walter Melville's drama The Worst Woman in London, and crowded houses have been attracted. Miss Sidney Crowe is once more seen to advantage with a realistic portrayal of the remorseless adventuress, Frances Vere, and recalls were numerous. A charming portrayal of Ruth Milford is that submitted by Miss Dorothy Haigh; and in the lighter rôle of Matilda Parker Miss Polly Parker scores a big success. Mr. Hubert Shardon is a manly Jack Felton; and in the heavy rôle of Vincent Legh Mr. George Gaisford is especially good. Mr. F. Vernon Travers is a dignified banker, and much amusement is extracted from the part of Bob Goldfinch by Mr. Willie Scott. Clever character sketches of Hugh Drayton and Philip Armstrong are submitted by Messrs. H. W. Monte and Frank Litchfield respectively. The long list of minor parts are all well sustained, and the staging is very effective.

Royal Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Waters.—Patty Yole has captured all hearts here this week with her delightful singing and dancing; and the smart work of Cavalli, ventriloquist is much admired. The pictures, especially those showing an episode of Over the Sticks and Views of Central France, are gems of the photographic art.

Palace and Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. G. D Bradbury.—Gus Harris has scored yet another success here this week, his song "'Tis Primrose Day" being especially good; the Denwartz Troupe of juvenile lady acrobats are exceptionally smart; Harry Cotton's songs, notably that concerning "The Veteran Soldier," are excellently rendered; Lily Eyton is a charming comedienne; Marie Jones, who is assisted by Mr. Ernest Murgo, is a clever artist, and in the quick-change duologue The Way to Win a Bet she displays much versatility; The Sisters Brenton are a clever pair of comediennes and dancers; Alfonso is a smart equilibrist; and Little Dando is a really eccentric comedian. The pictures are good.

Wednesbury.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Battersby; Acting-Manager, Mr. Tom Kuner. —On Monday Mr. Andrew Emm, with his company, presented The Diver's Luck. A clever delineation of Martin Faber is submitted by Mr. Harry Cullenford; Mr. Fred A. Marston's representation of Barney Bawn meets with approval; an excellent interpretation of Tom Hall, alias Cranston, is given by Mr. William J. Miller; Mr. Fred Scarth acquits himself admirably in the rôle of Maurice Wyngate; and as Pedro Mr. K. Milson does full justice to the part. As Helen Wyngate Miss Mamie Stanton leaves little to be desired; Mr. Arnold Wintens submits an interesting portrayal of Solomon Isaacs; and the impersonation of Peggy Maloney is humorously handled by Miss Doris Dallimore.

West Bromwich.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. R. Nightingale.—Mr. Walter Melville's play, The Female Swindler, is being presented by Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company. The Swindler is a charming person, as presented by Miss Violet Ellicott; Mr. Joseph Millain takes the part of John Coulson, the criminal investigator, with success; while Mr. D. Winston as Detective Dixon is also clever.

New Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Player.—There is much to please all classes of people at this popular house this week, one of the great attractions being Yangar, the South African wonder-worker, who performs some clever tricks. La Belle Duchess introduces her fighting horses and trained ponies; Clark and Glenny appear in The Haunted House; Merrie Elsie is a capable comedienne; Mozzetto gives a striking jugglery turn; Alec Thomas has some smart negro songs; and Jack North is a comedian of much ability. The Hippodrome pictures conclude.

WEST HARTLEPOOL. — Grand. — Mr. Ernest Dare presents his company in the farcical comedy In the Soup, in which Mr. Louis Palgrave gives a lively and amusing portrayal of Horace Gillibrand, and Miss M. Lowe-Dare does capital work as Mrs. Gillibrand.

Palace.—Proprietor Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. A. E. Dobney.—The House of Tinn, as played here by J. Gar Kiddie and company, keeps the audience in uproarious laughter; the Twin Sisters Edwardes, vocalists and drummers, and Ryder Slone, comedian, are also old favourites; Gibbon and Bell shine in an acrobatic and dancing speciality; Marget and Lener are also clever comedy acrobats; George James, comedian; Ellis and Watts, in dancing and cross patter; and Mabelle Ray, comedienne, are also in the programme.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE. — Knightstone Pavilion and Opera House.—Manager, Mr. W. Payne.—Miss Inez Howard's company is here this week in Driven from Home. Mr. Walter Jeffery gives a masterly impersonation of Walter Hatherleigh; Mr. H. Creagh Hunt is sufficiently villainous as Geoffrey Waring; Mr. Geo. Claremont is excellent as Anthony Raybrook; Mr. C. M. Doyle is responsible for a fine character sketch as Willie; Mr. Albert E. Mann is extremely humorous as John Anderson; Laura Raybrook is pathetically portrayed by Miss Francis Olgar; Miss May Rosine is a very facetious Margaret Bailey, and Miss Doris Kelvey is praiseworthy as Barbara Ashdown.

Grand Pier Pavilion.—Manager, Mr. John H. Stevenson.—The Gems made their first appearance here on Monday, and were given quite an ovation. Mr. Kenna Lawson is a comedian far above the average, his humorous songs and sketches being greatly enjoyed; Mr. Wallace Kennedy possesses a sweet tenor, which he used to advantage; "My little pal" was artistically rendered by Mr. Ernest Attwell; Mr. D. Norton's pianoforte solo was finely executed; Miss Nessie Walker's singing was warmly applauded, and Miss Olive Mortimer was highly successful; Mr. John Lambert showed some very fine pictures by Pathé Frères on the Bioscope.

WEST STANLEY. — Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, The Stanley Theatre Co., Lt.; Managing-Director, Mr. Mark H. Lindon; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Kelly.—Mr. Bert Coote's company, under the direction of Mr. Percy Williams, opened here on Monday in The Fatal Wedding. Mr. Cecil A. Melton as Howard Wilson is all that can be desired; Mr. Frank Harrison gives a good account of himself as Robert Curtis; Miss Elaine Vanbrugh's rendering of the adventuress, Cora Williams, is clever; Mabel Wilson is cleverly played by Miss Ethel Kay; Zoto is ably presented by Mr. Charles Locke; and Bridget (Miss Ethel Sargent) is quaint. Miss Lulu Wohlmann represents Cissie, the little mother, with much ability.

Victoria Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. T. C. Rawes; Stage-Manager, Mr. G. W. Montrose.—Will Godwin, the famous author and composer, assisted by his wife and daughter, head a good bill here in their sketches The Adopted Child, Saved, and Repentance. Mr. Godwin sings nightly some of his own compositions. Shawlene, whistler, scores with his famous act; France and Francis, comedians; Mi Narom, in her latest comedy successes; Shamus and Kelly, Irish jig and reel dancers; Gladys Godwin, the lively little girl, in song and dance; and the Vicoscope complete a good programme.

WHITBY.—Spa Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. W. Payne Seddon; Manager, Mr. R. Mitchell.—Mr. Mouillot's No. 1 comapny appeared the first three nights of the week in the comic opera Tom Jones, and attracted crowded houses. Mr. Cyril Thompson gives a clever interpretation of the title-rôle; and Mr. A. J. Nicholls as the Somerset magistrate is well received. Mr. Arthur Radcliffe as Blifil is thoroughly conversant with the part; and Mr. Geo. Elton as Benjamin Partridge arouses considerable merriment. Mr. Fred Seymour is a good Squire Western; Miss Margaret Stoner's embodiment of Sophia is very pleasing; Miss Olive Eitone gives a clever rendering of Lady Bellaston; and Miss F. McEvoy is successful as Miss Western. Miss Florrie Saunders portrays the part of Honor with distinct success. The opera was well staged.

Whitehaven.—Market Hall.—Lessees, the Edison Picture Co.; General-Manager, Mr. Victor Branford; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Urwin.—The pictures are exceptionally good this week, and include Still Worthy of the Name, Walter the Rural Postman, The Little Savoyard, In a Submarine, The Old Composer and the Prima Donna, Follow Your Leader, An Expensive Duck, Tit for Tat, Catch Me If You Can, and Mr. Creepy is Startled. Silly Billy Elliott's popularity here is strongly marked by repeated encores.

Whitley Bay. — The Spanish City, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elderton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Steele.—Large audiences continue to be drawn here nightly. The Toreadors, a large troupe of male and female artists, are deservedly popular.

Widnes.—Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Jas. Kiddie.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company is presenting Two Little Drummer Boys here after the lapse of several years. Mr. Edward Bikker is capital in his original part of General Kingsley; Mr. Harry Scott is a manly Captain Frank Carsdale; Mr. Oswald Douglas lends dignity to the character of Captain Geo. Darrell; Mr. Alexander Knight is responsible for a sound study of Lieutenant Kingsley; the Major Kilkerrin of Mr. Frank Cope is thoroughly sound; Mr. Will Percy as O'Quirke and Mr. Chas. Gallier as Timothy Trimmer are very humorous; Mr. Wilson Holmes plays forcibly as Jim Barker; Mr. Geo. Turner is well suited with the part of the Rev. John Rivers; the "drummer boys" are Miss Maggie English and Miss Maudie Douglas, who do thoroughly good work; Miss Patricia Connaughton acts brightly as Molly Meadows; and Miss Mary Ainslie wins all hearts by her performance as Alma Kingsley.

Wigan.—Royal Court Theatre.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Co.—Mr. Herbert Lloyd's company occupy the boards this week in a laughable musical comedy entitled Happy Hooligan, in which catchy music, pretty dresses, and clever dances are contained. As the happy hooligan Mr. W. H. Lester is irresistible; while Mr. J. Sullivan as Macgregor and Mr. J. R. Hawley as the Jew convulse the audience. Miss Lottie Wilson makes a capital Widow Johnson; and Miss Rose Lyndon is a vivacious comedienne. The piece is admirably staged.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Co.—An exceptionally fine display is given by the Kremo Family, their tricks being both neat and bewildering; an excellent ventriloquial entertainment is given by J. W. Winton; and for his touching song, entitled "Down the Maypole Mine," J. H. Greener is encored nightly. Mlle. Haydee presents an interesting miniature vaudeville theatre, where the marionettes perform very creditably; Adah Payne is the possessor of a charming contralto voice, which she uses with considerable success; and another vocal number is given by the Three Coopers. The harmonising vocalists Pete and Juno introduce some good comedy and dancing; and Delafiore appears with success as the musical marvel; while J. P. Boston and J. W. Gallagher are excellent comedians.

Empire.—Lessees, the New Bioscope Trading Co.; District-Manager, Mr. Gerald Hunt; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Marco.—Wallace, ventriloquist, and Fred Walters, comedian and vocalist, provide excellent variety turns this week, and are extremely well received. The pictures include The Dog Outwits the Kidnapper, The American Cowboy (a stirring tale of the West), Abduction in the Reign of Louis XVI., The Sign from Heaven, and many other interesting films.

Worcester.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Le Wards.—After a lengthy season of variety shows, the legitimate drama has resumed its place here, and Messrs. Armitage and Leigh's company is presenting a dramatised version of Henry Seton Merriman's work, With Edged Tools. The principal figure, Victor Durnovo, is ably presented by Mr. Campbell Goldsmid; Mr. W. F. Grant's Jack Meredith is a well-ustained effort; and he is admirably supported by Mr. H. Nunn as Guy Oscard. Mr. J. A. Rosier is well suited as Sir John Meredith, and Mr. Cnas. Hartopp is excellent as Maurice Gordon. Miss Marie Leonard is responsible for a clever and convincing impersonation of Millicent Chyne; and Miss Phyllis Ralph is very delightful as Jocelyn Gordon. Miss Isabel Grey imparts the requisite dignity to the part of Lady Cantourne; and Miss Frances Wolviston and Miss Violet Thorold are seen to advantage in small parts. The play is handsomely dressed and staged.

Worthing.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Herr C. Adolf Seebold. — Mr. F. R. Benson's Shakespearean company was here for the first three nights. On Monday The Merry Wives of Windsor was presented, with Mr. Henry Herbert as a jocund Falstaff; as Fenton, Mr. Patrick Lewis left nothing to be desired; Mr. Arthur Fayne put in some admirable work as Dr. Caius; Miss Jean Græne was excellent as Robin; and Messrs. Hodgkins, Gerald, and Bisshopp were good as Bardolf, Pistol, and Nym respectively. Miss Violet Farebrother was a fascinating Mrs. Page; and Miss May De Launey did well as Mrs. Quickly.

Wrexham.—Empire Music Hall.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Jno. J. Scott.—The attractions here this week consist of Sidney Dolf, in a clever and amusing act, entitled What Others Do; Palette, with his smart dog Max, in A Busy Time in the Studio; Miss May Paul, a coon vocalist; and the Clancey Girls, singers and acrobatic dancers. The pictures also afford the usual entertainment.

York.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—The Hypocrites is, without doubt, a great play, and the fact that it commands attention is evinced by the large audiences who have witnessed it nightly during the past week. As the Rev. Edgar Linnell Mr. A. B. Imeson delivers the many telling lines with rare declamatory force, and throughout is eminently successful in a difficult though popular rôle. Miss Gladys Harvey is sympathetic and natural as Rachel Neve, and Miss Gladys Purnell looks handsome and acts naturally as Helen Plugenet. As Mr. Wilmore Mr. A. S. Barber enacts a difficult rôle with much skill; Mr. Charles Harley gives a clever reading of Mr. Viveash; as the unctuous Rev. Edward Daubeney Mr. Cecil Brooking is well placed; and Leonard Wilmot has an excellent representative in Mr. King Fordham. A large share of work falls on Miss Amy Ravenscroft, who invests the part of Mrs. Wilmore with much grace.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brook.—Lovers of the mysterious are well catered for this week, the doings of the Four Indian Fakirs and Roy Beavis having caused much enjoyment. Perrette and Mona present a neat sketch, Teasing the General, which goes well; Harry Briggs is a clever vocalist; and the doings of the Mezzettis on the horizontal bar causes wonderment. The witticisms and funny business of Albert le Fre are a source of much amusement; A. E. Clifford is a particularly clever vocalist; J. W. Purcell's company in That Brute Simmons is popular; and Renée is a neat juggler.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

MELBOURNE, Aug. 4.—Princess's Theatre (Lessee, Mr. J. C. Williamson; Business-Manager, Mr. Henry Bracey).—A big audience attended here on Saturday evening, when Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch entered upon its last week. The season throughout has been highly successful.

Her Majesty's Theatre (Lessee, Mr. J. C. Williamson; Business-Manager, Mr. E. J. Tait).—The Merry Widow finished a phenomenally successful season of eleven weeks on Friday evening, in the presence of a crowded house. Saturday evening saw a revival (for six nights) of The Dairymaids. Miss Carrie Moore filled her original part of Peggy. Miss Moore made a most vivacious Peggy, and was accorded several encores. Miss Florence Young again won her way completely with her charming singing. The comic element was contributed by Mr. Percy (Joe Mivens). His acting was never overdone. The scene showing the interior of Miss Pyechase's academy called forth special applause.

Theatre Royal (Lessees, Messrs. Meynell and Gunn; Business-Manager, Mr. Stanley W. Cherry). —After a short, though successful, season of two weeks, The Fatal Wedding was withdrawn on Friday evening in favour of Two Little Sailor Boys, which was produced on Saturday evening for the first time in Melbourne. Miss Lillian Meyer's Lola Grey was most effective; Miss Louise Carbasse as one of the little sailor boys was soon installed a favourite; Miss Maisie Maxwell as the other laddie lent able support; the management is fortunate in having Miss Maud Chetwynd as the dainty little parlour-maid; Miss Esme Harlesdene as the stepdaughter does well; Mr. Conway Wingfield as the Lieutenant in certain scenes called forth loud applause.

King's Theatre (Lessee, Mr. William Anderson; Business-Manager, Mr. Julius Grant).—The Squatter's Daughter was revived on Saturday. Miss Eugenie Duggan presents the bush heroine in a manner compelling admiration; Mr. George Cross as the hero, Tom Bathurst, has a part which suits him admirably; and the humorous element is ably represented by Mr. Bert Bailey in the character of Archie McPherson. Miss Ada Guildford,

THE DRAMA IN BERLIN.

BERLIN, THURSDAY, Sept. 10.—A quick run of novelties followed last week's dearth, and Herr Holz's piece is the most entertaining of all. It must be allowed, however, that the success would have been smaller had the cast been other than the picked artists of the Deutsches Chamber Plays. Plot there is little or none; the strength of the piece lies in the characters—which are all more or less caricatures—and the amusing dialogue. The action, such as it is, passes in literary and journalistic circles. Dr. Gehrke, a gentleman of bombastic phrases, is selected as editor of a weekly journal entitled the Social Aristocrat, which he and his staff contrive to bring to an untimely end after three or four weeks. In addition to this, Gehrke and two of his colleagues are condemned to detention in the local prison for writing democratic articles. Thanks to the good nature of the magistrate the arrest is made not only easy, but jovial, and in the end Gehrke—through the efforts of an impossible reporter—puts up for a seat in the Reichstag and is actually elected. His troubles are thus over, for in Parliament he will be allowed to speak his mind.

MR. BERNARD SHAW'S comedy Der Liebhaber has been produced with a good deal of apparent success at the Hebbel, the theatre at which Frau Warren's Gewerbe has enjoyed so long a run. Although some fourteen years old, the piece was new to Berlin, and being very brightly acted was much applauded.

THE grand Assyrian ballet Sardanapalus, at the Royal Opera—commonly known as the "Kaiser's pantomime," on account of its being produced by His Majesty's initiative—was not the unqualified success that was anticipated. It has occupied the close attention of the most famous professors and Assyrian scientists all the summer, and neither pains nor expense were spared in any particular. Costumes were historically and painfully accurate; the scenery, too, was especially prepared under guidance of suitable artists, and each tableau unfolded a pageant of splendour seldom witnessed. The several characters were admirably depicted; and yet truth compels the verdict that the majority of the audience were bored. Perhaps the only one in the crowded house who was entirely satisfied was the Emperor himself. His Majesty was present, with his family and guests, at two successive performances, and had looked in at a number of rehearsals. The production of Sardanapalus is an event in our theatrical annals, but it will never become popular.

TOLSTOI'S tragic drama Die Macht der Finsternis (The Powers of Darkness) has been revived at the Lessing, in connection with the author's approaching eightieth birthday. The painful impression always produced by this work was enhanced by the masterly and terribly realistic interpretation.

AT the Metropol a new burlesque "review" has made its appearance with the customary absurdity in the way of title—Donnerwetter, tadellos. The author is again Herr Julius Freund, and the music is by Paul Lincke. It is a series of well-arranged pictures, which, like the amusing couplets, are topical. The cast is capital, and no doubt the piece will attract for some time.

"MARRIAGES ARE MADE IN HEAVEN."

An Episode, in One Act, by Basil Dean, produced at the Gaiety Theatre, Manchester, on Monday, Sept. 7.

John Abel .....MR. LEWIS CASSON
Mrs. Hannah Abel ....MISS LOUISE HOLBROOK
Bessie Taylor .....MISS SYBIL THORNDIKE
Samuel Carter .....MR. EDWARD LANDOR

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Mr. Basil Dean's idea in his one-act play Marriages Are Made in Heaven is not conspicuously well worked out. We are introduced, in the first place, to John Abel and his mother, between whom the prospect of the former's marriage to Bessie Taylor is discussed in the West Country vernacular and a homely cottager style. A visit of Bessie to John is imminent, and as his mother has a call to make, he is left alone to enjoy that delectable event. But instead of Bessie, Samuel Carter turns up, burning, after long years, to revenge himself for a "good basting" bestowed upon him by John when they were Sunday-school boys together and Sam had cast eyes upon Bessie as a prospective wife. Sam is now in possession of a document which shows Bessie to be John's half-sister—a state of affairs which, of course, puts an end to John's pretensions, and leaves Sam, with John's tacit acquiescence, to make the best of his own opportunity. When Bessie comes, John's attitude is, to her, incomprehensible; but she loves him, and rather than entertain the thought of orthodox obstacles, would give herself to him without the ceremony of marriage. John, however, stunned by the knowledge of his father's secret offence and what it now involves, remains obdurate, and Bessie's love changes to pique. She goes—to Sam Carter; and we are left to speculate upon the rest. The only tolerable inference is that Bessie marries Carter, and that the story of her paternity is a lie. This lugubrious conception is, nevertheless, relieved by a certain cleverness in the dialogue, and the acting made it acceptable to an audience prepared to be indulgent of the theme. Miss Sybil Thorndike played Bessie admirably; Mr. Lewis Casson was manly and restrained as John; Miss Louise Holbrook was particularly natural as Mrs. Abel; and as Samuel Carter Mr. Edward Landor was easy and effective.

NEW THEATRE FOR WREXHAM.

The Palace Theatre, Wrexham, which we alluded to last week, will be essentially a drama and theatrical house, and Mr. W. Yates Gregory, the managing-director, is advertising for theatrical companies. It will be interesting to all travelling managers to know that a first-class theatre is being built in a town that has, to a certain extent, been forgotten theatrically. Wrexham has a population of over 70,000 inhabitants within a radius of five miles of its post-office. The site chosen for the new Palace Theatre is in Regent-street, the main street leading from the Great Western Railway Station to the town, and only three minutes' walk from the Central Railway Station. Electric trams from the outlying districts pass the doors every few minutes. The building itself will be a handsome one, with a seating capacity of 1,640. The stage, with a 30ft. opening, will be 30ft. high, 35ft. deep, and nearly 60ft. to the grille, with a width of 64ft., and fitted with the most approved methods. Mr. W. Yates Gregory, managing-director, hopes to have all complete for opening early in the spring of 1909.

Her King, a romantic play in four acts, dramatised by Harold Whyte from the novel, "The Trampling of the Lilies," was produced for copyright purposes at the Crown Theatre, Peckham, on Wednesday.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, Sept. 10.—Our theatres are slowly opening their doors. Very slowly, for most of the good Parisians—of the theatre-going sort—are still "en villégiature," which means that at some seaside resort they spend the best part of the day and the whole evening in the Casino playing "petits chevaux," a splendid game at which to lose both one's money and one's temper. And the result is that our Parisian has not at all benefited from his stay in Hole-on-Sea, but returns to the capital more grumpy than ever and prepared to find fault with everything. Psychologists have for years tried to solve the problem why Paris audiences show themselves so intractable at the commencement of the season. All kinds of reasons have been assigned for this, but nobody yet thought of the "petits chevaux," the cause of all the mischief. It is, therefore, not surprising that M. Debrenne, manager of the Folies-Dramatiques, has not yet had the courage to launch his novelty Mam'selle Trompette, the première of which was to have been given a week ago.

IT is announced that Mlle. Lucienne Malty will soon make her reappearance on a Paris music-hall stage. If so, she will receive an ovation such as has never fallen to the share of any comedienne. Not that she is so wonderfully talented. In last year's revue she had a rôle in the revue at the Moulin-Rouge and performed her task in a creditable manner. But she had a misadventure in Hamburg for which the Parisians want to compensate her by giving her a tremendous welcome. It is well known that the German official is a bully of the worst kind, and the manner in which he carries out his instructions is brutal in the extreme. But Mlle. Malty's case is indeed scandalous. Last month, whilst playing at the Hansa Theatre in Hamburg, she was arrested at her hotel and locked up in a cell the whole night without the officials even informing her of the charge brought against her. It was only in the morning that she learned, to her surprise, that she had been placed under arrest at the request of the manager of the Mellini Theatre, who considered that the young artist had committed a breach of contract. At the indignant request of the French Consul she was at once released; but the affair has created an unpleasant impression in theatrical circles here.

LAST week we buried Mlle. Subra, the delightful dancer. To-day the Opéra corps de ballet has sustained another loss by the death of Mlle. Suzanne de Maulde, who succumbed to an attack of typhoid fever after a few days' illness. The poor young girl, who was only twenty, had risen very rapidly, and before long would have ranked first among the "stars."

I HEAR that Mme. Litvinne is busy studying her rôle in Vlasta, an opera by M. Henri Lutz, which, we are further told, will be produced in Paris—but where?

IT is now pretty well decided that L'Emigré will be brought out at the Renaissance towards the middle of next month. The title-rôle will of course be undertaken by M. Lucien Guitry, and the two principal women's rôles have been entrusted to Mlle. Dorziat and Mlle. Juliette Darcourt.

ABOUT the 20th M. Broussan will return from his honeymoon trip, when he will busy himself at once with the staging of Le Crépuscule des Dieux. It may be incidentally remarked that M. Broussan, whilst manager of the Lyons Municipal Theatre, produced several of Wagner's works there with immense success.

THE public at the Opéra is proverbially very cold and undemonstrative. On the nights, however, that Mlle. Mary Garden appears things are different, for the members of the American colony and the Americans passing through Paris make it a point to applaud their talented countrywoman. A proof of this was afforded last week when Mlle. Garden appeared in Faust, and showed herself a delightful Marguerite. The hall was filled with enthusiastic Anglo-Saxons, and the prima-donna had no reason to complain of the reception that was accorded to her. Opinions may differ in regard to Mlle. Garden's vocal powers, but there can be no question that she acts the rôle to perfection. M. Altchewsky, too, the new tenor, received a well-deserved ovation.

THE Théâtre des Arts will start the season with a revival of Le Grand Soir, after which we are promised L'Eveil du Printemps, by M. Frank Wedekind, adapted by M. d'Humières. The work, it seems, had a long run in Germany. Apropos of the Théâtre des Arts, this popular little house is now managed by Miss Andrews, an American lady well known in the London theatrical world.

AT Cluny, L'Homme de la Montagne will disappear from the bill to make room for a revival of Major Ipéca, by MM. Mouëzy-Eon and Joullot.

A FEW months ago Paris was very excited over a scandal that took place in a family in the Latin quarter. Somebody had dramatised the story, and the work was to have been produced in one of our suburban theatres. A few days ago, however, the police commissary of that district received a letter, signed by several friends of the before-mentioned family, wherein that gentleman was informed that on the first night they intended to go to the theatre armed with big sticks and break the bones of the author, the manager, and every actor engaged in the piece. What they intended to do to the actresses they did not say; but the police commissary considered it prudent, under the circumstances, to prohibit the production of the piece.

I HAVE informed you already that in accordance with the wishes of the majority of the Paris theatrical managers the so-called free list will be suspended on and after Oct. 1. In other words, there will be no longer any "entrées de faveur," and everybody will have to pay for his seat, with the exception of the theatrical journalists and those directly or indirectly connected with the house. All this sounds very pretty, but, on the principle that a man is master in his own house, four managers of important theatres have refused to obey this ukase. These four managers are M. Antoine, of the Odéon; Mme. Réjane; Mme. Sarah Bernhardt; and MM. Hertz and Coquelin, of the Porte Saint Martin. Mme. Bernhardt has expressed her opinion very freely on the matter. "My theatre," she said, "is my house, where I can invite whom I please, and I do not admit that anyone has the right to tell me what I have to do in that respect. This prohibition may possibly suit small theatres, who cannot well afford to dispose of too many gratis seats. Not so with the big houses, where it may often suit the management to issue invitations. I therefore intend to remain mistress in my theatre."

M. BERNSTEIN has read his new play, Israël, to the artists of the Théâtre Réjane. One of our confrères having related the plot, M. Bernstein has taken that gentleman severely to task, assuring him at the same time that the story he told was nothing but a "fake." In order, however, to prevent any further indiscretions, M. Bernstein has implored the artists not to divulge a word about the plot. The latter have sworn to remain silent, and we must now wait patiently until Israël makes its appearance.

AT the Grand Theatre, Bolton, on Friday, the 4th inst., two performances were given by the management in aid of the fund to alleviate the distress and suffering occasioned by the recent terrible colliery disaster at Abram, near Wigan. As a result the sum of £58 16s. 5d. has been remitted to the Mayor of Wigan's fund.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MISS DOROTHY FIRMIN.

Beginning her career at the age of eleven in pantomime at the Crown Theatre, Peckham, under the management of Mr. Isaac Cohen, Miss Dorothy Firmin afterwards played child parts with Mr. Austin Melford in The Silver King, and with Mr. Henry Dundas in East Lynne. She created the part of Marjory Wingate in A Mother's Love, under the management of Mr. F. L. Connyngham, and played it for nearly two years, with great success. Then came the characters of Stella, the blind girl, in When the Lights are Low, and Lord Arthur Selwood in The Woman of Pleasure. Miss Firmin was next engaged for the title-rôle of Alice in Wonderland at Brighton, under the management of Mr. Trevor Lowe. Subsequently she appeared at the London halls in Shakespearean sketches, playing Prince Arthur, King John, and Portia from the Merchant of Venice with great distinction. She was then engaged by Mr. J. H. Leigh to play Ariel in his production of The Tempest at the Court Theatre, London, an impersonation for which she gained great praise. A re-engagement by Mr. Trevor Lowe to play the part of Tom in The Water Babes followed, and then she was retained by Mr. Robert Arthur to play Red Riding Hood at the Coronet Theatre,

MISS DOROTHY FIRMIN.

Notting Hill. Afterwards she went on tour with Mr. George Dance's Girl from Kay's, playing Ellen, and Lady Violet in The Orchid. The following Christmas she was the Mavis in The Babes in the Wood at the Camden Theatre, and for the spring and autumn she was re-engaged by Mr. George Dance for her old part of Lady Violet. Returning to the Coronet Theatre, she played Zebara in The Forty Thieves, and last Christmas found her in the title-rôle of Cinderella at the Kennington Theatre. She is now sustaining with gratifying success the title-rôle in The Flower Girl on tour.

MR. HENRY WORRALL.

A native of Manchester, Mr. Henry Worrall studied elocution in that town under Mr. Ryder Boys, with whom he afterwards played as an amateur many important parts in Shakespeare and old English comedy. Mr. Worrall's first professional appearance was in Mr. Robert Courtneidge's revival of A Midsummer Night's Dream, walking on, and later he played a small part in the revival of As You Like It. Shortly after he was engaged by Mr. Oswald Brand as juvenile lead for his Dickens répertoire. Then followed a very pleasant pastoral tour with Mr. Harcourt Williams, playing a variety of parts. His next engagement was with Mr. Richard Flanagan, at the Queen's Theatre, Manchester, for the production of Jevan, the Prodigal Son. Immediately following this, Mr. Worrall was retained by Messrs.

MR. HENRY WORRALL.

Durward Lely and William Mollison to play Silvius in their revival of As You Like It at the St. James's Theatre, London; also to understudy Orlando. He then joined Mr. H. B. Irving, and toured with him in England and America, playing, among other parts, Didier, in The Lyons Mail. Returning from America, he was at once re-engaged by Mr. William Mollison for juvenile lead in his Shakespearean répertoire, the parts including Orlando and Bassanio. He also played with Mr. Mollison the King (Hamlet), Banquo (Macbeth), Buckingham (Richard III.), and Montano. At the conclusion of Mr. Mollison's spring tour Mr. Worrall returned to his old part in Jevan, the Prodigal Son, which was produced at the Scala under the title of The Judgment of Pharaoh. He rejoined Mr. Mollison for his autumn tour (this making his third engagement with that gentleman), and sustained his old parts. Fencing is one of Mr. Worrall's hobbies; but, apart from practising the art for pleasure, he considers it a necessary part of an actor's training. He is very keen about it, and fences whenever he has the opportunity. Mr. Worrall is also fond of the violin, to the study of which he has devoted some years.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NEW YORK, SEPT. 2.—The Devil, adapted from a play called Der Teufel, by Franz Molnar, has been produced by Mr. Henry W. Savage at the Gardens Theatre and by Mr. Harrson Grey Fiske at the Belasco Theatre. Mr. Fiske sprang a complete surprise on the public one fine morning when he announced that he would produce the play on the following evening, with Mr. George Arliss in the title-rôle. It was known that Mr. Savage was going to make it his opening attraction at the Garden Theatre in a week or two, but nobody had even an inkling of Mr. Fiske's intention. Not to be outdone, Mr. Savage assembled his company in double-quick time, turned on the lights, and gave a performance of the play at the Garden Theatre on the same evening as it was done at the Belasco. Mr. Edwin Stevens represents his satanic majesty in the version prepared by Mr. Oliver Herford for Mr. Savage, and his interpretation of the rôle is most effective. His characterisation has more humour and less subtlety than Mr. Arliss's. It was hardly thought that Mr. Arliss would be able to make us forget his splendid impersonation of Zakkuri in The Darling of the Gods for the time being by giving us something better, but he has certainly done so in appearing as the devil, and his performance has earned the highest praise. The story is substantially the same in both versions, the characters being differently named.

An artist has agreed to paint the portrait of the wife of a rich banker. Years before, when both the lady and the artist were poor, they fell in love with each other; but with their first kiss burning on their lips they were forced to part. The lady has married the banker and become a society queen. She has been a faithful wife, and when she meets the artist she feels secure in the knowledge of her own honour and virtue. For six years the two meet, each secretly loving the other but giving no sign. Then the banker decides that the artist shall paint a picture of his wife, and he takes her to the studio and leaves them alone together. It is the first time that this has happened, and before they are aware of it they are treading on dangerous ground, talking of the dear dead days when they first loved each other. With an effort they dismiss the forbidden topic, and the artist leaves the room that the lady may prepare herself for the sitting. To do this she is about to remove her bodice and drape a gauzy scarf about her shoulders. As she steps to the mirror she starts back in surprise at a figure that rises from a high-backed chair. A man, with the features of Mephistopheles, tall, slender, immaculately dressed, stands before her. He begins by telling her of her love for the artist and describing the tumultuous emotions that rage in her breast. Then the artist comes in, and the stranger shows him his soul as in a mirror, with all his longings and desires made plain. In affright, they demand the stranger's name, and he tells them they may call him "Dr. Nicholas." Then his subtle scheme of temptation is unfolded. He laughs at the scruples that keep them apart, depicts the joys of love, and finally maddens them with jealousy. When the banker calls for his wife she clings to him as if for protection against herself. That night the banker and his wife are to give a ball, chiefly to bring about the engagement of the artist to a rich young girl whom the banker's wife has chosen for him, believing that she will feel safer if he is married. "Dr. Nicholas" attends the ball, and works upon the feelings of the artist and the woman he loves until they are almost beside themselves. Finally, he persuades the lady to write a letter in which she virtually gives up the struggle and surrenders. For a moment she repents of her folly and weakness, but it is too late, and in the very act of taking back the unread letter from her lover she throws herself into his arms, and on the face of "Dr. Nicholas" there is a mocking smile. Both productions are drawing crowded houses.

"THE MAN FROM HOME," a comedy in four acts, by Booth Tarkington and Harry Leon Wilson, has started the season auspiciously at the Astor Theatre, where it was lately produced by Messrs. Liebler and Co., after a prosperous career in the West, and where it is likely to remain for several months to come. Once more we have the old familiar theme of the title to be exchanged for a fortune, the contracting parties being English and American, and once more does "honest worth" with a goodly pile of American dollars thrown in, prove to be a very superior article to the rank that, according to Burns, is but the "guinea stamp." But the situations have the necessary touch of originality, and the characters are cleverly drawn. Moreover, the majority of playgoers prefer old themes to new problems.

The scenes are laid at Sorrento, in Italy, and the action of the play occurs within a period of twenty-four hours. Ethel Granger-Simpson and her brother Horace, from Kokomo, Indiana, are staying there with some English friends, among whom are the Earl of Hawcastle and his son, the Hon. Almeric St. Aubyn, and his sister-in-law, Lady Creech. Another member of the party is the Comtesse de Champigny. Ethel and Horace dearly love a title, and the Earl is trying to arrange a match between the American girl and his son Almeric, while the Comtesse regards Horace with a favouring eye. The young Americans have a guardian, one Daniel Voorhees Pike, a lawyer, who arrives on the scene in the automobile of a chance acquaintance, who appears to be a German. Pike has heard of Ethel's prospective engagement, and he sets about preventing the marriage. He is not favourably impressed with the Hon. Almeric, and refuses to agree to the "settlement" which the Earl of Hawcastle demands. The latter is evidently carrying on an intimacy with the Comtesse. Pike receives a letter from the American Vice-Consul in London concerning the Earl, who, it seems, has lived in Russia under an assumed name. Whilst he is repairing the automobile, Pike helps a man who is trying to escape from the police. This man turns out to be a Russian political fugitive, named Ivanhoff, who has been sent to Siberia for the embezzlement of Government funds. It appears that his wife ran away with his best friend after giving information to the police about Ivanhoff's guilt. Lady Creech, who is watching from an upper window, tells the Earl, and the latter threatens Pike with arrest for harbouring a criminal if he refuses to agree to the settlement. Pike remains firm, however, and during a conversation with Lady Creech, he learns that the Earl was Ivanhoff's "best friend." In the presence of Ethel he discloses to Hawcastle the information he has gained, and Ivanhoff recognises the Comtesse as his wife. The "German" proves to be the Grand Duke Vasili Vasilivitch, of Russia, and Ivanhoff is pardoned. Ethel, in spite of the disgrace that has fallen upon the Earl and his family, decides that she must keep her promise to Almeric, and in the last act Pike gives his consent to the marriage and the settlement. But when she learns that Almeric does not feel particularly disgraced, she comes to the conclusion that he wishes to marry her solely for her money, and breaks the engagement, the final situation being that she is going back to Indiana to become Mrs. Pike.

Mr. William T. Hodge, who "made his mark" long ago in low comedy, appears as Daniel Voorhees Pike, and his characterisation of the shrewd Indiana lawyer is lifelike and clever. Miss Olive Wyndham as Ethel is charming; and Miss Alice Johnson gives an effective portrayal of the Comtesse. Miss Ida Vernon's Lady Creech is an admirable performance; Mr. John Glendinning as the Earl fulfils all the requirements of the rôle; and Mr. Echlin P. Gayer as the Hon. Almeric represents an Englishman of the "silly ass" type. Mr. Henry Jewett's impersonation of the Grand Duke stands out well; and Mr. Henry Harmon's Ivanoff is an excellent piece of acting. Mr. Hassard Short as Horace Granger-Simpson also does well.

"ALL FOR A GIRL," a farce comedy in four acts, by Rupert Hughes, has made a hit at the Bijou Theatre. Mr. Douglas Fairbanks, who has made himself popular in several successful comedies produced during the last year or two, made his début as a star in this piece. He played a part that fitted him well, and his success was emphatic. Mr. Hughes has written a delightful little comedy, the dialogue being so spontaneous and witty that one enjoys the amusing situations and forgets that the story is timeworn.

Antoinette Hoadley, a very rich girl with numerous suitors, wants to be loved for herself alone, so she goes away to a farm and poses as a typist. Her companion, Mrs. Clara Van Espen, has a nephew, Harold Jepson, and thinks that Antoinette would be just the right sort of wife for him. So she lets him into the secret, and tells him to happen along and win the heiress in disguise. Harold is loath to take such a mean advantage of the girl, and decides to go on an ocean trip instead. He informs his aunt, and she immediately becomes tired of country life, and returns to the city. In the meantime, however, Harold finds he cannot raise enough money for the ocean trip, and decides to accept his aunt's invitation. He arrives at the farm just in time to see her depart with a lady whom he takes to be Miss Hoadley. But Antoinette is still there, and a match-making cow runs after her, so that just as Harold comes in she faints in his arms without being properly introduced to him. After that, of course, the inevitable occurs, and as Harold loves her as a poor typist her plan proves successful.

As Harold Jepson Mr. Fairbanks depicts the freshness and vivacity of a youthful lover in a skilful and diverting manner; Miss Adelaide Manola as Antoinette Hoadley makes a very good impression; and the other parts are well played. Produced by Messrs. W. A. Brady and Joseph Grismer, the piece has proved highly successful.

DRESSES AT THE PLAY.

FASHION has received an impetus with the coming of the dramatic season, the theatrical productions of last week revealing many striking creations of the costumière. The Passing of the Third Floor Back at the St. James's, the first of the week's novelties, introduced some simple but artistic dresses. Several frocks worn by Miss Alice Crawford are Paquin toilettes, exquisitely cut, and with a studious lack of ornamentation. One is made of cream cloth, and another is a grey gown trimmed with buttons from the throat to the hem, and finished with the daintiest and most unostentatious little white chemisettes.

"IDOLS," at the Garrick, presents Miss Evelyn Millard first in an evening toilette, which owes much of its charm to the exquisite mixture of colouring that it presents. Canary-coloured silk posed upon mauve chiffon forms the staple scheme of the tunic, which is finished with sleeves and a chemisette of tulle and silver embroidery. An additional touch of prettiness is given to the robe by insertions of yellow lace at the sides of the skirt which emphasise the tunic, and an embroidered gold waistband completes the design.

MISS MILLARD is also seen in a dress made of Nattier blue crêpe de Chine, trimmed with sable. Draped in order to show a tunic, which is edged with silk fringe, this elegant design is made still more handsome by the addition of a big blue velvet mantle and a toque en suite, plumed with blue feathers and bordered with sable.

OF the three gowns worn by Miss Edyth Latimer, one is an evening toilette composed of brick-coloured chiffon, embellished by means of gold paste embroidery, gold ball fringe, and a gold waistband. The underskirt is draped, and the long train is beautifully embroidered. Black is effectively used in the form of a sash on a cerise cloth gown worn by Miss Latimer. A handsome addition to the brightness of the dress is the gold net chemisette, with its turn-over collar that appertains to the design. Braid and buttons appear on this one, and the toilette is worn with a velvet hat plumed with cerise feathers. There is distinction also in a gown of black cloth and crêpe, worn by Miss Latimer. The toilette comprises a long coat, conspicuously trimmed with buttons, which appear upon macarons of crêpe, and a skirt decorated to match. Another costume is the grey cloth one in which Miss Haviland appears, salient features of which are a silk coat, piped with velvet, and a big grey hat, plumed with grey.

"WHAT EVERY WOMAN KNOWS," at the Duke of York's, is extensively concerned with the art of dressing. A very beautiful day dress is worn by Mrs. Beerbohm Tree. The indescribable colourings of this gown, called aurore, are brought about by a mélange of fawn chiffon posed upon an underskirt of pink satin, with a couple of layers of chiffon sandwiched between beautiful fringes of a glorious pale and dark cerise colour. The corsage is draped from the left side to the right, and is trimmed with gold embroidery and galon to match. It is posed over a deep V-shaped chemisette of gold-embroidered tulle, and the sleeves, which are very prettily draped, are outlined with gold galon and just reveal little elbow-cuffs of cerise chiffon. An attractive mingling of materials is also secured in a black chiffon gown posed upon a sheath of oyster-white taffetas, the softly shimmering folds of which the black veiling partially reveals. Very splendid is an evening toilette of coral-coloured brocade patterned with gold and embellished with handsome gold embroidery and ornamentation.

MISS LILLAH MCCARTHY wears a little morning frock of pink and white striped voile, simply decorated with coarse guipure about the elbow-sleeves and as a turnover collar beneath the throat. A black waistbelt is clasped by a large and very handsome old-silver buckle. Pale-blue chiffon composes the evening dress worn by Miss McCarthy, which is gracefully made en tunique, and trimmed with silver lace and fringe. The fringe makes a handsome appearance as an edging to the tunic, and the silver lace is used in the form of two broad bands at the back of the skirt, over which the tunic is carried from the front and tied in a bow. The décolletage is rimmed with a modestie of flesh-coloured tulle, and the tiny puffed sleeves are of the same material. Tucked into the dress is a bouquet of salmon-coloured poppies, a most effective introduction of colour with the blue and silver.

MR. C. A. G. BROWNE'S Advertising Agency is removed from Wych-street to "Wych-street House," 20, Wellington-street, Strand. The new offices are replete with the latest modern equipment, and there is no change in the telephone numbers or the telegraphic address.

AN interviewer in the Daily Chronicle, in reproducing Mr. Manners' remarks on the difficulties of securing English vocalists for his operatic enterprise, makes him say: "Even Siebel, in Lohengrin (sic), was too undistinguished a part for one budding contralto, who wanted at once to be Ortruda!" Perhaps the Daily Chronicle interviewer in future will allow the disconsolate lover of Gretchen to remain an unobtrusive character in Gounod's masterpiece, Faust, and not associate him with Wagner.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Sept. 7, the Play, by Cecil Raleigh and Henry Hamilton, entitled
"THE SINS OF SOCIETY."

There was a tremendous audience—always a pleasing sight—at the King's on Monday evening to witness the latest of Drury Lane's successes, and the applause bestowed gave good cause for believing that the week's business would be on a highly satisfactory scale. To produce such a play must necessarily create some little anxiety in a theatre with a less capacious stage than Drury Lane, but it is a boast of Mr. Mulholland that even a heavy production like this can be managed at the King's—of which Hammersmith is reasonably proud—with satisfaction to everybody concerned, and it is safe to say that Messrs. Raleigh and Hamilton's drama never went better. The cast (a very lengthy one) was in most capable hands, and the scenery and appointments deserved the highest of praise. As Sir Dorian March Mr. E. Vassall-Vaughan put in some excellent work, and made a vastly favourable impression; Mr. C. F. Collings displayed sterling ability as the scoundrelly Noel Ferrers; in the part of James Hogg Mr. Blake Adams, a popular comedian well-liked in the district, added to an already famous reputation; Mr. Frederick Annerley gave an exceedingly capable representation of Mr. Morris; and Captain Carruthers was ably played by Mr. James Percy. Parker was inimitably rendered by Mr. Edward P. Gee; Mr. George A. Brandram was satisfactory as Sergeant Wrangham; Colonel Gretton was capitally acted by Mr. Walter Shomberg; Mr. Victor Bogetti gave Captain Mason in a pleasant manner; and as the Rev. Martin Hope Mr. Edwin Palmer was very good. Nothing but praise is due to Miss Pattie Brown for her highly-finished and excellent portrayal of Lady Goldbury, and she quite won the hearts of her audience; Miss Grace E. Leslie, with her handsome presence and in many elaborate costumes, succeeded in enlisting general sympathy by her earnest acting as Lady Muriel Beaumont; Miss Dorothy Giles delighted everyone by her intelligent and pleasing rendering of Lady Gwendoline Ashley; the stinging remarks of Caroline Duchess of Danebury were pointedly delivered by Miss Janet Hodson; and Miss Mabel Murray made a smart Hon. Mrs. Murgatroyd. The scenery was a triumph of the painter's art, and Mr. Bruce Smith deserves every praise therefor, the two sensation scenes, "The Weir" and "The s.s. Beachy Head" inducing great applause.

CORONET THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 7, the Play, entitled
"THE MOLLUSC."

Miss Annie Hughes and her clever company are touring in Mr. Hubert Henry Davies' multum in parvo, The Mollusc, and are appearing at the Coronet this week, much to the delight of its patrons. This drawing-room dissertation on the ethics of society has the smallest cast possible in the shape of four people, the sexes being equally represented. Moreover, the action all takes place in one set, the scene being a sitting-room in the Baxters' house. Miss Annie Hughes is a most charming and entertaining species of the genus mollusc, and keeps the audience in roars of laughter by her clever and good-humoured exposition of the character of the pretty, healthy little woman, Dulcie Baxter, who poses as an invalid and what not in order to escape the necessity for action or serious thought. It is a most illuminative impersonation. Mr. Athol Stewart is an excellent foil to Dulcie's frivolity as her energetic, enterprising, serious, and alert brother, Tom Kemp, who undertakes to stir up this limpit of modern civilisation. Miss Lilias Waldegrave presents a touching and girlish rendering of Miss Roberts, and is a very sweet and winsome personality. Mr. Wylie A. Thompson as Mr. Dick Baxter completes the cast, and gives a quaint, droll, and diverting exposition of the weak and flabby husband. A Bit of Old Chelsea, which precedes the chief item on the bill, once more exhibits Miss Annie Hughes' wonderful versatility and grasp of character in her notable impersonation of "Saucers," alias Alexandre Victoria Belchamber. Mr. Alick Chumley contributes a capital, easy-going, polished performance as the chivalrous young sculptor, Jack Hillier. Mr. Wylie A. Thompson, who enacts the small part of Phil M'Donnell, also stage-manages the show, and Mr. Frank Yearsley is general manager.

ELEPHANT AND CASTLE THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 7, the Drama, entitled
"THE CONVICT'S DAUGHTER."

Mr. Frank Bertram and company have been presenting the above exciting drama here this week. Mr. William Burgess gives a successful impersonation of the banker, Frederick Neville; Mr. Walter Graham does well with the part of Harold Trevelyan; the rascally character of Jasper Thorne is portrayed with effect by Mr. Escott Robson; and Mr. Willie Black furnishes quite a refreshing embodiment of the humorous Irish "member of the force," Patrick O'Laragan. Miss Nellie Waddington fills the part of Marion Thorne; and Miss Amy Randolph makes a vivacious domestic as Betty Hyne. A really good study is supplied by Miss Lilian Dean in the part of Edith. She infuses much pathos into some exciting scenes, and in the lighter vein is distinctly fascinating. Weary Willie, Convict 89, is played with much realism by Mr. Frank Bertram, he, having played this part over two thousand times (vide programme), leaves no detail unstudied. The minor characters are in safe keeping, and the drama is well staged.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 7, the Musical Comedy, entitled
"THE DAIRYMAIDS."

The deservedly-popular musical comedy The Dairymaids is drawing enthusiastic audiences to the Dalston Theatre, where the entertaining piece is being admirably performed. One of the main attractions in the piece here, as elsewhere, is the vivacious and fascinating Peggy, who may be described as the chief dairymaid. Miss Clare Marsden, who takes this character, sings several songs, which quite take the fancy of the audience, and one of the most popular ditties is evidently that which refers to "A long, long lane," for which several encores are obtained. "The Sandow Girl" song is also a decided success. Miss Mabel Younge's rendering of Lady Brudenell is a well-studied piece of work, and her scenes with Dr. O'Byrne, R.N. (Mr. J. A. Warden), are among the most interesting in the piece. Mr. Nelson Keys as Lieut. Sam Brudenell, R.N., and Mr. A. Wykes Ashdowne as Lieut. Frank Meredith, R.N., are decidedly effective, and the little scene they go through as poachers, together with the accompanying song, is an item to be remembered. Roars of laughter are created by Mr. Johnny Osborne as the volatile Joe Mivens; Miss Clarice Lockstone is pleasing as Winifred (Peggy's sister); and some good character acting is presented by Miss Madge Avery as Miss Penelope Pyechase, and Miss Gladys Silvani as Eliza, her maid of all work. Others helping materially towards the general success of the representation include Mr. Harry Cottell as Tim Capus, Mr. Boris Bellew as Lieut. Brereton, R.N., Mr. Fred Foster as Togers, and Miss Gay Silvani as Helen.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, Sept. 7, the Comedy, entitled
"THE THIEF."

A more flattering reception could scarcely be given to any play than that which was accorded to this intensely interesting production when it made its first appearance at the Royal County Theatre on Monday evening, a crowded house showing their appreciation by recalling the actors and actresses at the close of each act. Chief honours were earned by Miss Marie Polini and Mr. Rupert Lester, who appeared in the respective rôles of Marise and Richard Chelford. Both gave a most convincing portrayal of the part allotted to them, especially in the bedroom scene, in which they were seen at their best. Mr. Cyril Harcourt was also very good in the part of Raymond Leyton; whilst that of his son Harry was capably rendered by Mr. Owen Nares. Mr. Luke Foster acquitted himself well as the detective; and the part of Isabel Leyton was well placed in the hands of Miss Jean Cadell. Habitués of the theatre were grateful to Mr. Peter Davey, the managing-director, for bringing such an excellent production to their doors. It was preceded by the comedietta Too Happy by Half, which was capably acted by Miss Eileen Kerin and Messrs. Charles King and Owen Nares.

THE BRITANNIA.

On Monday, Sept. 7, the Drama entitled
"MAN AND WIFE."

This well-known and popular house of drama was re-opened on Monday last under the direction of Mr. M. Montgomery, of Liverpool, who proposes to give a season of drama under the two-houses-a-night system, and if this week's sample is a specimen of the entertainment, there is no doubt that the venture will be a success. For the initial performance Walter Howard's Man and Wife was selected, and a really excellent company of artists engaged to interpret it. A brave and manly Paul Revere was found in Mr. Harry Tresham, his representation of the hero being very good. The cunning and despicable Captain d'Esparre was ably played by Mr. H. Ryland Leigh, being duly execrated by the audience for his misdeeds. An ideal representative of the Church was given by Mr. F. Newman as Father Compe, his defence of the hero and heroine being well received by the audience. Miss Ethyle Murray as Marcelle played in a most agreeable and charming manner the much-wronged heroine, and quickly won her way to the hearts of the audience; as Ruth Revere, Paul's mother, Miss Edna Lester gave a very pathetic and realistic portrait of the poor old widowed lady; and Miss Lalla Stanhope presented a fine performance of the poor deformed boy, Jean. The humorous part of the drama was ably sustained by Miss Florrie Barnes as Risette, Mr. Herbert Young as Bambo, and Mr. H. G. Brandon as Bimbo, this trio causing incessant amusement. Mr. Brandon is also stage-manager and producer for the stock company. The remaining characters were well depicted, and special mention must be made of Mr. W. S. Clerk as Colonel Latour, Mr. E. Alan Hineson as Sergeant Jacques, Mr. Edward James as Captain d'Arville, and Mr. Arthur Melrose as Captain Daral. The drama was well mounted and smartly dressed. A fitting close to a good entertainment was given by some very fine pictures thrown on the screen by the Barrascope. Mr. F. A. Fowler is Mr. Montgomery's energetic and courteous manager.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, Sept. 7, the Drama entitled
"THE FACE AT THE WINDOW."

Messrs. Armadale and Warren's company is meeting with great success at the Shakespeare Theatre this week in Mr. F. Brook Warren's drama The Face at the Window. There is a full measure of sensational incidents in the play, which goes strongly from start to finish, the interest of the audience being fully sustained throughout. Mr. E. Hoggan-Armadale distinguishes himself by a carefully thought-out rendering of the Chevalier Lucio Delgado, otherwise the Wolf. Acting throughout with coolness and resource, he gives a striking picture of the man who conceals a fiendish nature beneath a polished and dignified manner. A bold and unflinching Paul Gouffet is found in Mr. Scott Leighton, who looks the part of the detective to perfection, and acts throughout with earnestness and vigour. Mr. Alfred Warne renders good service as Henry de Brisson, and Mr. Arthur Beverley as Lucio Cortier makes the most of his opportunities. Mr. Gilbert Hall handles the part of Jean Barbelon in an effective manner; Mr. R. L. Ward does well as a gendarme; Miss Elsie Marriott-Watson makes a charming Marie de Brisson, and sustains the rôle with such pathos and feeling that she soon becomes a decided favourite; the comic relief usual to these plays falls on the shoulders of Mr. Henri Stewart as Peter Pottlebury and Miss Louie Lonora as Babette, and their combined efforts keep the audience well amused. The other characters are well portrayed, and the play fully deserves the applause it receives. The scenery and general effects are very effective. The comfort of the audience is well looked after by Mr. H. Percival Young, the acting-manager for Messrs. Bennett and Bennett.

GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, Sept. 7, the Play, in Four Acts, entitled
"THE CHRISTIAN."

Mr. Wentworth Croke has organised an excellent company for touring the revised version of The Christian, which is drawing good houses at Fulham. The play affords added scope for good acting, and the company are quite up to their work all round. The rôle of John Storm is well played by Mr. Roy Redgrave, who has the necessary force and physique to carry through an exacting part. He looks well and plays with great charm and sincerity, fully deserving the applause he wins. Mr. Wilfred Noy must be highly commended upon his work as Drake; it is a very clever study and a straightforward, powerful exposition of that rather disappointing character. Mr. Herbert Hewetson is well placed as Lord Robert Ure, and acts the part with excellent point and precision. The two opposite types of Churchmen, Father Lamplugh and Archdeacon Wealthy, are well played by Mr. Fewlass Llewellyn and Mr. John Hooker, the former investing a sympathetic part with personal charm. Mr. Royce Milton is appropriately dictatorial as Lord Storm; and Mr. Bruce Lindley is good as Parson Quayle. Mr. Fred Goodyer gives a good study of the truculent Bert; and Mr. John Blake is earnest and sincere as Paul. The honours of the evening among the ladies go mainly to Miss Daisy Scudamore and Miss Cora Deane. Miss Scudamore as Glory Quayle is thoroughly at home in the part, and proves her ability as an actress quite capable of interpreting the complex character. Miss Deane has a difficult and trying part as Polly Love, and emerges exceedingly well from the ordeal—some of her acting is very good indeed. Miss Florence Hunt as Black Meg and Mrs. Harriet Russell as Mother Kent are responsible for good work in their respective parts; and the representatives of the other demi-mondaines are equal to the occasion. Miss Molly Hayden plays well as Mrs. Callender; and Miss Kitty Symons is praiseworthy as Lady Robert Ure. No pains have been spared with the scenery and dresses, and the production is on the stupendous scale associated with Mr. Croke's name.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, Sept. 7, the Drama, entitled
"A DESPERATE MARRIAGE."

Good audiences are being attracted to this popular South London house to witness Mr. Frederick Mouillot's company in the above exciting piece. Mr. Caspar Middleton makes the most of the rôle of the vacillating hero, Dick Strang. The most effective part in the play, that of the old tramp, Elijah Boggs, is excellently enacted by Mr. Herbert Lloyd, and his death scene is most artistically rendered. Miss Winifred Whyte makes a very pleasing heroine as Audrey Howard, the flower girl, her voice having the true ring of pathos; and Miss Helen Anderson is a vivacious Betty Mackenzie. Mr. E. W. Maule Cole does well as the gentlemanly scoundrel, Clarence Woolmer; and Mr. Walter Rousby is amusing as Tom Stripe. Miss Nellie Rousby makes a pert parlourmaid as Bertha Onions; and Miss Gertrude Gilbert ably illustrates the vindictive nature of the demi-mondaine, Miriam Elton. Mr. Houghton Goddard as Dr. Frank Baxter and Mr. J. B. Sunderland as the manager of the Night Hawks' Club ably complete the cast. The scenery and effects are quite adequate.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, Sept. 7, the Russian Drama, in Four Acts, by O. Silverstone and Montgomery, entitled
"THE NIHILIST."

The English autumn dramatic season opened on Monday at this handsomely appointed theatre, with the special engagement of Messrs. O. Silverstone and H. Wright's company, in the exciting drama, The Nihilist. Although there is nothing particularly novel in the play, yet the story is one that strongly appeals to the patrons of the theatre, a large proportion of which are voluntary exiles from Russia. Mr. Walter Bentley displays great energy and acts with virile force as Ivan Nowasky, his scene in the third act when he regains his sight being exceptionally well rendered. The Princess Olga is portrayed by Miss Florrie Kelsey; and little May Ediss does all that is necessary as Little Alexina. Mr. Leo R. Nelson works hard as Prince Alexander, and gains the execrations of the audience; and Mr. O. Silverstone, as a member of the secret police, Piertree Petroff, succeeds in securing the attention of the house. An excellent character sketch of the persecuted Father Gourko is presented by Mr. J. Brunelle Harvey, who is seen to advantage in the final scene; and Mr. Cowel Clarke does well as Karl Orloff. Mr. Henry Wright is an amusing Bobbie Smart, being well aided in his humorous efforts by Miss Jessica Ford as Katrina. Miss Edna Clare, an emotional actress of ability, acts with fervour as Alexina Orloff; and the remaining parts are in the hands of Messrs. Morgan Dale, S. G. Eugene, Edward Dowds, and James Hamilton. The scenery is in the best possible taste, and the incidental music is well played by the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. V. Vorzanger.

BROADWAY THEATRE, S.E.

On Monday, Sept. 7, the Musical Comedy, in Four Acts, by Paul Rubens,
"MR. POPPLE (OF IPPLETON)."

Mr. Charles Macdona is appearing here this week as Freddy Popple, and is enormously successful in the character. The company supporting Mr. Macdona is excellent in every respect. The well-known numbers were done full justice to, and were warmly applauded. Miss Nellie Hodson was delightful as La Bolero; Miss May Hart made a clever and attractive Louise; Miss Marie Moss was a dainty Violet Brinton; Miss Amy Singleton as Mrs. Doring and Miss Lilian Lait as Mrs. Hennay were very amusing. Miss M. Kelly (Gladys), Miss Gwen Yates (Rosie), Miss Helen Vane (Catherine), Miss Mabel Sarl (Marie), Miss Marie Wyse (Clytie), and Miss Dolly Marsden (Mabel) all added to the general success. Mr. Leo Sinclair was very good indeed as Norman Popple; Mr. Nap Barry gave a capital impersonation of George Hennay; Mr. James Stevenson was a clever Mr. Doring; Mr. Eric Barrington was a warm favourite as Jacques Kenyon; Mr. Percy Latimer, Mr. C. H. Johnson, and Mr. F. H. May were successful in their respective parts; Mr. J. Buckstone as Maurice and Mr. J. Orchill as John were well placed; Mr. R. Graham was an efficient William; Mr. Tom May was good as Platt; and Mr. Sydney Grata was a smart Messenger Boy. The chorus was exceptionally good, and included many excellent singers of attractive appearance. The orchestra, increased for this engagement, was under the able direction of Pleons Gains.

GREENWICH THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 7, the Drama, by Miss Maud Hildyard and Mr. Russell Vaun, entitled
"THE GREAT AWAKENING."

Miss Maud Hildyard and her company are here in the above successful drama. Miss Hildyard as Lota Selby brings her remarkable ability and attractive personality to bear on the part, and creates absorbing interest. From her first appearance in the hut on the African coast till the last scene of the play her performance was followed with keen enjoyment. Mr. Wallis Clare was an excellent Selby; Mr. Cecil Grey in the dual rôle of Sir Henry Merton and Jack was very successful; Mr. Herbert Robinson was clever as Guy Rogers; Mr. Dudley Winton was a gentlemanly and pleasing Captain Harry Lambert; Mr. Rule Pyott an amusing Billy Brass; Mr. David Curtis played Richard Wilson with considerable power; Mr. Tracy Barron made a hit as Antoine; Mr. Eric Dane was good as Sergeant Brue, as was Mr. Godfrey Sheldon as Doctor Lane. Mr. T. Bancroft was a competent Gibbs; and Mr. Edwin Gordon did well as the newsboy. Miss Fay Garnet Vane was a sympathetic Molly Merton; and Miss Cissie Podmore as Selina Worts was clever and amusing. Miss Hildyard's many handsome dresses were greatly admired, and the scenery and appointments of the play were costly and appropriate.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Sept. 7, the Drama, by Walter Melville, entitled
"THE SOLDIER'S WEDDING."

Melvillean melodrama is, for the fourth successive week, the attraction at the Stratford Borough Theatre, and on Monday night the popular parts of this spacious suburban playhouse were liberally patronised. Mr. Wingold Lawrence as Jack Brown, the soldier, cuts a gallant figure and acts in manly and buoyant style. Mr. Beresford Whitcomb looks a typical military officer as Colonel James Graham, and is always very convincing in the rôle. As the scoundrelly Charles Courtney Mr. Gerald Jordan is responsible for a sound performance; and Mr. Frederick Biron does exceedingly well as David Munroe. Mr. Fred Yarnold supplies a clever sketch of the old farmer, Nathaniel Lee; and Mr. Johnny Chippendale is a very droll and amusing Tommy Spratt. Miss Marie McAulay contributes a fluent and well-defined characterisation of the adventuress, Julie de Beauvrais; and Miss Dorothy Richardson looks very charming as Nancy Lee. Miss Mabel Lowe plays with tact and sympathy as Peggy Munroe; and Miss Mattie Everett is a bright and entertaining Lizzie Walker. The remaining parts are all very capably played, and the piece is embellished with some fine scenery and effects.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Sept, 7, the Drama, by Walter Howard,
"MAN AND WIFE."

Messrs. Van Biene and Traynor's company in Man and Wife is proving a strong attraction at the Stratford Theatre Royal this week. The story, which is laid in the Napoleonic period, lends itself to much artistic treatment in the way of dressing and mounting, of which full advantage has been taken, and the cast is an exceptionally good one. Mr. John F. Traynor is admirably suited in the rôle of the fearless fisherman, Paul Revere, possessing the necessary physical attributes and acting with refreshing vigour and virility. Mr. Edward M. Hamilton in the unthankful part of Captain d'Esparre acts with such ease, fluency, and incisiveness that the captain's turpitude seems further enhanced, and he is an object of particular abhorrence to the "gods." Mr. Geo. Overs submits a graphic sketch of the cripple, Jean; Mr. Ambrose Horton is a soldierly and alert Sergeant Jacques; Mr. George Rammell makes a dignified Colonel Latour; and Mr. Edward Leslie is an impressive Father Compé. Miss Kate Hallam in the important rôle of Marcella makes a very comely fisher maiden, and she acts throughout with much sympathy and admirable restraint. The plentiful supply of comedy business is in the hands of Mr. E. Hall Eldon and Mr. George Vinning as the twins, Bimbo and Bambo, and the quaint doings and sayings of the twain cause much mirth. They are ably assisted in the funmaking by Miss Millie Dorris, a pretty and sprightly Rosette. The part of the blind Mrs. Revere is well played by Miss Violet Temple, while minor parts receive careful treatment.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 7,
the Drama, by Hall Caine, entitled
"THE PRODIGAL SON."

A prodigious production at Brixton this week has resulted in equally large houses, and a visit to the handsome theatre in the middle of the week found every seat occupied. Mr. Wentworth Croke's company gives full value to the stirring scenes of Hall Caine's enthralling play. The exacting rôle of Oscar Stephensson is essayed confidently and well by Mr. Gordon Macintosh, whose excellent elocution and resourceful acting are of the utmost value. Mr. Hugh Montgomery is the Magnus, and gives a fine exposition of the part, his resonant voice and vigorous style combining to make the rôle impressive throughout. An excellent performance is also that of the factor, Oscar Neilsson, in which Mr. Philip Renouf is very intense. A telling rendition of Helga is given by Miss Mildred Cotteil, who displays both passion and subtlety in her depiction of the beautiful but unscrupulous woman. Miss Valerie Crespin doubles the parts of Thora and her daughter Elin, looking very attractive in both characters and acting artistically. A sound and studied impersonation of Stephen Magnusson comes from Mr. Charles Cooper, who delivers his lines with deep feeling; and a lovable and motherly performance of his wife Anna is furnished by Miss Barbara Gott. Dr. Olsen has a genial interpreter in Mr. Ernest Rivarz; and the evil nature of Neils Finsen is skilfully emphasised by Mr. Charles A. Maynard. Miss Marie Harcourt plays the Factor's sister with every credit; the Pastor is invested with dignity by Mr. George W. Hewetson; and the Sheriff of Mr. E. Christopher is praiseworthy. Realism is contributed to the events in the Casino by Mr. G. Dickson Kenwin, who gives a characteristic rendition of the Director; by Mr. Arthur Hall, who makes a striking figure of Eric Arnasson; and by Mr. Fred Ritchie as a croupier. The other parts are consistently played. The scenery is on an elaborate scale, and is all carried by the company.

GRAND OPERA AT KENNINGTON.

The Moody-Manners combination received a great welcome at Kennington this week, when they opened their suburban tour with Lohengrin, a production which proved an immediate artistic success. The house was crowded in every part, and the appreciation of the audience was manifested at the termination of each act by repeated calls for the principals. The opera was presented with all the magnificence of staging for which Mr. Charles Manners is famous, and full justice was done by the powerful chorus and well-balanced orchestra to Wagner's grand and impressive music. To lovers of Wagner the performance was a treat not often to be had, and the wonderful chorus effects appealed to them with irresistible force. In the title-rôle Mr. Philip Brozel was splendid. His stately mien and handsome presence made him an ideal Knight of the Swan, and his robust tenor voice was heard to great effect in the various numbers. Mme. De Vere Sapio found ample opportunity for the exercise of her sweet and flexible voice and of her charming histrionic gifts as Elsa of Brabant. She acted with great force in the scene with Lohengrin in the Bridal Chamber, and was also seen to great advantage in her meeting with Ortrud in the Castle courtyard. Mr. Lewys James gave a striking impersonation of Frederick of Telramund, and his vocalisation was excellent, while Mr. R. Cliffe gave a careful study of the part of the Herald. Miss Marie Roger found ample scope for her talents as Ortrud, both singing and acting well, while Mr. Charles Magrath made a majestic figure as the King. The orchestra was under the able direction of Herr Richard Eckhold. On Tuesday and Thursday Madame Butterfly, in which Mme. Fanny Moody took the principal part with her accustomed distinction, was staged.

NATIONAL OPERA.

Mr. Charles Manners renewed, in slightly varied terms, his generous offer made in the interests of National Opera at the conclusion of his satisfactory season at the Lyric Theatre on Saturday evening. Mr. Manners said:—"Ladies and gentlemen—I always preface my remarks on National Opera by saying that I want everyone to most clearly understand that what I say is not as a private individual, or for a private speculation of a private kind of entertainment that is here to-day and gone to-morrow, but as one of the representatives of the highest form of art, and being in a certain measure responsible at present for its success or non-success.

"This season we have made money—not, however, if you reckoned any charge for the services of my wife and myself, and the wear and tear of my costumes and my scenery. But we are only too thankful to get through like this when we look back at the past four or five seasons in London. The question is, Shall we be again successful if we give another autumn season? And that is where the difficulty comes in of giving Grand Opera. The last thing I ever wish to see in Great Britain is subsidised opera, or opera in which State committees, departments, or politics have anything to say. When in due course anyone in authority would like to know how opera can be given without State aid I shall be pleased to furnish them with a plan that I think would be successful in this country. The few advantages that are obtained by subsidising opera on the Continent are swamped over and over again by the disadvantages, and let me distinctly impress on everyone present that National Opera is not necessarily subsidised opera.

"In addition to our annual autumn season, which I hope to do next year, I want to produce three or four operas by English composers about the end of this tour—that is to say, about the beginning of June. The possible operas would be The Wreckers, by Miss Smythe, an opera by Mr. Coleridge Taylor, one by Mr. Nicholas Gatty, and another small one by yet another English composer. These two latter would be performed on the same evening. I would like to give at least half a dozen performances of each of these operas, and I propose doing so in the following way:—

"I to take a theatre, provide free the costumes, scenery, and my services, and to take £5 worth of tickets. This offer I shall send round to every individual member of my National Opera Union (numbering about 2,500 members at present), the Lyceum Club, and various other musical societies interested in the furtherance of English opera, asking them at the same time what seats and how many they will take. The prices to be from 1s. in the gallery to 6s. in the stalls. There will be a chorus of 100, an orchestra of eighty, and the principals will be the best English-speaking artists to be obtained. I think it will be interesting to see how the well-wishers of opera help us. I don't mind in the least whether they only take a 1s. seat in the gallery: it will be something. I hope to announce further developments of this plan in the near future."

"THE SAILOR'S WEDDING."

Drama, in Five Acts, by H. Brinsley Hill, Produced at the Marlborough Theatre, N., on Monday, Sept. 7.

Gordon Drake	Mr. C. W. Standing
Sir Victor Lascelles	Mr. Cecil Klein
Count Bellini	Mr. Frank Stone
Giovanni Ferici	Mr. Hodgson Taylor
Giacomo of the Evil Eye	Mr. F. Finch Smiles
Jack Hawkins	Mr. Walter Pemberton
Bill Burns	Mr. Huntly Gifford
Father Gianelli	Mr. Frederic Jacques
Luigi Polti	Mr. Walter Emsdale
Manservant	Mr. Chas. Childs
Countess Bellini	Miss Maud Linden
Mary	Miss Dulcie Greatwich
Lenore de Grésac	Miss Winifred Pearson
Ninette	Miss Celestine Bertram
Polly Clarke	Miss Belle Travers

Judging from the cordiality of its reception on its first production at the Marlborough Theatre on Monday, The Sailor's Wedding, the "new romantic drama of life and love in Sunny Italy," should have a long career of prosperity before it. Mr. H. Brinsley Hill has written an exciting and interesting play, and the latest venture of the well-known firm of Hardie and Von Leer contains all the ingredients that go to make for popularity in dramas of this description. Its hero is Gordon Drake, First Lieutenant of H.M.S. Fearnought, and we make his acquaintance at the Bunch of Grapes, an inn near Naples. He has received a letter making an appointment with the Countess Bellini, an old friend of his father's. The lady is in great distress, her husband, the Count, after many years of married happiness, finding her a hindrance if he is to occupy the throne of San Marco, of which he is heir apparent. The reigning monarch is dangerously ill, and Bellini's advisers, chief of whom is the villainous Giovanni Ferici, endeavour to get him to divorce his faithful partner, as it is necessary that the wife of the king shall be someone of nobler station than the Countess. The lady explains that even her life is in danger, and of course the gallant lieutenant promises to do all in his power to befriend her and her pretty daughter Mary, to whose charms he has quickly capitulated. He is not long in incurring the enmity of Giovanni Ferici, who has determined that Mary shall be his wife, and a quarrel between the two leads up to a duel, in which the lieutenant is wounded in the eye and rendered blind. He decides that it will be best for Mary that he shall leave the Villa Bellini, where he is staying as the guest of her father, at once, as he can now have no prospect of ever marrying her; and the Count, who has promised Ferici that she shall wed him, also thinks it wise that he (Drake) shall take his departure immediately. Mary, however, is loyal to her sailor lover, and when the couple learn that it is arranged that Mary and Ferici are to be married on the morrow they speedily decide on "a midnight wedding." Lenore de Grésac, an adventuress in league with Ferici, overhears their plan, and as she has conceived a violent passion for the young Englishman, determines to frustrate it. Mary is waylaid, gagged, and taken prisoner, and the sightless Drake would be wedded to Lenore, but her lawful husband, Giacomo of the Evil Eye, whom she has betrayed and dishonoured, and who lives only for revenge, makes his appearance. The life of the Countess is attempted in the next act by a hired assassin of Ferici's, but Gordon Drake recovers his sight in time to stay the knife of the would-be murderer, and he then receives a letter, apparently from Mary, disclosing her whereabouts. His friend, Sir Victor Lascelles, who throughout has proved a real "chum," cautions him not to go to the place mentioned, but Gordon, thinking the girl is in danger, decides to risk being trapped. It is the adventuress who has sent the letter, and in the next act we see her in her boudoir awaiting the arrival of Drake. When he comes she again declares her passion for him, but the lieutenant is proof against all her blandishments, and demands to know the whereabouts of Mary. Lenore manages, however, to chloroform him, and it is here that perhaps the most thrilling episode in the drama occurs. The "evil-eyed" one has been in hiding behind a curtain, and he now comes forth, fatally stabbing the woman who has so cruelly wronged him. Ere she expires Lenore accuses the now conscious Gordon of the crime, but Sir Victor Lascelles again comes to his assistance. In the concluding act Count Bellini, deciding to relinquish all claim to the throne of San Marco, asks his wife's forgiveness, which is readily given; and their happiness is completed when their daughter is restored to them. Ferici is, of course, given his congé, and the way is made clear for the wedding of Drake and Mary.

As one would expect in a production for which Hardie and Von Leer are responsible, the representation was excellent throughout. Mr. C. W. Standing was a natural and manly Gordon Drake, his acting in the scenes where is blind, and also in the exciting incident in the fourth act, being particularly praiseworthy. Mr. Cecil Klein made a very popular personage of the good-natured friend, Sir Victor Lascelles, his portrayal throughout being excellent. The ambitious Count Bellini was carefully and capably enacted by Mr. Frank Stone, especially convincing being his acting in the scene of his reconciliation with his wife; and the callous and cunning Giovanni Ferici was forcibly enacted by Mr. Hodgson Taylor, who was complimented in the usual fashion by the justly indignant occupants of the upper circle. Mr. F. Finch Smiles was responsible for an impressive rendition of the half-crazy Giacomo of the Evil Eye, particularly thrilling being his enactment of the murder scene. Miss Maud Linden made the most of her opportunities as the unhappy Countess Bellini, her quiet and refined style being exactly suited to the part; the loyal and lovable Mary had a charming representative in Miss Dulcie Greatwich, who is to be congratulated on her natural and intelligent handling of the part throughout; and Miss Winifred Pearson skilfully suggested the passion of Lenore de Grésac for Drake, her depiction of terror when confronted with her husband being also vividly shown. There is plenty of welcome comic relief in the drama, a couple of jovial bluejackets, Jack Hawkins and Bill Burns, humorously undertaken by Mr. Walter Pemberton and Mr. Huntley Gifford, largely contributing to the hilarity so frequently created. Particularly mirth-provoking were the love-scenes of Jack Hawkins—whose "illustrated chest" brings about his speedy marriage—and his sweetheart Polly Clarke, a knowing young waitress, smartly enacted by Miss Belle Travers; and Miss Celestine Bertram also aided in the comic scenes by her humorous portrayal of Lenore's French maid, Ninette. The minor parts were all ably undertaken; and the many charming stage pictures from the Hardie and Von Leer studios came in for much admiration.

Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company appeared at Trowbridge on Monday in When Knights Were Bold. Mr. Bert Beswick worked hard and with success as Sir Guy de Vere; Miss Edith Anton Laing was a fascinating and romantic Lady Rowena; Miss Nora Kingsley did well as the Hon. Mrs. Waldegrave; and Messrs. Charles Benson, Algernon Lee, Colin Johnston, and Humphrey Warden as Isaac Isaacson, the Hon. Charles Widdicombe, Dean Pottlebury, and Sir Brian Ballymote respectively, made the most of their parts. The popular farce was well received.

"PAID IN FULL."

Drama, in Four Acts, by Eugene Walter, Produced at the Aldwych Theatre on Tuesday, Sept. 8.

Joseph Brooks .....MR. ROBERT LORAINE
Emma Brooks .....MISS HILDA ANTONY
James Smith .....MR. PAUL ARTHUR
Captain Williams .....MR. LOUIS CALVERT
Mrs. Harris .....MISS KATE SERJEANTSON
Beth Harris .....MISS DAISY MARKHAM
Sato .....MR. JOHN ARTHUR

A season of successes would certainly have been supplemented on Tuesday night at the Aldwych but for a fatal last act. Paid in Full has enjoyed a large measure of prosperity in America, but English audiences have a prejudice against an inconclusive ending, and though approval complete and unqualified accompanied three parts of the play, and the recalls increased at every curtain, interest languished at the close. The play is always exciting and at times painfully intense, but the supreme moment is reached in the third act, and when it arrived on Tuesday the progress of the play was interrupted while the audience cheered. The grip held upon the audience throughout the first three acts, however, was weakened in the last. It leaves the principal characters, one a noble and lovable woman and the other a weak, cowardly, and selfish creature, each in a position of utter hopelessness. The latter is Joseph Brooks, a collector in an American steamship company, and the former is Emma, his wife. Joseph has Socialistic tendencies, born of disappointment in the matter of salary, and is jealous of his fellow employee, James Smith, who was a suitor for Emma's hand before she married, and who is, by her, affectionately called "Jimsy." The Brookses are obliged to practise a rigorous economy in a four-roomed flat in New York, with few comforts and no luxuries. Mrs. Brooks never complains, but her mother and her sister do, much to Joe's disgust. His employer, Capt. Williams, was associated in business with Emma's lamented father, and, being a friend of the family, finds his way to Joe's flat. The customary remarks concerning his poverty are indulged in until Joe, driven to desperation, hurls invective at the captain, who had formerly been a South Pacific trader, declaring that the foundations of his fortune were laid on the blood of the slaves in which he had trafficked, and that his present employees are treated in the same fashion. The captain is only prevented from wreaking summary vengeance on Joe by the intervention of Emma, and Joe's situation is saved. Presently an invitation comes for the Brookses to go to the theatre, but Emma says she cannot go, as she has no dress. Then "Jimsy" offers to take them; but Joe declares he will not be an object of charity. He tells his wife he himself will take her to a theatre, and in order to do so appropriates the money of his firm.

Comparative luxury surrounds the couple in the second act, for Joe has taken advantage of the absence of his principal to embezzle further sums. He attributes his sudden accession of means to a rise in salary, with arrears, consequent upon more responsible duties. Discovery of the thefts soon comes, and "Jimsy" is the first to acquaint Joe of his danger. "Jimsy" offers to assist, and counsels Joe to keep his wife in ignorance; but Joe loses his nerve and blurts out the truth. With the gaol looming before him, and thinking only of his own skin, Joe conceives an infamous plan. It is that Emma, for whom he knows the captain has some admiration, shall visit him and bargain in any way she may choose for her husband's liberty. Emma is appalled at the suggestion; but when Joe threatens that he will lay the blame of his imprisonment at her door she consents to use all her efforts to obtain his release, and Joe exultantly rings up the captain to make the appointment.

True to his promise, Smith visits the captain and offers to pay up Joe's defalcations; but Williams has received Joe's message, and tells "Jimsy" that he is going to arrange the matter with Mrs. Brooks herself. Jim talks ominously of a six-shooter that he has prepared should he find Emma's honour has been sullied, and gives way to Mrs. Brooks. The lady tries by fair means to obtain remission of her husband's fault, but in vain, until Williams suggests an awful price for the favour she asks. Then Emma's purity asserts itself, and she reviles him and invites him to kill her. That is just what the captain is waiting for. The number of good women he has met is small, but Emma has proved herself one of them, and he hands to her a written statement fully releasing Joe from any obligation.

There the piece might well have ended; but the fourth act is added further to emphasize Joe's evil disposition. When Emma returns to the flat and hands Joe the paper he is elated; but his wife, with the memory of his vile proposal strong upon her, expresses her determination to part from him. Joe demands an account of what happened at the captain's flat, but Emma refuses. He will not allow her to leave the room except for one reason, and that to fulfil her compact with Williams. Thus the depths of Joe's nature are revealed, and Emma tells him all that happened at the captain's flat, finally passing out of the room, leaving Joe seated in a chair the picture of abject misery.

The production afforded the means of the return to the West End of several favourite artists, and each principal was accorded a hearty welcome. The piece is rich in types of character, and Mr. Louis Calvert had a most impressive one in Captain Williams. He made a truly ferocious personage of the retired buccaneer—rough in manner, uncouth in speech, and terrible in his wrath. There was a wealth of expression in every gesture, and a fine "fruity" voice which Mr. Calvert had acquired for the occasion lent realism to the impersonation. With infinite care Mr. Calvert concealed the goodness of heart under the rough exterior of the retired buccaneer, and throughout his impersonation was one that will add lustre to a distinguished career. The part of Joe Brooks exacted all the ability of Mr. Robert Loraine, who appeared in the rôle originally assigned to Mr. H. V. Esmond, indisposed. The part is drawn on lines by no means well defined, and it is a tribute to Mr. Loraine's skill that he was equal to its effective representation. The sullenness, the rancour, the feverish outbursts of temper, and the fitful gleams of good humour were cleverly assumed, while the pitiable figure cut by Joe after he realises that he is found out was artistically conceived. Miss Hilda Antony made a comely, refined, and sweet Emma Brooks. Her cultured tones gave melody to the lines in the earlier portions of the play, and in the later her impassioned defiance of Captain Williams, until, realising his worth, she falls sobbing on his shoulder, was superb. James Smith, who constitutes himself Emma's guardian angel and never deserts his post, was played in his lightest and brightest vein by Mr. Paul Arthur, whose delivery secured full appreciation for every telling line. Miss Kate Serjeantson gave an impersonation of Mrs. Harris which was effective in every respect; and a charming and graceful exposition of the daughter, Beth, was furnished by Miss Daisy Markham, who wore some exquisite dresses becomingly. A subtly amusing sketch of the Japanese valet, Sato, was given by Mr. John Arthur, whose stage direction was also very creditable. A feature of the setting was the apartment of Captain Williams, with its ship's furniture and numberless curiosities collected during his marauding expeditions. The applause which accompanied each act was rather faintly renewed at the close, and, in answer to calls for the author, Mr. Calvert appeared, but made no speech.

AN ACTOR ON "FAUST."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I read with great interest your article on "The Psychology of 'Faust'" in the last issue of The Era, and should like to address a few remarks to you on this subject. As I have acted on both the German and the English stage, and have taken part in Faust productions (both parts) at the Frankfurt Theatre, and, furthermore, have made a special study of the "Faust" subject, I venture to presume that these few words of mine will not be uninteresting to your readers.

Firstly, I must remind your leader-writer that the first and second parts of Goethe's "Faust" are a continuous story. Of course, Mephistopheles' last words, "Her zu mir" ("Here to me") are capable of misrepresentation, being accepted by the British public as meaning "You belong to me now" instead of merely "Come away, or we'll be caught by the prison officials."

Messrs. Phillips and Carr have evidently wished to correct the wrong notion of Faust's damnation, and have therefore made Faust refer to the bet, and say that the conditions of the same are not fulfilled; that he has not enoyed a single moment of happiness. But they are still in error themselves, for Mephistopheles has no right to order Faust down to Hell, and there is no suggestion—in Goethe, at least—of his doing so. The conditions of the wager between Faust and Mephistopheles are that, if ever Faust should be induced to wish to recall a single moment of existence, or, rather, that if he is so satisfied with any single moment that he could wish the clock to stand still, then he would belong to Mephistopheles body and soul.

"Werd 'ich zum Augenblicke sagen
Verweile doch! du bist so schön
Dann magst du mich in Fesseln schlagen
Dann will ich gern zu Grunde gehen."

As he has never uttered such a wish up to the end of the first part, any suggestion of damnation by Mephistopheles would be a breach of contract, for, however happy Faust may have been with Margaret, he has not been happy enough to wish to bid the clock stand still.

Faust is certainly no student, regretting his lost youth, as your leader-writer would have us suppose, but a "world-tired philosopher." In the whole of the first act I can find no regrets for a lost youth, but only dissatisfaction with his present mode of life and a yearning for knowledge hitherto unattainable by man.

It is in the course of Mephistopheles' second visit that the devil, not Faust, proposes that a compact should be made, and Faust scornfully tells him that even his hellish powers will not avail to make Faust satisfied with the ordinary life on earth; in fact, he is willing to wager his soul on the result. And so the bet is made. The devil is to be at Faust's beck and call day and night, ready to gratify any wish that may be uttered, and to have Faust's soul if he can get it; that is to say, if he can induce Faust to wish the clock to stand still. The philosopher, conscious of his own state of feeling and his higher desires, measures himself confidently against the devil. Now, if Goethe had wished to write a "sound acting drama," as your leader-writer puts it, he would have cut out all that first act, with its endless monologues describing the philosopher's yearnings and strivings, and just let him summon the devil to his presence, as Gounod and Irving make him do.

It is noteworthy, too, that in Goethe Faust does not desire pure unalloyed pleasure, or that happiness which Messrs. Phillips and Carr impute as his desire. Rather does he demand from him to be allowed to experience from him every sort of feeling that man can experience. No sort of pain is to be allowed to be a stranger to him—hate, disappointment, jealousy, all these he is to know; and finally, as Goethe puts it, to take the sorrows of the whole world to himself, and feel it within his bosom. Goethe's philosopher knows that unadulterated happiness would soon cloy, and rejects it without further discussion.

Now we come to the Margaret episode, for, considering the length of the play when both parts are put together, Margaret is a mere episode. There I grant your leader-writer to be correct; it is the seduction of an ordinary drama. Mephistopheles cannot take Faust, who is an old man, travelling about the world as comfortably as he could a younger man, and so decides to make him young by magic means. The witches' draught has its effect, and Faust regains his lost youth, and with it youthful desires. Mephistopheles' last words in this scene are—

"Thou'lt find, this drink thy blood compelling, Every woman fair as Helen."

And so it happens. Goethe has no vision of Faust rejecting the fairest in the world for the sake of a peasant maiden; but his Faust, being made young, behaves as a young man would and falls in love quite naturally with the first pretty girl he meets—a regular calf-love; but with Mephistopheles at hand, ready to lend his magic aid, events take their course very quickly, with terrible consequences for poor Margaret. Faust gets over this love-sickness, goes off to amuse himself on the Brocken, and only thinks of Gretchen again when he learns of her terrible fate. Then, being a good-hearted man, he is naturally alarmed, and does his best to rescue her. The first part of Goethe's play ends with his failure to achieve this. Of Faust's subsequent adventures at the court of the Emperor Maximilian, his conjuration of Helen of Troy, the classical Walpurgnisnacht, Faust's marriage with Helen, and his subsequent good deeds, there is neither time nor place to speak of now. Sufficient to say that Helen, Faust's true mate, arouses every good feeling that is latent within him, and that he decides to use his own and Mephistopheles' powers for the benefit of the human race. Many years later, when he contemplates the good he has done, he utters the wish for the clock to stand still; his moment of satisfaction has arrived.—Yours faithfully,

CLAUD W. SYKES.

EX-BRITISH GUARDS' BAND.

CHAT WITH MR. A. HOLMES-DALLIMORE

The performances by Mr. Holmes-Dallimore's Ex-British Guards' Band in Hyde Park and the other Royal parks have now become one of the most pleasing features of London's summer season. Nothing could exceed the enthusiasm of the audiences who assemble around his bandstand as they listen to the interpretation of the various items on the programme. And Mr. Dallimore is not only bandmaster of the combination to which we have referred, and which, by reason of its constitution and the good work it has done, will soon be looked upon as a national institution, he is also musical director of His Majesty's Royal parks and bandmaster to the Stadium at the Franco-British Exhibition, playing there with another band since the opening of the sports and fireworks. Mr. Dallimore had two extensions this season in the Royal parks, and has been specially engaged with his band of forty-five for all the Sundays this month as well. The reputation of his band reached Scotland some time ago, and last year the promoters of the Scottish National Exhibition felt that they ought to secure its services if it were possible to do so. An official therefore came up from Edinburgh and saw and heard it, and it was engaged as the premier private military band in London to play at the Exhibition in Edinburgh from Sept. 28 to Oct. 10. The management of the Franco-British Exhibition also stepped in, and booked it from the 21st to 26th—the only available week the band had before going North. Mr. Dallimore tells us that he has been retained as musical-director for the Royal parks for several years.

MR. A. HOLMES-DALLIMORE.

As a band organiser and conductor Mr. A. Holmes-Dallimore's advancement has been rapid, and his latest efforts have now given him the lead in free or private military bands. He is both a theoretical and a practical musician, and as a student his studies, lectures, and examinations brought him several first-class passes, senior honours, special prizes, and other awards.

For a young man he has performed notable service in the formation of bands of musicians. His greatest achievement in this direction, of course, is the "Ex-British Guards'" Band, the members of which consist of picked soloists recently retired from the various celebrated Guards' bands, and include many of the best-known instrumentalists in London. This military orchestra, founded seven years ago, is one hundred strong, and yet Mr. Dallimore tells us that the work of conducting his big company comes comparatively easy to him. We suppose one reason is that Mr. Dallimore is so thorough and painstaking in everything he does, and a second reason may be found in the fact that his men have the utmost confidence in him and he has the utmost confidence in them. Another thing, to be a performer under Mr. Dallimore is in itself a high-class recommendation, for he will not take any but skilled musicians. In reply to a question as to whether he was bound by any military rules, Mr. Holmes-Dallimore stated that his band was absolutely free from all Army restrictions, officers' orders, and disabilities as to licences.

"It occurred to me," he says, "that such a band was wanted to represent the country should the necessity arise, and, after all, the Guards' Bands provide the best training for wind instrumentalists. We are the largest and finest military band in Great Britain. All the men are experts in the use of their particular instruments, and the regiments that are represented by this body are the Grenadiers, the Coldstreams, the Scots, the Irish, the Royal Horse, and the Life Guards."

Mr. Holmes-Dallimore's band library numbers several thousand pieces, and consists of works from various symphonies, selections from grand and light opera, the standard overtures, reminiscences of the great composers, national and other songs, fantasias, solos, duets, valses and dances of all kinds, humorous sketches, marches, and descriptive pieces.

The subject of this interview is not merely the organiser of one band. In 1893 he founded the West London Military Band, and with it opened the Fire Exhibition at Earl's Court, in 1903 again taking the place of the regular Guards' band. In the following year (1894) he brought into existence the West London Orchestral Band, and in 1896 organised the Strolling Players' Orchestra. Thirteen years ago he started the West London Academy of Music in Hammersmith, and his work in that borough as a conductor and organiser has received public, private, and official appreciation. Mr. Holmes-Dallimore made a close study of band instrumentation. He is responsible for a good many admirable compositions, writing both words and music. One of these, entitled "Men of Britain," brought congratulatory letters from her late Majesty Queen Victoria, the present King and Queen when Prince and Princess of Wales, the late Marquis of Salisbury, the late Lord Randolph Churchill, Miss Balfour, and many other men and women of high standing. Another, called "Britain's Might: a Song of Empire," was dedicated to the Duke and Duchess of York; and still another, "The Chorister's Dream," to his friend the Countess of Cardigan and Lancaster.

But undoubtedly Mr Holmes-Dallimore's most successful composition was his "Vive l'Entente Cordiale" march, which was written specially for the naval spectacle at Earl's Court three years ago, and became exceedingly popular with the public. In fact, it was played nightly during July, August, and part of September at the Alhambra, Leicester-square, in 1905, and formed a notable feature of the programme at that house on the occasion of the visits of the French and English naval officers. It was also played amidst immense enthusiasm by the Irish Guards' Band during their Canadian tour, as well as at the Franco-British Exhibition this year. Another march of his, "John and Jonathan," proved a great favourite with American visitors at Earl's Court, and was frequently asked for.

Speaking of his municipal work, it is interesting to record that Mr. Holmes-Dallimore was the originator of the London County Council library of music. Mr. Holmes-Dallimore was the first librarian to the Council, a position he retained for three years. He has more than once massed all the professional bands of the L.C.C., and has conducted a goodly number at Queen's Hall. Presentations have been made to him in many towns, where his skill as a conductor and the effective performances of his band assisted to strengthen and improve the local musical life.

"THE PROOF."

A Play, in One Act, by Alice Clayton Greene, Produced, for the first time, at the Opera House, Southport, on Monday, Sept. 7.

Jim Patterson .....MR. DALZIEL HERON
Sydney Ross .....MR. A. E. MAYNE
Elizabeth K. Binns .....MISS MILDRED ORME
Brenda .....MISS MAY BROOKE

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The story unfolded in this interesting playlet deals with the bravery and devotion of a woman for the man she loves. The action takes place at Jim Patterson's house, situated a few miles from a remote American town. He has recently married a lady who is superior to the surroundings, and thereby incurs the jealousy of the neighbours who do not visit her. Jim, who is the owner of the works at the town, receives a telephone message to the effect that his attendance is required immediately at the works, as there is trouble amongst the men. His wife is anxious for his safety, and persuades him to take his revolver. Subsequent conversation arouses Jim's suspicion as to Brenda's reasons for her marriage with him, and she eventually confesses that she had been previously wed, but left the man on discovering that he was already married. On hearing this, Jim doubts her love for him and leaves her in distress. After his departure there enters a man of tramp-like appearance, who turns out to be Sydney Ross, the man who deceived Brenda. He threatens to attack Jim unless Brenda consents to marry him—his own wife having died a few days after Brenda left him. She declines to have anything to do with him, and, drawing a revolver, he proceeds to search the house for Jim. On returning he discovers Brenda at the telephone, where she has given the alarm at the works. Ross then gives her two minutes to decide whether she will depart with him, failing which he will kill her and Jim afterwards. As the time-limit is expiring, Brenda, in her despair, dashes the lamp from the table, and rushes to the telephone. Jim, who has received the first alarm, then appears with a lantern, and covers Ross with his revolver. Ross then tells Jim of his wife's bravery, in risking her life in order to give the alarm to save his, and the proof of her affection is thus established. The dialogue and dramatic situations appeal strongly to the sympathy of the audience, and the play, which was very well received, will probably prove a successful curtain-raiser. Generally speaking, the acting was somewhat stiff and restrained, but having regard to the difficulties of a first production, the characters were on the whole acceptably impersonated. Mr. Dalziel Heron acted with earnestness and dramatic effect in the part of Jim Patterson; Miss May Brooke depicted the rôle of Brenda very satisfactorily, especially in the later scenes; Miss Mildred Orme was sufficiently austere and caustic, and played very well as the sour-faced and prying Elizabeth K. Binns; and Mr. A. E. Mayne sustained the character of Sydney Ross very creditably.

An Open Answer.

"THERE are times," writes Mr. Judd Green, "when one is lost for words to reply to a simple statement, and such a time came to me some years ago in Bristol. I was waiting on Temple Mead Station, one bitterly cold winter's day, for some of my company to arrive from London, who were going to appear that night at the Tivoli. Of all the miserable stations I have ever struck commend me to this one. A porter came along wheeling a truck-load of luggage and stopped in front of me. 'I should think this is the most draughty station in the world,' I said to him, quite pleasantly. 'Yes, you're right, governor,' he replied. 'We're obliged to keep it open both ends to let the trains come through.' He then moved on with his truck, and left me thinking."

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

Minutes of the meeting of the council, held at 409, Strand, on Tuesday, Sept. 8. Present: Mr. Robson Paige (in the chair), Mr. H. W. Mote (honorary solicitor), Messrs. Fewlass Llewellyn, J. Sebastian Smith, F. Annerley, C. F. Collings, Jackson Wilcox, Chris Walker, Miss Marion Lind, and Mr. Hubert Blount (secretary).

The chairman read a letter from Mr. Clarence Derwent regretting he was unable to attend the meeting. The chairman read a letter from a member stating he was unable to pay his subscription, and tendering his resignation, which the council accepted with deep regret.

The secretary read a letter from Mr. Mote stating that he had heard from a member to the effect that as the result of a letter written by him to a lady her play had been returned. The secretary also read a letter from a provincial manager with regard to the insanitary condition of some of the dressing-rooms, and stated that he was looking into the matter. He also read a letter requesting that Dr. Wordsworth, of Mansfield, be appointed honorary medical officer to the A.A., and received instructions to write to Dr. Wordsworth asking whether he would be willing to serve. Two letters were read from the Actors' Union, one pointing out the case of a bogus actor, to which the secretary was instructed to reply, thanking Mr. Blackmore for informing them of the matter, and the other enclosing a copy of the resolutions put before the Trades Union Congress at Nottingham on Monday.

The hon. solicitor reported that as the result of issuing execution, he had obtained a sum of money in two instances.

The council discussed the question of new premises, and several members adjourned and inspected the rooms of No. 1, Coventry-street, only to find that one of the rooms had already been let. The council then reassembled, and the matter was again discussed, after which they proceeded to inspect the rooms belonging to the Cabins, Ltd., in the Strand. Instructions were then given to the secretary to write to the Cabin to the effect that the A.A. are prepared to take the rooms of 353, Strand, for one year from Sept. 29 next at the rental agreed upon, including all rates and taxes, and payable quarterly in advance and on the understanding that the premises are put in tenantable repair.

ACTORS' UNION.

At the usual weekly meeting of the committee of the Actors' Union, on the 3rd inst., the following were present:—Mr. J. W. Braithwaite (chair), Mr. Cecil G. Calvert, Mr. Frank Gerald, Mr. D. Lewin Mannering, Mr. Frederick F. Loyd, and Mr F. Rawson Buckley. Letters were received from Messrs. Geo. H. Child, J. Hastings Batson, Royce Milton, Henry Bedford, James English, Jerrold Heather, Fred D. Daviss, and Oswald Marshall.

A letter was read from Mr. Harry C. Momber asking for certain information, and the secretary was instructed to send a suitable reply.

A letter was read from a member with reference to an Actors' Union stock company. The secretary was instructed to write and inform him that the committee would be willing to consider his scheme, but that they had already discussed the practicability of such schemes and found that they could not be carried out.

The secretary was instructed to write to two of the committeemen and state that their attendance at committee meetings would be welcomed, as so many of the members were on tour that there was sometimes a difficulty in forming a quorum.

It was announced that Mr. Mitchell having given up the Abbotsford Bar, Mr. Pryde, the new proprietor, would act as the agent for the Union in Edinburgh.

A suggestion was made by Mr. Frederick F. Loyd that the committee should consider the advisability of including fifty-two spaces for Benevolent Fund stamps (which would be voluntary) in the membership cards for 1909 when the matter comes up for consideration

The name of a bogus actor was laid before the committee, and the secretary was instructed to place his name on the "Black Book."

It was decided that hon. members should be admitted to the Union at a subscription of 10s. 6d. per annum.

The secretary was instructed to write to Mrs. Jamieson and thank her for her letter with reference to a boarding-house for young actresses, and inform her that the committee were entirely in favour of such a scheme, but unfortunately the A.U. had no funds available for the purpose. They would, however, use their best endeavours in her behalf.

The general secretary was instructed to proceed to Nottingham to represent the Actors' Union at the Trades Union Congress.

Nine new members were elected, and one application was refused.

The secretary reported that two engagements had been settled through the Agency during the week.

Mrs. Walter Bentley presided at the usual weekly meeting of the Actors' Union, held at Hummum's Hotel on Tuesday afternoon. There were present Messrs. J. W. Braithwaite, G. Beresford Innes, Alfred J. May, D. Lewin-Mannering, and Leslie Hall; and Mesdames Amy Coleman, Dorothy Barrington, Bessie Armytage, Kitty Marion, Lorna Treherne, Florence Creagh, Mildred Silvestre, Millie Vere, Nancie Blair, and Shiela Dawn. The Chairwoman addressed the meeting at some length on the subject of trades unionism in its general application as well as in its particular application to the theatrical profession. She also expressed her desire to see an amalgamation between the Union and the Actors' Association. There were no other speakers, and the meeting assumed a private character.

HARD LUCK.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—My daughter (aged 17½), who has taken prizes everywhere for Shakespearean recitations, and elocution generally, passed through every examination, concluding with the Senior Cambridge, with honours, was appointed as teacher, and commenced her duties at school last week. The medical gentlemen of the L.C.C. have, however, suspended her for a month, saying that she requires an absolute change. Their instructions are, that she must go to Brighton or Hastings, live upon the best of nourishing food, a pint and a half of milk a day, plenty of port wine, and pocket money. Sleep with the window open, and do nothing but sit on the beach and look "fetching." The two last items of course are at command, but when I tell you that I am an old actor (twenty-five years), holding the highest credentials, but, unfortunately, through illness, been out of an engagement for many months, her mother earns but a few shillings by plain needlework, my son two shillings as programme boy at theatre, and her other two sisters at present only on in the banquet scenes, you will see that her chance of improvement as to health is remote. The future for her seemed bright, and I know there are many kindly hearts in the profession who would spare ever so small a trifle towards assisting such a cause, and for which we all should indeed be grateful. For after years of study, day and night, it seems a pity that such a career should be ended for the sake of a few shillings. Any contributions would be thankfully received by the Rev. Ronald Bayne, Holy Trinity Vicarage, Blackheath-hill, Greenwich, or her mother, Mrs. Hanscomb, 83, Milton Court-road, New Cross, S.E. —Yours faithfully,

FATHER.

THE HOUSE OF WHITBREAD (BRUSSELS).

AN actor says that in touring the greatest trouble the actor or music-hall artist has to endure is the eating and drinking problem. How frequently is heard the wail of the pro., "bad food and worse liquor!" No wonder we all strive to get a shop near home. And as this happy consummation is reserved for the favoured few, the great majority, who have to be constantly on the wing, must be truly thankful when they can feel assured of the quality of what they have to eat and drink. It is a very poor appetite that cannot make a meal off the homely loaf and cheese (which no landlady can spoil in the cooking) when it is accompanied by good, wholesome English beer; and, thanks to the enterprise of "Whitbread's," this is not only possible throughout the whole of Great Britain and Ireland, but also in many places on the Continent, as witness the fine establishment at Brussels depicted in the illustration above. These spacious premises were inaugurated in June this year, and cover several acres of ground. There is a stud of some thirty horses constantly at work, and a stock of beer at all times (kept in perfect condition by natural process only) of not less than 500,000 bottles! Think of that, ye poor, weary travellers when arriving in Belgium's capital city to fulfil a "Barrasford" engagement; and with thankfulness give your little order for Whitbread's bottled stout or ale to go with "votre pain et fromage."

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

MR. BERBOHM TREE has achieved one of the successes of his career, both as actor and producer, by his presentation of Faust. A distinguished gathering at His Majesty's on Saturday welcomed him with affectionate warmth, and cheered at every opportunity. The enduring nature of the attraction may be estimated by the fact that before ten o'clock on Monday morning hundreds of people were waiting outside the doors, and throughout the morning and afternoon the theatre vestibule was blocked by those desiring to book seats, which were, indeed, purchased for nights far into November

INCLUDED in the distinguished audience on Saturday were Sir William and Lady Gilbert, Mr. Arthur Collins, Mr. E. S. Willard, Mrs. Langtry, Miss Viola Tree, Mr. A. W. Pinero, Mr. Henry Hamilton, Mr. Justin Huntly McCarthy, Mr. John Galsworthy, Mr. John Maesfield, Mr. Frederick Fenn, Mr. Cosmo Hamilton, Miss Marion Terry, Miss Julia Neilson, Miss Constance Collier, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Harvey, Mr. J. D. Beveridge, Mr. J. E. Vedrenne, Mr. Paul Arthur, Mr. Robert Loraine, Miss Geraldine Ulmar, Miss Suzanne Sheldon, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Webster, Mr. Kennerley Rumford and Miss Clara Butt, Mr. W. Lestocq, Lady Paget, and Sir Alma Tadema.

MR. ARTHUR BOURCHIER has acquired a dramatised version of Mrs. Henry de la Pasture's popular novel, Deborah of Tod's, and has had it duly copyrighted. The play, which has been adapted from the novel by the authoress herself, is in a prologue, three acts, and an epilogue, and its action takes place in Devonshire, London, and Cumberland. Mr. Bourchier and Miss Violet Vanbrugh, who are now on their autumn tour, will produce the new play at Manchester next month, prior to their return to the Metropolis.

MISS LENA ASHWELL, who began her prosperous régime at the Kingsway just a year ago, has arranged with Mr. Penley for the transference to her of his entire interest in the theatre. Although Miss Ashwell had the house extensively altered and redecorated when she began her occupation, additional improvements are now being effected in the building with a view to the added comfort of the audience. Miss Ashwell, as we have before stated, will reopen the Kingsway on Oct. 9 with Mr. Wilfred T. Coleby's piece, The Swayboat. On that occasion a one-act play by a new author will also be produced.

WE regret to record the death on the 31st ult. of Mr. Benjamin H. Wheeler, the well-known South African manager. Mr. Wheeler was an American by birth, and for some time toured the United States. He then went to Cape Town with a small stock company, and with his son Frank gradually extended his enterprises over South Africa, where they became famous. The Messrs. Wheeler were the proprietors of the Good Hope Theatre, Cape Town, and of the Opera House in that city. They built His Majesty's Theatre, Johannesburg, and occupied it after its erection, and they also owned the White Horse Hotel, Cape Town. Mr. Wheeler received all the best English companies visiting South Africa, including Mr. George Edwardes's Gaiety companies, which were such a success there.

THE secretary of the Actors' Benevolent Fund gratefully acknowledges a further sum of £1 8s. 6d. from Mr. C. Herbert Workman, which he has collected for the fund by means of his autograph. Mr. Lauderdale Maitland has also forwarded to the fund a postal order for 13s. 4d., being the result of a penny tax for autographs during the latter part of the run of The Prince and the Beggar Maid at the Lyceum. Mr. Tree is daily sending postal orders which he is receiving in exchange for his autograph.

MR. TREE, who is one of the most industrious collectors of the autograph tax for the Fund, sends the following in reply to all requests for his "sign manual":—"Dear Sir or Madam,—In reply to your letter, Mr. Tree desires me to say that in consequence of the frequent demands for his autograph, he has for some time past charged the sum of 2s. 6d. for the same. This amount he devotes to the Actors' Benevolent Fund, one of the most useful and best-conducted charities in connection with the dramatic profession. Mr. Tree feels that those who would like his signature will not grudge this trifling sum to help the needy and unfortunate members of his calling. If you will therefore enclose a postal order for 2s. 6d. and a stamped envelope to C. I. Coltson, Esq., the Actors' Benevolent Fund, 8, Adam-street, Adelphi, the desired autograph, with a receipt for your donation, will be forwarded to you."

NEWS comes from America of the death in that country recently of Miss Fanny Edwards, at one time a member of the D'Oyly Carte companies, and widow of the once-popular comedian, Harry Clifton, the singer of "Paddle your own canoe" and "Pulling hard against the stream." The deceased lady was a native of Burnley, and in her early days she worked at the mill. On one of Harry Clifton's professional tours he stopped with Miss Edwards's aunt, and was so struck with Fanny's contralto voice that he had her trained. Later, they were married, and toured as vocal entertainers. After her husband's death, about thirty years ago, Mrs. Clifton joined the D'Oyly Carte company as principal and coach, and achieved considerable success on tour in Patience, Princess Ida, and other Gilbert-Sullivan works.

MR. GEORGE EDWARDES has returned to town from Carlsbad, to find his Gaiety and Daly's Theatres in the full flush of prosperity. He is turning his attention to the production at a theatre not yet named of The Dollar Princess, which has been adapted into English by Captain Basil Hood. Mr. Edwardes also contemplates bringing over from the States the well-known actor Mr. David Warfield in The Music Master. Of Mr. Warfield Mr. Edwardes speaks in the highest terms. "He is," he declares, "the biggest attraction and the best actor I have ever seen."

MR. MARTIN HARVEY'S experiment of trying a different one-act play each week during the run of The Corsican Brothers has aroused great interest. The House of Pierre will be presented in front of The Corsican Brothers on Monday, when Miss N. de Silva will make her first appearance of the season. Mr. Harvey and Mr. Charles Glenney will also appear in this play, which, it will be remembered, is the work of the well-known actress Miss Julie Opp. It is particularly requested that patrons of the theatre will take their seats before the rising of the curtain.

A MUNIFICENT bequest to the Shakespeare Memorial Theatre has been made by the late Mrs. Sarah Flower, of Avon Bank, Stratford-on-Avon, who left estate valued at £84,881 gross, of which £67,719 is net personalty. The legacies to the Association consist of a picture of Battersea by Whistler, a picture by Halswell, and all pictures not otherwise disposed of; £12,000 for the general purposes of the Association; £300 for the library; her house, Avon Bank, and grounds (about three acres), and landing-place, to be used as an adjunct to the memorial grounds, declaring that it was her late husband's wish and her own that a path should be for use by the public along the Avon from the memorial grounds to the churchyard, with a bridge over the Wash. Several hospitals also benefit to the extent of £500 each.

WE deeply regret to record the sudden death of the well-known actor, Mr. G. R. Peach, who passed away at Richmond on the 4th inst., at the age of fifty-two. He played for many years with the late Wilson Barrett and Miss Isabel Bateman. He was also associated with The Sign of the Cross and Message from Mars companies. The deceased actor was a cultured scholar, a good linguist, and an ardent student of English literature. Chronic asthma compelled his recent retirement from the stage, and he settled down in Richmond to be near his friend and schoolfellow, Mr. Henry Tweedie, who, with a host of other old aquaintances, deeply mourns his loss.

VISCOUNT HAWARDEN, who died recently, at his seat, White Hill Chase, Greatham, Hants, was related to Mr. Cyril Maude. The first Viscount had a family of six sons, from the two youngest of whom descend Colonel F. S. Maude, C.M.G., and the popular manager of the Playhouse.

MR. SEYMOUR HICKS has written a new musical play, with the striking title, The Dashing Little Duke. Miss Ellaline Terriss will have the name-part in the novelty, which is to be produced at the end of Mr. Hicks' present tour. The theatre at which the piece will be produced is not yet decided upon.

SIR SQUIRE BANCROFT showed his interest in the game of golf by offering two prizes—one for a lady and the other for a gentleman—at the recent golf competitions at Marienbad.

MISS ENID LEONHARDT, the charming Gaiety actress, was married to Mr. David Wellesley Bell on Monday, a few days prior to the original announcement. The ceremony took place in the Poland-street Registry Office, and was by ordinary license. Both bride and bridegroom are twenty-one years of age. The latter is described as a bachelor, of independent means, his father being the late David Wellesley Bell, merchant. The bride's real name was Lilian Enid Adleshaw Borrows, and she is the daughter of Mr. Arthur Borrows, described as of independent means. After the marriage the small party drove to a Regent-street restaurant for the wedding breakfast.

MISS LEONHARDT has acted as understudy to Miss Evie Greene, and has played in The Spring Chicken and The New Aladdin, in which latter comedy she sustained Miss Gertie Millar's part for some time. She also had an important part in The Girls of Gottenberg. She is now playing Consuelo in Havana at the Gaiety, and will remain in the rôle until the arrival of Miss May de Sousa, who takes up the character on Monday.

MR. LOUIS MERCANTON has been released by Mr. Gaston Mayer for four months to enable him to accept an offer from Mme. Sarah Bernhardt for the position of general stage-manager during her Continental tour. The tour commences on Tuesday next, and will include Belgium, Germany, St. Petersburg, Moscow, Odessa, Roumania, Bulgaria, Constantinople, and Italy, finishing at the Riviera in January.

REMARKABLE enthusiasm was displayed last week at Merthyr, when the return visit of H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's Leah Kleschna company was paid. The theatre was crowded nightly from floor to ceiling, and chairs had to be borrowed to find seats, while hundreds were turned away. Leah Kleschna, which already held the record at Merthyr for dramatic business, succeeded in beating that of their previous visit.

THE new Grand Theatre, Oldham, now in course of erection, will, it is fully anticipated, be ready for opening next Christmas. It already bears a very handsome appearance, and the public are awaiting with the utmost confidence the fulfilment of the promise that Oldham will be able to boast one of the finest theatres in the provinces. No expense is being spared to make it such, one important department which has the careful eye of that experienced manager Mr. Ernest Dottridge being the stage and dressing-rooms. The former will be found large enough to produce the biggest attractions sent on tour, while the latter will have every comfort for the artists, hot-water pipes being carried around the stage as well as the other portions of the auditorium. The house will be run on first-class lines.

THE Covent Garden balls will be resumed on Friday, the 25th inst. Since the close of the grand season at Covent Garden the Opera House has been in the hands of the builders, and certain rearrangements of the interior of the house have been effected with the object of securing added comfort for the occupants of the pit and grand-tier boxes. By means of an alteration of the slope of the partitions, the "cant" of the dividing wall is so arranged that the stage will be almost as easily overlooked from the back as from the front of the reconstructed boxes.

THERE will be no autumn season of opera at Covent Garden, but about the middle of January four weeks of opera in English will be given under the auspices of the Grand Opera Syndicate. Three complete cycles of Wagner's "Der Ring des Nibelungen" will be given under Dr. Hans Richter, and the first performance is announced of Dr. Naylor's prize opera The Angelus. Mr. Neil Forsyth, the manager, returns from his holiday on Monday.

SIR CHARLES SANTLEY will reappear this evening on the scene of his former triumphs, not, however, as a vocalist, but as a speaker. He will address the men's meeting at the Albert Hall held in connection with the Catholic Congress, at which Cardinal Vannutelli, the Pope's Legate, will be present. Sir Charles is an ardent Catholic, and his speech at the meeting in opposition to Mr. Birrell's Education Bill a couple of years ago at the same hall thrilled the vast audience by its strength and simplicity.

MISS MAY DE SOUSA, returned from Paris, will take up the part of Consuelo in Havana at the Gaiety on Monday, thus replacing Miss Enid Leonhardt, whose wedding is noted in this column. Mr. Courtice Pounds takes up Mr. O'Neill's character of Diego. The lighter side of the part has been developed for Miss Sousa. "There's the moon" is the title of a new duet which she will share with Mr. Pounds.

THE new, and as yet unnamed, play by Mr. Charles Hannan which Mr. Fred Terry recently accepted, will probably be produced during Mr. Terry's autumn tour. The play is in four acts, and is a modern piece containing strongly emotional parts for both Miss Julia Neilson and Mr. Fred Terry.

MISS CORA DEANE, after a long absence, has returned to the stage, and is now appearing as Polly Love with Mr. Wentworth Croke's South company in The Christian.

MR. WILLIAM MOLLISON commenced his autumn tour at the Prince's Theatre, Bristol, last week with his Shakespearian company, and played to crowded houses nightly. It speaks volumes for the popularity of this gifted actor that he should return to Bristol after only four months' absence and draw such large houses. After repeated calls each evening the audience would not let Mr. Mollison retire without a speech, and he was compelled to make one after each performance. During his present tour Mr. Mollison will visit the principal cities, including Nottingham, Glasgow, Edinburgh, Belfast, Dublin, and other dramatic centres.

FOR five consecutive years the Hutchison season during the month of August at the West Pier, Brighton, has been one of the theatrical events of the year. This year over 45,000 people paid for admission during the four weeks, in spite of the fact that the prices were raised, and the sight of a vacant seat at any performance was rare. The praise earned by the companies has been unanimous on all sides. Mr. Hutchison himself visits the Royal in November with Brewster's Millions, and in October Miss Decima Moore appears at the same theatre in Mrs. Dot. This makes the sixth visit of the Hutchison companies to Brighton in three months. The season is not a stock season, but it is coming very near to a revival of the old custom, with the exception that the staging is akin to that of the West End, and often consists of the actual production. Mr. Hutchison, who is well qualified to express an opinion, is convinced that a season of good plays will always be a sure thing in the provinces.

BY a strange coincidence Mr. and Mrs. Percy Hutchison (Miss Lilas Earle) play in opposition to one another at Llandudno this week in Brewster's Millions and Peter's Mother, and will continue to do so at the Grand and Gaiety Theatres, Douglas, next week. The companies, numbering nearly fifty people, travel to Douglas by special boat on Sunday, taking with them twenty-eight tons of scenery and effects, the original London productions, in fact, of Brewster's Millions and Peter's Mother.

MRS. BROWN POTTER'S success as Lady Frederick is enormous. Again at Eastbourne and Folkestone the eminent actress succeeded in breaking all previous Hutchison records. In an interview at Bournemouth Mrs. Potter speaks of Mr. Hutchison in words of the warmest appreciation, referring to him as "an actor-manager of tireless energy and most capable administration." Lady Frederick, which is making its first visit to the principal cities, has been received with the greatest enthusiasm at the King's, Glasgow, this week.

MISS MABEL LOVE'S reception in Lady Frederick at the Grand Theatre, Hull, during this week has been exceptionally hearty. Miss Love, who travels under the phenomenally successful management of Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison, again attracted an enormous audience on the opening night, the "House full" boards being put out not long after the early doors had been opened. The élite of Hull society have monopolised the boxes, dress circle, and stalls during this visit. The advance booking at the Spa Theatre, Scarborough, which will be the next town visited, is eclipsing all previous records.

MME. HELEN TOWNSHEND has resumed her lessons in voice production and singing at her studio at 126, Oxford-street. She is forming classes, limited to twelve in each, for the study of breathing and voice production, an art in which the accomplished teacher has won wide renown. The excellence of her methods may be judged by the large number of pupils occupying prominent positions in West End theatres, a list of which Mme. Townshend will readily supply on application.

MR. EDWIN O. SACHS, F.R.S.Ed., the eminent architect, whose works on the art of stage setting have proved so valuable, has been accorded the Russian Gold Medal for Merit (on the ribbon of St. Andrew). In transmitting the distinction to Mr. Sachs, Sir Edward Grey has intimated that the King has been graciously pleased to grant permission for its acceptance.

MR. C. ADOLF SEEBOLD, the manager of the Theatre Royal, Worthing, has again this year had his theatre redecorated, and every comfort is now provided. His benefit on Wednesday was under distinguished patronage.

MISS FLORENCE GLOSSOP-HARRIS will start her fourth tour on Monday at St. Leonards. David Garrick, School for Scandal, and She Stoops to Conquer have been added to the répertoire, which now comprises fourteen complete productions. Mr. Frank Cellier will again be the stage-director, and the company also includes Messrs. Arthur Goodsall, Percival Madgewick, Horace Sinclair, Murray Kinnell, Francis Roberts, Laurence Toole, Frank Borer, Walter Carr, Leslie Gordon, and Maurice Ingram, and Misses Gertrude Tate, Janet Warden, Mary Goulden, Madge Courtney, Iris Vandeleur, and Rosamund Thompson.

AT the Theatre St. Julian's, Guernsey, on Tuesday, Mrs. Rousby, the widow of the late Mr. Wybert Rousby, organised a special dramatic performance in aid of charity. The occasion was honoured by the presence of the Lieutenant-Governor and a fashionable gathering. The pieces chosen were Barbara and The Ladies' Battle, and the artists assisting were Miss Daisy Rousby, Miss Amy F. Millar, Mr. Olaf H. Hylton, and Mr. Frank Pennison.

MR. R. J. BELL takes over the management of the Cork Opera House from this week, in succession to Mr. John Horgan. Mr. Bell was for many years secretary and assistant-manager of the Theatre Royal, Dublin. He opens next week with Mr. James Welch's Company in When Knights Were Bold, and intends securing for the public of Cork the best theatrical companies touring.

MR. FRANK STANMORE'S company in the new musical comedy, The Gay Deceivers, will open its autumn tour at the Victoria Theatre, Ramsgate, on Monday, Sept. 21. A strong company has been engaged, including Miss Kate Chard, the well-known Savoyard; Miss Pauline Primm, Miss Dora Lane, Miss Dorothy Chard, and Messrs. Arthur Dennis, Leslie Hawkins, Douglas Phillips, and Mark Lester. A powerful chorus will be seen in irectoire costumes, and the music will be under the direction of Mr. Ernest Ramsey.

MISS FLORRIE ROBERTS arrived in England on Saturday from South Africa, where for the last two years she has been with Mr. Leonard Rayne playing such parts as Carlotta in Morals of Marcus, Gwen in Raffles, and Maid Marion in Robin Hood. She has been engaged by Mr. Hubert Carter for Ada Ingot in his well-known version of David Garrick, starting on Monday next.

MR. ALFRED NORTHWAY and Mr. W. V. Garrod are having a particularly prosperous season with their touring companies, and their new play, A Country Girl in London, is the biggest success they have yet enjoyed. With The Prodigal Parson they have made a remarkable achievement, having toured the piece 136 weeks without intermission. Another drama by Mr. Frank Price will be produced by the same management in 1909.

MR. J. CHAS. IMESON is to be congratulated on the great success of his handsome Castle Theatre, Stockton. Since the theatre opened on Aug. 3 with Mr. George Edwardes's principal company with The Merry Widow, business has been phenomenal, a fact that is easily explained when it is considered that the bookings have included such invincible attractions as Mr. Edward Terry, Miss Ellen Terry, Miss Marie Studholme, Mr. James Welch and principal company in When Knights Were Bold, H. B. Irving and company, The Dairymaids, Brewster's Millions, The Gay Gordons, Peter's Mother, Mrs. Ponderbury's Past, The Flag Lieutenant, Dick Whittington, The New Christian, Mrs. Dot, Lucky Durham, The Walls of Jericho, William Mollison, and the great Apollo success, Butterflies.

A MEETING of the committee of the Managers' Club was held at Savoy-mansions, Strand, on the 4th inst. Present: Mr. Leveaux in the chair, Mr. Lockwood, Mr. Weathersby, and Mr. Martin (secretary). The following gentlemen were duly elected members of the Club: Mr. Harold Nuttall, Mr. Cecil Klein, Mr. William H. Savery, Mr. William Giffard, Mr. George Scott, and Mr. Monckton Hoffe.

THE committee of the Touring Managers' Association held a meeting at the Managers' Club on the same day. Present: Mr. E. Lockwood in the chair, Mr. Weathersby, Mr. Bannister Howard, Mr. Leslie Moreton, Mr. Brydon Phillips, Mr. Leveaux, and Mr. Martin (secretary). The approved new contract between the London Suburban theatres and touring managers having been finally agreed upon, was received from the Theatres Alliance, and it was decided that copies might be obtained on application to the secretary of either Association at the rate of 5s. per 100.

THE committee of the Association instructed the secretary to write to the Theatres Alliance to thank their committee for their kind co-operation in having brought this valuable contract into being. It was admitted that both the Associations are to be congratulated on having mutually taken such steps towards removing a deplorable friction that so often occurred over the settlement of the details of contracts between the resident and touring managers. A copy of the contract was directed to be sent to members of the Association.

SEVERAL letters were received from the Actors' Union, and the secretary was requested to send suitable replies. The following gentlemen were duly elected members of the Association: Mr. Cecil Klein, Mr. William H. Savery, Mr. William Giffard, and Mr. Monckton Hoffe.

THE Theatre Royal, Goole, after being closed since the early part of the year, re-opened last week, when it was found that it had undergone many changes. Mr. Fred Greaves, landlord of the Royal Hotel, is now sole proprietor, having secured the lease from Mr. James Bentley, and he is to be congratulated on the improvements he has made to the building. Bright and clean, and adorned with elaborate upholstery, the interior, which is lighted by a new Thorpe-Stott gas fixture, presents a brilliant appearance.

GREAT improvements have also been made in the dressing-rooms, three in number, which have been placed on one floor. The roof above the stage has been strengthened by iron girders, and a safety curtain has also been fixed. All the doors are fitted with panic bolts, and the whole building is heated with gas radiators. The orchestra, too, has been enlarged, and many minor details have been attended to. The theatre was re-opened on hte 31st ult., when a large audience witnessed an excellent reproduction of the musical comedy novelty Dare-devil Dorothy, under the direction of Mr. J. W. Cordiner.

A VARIATION is to be noted in the arrangements of the Promenade Concerts for next week. On Tuesday evening the concert will be conducted by M. Edouard Colonne, Mr. Henry J. Wood being absent at a rehearsal for the Sheffield Festival. The programme will contain one or two interesting works by French composers. M. Saint-Saëns will be represented by the "Suite Algérienne" and the "Le Rouet d'Omphale," and admirers of Berlioz will have a chance of enjoying the "Scherzo," "Scène d'Amour," and "Fête des Capulets" from the master's Romeo and Juliet Symphony.

VOCAL items from Bach's cantatas and oratorios form a special feature of this season's concerts, and on Wednesday evening Miss Edith J. Miller will sing that gem from the Christmas Oratorio, "Schlafe, mein Liebster" (the Virgin's cradle-song), with obbligato for "Oboe d'amore" and "Oboi da caccia." The symphony will be Dvorak's "From the New World." On Thursday, the 17th, Brahms's seldom-heard Fourth Symphony will be the pièce de résistance, and Mr. Herman Sandby will play D'Albert's Concerto in C for violoncello and orchestra. On Friday—the usual Beethoven night—the symphony will be the No. 5 in C minor, and a feature of unusual interest will be Brahms's Double Concerto (violin, 'cello, and orchestra), interpreted by Mr. Arthur Beckwith and Mr. C. Warwick Evans, both of the Queen's Hall Orchestra.

SATURDAY'S programme provides a gargantuan musical feast, including two works by Richard Strauss—"Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks" and "Don Juan"—and the Ninth of the early Haydn Symphonies, the evergreen "1812," and the Liszt-Busoni "Rhapsodie Espagnole" for pianoforte and orchestra, the soloist being Mr. Arthur Cooke. In addition, Mrs. Henry J. Wood will sing Joan of Arc's song from Tchaikovsky's opera The Maid of Orleans.

THE death has occurred of Mr. George Horton, late professor on the oboe at the Royal Academy of Music, who passed away at Bonham-road, Brixton, on Monday, at the ripe age of 83. The funeral took place at Brompton on Thursday.

BARON HARRISS'S Prince of Pilsen company, which was the attraction at the Londesborough Theatre, Scarborough, for the Cricket Carnival this week, was honoured with the presence and patronage of Lord Londesborough's eleven and A. O. Jones's Australian eleven on Monday. Miss Sophie Harriss was the recipient of numerous floral tributes.

AN amusing incident, but one very flattering to the person chiefly concerned, occurred at the Theatre Royal, Sheffield, on Monday. A few minutes after the close of the performance of From Shop-girl to Duchess the Superintendent of Police sent a message to Miss Mary Neil, the representative of the title-rôle, who was in her dressing-room, requesting her to come to her brougham as soon as possible, as the crowd at the stage-door waiting to see her come out was obstructing the thoroughfare. When Miss Neils appeared she was greeted by the loud cheering of a large assemblage, amidst which the carriage with some difficulty drove away.

THAT most successful comedy, Lady Frederick, will reach its three hundred and sixty-fifth performance at the Haymarket Theatre this evening, the 365 performances having been given in six weeks under the year. The piece has been performed continuously eight times a week since its production last October, and during the whole time Miss Ethel Irving has not once been out of the bill. The success of the comedy is without doubt due as much to her cleverness and charm, and to the admirable way in which it is acted all round, as to the genuine merit of the play.

MR. H. R. SMITH, who has for some time past been engaged in negotiations for a suitable theatre in which to elaborate his scheme for high-class musical comedy at popular prices, has at length settled upon the Waldorf, a lease of which he has obtained for twenty-one years. There are certain restrictions with regard to prices of admission connected with the original lease, but Mr. Smith is hopeful of overcoming them and of continuing at the Waldorf the policy which has proved so successful at the Lyceum under his and Mr. Carpenter's régime. The management will be entirely in the hands of Mr. Smith, who will open his season early in November with a musical comedy. Meanwhile, the Waldorf will undergo extensive redecoration.

MR. BANDMANN'S new theatre at Bombay is rapidly approaching completion, and will be opened on Sept. 25 by his newly-organised comedy company with Mr. J. M. Barrie's clever play, The Little Minister. The theatre, which is situated in the very heart of Bombay, will be capable of seating 1,000 people, and hold at ordinary prices about £250. This theatre will be run in conjunction with Mr. Bandmann's other theatres, and as regards attractions is already booked up until Christmas next. The theatre will be called Bandmann's Theatre, and will be entirely under English management and run on English lines. It will have its own resident band and staff, also resident scenic artist, and will be replete in every respect with all necessary and modern requirements.

THE Crown, Peckham, will have a powerful attraction next week in Van Biene and Traynor's company in Man and Wife. Mr. Van Biene is the son of Auguste Van Biene, of Broken Melody fame, and Mr. Traynor has recently concluded upwards of seven years' engagement with the Two Little Vagabonds company. The leading lady of the company, Miss Kate Hallam, for three years occupied a similar position with The Broken Melody company. As, moreover, the author of the piece is Mr. Walter Howard, one of the most successful dramatists of the day, it will be admitted that much more than usual interest attaches to the engagement.

A PLEASING little ceremony took place at the Grand Theatre, Brighton, when, on Saturday, the members of Her Road to Ruin company presented Miss Eva Moss with a handsomely fitted bag, together with an address signed by all the company expressing the greatest regret at her leaving, and assuring her of their esteem and friendship. The proceedings came as a great surprise to Miss Moss, who had no inkling that anything of the kind was in store for her. She has played her orignial part of Jess for forty-four weeks, and is extremely gratified to find that she has gained such goodwill.

A SOUVENIR programme will be a feature of the matinée to be held at the end of October at the St. James's Theatre on behalf of the Royal National Orthopædic Hospital. Contributions to the souvenir have been promised by Mrs. W. K. Clifford, Miss Marie Corelli, Mr. C. J. Cutcliffe-Hyne, Mr. Bernard Partridge, Mr. Lewis Baumer, Mr. John Hassall, and Sir A. C. Mackenzie.

MESSRS. DOTTRIDGE, LONGDEN, AND WILLARD'S company with The Midnight Mail is now in its sixth year of continuous tour, and drawing better than ever. A remarkable fact about their present tour is that during four successive weeks in August they beat their own records at each town visited. Bookings for autumn, 1909, are now being made.

MR. WILLIAM GREET has secured a one-act comedy by Mr. Keble Howard entitled Handling Papa. The little piece will shortly be put on in front of The Old Firm at the Queen's.

MANAGERS who are alive to their own interests—and, regretfully, we must admit that many are not—should see to it that they get their proper share of the reduction in the fire insurance rates that the tariff offices are now allowing to approved theatres. The general allowance is 20 per cent. in London and 10 per cent. in the provinces. This makes an average reduction of over 40 per cent. since the Theatres Mutual Insurance Co. came into existence. Still there are managers who do not issure in their own company.

MR. H. BRINSLEY HILL, who has achieved a considerable success with his romantic drama The Sailor's Wedding, which was produced by Hardie and Von Leer on Monday at the Marlborough Theatre, has written, in collaboration with Mr. J. H. Darnley (the author of Facing the Music and other successful plays), a three-act farcical comedy, at present called The Lost Lion. It was produced for copyright purposes at the Lyric, Hammersmith, on Friday.

To the names in the really excellent cast engaged for Messrs. Druce and Ferris' production of The Cheat, mentioned in our last issue, we must now add those of Mr. Charles Langley and Mr. Littledale Power. The scenery will be by Messrs. Harker, Helmsley, and Fred Storey, and the production will be the same as that which will be seen later in the West End. Mr. George Unwin, who is the general-manager, will work on American lines, and will look after the advance arrangements as well.

As long ago as April, 1848, there was a picture exhibited in the Egyptian Hall, in Piccadilly, which caused a sensation in London. This same picture is now to be seen in the Chinese Court of the Crystal Palace looking as fresh and bright as when first shown. It is the late James M. Burbank's masterpiece representing the Angel delivering Daniel from the Lion's Den, and is said to be the largest water-colour painting in the world, covering 240 square feet of canvas.

A TERRIBLE shooting accident resulted on Saturday in the death of Mr. W. A. Upton, head of the well-known firm of theatrical printers at Birmingham. Mr. Upton had invited a number of guests over to shoot across his estate, but in the afternoon said he felt rather tired, and would go in and order tea. He got over the stile leading towards the hall, and shortly afterwards a loud report was heard, and Mr. Upton was found lying dead on the steps with gun wounds in his head. It is supposed that he stumbled over the mat when entering the hall, and that the gun went off. At the inquest subsequently held a verdict of accidental death was returned.

MR. UPTON, who was only forty-eight years of age, was the son of the late Mr. James Upton, of the Baskerville Printing Works, which business was founded in 1852 in small works in Great Charles Street, but in subsequent years developed into a very large concern, dealing specially with theatrical printing. He leaves a widow, three daughters, and one son. The funeral took place on Wednesday.

THE National Brass Band Festival will take place at the Crystal Palace on Saturday, Sept. 26. This gathering always brings a monster crowd to Sydenham, and it is likely this year that the attendance will be greater than ever. The number of entries is 173, including thirty-two Lancashire bands. Yorkshire sends thirty-four; but while nine Lancashire bands are in the first class which is fighting for the 1,000 guinea trophy, only four Yorkshire bands are in that grade. Wales is sending thirteen, the Midlands thirty-one, London and District thirty, and the Southern District twelve. The playing is said to have greatly improved, so it is probable that the competition will be keener than ever.

AFTER an absence of some years, Black Dike (winners in 1902) returns as a competitor, and Wingates, the holder of the trophy for the past two years, Denton Original (winners in 1900), Irwell Springs (1905), and Rushden Temperance, which on more than one occasion has been second on the list, will all be heard. The selected test piece for the 1,000 guineas will be the Grand Selection from "Rienzi" (Wagner), arranged by S. Cope. Twelve of the best brass bands in the kingdom will give a great concert in the evening. The items will include another interesting work by Mr. Cope entitled "A Rural Wedding." The railway companies are arranging excursions from all parts of the country.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Doing It on His Head.

"When Mr. Arthur Roberts was making all London ring with a certain wildly comical song of his," write Messrs. E. A. Morton and Chance Newton, in their "Life of Charles Morton," "he was tempted by the offer of a princely salary to make his first appearance in the provincial music halls. It so happened that his opening date in this connection was at a large Lancashire town, where the audiences were inclined to be ebullient, to put it mildly. On the Monday morning, the smiling Arthur turned up for a band rehearsal, giving, of course, among his numbers, this comic song, which had helped to solidify his fame, and to fill his pockets. On coming to this number, however, the manager stopped him, and in the broadest possible form of the local accent, told Roberts that he musta't sing that song at any price. The comedian, flabbergastedly, inquired the reason. 'Oh,' said the manager, 'So-and-So sang it here last week.' 'But,' retorted Roberts, 'that song is my property, and no one has any right to sing it but myself!' 'Can't help that,' replied the manager, 'I say he sung it here last week, and that if you sing it, they'll guy you off the stage.' 'But why?' asked the astounded Arthur. 'Because,' answered the manager, 'that there cove sang your song on his head, and you carn't do that!' The manager's statement was perfectly true, and the singer who gave this wonderful upside-down turn was the well-known nigger singer and dancer, Mr. Joe Lawrence, father of Miss Vesta Victoria."

A Lost Influence.

"I incline to the opinion," says Mr. Forbes Robertson in a Daily Chronicle interview, "that the drama has not now the influence it once had. In earlier times, the Elizabethan and Jacobean ages, for instance, people had nothing but the stage as a platform for the public expression of ideas and theories, of satire and criticism. To-day the Press fulfils that office, and so there has grown a tendency to regard the theatre as a mere place of entertainment. The Press fulfils an important office with reference to the stage, and it is certain that had the Press, as we know it now, been in existence when the censorship of plays was instituted, such person as the censor would not have been invented."

Not a Pulpit.

"I do not care to speak of the stage as a pulpit," remarks Mr. Forbes Robertson. "It seems priggish in a man to make too high a claim for his profession. But, of course, I recognise that the spoken word has great power, and that the stage must have an influence of some kind on the public; therefore I am with you in pleading for a sense of responsibility in the artist. To use the words which Mr. Jerome puts in my mouth in this play: 'It is the business of Art to reveal the beauty underlying all things.' So if we succeed in creating an appreciation of what is true, and noble, and beautiful, we ought to be happy."

The Wrath of Mephistopheles.

"It would be something more than superfluous to go into criticism of Wills's extremely effective adaptation of Faust," writes Mr. Walter Herries Pollock in his "Impressions of Henry Irving," "but one fault, as many good judges thought it, may be mentioned, as in connection with it there was an instance of a quality which was among Irving's distinguishing characteristics. The passage in question was that wherein Faust announced to Mephistopheles his intention of marrying Gretchen. Thereon Mephistopheles, after a cold menacing delivery of the words 'That is your intention?' dropped completely the mask of cynical humorous banter, became a fiend unbridled and storming, and let loose upon Faust a flood of vituperation containing threats of the direst physical torment and annihilation. The momentary impression of the change, aided by those effects of light which the manager thoroughly understood, was startling enough; but a very little consideration was needed to show its complete incongruity with the positions of Faust and Mephistopheles as conceived by Goethe and adopted throughout the rest of the play by Wills.

"In a play avowedly following Goethe's ideas, and in many passages well translated from the German, one is bound to regard Mephistopheles as identical with Lucifer, and as 'the prince of darkness is a gentleman,' it is quite out of the question that he should resort to vulgar threats not unlike those put into the mouth of the fiend absurdly called Lucifer by Mr. G. Lewis at the end of The Monk. This is surely enough, without the further consideration that the Mephistopheles of Goethe, and, save for this passage, of Wills, would never have flouted all the rules of the game by going so grossly outside and against his agreement with Faust. I believe that Wills founded the scene on some idea found in some version of the Faustus legend, though where it is not easy to imagine, since, of course, there is no hint of it in the German puppet plays. These, which may have come originally from England, served as a point of departure for Goethe, to whose genius the Gretchen episode, which became for theatre purposes the play, is entirely due. However the scene came into Wills's scheme, he no doubt was captivated, as was Irving, by its mere theatrical effectiveness, and so it was thrust into the midst of circumstances with which it was wholly at variance."

Fatally Tickled.

Miss May de Sousa, who recently appeared with Mr. Max Dearly at the Comédie Française on the occasion of M. Baillet's "retreat," was much struck with the silence "behind" the curtain. "There they were doing parts they had played for years," she said, yet each actor had to be at the wing—silent as the grave—for fifteen minutes before taking his cue. One gentleman, who had played his part for twenty-five years, came into the green-room and hit us all between the eyes with his love scene, gestured and shifted his hat as though he'd just got his scrip. I was tickled to death."

Up in a Balloon.

"Whenever Mr. Arthur Collins has any doubt about the safety of a sensation," says Mr. Cecil Raleigh, in an interview in the Mail, "he invariably tries it himself. The security of the almost invisible wires upon which the balloon in The Great Ruby was suspended having been called into question by a nervous actor, he expressed a determination to make the first ascent himself. The scene was set, the car bumped on the stage, the great balloon swung above us, and Mr. Collins, calling me over to him, asked me whether I would go up inside or outside the balloon. He did not seem to contemplate the possibility of my not going up at all, and I did not like to express any desire in that direction in the presence of the assembled company, so I said airily I thought we had better toss for it. We did. I won, and promptly elected to stand inside the basket car, while Mr. Collins, representing the villain, clung on outside. Then the signal was given. Down went the lifts into the bowels of the cellar and up went the balloon, when all of a sudden the thread-like wires 'drew'—that is to say, they pulled out taut as all wires will when first a heavy weight is applied to them. Just for about three seconds it felt exactly as if the whole concern was going down with a run, and just for those three seconds I realised that Mr. Collins might have some sort of a chance if he fell clear into the net below us, but that if I fell in the car and with the mimic balloon on top of me I might have rather an ugly time of it. However, nothing happened, and presently we came down. Nobody could very well refuse to do what we had done. But I did not go up again."

"FAUST" AT HIS MAJESTY'S

Martha	Miss Rosina Filippi
Margaret	Miss Marie Löhr

Mr. Beerbohm Tree has done all that was possible with Faust. He has entrusted the preparation of the dramatic version to two skilled poets; he has cast and mounted the result with his usual liberality; he has commissioned a composer of genius to supply accompaniment; and he has himself undertaken the rôle of Mephistopheles. The result is a superb and stupendous production which will draw all London to His Majesty's for many months to come.

It is impossible, without having a copy of the play before one, to do full justice to the remarkable work of Messrs. Stephen Phillips and Comyns Carr; but their difficulties are easily understood. When Faust was first performed in Germany in 1829, it played for four hours and a half, and this with the primitive and quickly-worked changes of scene by flats and cloths which were in use at the period. The "time limit" of the modern play being three hours, nearly a third of the text is doomed to extinction. A good deal of time is taken up not only by entr'actes—which we may suppose to have existed in 1829—but in the changes from scene to scene; so we may calculate that the Phillips-Carr translation had to be quite a third less in length than the original. In these conditions the adaptors, it must be admitted, have done their task thoroughly well. Verse-translations of Faust have hitherto been unsatisfactory. The play is a poem, and no poem can be adequately translated from one language to another; either the meaning is distorted, or the music of rhyme and accent is absent. Messrs. Phillips and Carr have supplied a free, appreciative, judicious, and artistic version. For the "Prologue in Heaven," with its chat between God and Mephistopheles—who afterwards jauntily alludes to the Almighty as "the old fellow," and says he likes to have a chat with him occasionally—is substituted a more reverent reading, in which the decision of the Creator is conveyed to Mephistopheles by an important Angel. In the original there are two scenes in Faust's study; one in which he is prevented from taking the poison by hearing the Easter hymn, and the other in which he receives Mephistopheles. Between these there are certain rustic rejoicings, at which, in his character of medical benefactor, Faust "assists," noticing on his return home a black dog, in which shape Mephistopheles has obtained admission to Faust's study, being prevented from leaving by a magic sign on the threshold. In the version at His Majesty's the attempted suicide is followed by the entry of Mephistopheles, and the compact signed in blood. The conversations between Faust and Marguerite are so true and human that much of them is wisely retained, though we could wish that even more of these parts of the play, so beautiful and so simple, could have been found room for. To the sacrifice of most of the nonsensical stuff in the Walpurgis Night episode we can easily reconcile ourselves; and the duel scenes, the prison scene, and Marguerite's grief and remorse in the Cathedral, are indispensable to any version, however contracted, of Faust. The great difficulty, of course, was the conclusion. Goethe's logic in respect to the bargain between Faust and Mephistopheles was "foggy," but, at any rate, it was arranged that the devil was to "have" him on the other side of the grave in return for services rendered on this. In the First Part Faust's fate is left undecided. It would hardly have done for a modern audience to have been shown Faust taken down below in the manner of the operatic Don Juan, so the adaptors have invented a way in which Mephistopheles may be outwitted. Faust is condemned not to hell, but to a long term of philanthropic purgatory, followed by ultimate redemption. As he puts it:—

"Weary and stale the life
Thou gavest me, from pleasure hurled to pleasure,
Yet evermore satiety and hate.
But bound through countless ages to thy side,
Still I foresee a purgatorial path
That shall restore me to those arms at last,
A straightway of repentance: thus my soul
May through long labour for mankind be purged,
Losing it thus I find it evermore.
May it be mine to watch the couch of pain,
To smooth the sleepless pillow, and to draw
Slumber upon the labourer returned,
To him that faints in cities to bring dew,
To drain the marshland, circumscribe the sea,
To build and shelter from the tyrannous sky,
And warring peoples to persuade to peace.
Up then, and on! My eyes behold the end,
Still I fight upward, battle to the stars,
The hope of her hath sped me on this flight.
I shall go past thee, Mephistopheles,
Up! ever upward, to the woman-soul!
But, ah! how long the toil that shall redeem."

Even in the distraction of the first view of the magnificent production at His Majesty's on Saturday it was evident that the version was far above the average in poesy and culture, and the text of the new Faust, as will be seen by the extract above, often rises to noble poetry. In the Prologue the Archangel Gabriel says:—

"Swift, beyond understanding quite,
Circles the earth in glorious guise,
Now plunged into profoundest night,
Now sparkling into Paradise.
The ocean foams up from the deep,
And over rocks and crags is hurled,
And crags and ocean onward sweep—
On with the rapid spheres are whirled."

Mephistopheles' invocation to Chaos is another "purple" passage:—

"Never! Until that hour when the Usurper,
Who wrested from my mother Night her reign,
And fevered Chaos with his blistering stars,
Shall be himself deposed, consent, and cease.
For this same light but lives by what it breeds,
A carrion offspring suckled by the sun.
And never will I cease this war with Heaven
Till the bound elements shall mutiny,
And the imprisoned thunder shall be freed,
And old tremendous blasts shall fly abroad,
And all His millions of rash fires be quenched;
And space shall be again as once it was
Ere He disturbed us with His fiery brain,
Timeless and tideless, limitless and dark!
Mother! Still crouching on the bounds of light,
With face of sea and hair of tempest, still
Huddled in huge and immemorial hate,
Behold thy son, and some dark aid extend!
So, Faust, to win this wager and thy soul,
Pass we from Heaven across the Earth to Hell."

Great expectations had been formed of the mounting of the play; and they were not disappointed. The spaciousness of the stage of His Majesty's Theatre was taken full advantage of by Mr. Joseph Harker, and some of the sets were superb in their grandeur and extent. Especially to be admired was the scene of the Prologue, in which the feeling of vast and mysterious space was created in a manner which has seldom been equalled on our stage. Pile upon pile of clouds led the eye away into infinite distances; and the Angels were no mere lay figures, but beautiful and impressive personalities. The effect created by this magnificent scene was deep and reverent. Another striking picture was that in the Witches' Kitchen. The awesomeness of the cavern was greatly assisted, it is true, by the weird and hideous figures of the witch and her simian suite, but Mr. Harker deserves warm praise for his paintwork. A third achievement of this imaginative artist which cannot be forgotten in connection with this production of Faust was the Brocken. There was an Alpine greatness about this surprising picture, with its gulfs and cliffs, its flying witches, and its marvellous mechanical effects. To give Faust an idea of his power Mephistopheles lets loose the elements, with the result of a terrific avalanche, which hurls the granite peaks into the abysses. Here the technical skill shown in the contrivance of the mechanism was worthy of warm praise. In the prettier and more domestic scenes Mr. Harker had, of course, been anticipated in previous Faust productions; but they were all very real and beautiful. The back cloth in the Platz in the second act might have been—and very likely was—founded on an Albert Dürer engraving; and Margaret's Garden was a dream of quiet calm and sweet seclusion. Telling by its very simplicity was Margaret's Bedchamber, with its antique German clothes-press; and the lighting in the Prison Cell was very adroitly managed. Effects of lighting played, indeed, an important part in the tout ensemble. The entry of Mephistopheles into Faust's study, and all the minor ingenuities which add to the supernatural effect, were supplied with complete success, and the management of the illumination in the Cathedral scene was excellent, the scene itself being a very fine example of architectural painting and building-up. Altogether, the mounting of Faust at His Majesty's is a memorable achievement, which can hardly be too highly praised.

The music by Mr. S. Coleridge Taylor bears the stamp of original genius. It is, indeed, so good of its kind that one would like to hear it with one's attention undistracted by the drama to which it serves as an accompaniment. It is difficult to exaggerate the assistance to the impression which is given by music such as this. Its underlying influence is incalculable. Now and then a phrase or an air—notably the exquisite setting of the "King of Thule" song in the second act—caught the ear and charmed it with witching melody. Besides the music incidental to the action, Mr. Taylor has contributed a Prelude and two entr'actes which will bear to be heard again and again.

Interest in the acting centres, of course, in Mr. Beerbohm Tree's Mephistopheles. Mr. Tree has, to a great extent, modified the stock theatrical idea of the character. His Mephistopheles has a great deal of the mocking irony of the reading to which we are accustomed; but there is in it something of the grim and gloomy grandeur of Milton's Satan. The Mephistopheles capable of thinking the great thoughts expressed in the speech in the Prologue is something more than a cynical comedian. The conception of the character on these lines involves alterations in attire and make-up, the "Apollyon" tone of the creation being hinted at in the scaly suit in which Mr. Tree appears in the last scene of the concluding act. He carries out these ideas in the most artistic and convincing manner, delivering the finely-written speech to which we have alluded with impressive power and fine tonal effect. The key-note of the creation is its dignity. Mr. Tree's presence fills the stage grandly and thoroughly; and, to a certain extent, the impersonation dwarfs all the others in the piece. A Mephistopheles built on these lines inevitably belittles the poor humanities of the play; and the very breadth and weight of Mr. Tree's superbly imaginative creation puts the other performances in the shade. The rest of the cast at His Majesty's labour under another disadvantage. The characters in Faust are undeniably hackneyed. They have been so well-worn in drama, in opera, and in ballet that they suffer from a sort of staleness; and, in their cases, it is not possible to innovate. We cannot invent a new reading of Faust, of Valentine, or of Margaret; and the most that their representatives can do is to give sound and strong renderings of the rôles entrusted to them. Mr. Henry Ainley delivers the philosophical soliloquy of Faust in his study with excellent elocution and emphasis, and puts all the needed passion into his performance of the rejuvenated student. Mr. Godfrey Tearle has a better chance as Valentine, a soundly dramatic character that repays vigorous and forcible acting; and he is at his best in the dying scene, which he sustains with striking earnestness and power. Mr. Charles Quartermaine plays the Witch with grotesque and forcible cleverness; and Mr. G. W. Anson's ripe experience and quaint humour are valuably employed in the depiction of the "beery" Altmayer. The bevy of topers have excellent representatives in Messrs. Norman Page, W. Creighton, J. Cowley Wright, John Deverell, and Henry Morell; and Mr. Robert Atkins sustains with steadiness the rôle of the Burgomaster. Mr. Compton Coutts supplying a highly original and very characteristic reading of the rôle of the simple student, Frosch. Miss Elizabeth Valentine deserves warm praise for her delicate and distinct enunciation of the speeches allotted to the Heavenly Messenger; and Miss Isobel Merson, Miss Muriel Alexander, and Miss Sylvia Buckley utter the lines given to the Angels with commendable care and conscientiousness. Margaret's companions are effectively embodied by Miss Shelley Calton, Miss V. Sinclair, Miss Laura Cowie, Miss Pauline Bredt, Miss Ethel Hodgkins, and Miss Juliet Hardinge; and Miss Maude Leslie and Miss Madge Titheradge gave praiseworthy performances as a Witch and Lisa respectively. Miss Rosina Filippi's Martha is a delightfully droll and humorous impersonation, and of great value as a contrast to the prevailing seriousness; and Miss Marie Löhr's plaintive ingenuousness and winning simplicity are shown with good success in the rôle of Margaret, which she makes more than usually girlish and innocent, her appearance being touchingly slight and juvenile. The designs for the dresses were by Mr. Dion Clayton Calthorp, who has done his work well. The production of Faust was rapturously received, and Mr. Tree briefly thanked the audience at its conclusion.

"The Era" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

"THE OLD FIRM."

Eccentric Comedy, in Three Acts, by Harry and Edward Paulton, Played for the First Time in London at the Queen's Theatre, on Friday, Sept. 4.

Daniel Hake	Mr. Richard Golden
Mr. Nichol	Mr. Jerrold Robertshaw
Harrison	Mr. Clayton Greene
Herbert Wardley	Mr. Frank Tennant
Jabez Vennamy	Mr. Ernest A. Douglas
Deffner	Mr. George West
Merrick	Mr. Atheling Farrar
Rosalie	Miss Beatrice Ferrar
Lila Hake	Miss Gladys Mason
Judy Hake	Miss Alice Beet
Lucy Upton	Miss Constance Hyem
Fay Lofty	Miss Florence Lloyd

The authors of The Old Firm, Messrs. Harry and Edward Paulton, have labelled their joint production as an "eccentric comedy." The description might well arouse discussion as to what constitutes the difference between comedy and farce. If a comedy, to remain such, consist of incidents which are within the bounds of possibility of ordinary life, then the description is inaccurate, although qualified by the adjective "eccentric," for the piece teems with the extravagant absurdities which we are wont to associate with farce. On the other hand, it is so free from any touches of "knockabout humour" or "broad" fun, so genuinely quaint in its characterisation, and full of bright touches of wit in the dialogue, that one is tempted to take it at its authors' valuation and give it a place among light comedy.

At all events, we can be unreservedly grateful to the Messrs. Paulton for our introduction to such a delightful character as Daniel Hake, one of the most lovable old men who has been seen on the stage for some time. The authors owe an enormous debt to the actor, Mr. Richard Golden, who invests the character with the simple charm and quaint lovableness of the old New Englanders, with which the novels of the American Winston Churchill and Irving Batchelor have made us familiar enough in literature, but which is an original figure on our London stage. Daniel Hake is an inventor, and as is not infrequently the case, he is very unbusinesslike and exceedingly simple in all other matters than those relating to his inventions. This is evident early in the play by the appearance of a remarkably bad-tempered and unprepossessing lady, to whom we learn Daniel has been married some six years—six years of misery for poor old Daniel and his charming daughter Lila, the child of his first marriage. Others have discovered that there is money in Daniel Hake's inventions, and two rival firms are trying to get the sole right of sale. Of this Daniel himself is entirely ignorant, as all letters and communications have been carefully kept from him by two persons who are actuated by entirely different reasons—Rosalie, the maid-of-all-work, a simple but kindly soul, who thinks she can save her master from worry by putting his correspondence on the fire; and Judy Hake, his second wife, who is working in conjunction with a particularly villainous villain, whose object is to get Daniel into his own clutches that he may batten, vampire-like, upon his brains. Poor old Daniel is in very sorry straits indeed; he fears poverty and disgrace not for his own sake, but for the sake of pretty, tender Lila; and the simple old man, at his wits' end, invokes the aid of the Devil. At this precise moment a gentleman of Mephistophelean cast of countenance enters somewhat unceremoniously through the window, as a violent storm is raging. He has made an appointment with Daniel by letter, which has been destroyed by Rosalie. The poor old man imagines that his incantations have been successful, and when the other produces the contract, he signs it under the impression that it is his own soul he is bargaining away.

In the meantime pretty Lila has engaged herself secretly to a young man who has posed for some weeks as Daniel Hake's assistant, but who turns out to be a son of the firm who have bought Hake's invention. For no very adequate reason, except that the play would be thereby brought to a premature end, the young man insists upon the engagement being kept a profound secret; but, anxious to relieve his prospective father-in-law's necessities, he refurnishes the old man's study before he is down the next morning and places £1,000 to his credit in the bank that he may meet the bills which the villain, Jabez Vennamy, is holding over him. Daniel ascribes his sudden access to prosperity to the contract which he thinks he has made with the devil, and many amusing complications arise. Eventually, of course, Daniel discovers that his soul is still his own, and he is relieved of the obnoxious presence of Judy by the discovery that that lady has a previous husband who is still alive.

As we have said before, the success of the play will be largely due to the delightful acting of Mr. Richard Golden as Daniel Hake. He makes the old man a refreshingly natural character, quietly humorous, and eminently lovable in his simplicity and helplessness. The other characters are all more or less lay figures, serving their purpose as background to old Daniel. It is greatly to the credit of the performers that they manage to infuse a certain amount of character into their parts. This is srikingly so in the case of clever Miss Beatrice Ferrar, who with very few opportunities at her disposal as Rosalie, a stupid maidservant, yet contrives to leave an impression, clear-cut and distinctive, true to art, and without a single touch of forced humour. Miss Alice Beet is wasted in the unsympathetic part of Judy Hake. Miss Florence Lloyd brings all the charm of her sweet and sane personality to the part of Fay Lofty, a commercial traveller, who shows Judy in her true colours, and whom the old man takes to be an emissary of the evil one, chiefly, it appears, because she is becomingly gowned in vivid scarlet. Miss Gladys Mason as Lila and Miss Constance Hyem as her friend, both as pretty as pictures, are responsible for the love interest of the play; and their respective "young men," as played by Mr. Clayton Greene and Mr. Frank Tennant, make love to their charming sweethearts with sufficient zeal. As the supposed Mephistopheles Mr. Jerrold Robertshaw, in appearance and manner, was very successful, and he gave to the part the touch of urbanity which befits a gentleman who usually gets his own way. Mr. George West, as a workman of the Elite Furnishing Company, worked with a deftness and behaved with a courtesy for which one yearns in vain in real life; and Mr. Atheling Farrar was an efficient Police-inspector. The character of Jabez Vennamy (Mr. Ernest Douglas) wants to be considerably toned down; at present it is absurdly overdrawn. The play may attract by its very unpretentiousness, and its production comes at a timely moment, when the supernatural is figuring so largely on the London stage.

A meeting of the shareholders of the New Gaiety Theatre, Ayr, Ltd., was announced for yesterday (Friday). The debentures, which were intended to relieve the guarantors to the bank not having been taken up, a resolution was to be submitted, to the effect "that the business and property of the company shall be sold, and that the directors be empowered to expose the said business and property for sale by public roup at a price of not less than £5000."

MARTIN HARVEY AT THE ADELPHI.

On Wednesday, Sept. 9, for the first time in London, a Play, in One Act, by Robert Barr and Sidney Lewis-Ransom, entitled "THE CONSPIRACY."

King Konrad of Polavia	Mr. Martin Harvey
Baron Brunfels	Mr. Charles Glenney
Count Staumn	Mr. Albert E. Raynor
Herr Von Steinmetz	Mr. Alfred Mansfield

It was a pity that the continued irritating disturbances caused by late arrivals to the stalls—in spite of Mr. Martin Harvey's urgent requests placarded in the corridors—should have marred, even in a minor degree, the first performance in London of The Conspiracy, which was produced at the Theatre Royal, Dublin, in November last. It is decidedly superior, both in idea and treatment, to the average "first piece," and deserved to have been treated with more respect. The success of The Conspiracy was not, however, seriously impaired, either by these ill-bred interruptions, or by an unlucky accident by which the bolt of the door in the scenery became jammed, so that Mr. Harvey's entrance was delayed for several minutes. The scene of the play is an imaginary kingdom of Polavia. The young King, Konrad, has tried to do his duty by his people, and has thus incurred the hatred of the aristocracy, the leaders of which are assembled in a hunting châlet near the frontier to discuss whether he shall be assassinated. As they are throwing dice to settle Konrad's fate, the young King enters, and tells them that there has been a traitor in their ranks, and that the house is surrounded by his soldiers. He then makes them cast the dice to decide who amongst them shall be shot for treason; and his ex-Chancellor, Steinmetz, is one of the unlucky ones. The Chancellor begs abjectly for his life; and Baron Brunfels, a blunt soldier, offers to be shot in Steinmetz's stead, if the King will allow him Brunfels to speak his mind for once. The Baron then tells the King that he is a fool for all his pains, as he is hated by both people and aristocracy. The King then informs the astonished conspirators that his statement about the soldiers outside was mere "bluff." There has been an émeute in the capital, and the King, deposed and outlawed, is in flight from his rebellious subjects. The conspirators are so touched by the news that they rally round their monarch, and Brunfels offers to lead certain troops which are at his disposal to an attack on the insurgents. The piece ends with a picture of the nobles crossing their swords over the King's head with loyal cries and cheers.

The four characters of importance in the piece were thoroughly well played. Mr. Martin Harvey's King Konrad, with its gentle firmness and quiet, incisive superiority, was in every way admirable; and his artistic performance made one regret the brevity of the part and the play. One would like to have seen more of Konrad in circumstances of more complicated interest. Mr. Charles Glenney gave a strong, sturdy rendering of the Baron Brunfels, his delivery of the speech to the King being thoroughly forcible and emphatic; Mr. Albert E. Raynor's Count Staumn was a polished piece of acting, calm, effective, and unobtrusive; and Mr. Alfred Mansfield gave a graphic depiction of abject terror as Von Steinmetz. The nobles were impersonated by the principal members of Mr. Martin Harvey's company, who, if anything, rather overdid the restless dumb show and chorussed ejaculations of the conspirators. The interior of the châlet was prettily painted, and the piece held the attention of the audience throughout, and was warmly applauded at its conclusion.

The performance of The Corsican Brothers which followed was, with very slight alteration, the same as that which we noticed at the Adelphi last June. The only important exception was the substitution of Miss Mary Rorke for Miss Maud Milton as the Countess dei Franchi. Miss Rorke makes a delightfully amiable and handsome old lady, and supplies the necessary touch of gentle hauteur. Mr. Harvey's representation of the brothers has been improved by repetition, the atmosphere of mystery being very cleverly created, and the ease and grace of his bearing being even more noticeable, especially in the first act. His acting in the stronger and deeper passages is as earnest and intense as ever. Mr. Vincent Sternroyd repeats his fine performance as Château-Renaud; and Mr. Alfred Mansfield is again good as Meynard, Mr. Albert E Raynor doing good work as Montgiron, and Mr. George Cooke being efficient as Marielli. Mr. Fred Wright, sen., and Mr. J. Barber still make mirth by their picturesque performances as the two vendettists; and Miss Coleridge makes the most of the difficult character of Emilie de Lesparre. The minor rôles are all well represented; and the scenery by Mr. George J. Dodson may again be warmly praised for its effectiveness and beauty.

SEYMOUR HICKS'S CHARITY CRICKET.

Mr. Seymour Hicks, Miss Eilaline Terriss, and The Gay Gordons company, who are appearing at Blackpool this week, along with the St. Anne's-on-Sea Cricket Club, arranged a cricket match and sports, which took place on Wednesday at St. Anne's-on-Sea, in aid of the widows and orphans of the Wigan pit disaster, the St. Anne's Cottage Hospital, and the St. Anne's Sick-Aid Society.

Miss Terriss bowled the first ball—or rather the first two, for her first was a wide; but, however the popular lady's second attempt was "on the wicket." The Gordons only fared moderately, however, and suffered defeat by 62 runs:—

½ mile Cycle.—1, Grimshaw; 2, Aky.

Schoolboys (under sixteen).—1, Lingpond; 2, Elhaft.

A matinée will in future be given at the Elephant and Castle Theatre every Thursday, and Mr. Sydney Barnard, the manager, wishes to extend, through our columns, an invitation to any professional friends who may care to be present on these occasions.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE BEDFORD.

A visit to this cosy little hall this week found it packed to its utmost capacity with an audience that was vastly entertained by the varied programme which Mr. B. Pearce Lucas had provided for its delectation. Early in the evening the Sisters Dunbar appear, and soon become popular with their singing and dancing; their Dutch costumes are most picturesque, and they provide a very pretty turn. Lord, Murray, and Lord present their sketch Fun in the Gymnasia, which is well received; their exhibition of ball-punching is most clever. Charles Gardiner is always welcome, and he keeps the house thoroughly amused with his song "I'm a lady," into which he introduces much diverting patter and causes endless hilarity. The Brothers Attilla give a fine exhibition of strength tests; the feat of lifting nine men is indeed a marvellous piece of work. They also present a series of poses on a revolving platform, first giving some representing gladiatorial fights, and after of wrestling. It is undoubtedly a novel display, and was greatly applauded. Another very clever turn is that of the Four Mexican lariat-throwers, whose skill is wonderful; while their lassooing is also very clever, especially considering the small space that a music hall stage offers. The lady of the troupe is deserving of great praise for her work, which caused much admiration. Will Dacey and Nellie Lewis are a very amusing couple. Will Dacey as the lazy messenger boy is most laughable with his various antics, and he is also an acrobat of distinction, while his partner sings and dances in a charming manner.

Mr. and Mrs. Shelley present their duologue Black and White, which is of the raciest description and goes with a bang. Mrs. Shelley is capital as the wife "who never gets excited," while Mr. Shelley as the husband of the same description keeps the fun going at a terrific pace, and there is not a moment without a laugh the whole time they hold the stage. There are few smarter comediennes than Nelly Neil, whose rendering of "Drummer Boy" met with full appreciation, and she finished up with a neatly-executed dance, and her audience gave her a welcome which must have been gratifying.

A new and original musical burletta, by Paul Knox, entitled The Phonograph Belle, in which Arthur Dandoe and company appear, is also being staged, and a very merry and bright concoction it is. The production is in three scenes and has a sort of story round which it revolves. The libretto is smartly written, and the whole thing goes with a swing. It will certainly do well with working up, and there is excellent material to work on. Some catchy numbers are introduced, and more might be put into the first scene. The names of the performers are not given, but the comedian who plays the part of the gasfitter was screamingly funny, and his song "Captain Percy" made a great hit. The actor who plays a leading character is also deserving of praise; his rendering of the song in the second scene was most artistic and was much admired. The production is splendidly mounted, and its success was never for a moment in doubt. Johnny Val is a comedian of merit and a clever dancer; Mr. Arthur Rose and company appear in a dramatic episode, Sweet Liberty; and Mr. Fred Reed, comedian, is also on the bill.

CAMBERWELL PALACE.

The vagaries of the weather have evidently little effect on the attendances at the Palace at Camberwell, as overwhelming houses last week, when the days were dull, have been followed this week by audiences almost as large. The programme is one that well warrants the support secured. Mr. George Mozart "tops the bill" and gives his hearers many minutes of mirth with his imitations of personalities "On and Off the Stage," and with his diverting series of "walks." A prominent line in the list is occupied by the sketch The Usurer, which tells how an unscrupulous moneylender, working under a fictitious name, receives an application for a loan from his wife's lover. The bill is backed by the moneylender's own name, forged by the wife, who is called upon to verify the signature. There is a strenuous scene between the outraged husband and his wife, for love of whom the usurer had embarked upon his mercenary practices. He begs her to give up her paramour and return to him, but she refuses, and he is prevented from shooting her by an old school friend, who induces him to let the erring woman go as unworthy of any further thought. The little piece has much dramatic strength, and is capably acted. Mr. Sydney Mason puts unbounded intensity into his rendition of the title-rôle, but would be well advised to modify some peculiarities of pronunciation. Miss Theresa Moore gives a remarkable display of passion in the part of the erring wife; and Mr. H. Russell as a friend in need and Mr. Sid Leslie as an adventurer also add to the effectiveness of the sketch, which won much approbation.

A novelty is forthcoming in the duologue Find the Lady First, which tells in droll fashion the story of a diminutive man who has arranged to find a lady performer at a high-class entertainment, but finds that she cannot go. His disappointment is mitigated by the appearance of a lady of tall proportions, who volunteers to take the place of the former fair maiden. The newcomer shows herself to be an adept at fencing, and is able to join her partner in a mock melodrama. By this time the little man has come to the conclusion that the lady will suit, and they go off rejoicing. The little piece is smartly played by Miss Adele Levey, who gives a pleasing specimen of her fencing accomplishments, and by Mr. F. Lilliput, a droll comedian. Miss Gracie Grahame makes a charming appearance in an academic robe to sing "Twinkle, little star," in the course of which sad havoc is played with the hearts of the audience. Miss Grahame has a telescope with which she "focuses" the boy in the gallery or the swell in the stalls, and both are fain to fall victims to her fascinations.

Dickens is presented in alluring fashion by Miss Eva Hope and Mr. Jack Wayho, whose excerpts from the pages of the famous novelist are staged with wonderful completeness. Mr. Billy Williams gets his good spirits over the footlights and exhilarates the house with his excellent humour in a couple of songs; Woodhouse and Wells sing and dance to the delight of all; Mr. J. W. Rickaby cuts a comical figure as "a Soldier of the Queen," and gains further laughter by a comic song-recitation; Dutch Daly, with patter and concertina-playing, again wins approval; the part-singing of the Two Gordons, handsomely attired, is loudly acclaimed; Mabel Bright, the "novelty entertainer," sings lively songs at the piano and while astride a rocking-horse, besides dancing very expertly; and Vernon's Bioscope proves always interesting. Mr. Harry Barnard never wearies of his work as a director, and the control of the house is safe in the hands of Mr. Philip A. Lennon, the esteemed manager. The new musical-director is Mr. Josiah Law, lately the first violin, who has found merited promotion.

SHEPHERD'S BUSH EMPIRE.

Mr. B. P. Morgan, the courteous acting-manager at this popular hall, who lately came to London from the Manchester Hippodrome, has capital entertainment to offer his patrons during the present week. At the head of the bill we have that famous and world-renowned illusionist, Mr. Horace Goldin, who, together with Miss Jeanne Fransioli and company, provides a turn which it would be worth while going a very long way to see. Mr. Goldin achieves all his usual success, and the interest with which his business is followed, and the rounds of applause which he time after time draws forth, bear striking testimony to his value as an entertainer. Ben Albert, the logician, "as dry as an old stick," achieves very considerable success, quickly becoming popular with his audience; and Madge Osmond, "the immaculate dandy," also does very well.

La Poldini and Yevette are responsible for a pleasant few minutes, the former being an excellent vocalist and the latter a precocious little pianist. The Eight Lancashire Lads, always a most popular turn, dance and sing with their usual energy and ability, and are rewarded with enthusiastic applause. A dainty little comedienne and dancer, Miss May B. Brilliant, sings a couple of songs, one, "If you'll take a little walk with me," the other, "Come down and kiss me, honey mine," and dances very cleverly.

Duncan and Godfrey, in their Cockney comedy Me and 'Er, merit the highest praise. They give a couple of really genuine character-studies; the little play is extremely well written, and altogether a most legitimate success is achieved—a very talented couple. Leo Tell as Mepho, in his "equine conversations and imitations of instruments," is remarkable for the excellence of his mimicry and also for the humorous manner in which he gives his show; some of his imitations, particularly that of a horse neighing, are wonderfully good. Carney and Armstrong, a very entertaining pair, sing, dance, and whistle in capital fashion.

L'Incognita, the wonderful soprano, who recently caused so much sensation with her singing at the Alhambra, sings a couple of items from Italian opera, providing a most delightful turn. The programme is completed by the American Bioscope, which this week shows a series of highly-amusing pictures, entitled A Chase for a Bike. The excellent orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Henry W. May, is well worthy of a word of praise. This week it is playing "Hang out the front-door key," a medley march founded on Mr George Lashwood's popular song.

WAGNER IN PICTURES.

In presenting tableaux illustrative of Wagner's two most popular lyric works, Mr. Stoll may be said to be bringing his patrons to the threshold of the production of the opera of the great German, and the exact truth of this contention is emphasised by the Coliseum orchestra, which plays with considerable charm the principal motivs and melodies of Lohengrin and Tannhäuser while a series of artistic and beautiful living pictures is unfolded in a large frame. These have been invented by, and staged under the direction of, Mr. Charles Wilson, late of the Empire and the Alhambra, for many years associated with operatic enterprise, whose accomplishments as a metteur-en-scène have been recognised in the two hemispheres, the backgrounds being the artistic brushwork of Mr. Philip Howden and Mr. Wm. Telbin. The arrival of the "Knight of the Swan" is a most effective opening tableau of Lohengrin. Elsa is kneeling to her deliverer. The figure of the King, Henry the Fowler, is also in an attitude of reverence, the crouching form of Telramund suggesting the defeat of that usurper's scheme of self-aggrandisement at the expense of the Brabant princess. The subject is musically accompanied by the playing in the orchestra of the motiv of the hero and the melody of Elsa's dream. The second illustration shows the banishment of Telramund and Ortrud in the scene preceding the nuptials of Elsa and Lohengrin, who are found together in the third tableau, which, strange to say, has no echo of the famous Bridal Chorus, one of the most beautiful "numbers"—if we may use such a word in association with Wagner—in the opera. The final picture shows the approaching departure of Lohengrin and the return of the reincarnated Gottfried, brother of Elsa. Tannhäuser opens with the picture of the minstrel knight under the enchantment of Venus, and the infatuation of the erring lover of Elizabeth finds its fit illustration in the Venusberg music. In the second scene—accompanied by the Shepherd's song and the chant of the Pilgrims—Tannhäuser seeks religious consolation at the foot of the shrine; but in the hall of the minstrels breaks away from his fealty to the saintly Elizabeth by singing in praise of Venus. Again is the theme most appropriately treated by the orchestra, as is the fourth scene, in which we see the solitary Wolfram, whose adoration of Elizabeth finds expression in the plaintive playing of the well-known melody "O Star of Eve," a solo that every baritone aspires to sing. In the fifth tableau Tannhäuser is again in the Court of Venus, a group of nymphs dressed in diaphanous raiment of "classic" scantiness. This final picture possesses an ingenuity and a beauty that are not easily forgotten. The Wagner pictures are worthy of the romantic themes they illustrate and of the genius who made those themes immortal. Higher praise could not be.

"A FIGHTING CHANCE."

A Romantic Costume Sketch, by Barry Williams, produced at the Euston on Monday, Sept. 7.

Lord Rickwell .....MR. MURRAY YORKE
Lionel Glayde .....MR. LEONARD ROBSON
Ralph Blacklaw .....MR. LIONEL D'ARAGON
Jake Gettleton .....MR. SYDNEY C. KEARNS
Rebecca Blacklaw .....MISS ROSEMARY REES
Miriam Glayde .....MISS GLADYS WHYTE

The reign of King George III. furnishes the period of Mr. Barry Williams's interesting playlet, A Fighting Chance. The hero of it is a gallant soldier, Lionel Glayde, and the heroine is his wife, Miriam, the heiress of an aged peer, Lord Rickwell. The latter is murdered by his ex-steward, Ralph Blacklaw, who hopes by scheming to get the crime fixed upon Lionel, to secure the execution of the soldier, and later to inveigle Miriam to marry him, and so become possessed of her fortune. In his dark designs Ralph Blacklaw has an able coadjutor in his sister, Rebecca, who has acted as housekeeper to Lord Rickwell. Charged with the dastardly crime, Lionel decides upon instant flight to escape arrest until he has found a means to prove his innocence. He realises too well that his capture would mean death to him. He is pursued by Blacklaw and Jake Gettleton, the dead lord's jockey, who pretends to sympathise with Blacklaw. There is an encounter in a forest, but Lionel manages to make another escape. Subsequently, he turns up disguised as Jake, and in a seemingly drunken condition. In the meantime, Rebecca Blacklaw has not been idle, and she, in conjunction with her blackguardly brother, has arranged to compromise Miriam by inducing her to meet him under the pretext that she will learn the news concerning her husband. Miriam falls into the trap, is told that her husband is dead, and is requested by Ralph to enter his private apartment. This she refuses to do. The sketch ends with the discovery that the drunken man is no other than Lionel Glayde disguised, and ample evidence is furnished as to his accuser's guilt. The playlet is well acted and prettily mounted, while the costumes and dresses are appropriate to the period. Mr. Leonard Robson as Lionel Glayde is a dashing soldier and a loverlike husband, and Miss Gladys Whyte is a charming and sympathetic representative of Miriam Glayde. Mr. Lionel D'Aragon furnishes some vigorous villainy in the rôle of Ralph Blacklaw, that worthy's sister and accomplice being capitally portrayed by Miss Rosemary Rees. Mr. Murray Yorke gives us a dignified old nobleman as Lord Rickwell; and Mr. Sydney C. Kearns submits a capital characterisation of Jake.

PARIS VARIETY GOSSIP.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

SEPT. 1 was a very busy day for Paris playgoers, as this was the date fixed for the opening of nearly all the halls which have been closed during the summer. The chief attraction was the Olympia, which restarted under the new direction of M. Victor de Cottens, who will be remembered as the author of the Coliseum revue, and H. B. Marnelli. No sweeping changes have been effected during the closure, the principal innovations being two extra bars on the roof, two lifts to carry you there, and a new carpet. White paint has been lavished on all the furniture, and the lighting arrangements are splendid.

THE new direction evidently intends to have no grumbling on the score of the quantity of the entertainment. From 8.30 till 1.45 the audience was regaled with variety shows, ballet, and a revue. The turns were mostly new to Paris, and all were excellent. Miss Bailey and her dog pantomimists is an act that should be snapped up for London without loss of time. The spectacle of an enormous bulldog in evening dress leading the orchestra is too funny for words. Guyer and Crispi, from the States, are very good. The young lady's sweet voice is heard to advantage in a little song which might, however, be changed for something a little livelier. Both she and her partner are eccentric dancers of the first rank.

THE famous Agoust Family are making their first appearance together again is their act The Animated Restaurant, which has lost nothing of its vim. Green and Wood are old favourites in Paris, and their act is certainly the laughter-maker of the programme. It must be Mr. Wood who finds it impossible to retain his equilibrium, for it seems almost impossible that anyone who was not "wood" or indiarubber could take some of the falls he does and not meet with a serious accident.

THE ballet Paris-Vacances is not by any means all that one could wish for, and although Mr. John Tiller's name appears as the inventor, he has had very little hand in the staging. Indeed, Mr. Tiller's ballets here are in a different class to the present offering at the Olympia.

THE story of Paris-Vacances is slight, the opening scene is the drawing-room of a mansion in the Bois, where the servants are following the old adage that "While the cat's away the mice will play," and are enjoying a little party on their own during the absence of the Duke and Duchess at a ball. Suddenly the bell is heard. The Duchess arrives, having left the ball on the pretext of a headache, but in reality to follow the movements of the Duke, whom she suspects of flirting. They quarrel, and decide to leave Paris immediately, the one going to Trouville, the other to Chamounix. At Trouville the Duke endeavours to drown his sorrow by mixing with the gay crowd, but he is called away by a telegram from an unknown friend telling him that he is not being missed by his wife at Chamounix.

THE last tableau takes us to the snowy heights of Switzerland, where we see the winter sports and dances of the shepherds and the village belles. Suddenly a storm arises, in the midst of which the Duke arrives, as one might say, looking for trouble. He discovers that the unknown writer of the telegram was his own wife. Explanations are made to the accompaniment of dances by the villagers. The one redeeming feature of the ballet was the work of Mr. Tiller's troupe of dancers.

THE principal purpose of the Revue en Bateau was to present to the Parisian public the Vallis (Ida and Lulu). These ladies tickled the audience right away. Ida, with her imitations of Mayol, Dranem, and other French stars, in which she shows wonderful mimetic power; and Lulu, in her several parts of Fluffy Ruffles, a little Dutch girl who receives petticoats in plenty from her many admirers, a Channel swimmer in a little black bathing costume, and lastly in the hypnotic waltz, in which she is assisted by Mr. Ned Nye. The Vallis will soon be firmly established as Parisian favourites.

THE rest of the revue is very much like all such entertainments, which, by the way, the French people themselves are getting just a little tired of. It has several striking scenes, the principal of which is the Roof Garden of the Hôtel Maurice, from which we are shown Paris at twilight. Another pretty scene is the Court of Honour at the Franco-British Exhibition.

IT is possible that after the run of this revue the Olympia will mount a French adaptation of The Wizard of Oz, by Frank Baum and Paul Tietjens, a fairy play which has had an enormous success in the States. Mr. de Cottens has read the book, and if arrangements can be made the piece will be put on possibly about the end of November.

EARLY DELIVERY.

Special newspaper express services now running on the London and North-Western, Great Northern, Midland, and Great Central Railways carry The Era to the following important cities and towns at the times named. Newsvendors and subscribers obtain their papers at a much earlier hour than was previously possible:—Rugby, 4.30 a.m.; Coventry, 4.54 a.m.; Birmingham, 5.20 a.m.; Crewe, 6.5 a.m.; Manchester, 6.50 a.m.; Liverpool, 7 a.m.; Chester, 9.3 a.m.; Doncaster, 6.10 a.m.; York, 7 a.m.; Hull, 8.20 a.m.; Darlington, 8.58 a.m.; Scarborough, 10.5 a.m.; Newcastle, 10.10 a.m.; Leeds (Central), 6.58 a.m.; Huddersfield, 7.37 a.m.; Bradford (Exchange), 7.47 a.m.; Harrogate, 7.50 a.m.; Halifax, 8.17 a.m.; Burnley, 9.28 a.m.; Leicester, 4.36 a.m.; Nottingham, 5.10 a.m.; Derby, 5.35 a.m.

AT the Guildhall Police Court on Monday, before Alderman Sir Walter Wilkin, William Cecil Watson, aged 25, alias F. J. Benson, who described himself as a dramatist, of no fixed abode, was charged, on a warrant, with having, on or about Oct. 15, 1907, unlawfully carried on a theatrical employment agency without having registered his name, address, and other particulars required by Sections 45 and 48 of the London County Council (General Powers) Act, 1905.

THE warrant, it was stated, was issued upon an information laid on Jan. 13 by Frederick Fenton, a barman, of the Royal Hotel, Mile End-road. Fenton deposed that on Sept. 25 last he replied to an advertisement, and received a letter, in consequence of which he went to Broad-street House. In an office there he saw a person calling himself F. J. Benson, who said he was forming a company to produce a play entitled East Lynne, and offered him a part on condition that he paid a fee of 2 guineas for "stage tuition." Fenton handed him the money, and was given a part to learn. On Oct. 16 he paid "Benson" £5 further, receiving a guarantee of employment. Benson never, in fact, procured him employment, but returned £3 15s. by cheque.

EVIDENCE was given that Benson was not registered at the Town Clerk's office as a person carrying on a theatrical employment agency in the City of London. In January, it was added, a summons was served personally on the accused, but he did not appear on the return day. The prisoner, who asserted that he did not carry on an agency, but was the employer direct, was remanded in custody.

NEW PALACE OF VARIETIES, EBBW VALE.

The history of the old Central Hall, Ebbw Vale, has been an exceedingly eventful one, and its career crowded with vicissitudes. It was originally built by a limited company at a cost of anywhere between £7,000 and £8,000, and was looked upon as one of the finest structures of its kind in Monmouthshire. It was intended as a hall for concerts, theatrical performances, lectures, religious services, and kindred public functions, but it was found to be a financial failure. It was eventually run as a theatre under the title of the Coronet Theatre, and did fairly good business during the couple of years of its existence. It was again rechristened, as the King's Theatre, under different management, but did not survive long under its new designation.

Some time ago Messrs. Tilney Bros., Abertillery, proprietors of the Pavilion, Abertillery, with their usual commendable enterprise, purchased the hall, with the object of reconstructing it upon the Empire principle. How well this has been accomplished was seen by a visit to the hall on Monday night, when a really first-class combination of artists opened to two crowded houses. Although the building had not long been in the hands of the decorators, the transformation effected has been wonderful, and the name "Palace" is the correct description. The stage, with all improvements and effects, has been considerably enlarged, which will not only provide additional room for the "turns," but will also curtail the hall space, giving it a more snug appearance, and will add considerably to the comfort of the patrons. The general feature of the decorations of the entire building is on the principle of making the interior as bright and light as possible. This has been so well carried out as to give it a tone of striking brilliancy. It is entirely fitted out with electricity, and those who have had experience of gas effects and electric light effects, especially on the stage, will know what an enormous advantage it is in favour of the newer luminary. The better-class seats have been placed on the gallery. These have been luxuriantly upholstered, and every comfort of the public studied. The same thing applies to the front seats on the ground floor, which have also been elaborately upholstered in red plush. Due regard has been paid to ventilation, and a strong feature has been made of the heating arrangements for the coming winter. As far as the usual offices are concerned, nothing has been omitted—cloakrooms, dressing-rooms, lavatories, refreshment- and waiting-rooms, and accommodation for the storage of bicycles are among the many conveniences. The theatre is kept scrupulously clean, and order is maintained by a large staff of uniformed officials. The intention of the management is to provide only the best artists, such as appear in all the principal Empires of our big towns, and by this means they will supply a long-craved-for form of public amusement.

It was encouraging on Monday night to see two crowded audiences. When the curtain rose, there was an appreciative cheer as a compliment to the Messrs. Tilney and those who assisted them in the work. A full and well-balanced orchestra, under the bâton of Mr. George Stephens, played a very fine opening overture. By the way, Ebbw Valians especially will recognise in the conductor one of Ebbw Vale's most famous and accomplished instrumentalists. His very name at one time was one to conjure with, and his admirers will extend to him a most hearty welcome.

Mr. Pryce (formerly of Messrs. Poole's), Messrs. Tilney's general manager, is in charge of the arrangements, and under his experienced eye few details have been left out. Messrs. Tilney and all those concerned are to be heartily congratulated upon the achievement, and it is the sincere wish of the townspeople that it is an institution that has come to stay; and liberal patronage on the part of the townspeople is the only means of success. Next week, we are informed, a programme of exceptional merit has been arranged for.

"THE DRYAD" AT THE EMPIRE.

Genée, the incomparable, has never sounded the gamut of her wonderful art as she is doing this week at the Empire in the idyllic little play The Dryad, by Dora Bright (Mrs. Knatchbull), which, it will be remembered, was originally produced at a matinée at the Playhouse in the March of last year. The Dryad is a dance play in two tableaux. The story sets forth the love disappointment of a wood nymph. A certain Dryad who queens it beneath the slumbering moon, has subdued all mortals to her loveliness and the magic of her dancing, thus arousing the envy of the implacable Aphrodite, who causes her to be imprisoned in an oak tree, only granting her permission to come forth once in every ten years, between sunset and sunrise, until she should find a mortal faithful to her during the allotted term. A shepherd passing through the wood on the night of her freedom sees her dancing beneath the moon, falls in love, serenades her, and vows eternal constancy.

When the dawn breaks she bids him farewell and shuts herself from the world and love in the tree. After ten years she again comes forth to see the shepherd wandering in the wood with another maid, to whom he sings the same song. He has forgotten a passing fantasy and the wood nymph's charms have faded from his memory. The Dryad, apart from its story, is quite a pastoral symphony in its way. It has genuine interest, but Adeline Genée endows it with pathos and tenderness illimitable. She portrays the ecstasy of love, the joy of anticipation, and the deep despair of the wood nymph; and never has a more eloquent command of the resources of gesture play been seen on the Empire stage. It is a delightful revelation of Genée's genius, and Mr. Hitchins, by introducing it to the public, has done a distinct service to dramatic art. Mr. Gordon Cleather sings with warmth and richness of tone, and has been very properly sharing the triumphs of his delightful partner.

In the ballet Coppelia, Mdlle. Genée is again a sprightly and mischief-loving Swanilda, and the opening waltz inspires her by its strains to a remarkable exhibition of her powers. Mdlle. Zanfretta now plays the lover with considerable dramatic force, and Mr. Fred Farren repeats his success as the old doll-maker. Mdlle. Lydia Kyaksht, who will play the part of Swanilda next week, gives selections from her répertoire early in the evening, and a turn that is as novel as it is original is supplied by Velanche's football dogs, who play a "soccer" match with an enthusiasm that is almost human. It is very evident that they enjoy the game as much as the audience, and that is saying a good deal.

The powerful dramatta After the Opera is still thrilling Empire patrons nightly. Miss Evelyn D'Alroy's acting as the frivolous wife, who meets with such an unfoward fate at the hands of a burglar, submits an impersonation of rare intensity. Mr. Robert Pateman as the wronged husband depicts with considerable power the passion and hate of the final scene; and Mr. Vernon Steel distinguishes himself by a clever bit of work as the lover. Other items in the programme are Warren and Brockway, Emma Francis, Vernon Davidson, and the Bioscope.

MR. EDITOR,—Sir,—I should be very greatly obliged if you would call attention in next issue to the mis-spelling of my name in criticism of production sketch, After Waterloo, due to an error in the programme. It should be Ada D. Hatchwell instead of A. S. Hatchwell.—Yours faithfully, ADA D. HATCHWELL.

PROMENADE CONCERTS.

The chief feature of Tuesday's concert at Queen's Hall was the first performance of Mr. E. York Bowen's Pianoforte Concerto, No. 3, in G minor. Mr. York Bowen, although only twenty-four years old, has been for many years a gifted student and distinguished composer of the Royal Academy of Music. When only a boy he won the Erard Scholarship of that institution, and his first pianoforte concerto was in 1904 performed at Queen's Hall. A performance of Mr. Bowen's "Symphonic Fantasia" was given two years ago by the London Symphony Orchestra under Dr. Hans Richter, and in the spring of this year his viola concerto was played at a concert of the Philharmonic Society. The pianoforte concerto produced on Tuesday evening is a characteristic and clever work of the young composer, partaking somewhat of the fantasia form. Instead of the usual slow movement there is a short intermezzo, full of graceful and plaintive melody; but with the exception of this movement Mr. Bowen's concerto is a strong and brilliant work, abounding in sparkling and showy passages, while, unlike so many modern compositions, the clever finale, perhaps the finest portion of the concerto, contains much effective music for the soloist. Mr. Bowen, who played the solo instrument in his own composition admirably, well deserved the hearty cheers with which he was greeted at the close of his talented composition; while the orchestra, under Mr. Wood's skilful direction, gave the composer most able support. Tuesday's programme included the Prelude to Wagner's "Meistersinger," Debussy's Prelude, "L'Après-Midi d'un Faune," Mozart's Symphony, No. 35, in D (Haffner), and Gounod's Overture to the Mock Doctor. Mr. Aimé Kling gave a skilful performance of Saint-Saëns's violoncello concerto, transcribed for the viola by Réné Pallain; Miss Gwladys Roberts sang Elgar's "Where Corals Lie" and "Sabbath Morning at Sea"; and Mr. Noel Fleming was heard in "O Vision Entrancing," from Goring Thomas's Esmeralda.

STAGE CHILDREN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—With only a few years' experience of the theatrical profession one is surprised to find the number of plays depending for their success on characters for clever children. As a looker-on I can say with confidence that of late years the uncertainty of obtaining a licence (particularly in the provinces) for juveniles under, say, ten years of age, has prevented many managers from speculating in works where the interest centres in a child performer, and quite recently an application for a child's licence drew from the magistrate a suggestion that "a portion of salary earned should be invested for the child's benefit in future years." Those conversant with "behind the scenes" are well aware that stage children, as a rule, are well cared for and their comfort studied in every way possible; but to many outside the profession the opinion prevails that "the employment of children on the stage is a serious offence and should be forbidden by law."

The advocates of prohibition are likely to receive many fresh supporters by the precedent created in licensing a baby in arms for a London theatre. And I would ask upon what grounds the licence was obtained. Most certainly a child of such tender days should have regular hours and plenty of sleep; and how can its health be consulted when it is bound to be kept awake to perform every night on the stage? The baby's maternal relative no doubt will say, "It sleeps during the day time." That may be true. But can any mother guarantee her baby will be awake every weekday from 8 to 11 p.m. and matinées 3 to 6 as well? If this particular baby is awakened at any time to be taken on the stage, what becomes of the usual questions magistrates ask as to "the hours the child is required," and the anxiety lest a child should lose its natural rest by being employed in a theatre late in the evening?—every evening, not one evening only. Why should almost a newly-born baby be licensed and a child of six or seven years of age be refused, notwithstanding she is in the best of health, well clothed, and can answer simple questions herself? It stands to reason, that now a baby six weeks old has been licensed there will be some difficulty in refusing touring managers licences for young children of as many years as the Lyceum baby's weeks. To make such exceptions would be most unjust, each case being determined on its merits. Or are managers to understand that "babies in arms only" have contracted out of the Act? I enclose my card, and beg to subscribe myself—Yours faithfully,

CURIOSITY

SINCE the last information was published regarding the Handel-Mendelssohn Festival, which is to be held at the Crystal Palace in June next, some alterations in the dates have taken place. The grand rehearsal will be on Saturday, June 19. The "Messiah" or "Elijah" will be given on Tuesday, June 22, selections from "Israel" and Mendelssohn choral and orchestral works on Thursday, June 24, and the "Messiah" or "Elijah" on Saturday, June 26.

THE fifty-third annual series of Saturday Afternoon Concerts before Christmas, and under the direction of Mr. Walter W. Hedgcock, will be given on Oct. 31, with a concert by Mme. Liza Lehmann (under the direction of Mr. Peter Dawson). She will be assisted by Miss Caroline Hatchard, Miss Polgrave Turner, Mr. John Bardsley, and Mr. Peter Dawson, who have all achieved success at Queen's Hall and Royal Albert Hall Ballad Concerts. Mme. Lehmann will conduct a programme of her own composition, including the popular song-cycle "In a Persian Garden," a new cycle "The Nonsense Songs" (Alice in Wonderland), and selections from the opera The Vicar of Wakefield. On Nov. 7 there will be a pianoforte and vocal recital by Miss Fanny Davies and Mr. Gervase Elwes; on Nov. 14 a violin recital by Kubelik, assisted by eminent artists; on Nov. 28 a concert by Miss Alys Bateman, aided by Miss Ethel Hook, a sister of Mme. Clara Butt, Mr. Henry Beaumont, and Mr. Albert Archdeacon, the violin soloist being Miss Ruth Clarkson and the solo pianist M. Eduard Parlovitz; and on Dec. 5 a violin recital by Miss Marie Hall, assisted by many well-known artists.

THE Crystal Palace Orchestral Society, the conductor of which is Mr. Walter W. Hedgcock, have arranged for a series of Saturday afternoon concerts. On Saturday, Nov. 28, will probably be heard a concert performance of Sullivan's opera The Yeoman of the Guard; on Saturday, Feb. 13, Elgar's "King Olaf" will be given; and on Saturday, May 1, a miscellaneous concert will include "Suite Algerienne" (Saint-Saëns), "Welsh Rhapsody" (Ed. German), &c. The Crystal Palace Choir will assist at each concert.

MR. ARTHUR FAGGE, the conductor of the Dulwich Philharmonic Society, has decided on the following programme for his thirteenth season of concerts at the Crystal Palace:—Oct. 3, "Golden Legend" (Sullivan); Dec. 5, "Carmen" (Bizet); Jan. 30, "Elijah" (Mendelssohn); Feb. 27, "Hiawatha" (Part 3 Coleridge Taylor) and orchestral selections; and March 27, "Redemption" (Gounod).

THE AWARDS.—The three interim Awards and the final Award, corrected and revised by George Ranken Askwith, K.C., the official arbitrator appointed to the music hall dispute, may be had in pamphlet form at The Era Offices. Copy, including postage, three-halfpence. Address, The Publisher, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

[We do not answer inquiries by post. In all letters the names and addresses of inquirers must be given as a guarantee of good faith. Initials only or pseudonyms will be used in the answers if so desired.]

DOUGLAS BLAIR.—The cast of Dr. Wake's Patient on its original production at the Adelphi on Sept. 5, 1905, was as follows:—The Earl of St. Olbyn, Mr. Alfred Brydone; Duff Wynterden, Mr. W. Gayer Mackay (one of the authors); Bishop of Selby, Mr. Adam Alexander; Dr. Forrester Wake, Mr. C. M. Hallard; Andrew Wake, Mr. Charles Rock; Mr. Murdoch, Mr. Herbert Grimwood; Rev. J. Brown, Mr. John Cabourn; Prescott, Mr. Lewis Willoughby; Antony, Mr. Gerald Jerome; Waiter, Mr. J. R. Gillespie; Countess of St. Olbyn, Miss Hilda Thorpe; Lady Gerania Wyn-Charteret, Miss Lilian Braithwaite; Harriet Bronson, Miss Edith Ostlere; Mrs. Wake, Mrs. E. H. Brooke; Mrs. Murdoch, Miss Elsie Chester; Janifer, Miss Pamela Hope; H. Gipsy, Miss Ina Pelly.

NOVICE.—We do not recommend; but you will find in our advertising columns the names of reliable agents

H. W. JONES.—Mr. Charles Groves was the original Uncle Gregory, "the man from Sheffield," on the production of A Pair of Spectacles at the Garrick on Feb. 22, 1890, and he played the character during the recent revival by Mr. John Hare of that comedy at the same house.

C. P.—An actor is a comedian, and a comedian an actor. The term "comedian" decidedly applies to the actor in question, but he is also an excellent pantomimist.

H. J. N.—Miss Marie Lloyd played the part of Princess Kristina in the production of The Magic Dragon o' the Demon Dell at the Britannia, Hoxton, on Boxing Day, 1888.

BACON.—We do not know the gentleman referred to, and his parentage does not interest us. As you know his address, why not write to him and ask him?

C. HILL.—It is advisable at first to sell the singing rights only. If the song is a success, then negotiations with a publisher should procure you a share of the profits. The pantomime rights of a successful song are especially valuable. It is all a matter of arrangement, and depends on the status of the singer and the writer. The successful song-writer is sometimes in a position to dictate terms. When you have sold a song and it is being sung, write to Francis, Day, and Hunter to send a representative to hear it. They will secure it if there is likely to be a vogue for it.

BECKET.—The Archbishop of Canterbury in the reign of Henry II. figures in a tolerably long list of English dramas. The first of which there is any record is by Bishop Bale, who is the accredited author of the piece known as Of the Impostures of Thomas Becket. The character is found in the play by W. H. Ireland entitled Henry the Second; then we have the Thomas à Becket of Douglas Jerrold, performed in 1829; Becket: A Historical Tragedy, by R. Cattermole, printed in 1832; Thomas à Becket of George Darley, published in 1840; King Henry the Second of Sir Arthur Helps, printed in 1843; Henry the Second of George Wightwick, published in 1851; the King Henry the Second of Dr. Charles Grindrod, printed in 1885; the St. Thomas of Canterbury of Aubrey de Vere, published in 1876; and the Becket of Lord Tennyson, brought out on Feb. 6, 1893, at the Lyceum by Henry Irving. Tennyson's Becket and other plays are published in a volume of the library edition, price 5s. Try Denny's, bookseller, Strand, W.C.

During the last half-century everyone travelling in Hot Climes has made a point of carrying some
DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S
CHLORODYNE
so as to stop immediately an attack of
DIARRHŒA, CHOLERA, or DYSENTERY.
Hot weather in the British Isles strikes suddenly, and everyone should take a little precaution. Don't wait until you actually need the Chlorodyne, but always keep it by you.
Avoid disappointment. Insist on having DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE—it

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT
FOR
ACTOR AND COMPOSER,
By ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).
"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," by Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor, author of "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" office), seems to be the one compendious and indispensable authority on the subject, as vexed as the "Bermoothes" and as tortuous as a Chancery suit, that has long been wanted. It is in every essential a text book for the perplexed layman, and no solicitor or barrister worth his salt ought to think of taking or appearing in "proceedings" without consulting its pages. It must suffice, after what has been said, to state little more than that the contents include five chapters, respectively named "Copyright as Opposed to Performing Right," "Performing Right," "Infringement and Remedies," Musical Copyright," and "International and Colonial Copyright." The work, for all its precise authority, is not dry reading. The statutes, with the elucidatory notes, necessarily impose a task on the reader which takes some tackling, but they had to be there. The cases adduced, however, are full of interest. Certain of them might fitly find a place in the romance of copyright. There was the fight of Charles Reade with George Conquest over "It's Never Too Late to Mend," for instance, and the equally interesting conflict of Mr. J. A. Cave with Chatterton over "The Wandering Jew." The latter was a famous battle. Chatterton took it to the House of Lords, and was finally beaten, to the unspeakable relief of Mr. Cave, who is never weary of relating the story. Had the result been otherwise, it would have meant his ruin. I well remember meeting him on the day of his victory and "crashing a cup with him" in honour of the same. "The Law of Copyright" is dedicated to Mr. A. W. Pinero.—Sportsman.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1908.

THE FAUST CONTRACT.

We are pleased to draw the attention of our readers to the very able and earnest letter from Mr. CLAUD W. SYKES, which we print elsewhere in this paper. Mr. SYKES was formerly connected with the Vereinigter Stadttheater at Frankfort, and is at present a member of Mr. LEIGH LOVEL'S company. So thoughtful a letter demands respectful and sober examination.

In the first place, we cannot accept Mr. SYKES'S contention that the first and second parts of "Faust" are a "continuous story." To do so would be to charge GOETHE, if not with imbecility, at least with intermittent mania. The first part of "Faust," in spite of certain exuberances and divergencies, is a complete and concrete drama. The second is mere Midsummer madness to which only respect for genius in decay prevents our giving a harsher name. No one whose perceptions are not warped by the influence of the GOETHE fetish can see anything in this second part but the product of senility, in which the habit of poesy and the craving for composition—GOETHE finished it in extreme old age when prostrated with grief at the death of his son—are curiously mingled. No better summing-up of the situation has been made than that by ABRAHAM HAYWARD when he wrote: "Another set have censured me for my sceptical and superficial notions of the plot of this Second Part, which is said to hide a host of meanings. My only answer is that I cannot see them, and have never yet met with anyone who could, though I studied the poem under circumstances peculiarly favourable to the discovery. None of the German critics, to the best of my information, have yet dived deeper than myself." Space does not, of course, allow of our quoting sufficiently from the second part, to which we must refer Mr. SYKES and those who doubt the accuracy of our estimate of the work.

Mr. SYKES says that in the whole of the first act—there are no "acts," by the bye, in GOETHE'S poem—he can find no regrets for a lost youth, and that the Devil, not Faust, proposes that a contract shall be made. We can best correct Mr. SYKES by quotations. It is in Faust's mind that the idea of a compact arises. He says to Mephistopheles: "Hell itself has its laws? I am glad of it; in that case a contract may be made with you gentlemen?" To which Mephistopheles answers: "What is promised thou shall enjoy to the letter." As to Faust not regretting the pleasures of youth, he says in his complaint: "Then I have neither land, nor money, nor honour, and rank in the world. No dog would like to live so any longer." . . . "Far better would it be for me to have squandered away the little I possess than to be sweating here under the burden of that little. To possess what thou hast inherited from thy sires, enjoy it."

The proposal that Faust shall dress fashionably and go with Mephistopheles to see life is made by the Devil; it is Faust who insists on having a distinct arrangement. He says: "What am I to do for you in return?" Mephistopheles answers: "For that you have still a long day of grace"; but Faust wants something more definite. He says: "Speak the condition plainly out."

And now comes the contract. These are the words: "I will bind myself to your service here, and never sleep nor slumber at your call. When we meet on the other side"—of the grave, obviously—"you shall do as much for me." The offer to Mephistopheles that if he can ever make Faust enjoy himself for a moment he may do what he likes with Faust's soul is merely a verbal one; the contract already prepared by Mephistopheles, and subsequently signed in blood, would naturally be worded in the Devil's terms and not in those of his dupe and victim. The "passing moment" proposition is described in the text as a "wager." Mephistopheles is, of course, aware that a gambling debt cannot be sued for; and, though he may accept Faust's "sporting offer" in the spirit in which it is made, he relies on the litera scripta to enforce payment.

Mr. SYKES says: "In GOETHE, Faust does not contract for pure unalloyed pleasure or happiness, but to be allowed to experience every sort of experience that man can experience." There is no warrant for this in the text. Faust describes himself in most eloquent terms as so wretched in his present condition that he is ready to pay anything for a narcotic. "My joys," he says, "flow from this earth, and this sun shines upon my sufferings." He defies Mephistopheles to "cheat him with enjoyment." How thoroughly Mephistopheles does cheat him is shown by the super-sensual raptures of Faust after possessing Margaret. Mephistopheles has won his wager. For observe Faust does not ask for a lasting pleasure. All he stipulates for on his side is a "passing moment" of delight; and, by the evidence of his own lips, Mephistopheles provides him with more than one such experience. There is no statement in the text to the effect that Mephistopheles should be a sort of supernatural COOK, and conduct Faust on a tour through the universe; but there is the following proposal from Faust's own lips: "Let us quench our glowing passions in the depths of sensuality!" It is true that Faust, still agitated by his wretchedness, talks wildly about "heaping the weal and woe of the race upon his breast"; but a few words of cool contempt from Mephistopheles soon bring him to reason. He yields at once to the Devil's remarkably frank praise of the joys of this world; and says eagerly: "How shall we set about it?" And off they go together.

Mr. SYKES'S idea that, in the second part of "Faust," "Helen, Faust's true mate, arouses every good feeling that is latent within him," is not warranted by the text. Helen, indeed, is hardly the kind of character whose acquaintance makes for regeneration; nor is it so stated by GOETHE. As the chorus say, in describing their amorous raptures:

Closer and closer already they sit,
On one another reclined,
Shoulder to shoulder, knee to knee,
They rock themselves hand in hand.

Even these not too elevating love-passages are not lasting. On Paris behaving with something like rudeness to Helen, Faust becomes jealous and interferes. An explosion is heard, the spirits ascend in vapour, and Faust, stunned and senseless, is borne off by Mephistopheles. "He whom Helen paralyses," says the Devil, "comes not easily to his senses again." This can hardly be called regeneration.

The conclusion of the Second Part to which Mr. SYKES refers with so much complacency is a glaring example of sophistical trickery. It is quite true that Mephistopheles has no right to drag Faust down to hell before he is dead. But, having carried out his part of the contract, Mephistopheles has a right to exact similar honesty on the part of Faust. What happens in the second part is this. Faust is on the point of death, and Mephistopheles is ready with his bond to claim the soul. Possibly from past experience, he has his doubts of the result. He says:

Yet now so many means, alas! are understood
Souls from the Devil to filch.

When the time comes for him to seize the soul of Faust, the Devil has an attack of unmentionable vice. The angels crowd round him, and Faust's soul is whisked away to heaven before the Devil can collect himself. The moral of this is as bad as it can be. The idea that a contract with a person of bad character can be repudiated at will, and the claimant deprived of his dues by trickery while in a condition of intoxication, either amorous or alcoholic, is calculated to sap all the foundations of business honesty. The fact of Faust when at the point of death indulging a belated dream of philanthropic engineering is beside the question altogether, and does not affect the conditions of the contract. Death-bed repentances are decidedly out of date.

The authors of the version of "Faust" at present being performed at His Majesty's had to deal with an original with an illogical plot and an unsatisfactory dénouement. That they have done so well as they have done with the materials at their disposal speaks much for the talent and judgment of Mr. STEPHEN PHILLIPS and Mr. COMYNS CARR.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

A new and original "tragic-farce," entitled Next Door, was presented here on Monday by Mr. M. R. Morand and a specially-selected company. The play is by Eardley Turner, and the apparent contradiction in the description—a "tragic farce"—set everyone wondering as to the meaning. The explanation is that the piece is a quaint, whimsical rigmarole founded on an imaginary tragedy, which gives rise to many amusing situations and misunderstandings. The action of the play opens in the study of a Mr. Thackray Jellyby, an eccentric old "would-be author," who, after many vain attempts to "get into print," has at last succeeded in achieving his heart's desire. He has written a descriptive article on a century-old murder for a local paper, and the editor, in writing to accept it, says he has not time to attend to the "murder" at once, but "it shall be done next week." At the same time Mr. Jellyby is much annoyed and interrupted in his literary work by the dog next door, and as a last resource makes an appointment with one Bill Yarrow, a notorious dog-stealer whom he intends to pay for the dog's extermination.

The dog-stealer calls while Mr. Jellyby is away, and refuses to state his business. Mrs. Jellyby's curiosity is naturally aroused, and she wonders what business her husband could have with such a disreputable character; and, strangely enough, she happens to read the letter referring to the "murder" at the same time. This combination of circumstances leads her to the conclusion that a horrible tragedy is contemplated, and, as Mr. Jellyby has of late been rather irritable with her, she thinks that she is to be the victim. Upon this misapprehension the whole of the succeeding story turns. Further complications arise through Mrs. Jellyby finding out that the victim is not herself but the woman next door, and tries to shield her husband from paying the penalty of his crime. However, after endless complications, irony, and humour, and police summonses, everything is explained, with the usual happy ending.

The characters are all capitally drawn and not too exaggerated, that of Mr. Jellyby being particularly good. Mr. M. R. Morand in the above-mentioned rôle proves himself an actor of the very highest class. His study of the would-be author is quite natural, and he infuses any amount of quaint, dry humour into his interpretation. The love interest in the piece is introduced by two young men, Hector Pennicuick and Reuben Quilten, who are both in love with Kitty Maygrove, Mr. Jellyby's ward. They are admirably impersonated by Mr. Arthur Soames, Mr. Frank G. Bayley, and Miss Dorothy Rundell. Mr. Arthur Dennis is excellent as Mr. Jellyby's secretary. Mr. Dennis Bryan as a private inquiry agent, Mr. Robert D. Taylor as the "Man Next Door," and Mr. A. Morris Seaton as a sergeant of police are all capital studies. Mr. Eardley Turner, the author, makes the most of Bill Yarrow, the dog-stealer—a typical East End rough. Miss Lilian Dundas as Mrs. Jellyby finds ample scope for her histrionic abilities, and acquits herself well in a difficult rôle; and Miss Katie Johnson and Miss Alice Aynsley Cook in the other ladies' parts complete an excellent cast.

The play was favourably received, and may be written down as having at the outset achieved a distinct success.

"MALIGNANT GROWTHS!" (?)

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Mr. Walter Stephens writes a very able letter in your last issue, but it seems a pity that he should spoil the effect of it by adding another discordant note against musical comedy. It is well for us all connected with the entertainment professions to bear in mind the important fact that every class of play carries out a certain mission, and that managers do their best in their respective lines of business. Surely, therefore, the game of throwing mud at any successful work which the public fully approve, and in the case of musical comedy, nearly always yields respectable profits, is not "good cricket." We all have our ideals in regard to the amusement of the public, but what is the use of such ideals if the said public differ? All of us are here essentially to please the public, and this done, what more can be said?

If the theatrical profession is to regain and maintain strength as a lucrative industry it is quite a certainty that "mud-throwing" will not assist the worker, whatever it may do for those who do not really depend upon their labours for the wherewithal of existence. And let it be noted that many thousands of earnest people do wholly and solely depend upon the theatrical business for a livelihood, and this, at least, should be considered when we enter into public controversy.

It appears indiscreet to find fault with this or that play which does not happen to be in the department favoured by the writer. Presumably, however, it is the "old story" that success is always opposed by the few.—Yours faithfully,

W. SCOTT PHIPP.

Mr. Lewis Waller is never seen to such advantage as in parts of the romantic swashbuckler class; and Henri de Lagardere, in the new version of The Duke's Motto, suits him exactly. The piece, which had a trial trip at the Theatre Royal, Birmingham, on the 31st ult., has all the virtues of the old school of French melodrama—a strong, well-constructed plot, a poetic atmosphere, and a plentiful supply of vigorous and exciting action.

The action opens in a tavern, where a gang of bravoes have assembled to accomplish the assassination of Louis de Nevers, a popular noble, and one of the first swordsmen in France. De Nevers has secretly married Blanche de Caylus, who is confined by her father in the Castle of Caylus; and it is in the moat of this castle that De Nevers, on the very evening on which his assassination has been arranged, has appointed to fight a duel with Henri de Lagadere, a picturesque adventurer, who, once a strolling player, has become a captain of the Guards of Louis XIII. Expelled from the regiment for a duel in which he has killed his man, Henri has raised a party of reckless fellows, and is about to lead them to seek their fortunes in Spain. He calls at the inn, and recognises in the bravoes old friends and teachers of fence. But when he learns that they are about to assassinate Louis de Nevers he repudiates their acquaintance. They depart, locking him in to prevent his interference. Henri, however, ties his girdle to the window and drops into the moat. It must here be mentioned that the assassination of De Nevers has been organised by a certain Louis de Gonzague, who wants him put out of the way so that he may marry Blanche himself. She, expecting her husband, hands to Henri from a window opening on the moat her baby girl, believing that she is entrusting it to De Nevers, who arrives to fight the duel. Henri warns him of his danger from the assassins, and sends off a page to bring his—Henri's—companions to the rescue. He and De Nevers "put up" a splendid combat with the would-be assassins; but De Nevers is stabbed in the back by the treacherous Gonzague, and De Lagardere is only saved by the timely arrival of his regiment.

Seventeen years elapse. In the interval, Henri has killed off, one by one, the gang of ruffians all but three—a hunchback named Æsop and two others, Cocardasse and Passepoil, who would not join in the attack on Henri in the moat. He has been travelling in Spain with Blanche de Nevers, who has grown up into a charming young woman. Æsop meets Henri outside an inn near Paris, and is killed by him in a duel, the victor assuming the speech and appearance of the dead man at pleasure. De Lagardere's object is to denounce De Gonzague as the murderer of De Nevers, and to put Blanche into possession of her inheritance. The plan of De Gonzague is to present a gipsy named Flora as the missing heiress to the De Nevers estates, and afterwards effect her death, so that De Gonzague may inherit that important property. In the third act De Lagardere brings Blanche to the gardens of the Palais Royal in order to present her to the King and convict De Gonzague of his crime. But Blanche is spirited away by the latter's agents; and when Henri tells his story to the King he cannot produce the girl, and is therefore disbelieved, and given forty-eight hours to leave France. In this scene Henri makes frequent use of the Æsop disguise; and he assumes it in the last act, when, as the hunchback, he proposes to De Gonzague to marry Blanche, and put her out of the way quietly. Blanche, who loves Lagardere, and is aware of his identity, agrees to this, and he throws off his disguise, and signs the contract in his own name. At this critical moment the King arrives on the scene, and Henri, by producing a packet on which the dying De Nevers wrote the name of his assassin in blood, convicts the villain, and establishes Blanche's identity.

Mr. Lewis Waller played Henri de Lagardere with just the right amount of braggadocio, and with a virile energy and self-restraint which raised the rôle above that of a mere swaggerer. His treatment of the explanatory passages in the first act was an admirable example of free, natural, and buoyant delivery, and he carried the whole thing through with a dash and freedom which quite won the hearts of the audience. There could be no doubt of the absolute success of the embodiment, which was brisk, masterly, and artistic. Mr. Tom Heslewood's Louis XIII. had all the necessary dignity and semi-sarcastic repose, besides being a fine physical representation of the stern and stately monarch. Mr. Owen Roughwood bore himself well in his brief career as De Nevers; and Mr. Franklin Dyall's Louis de Gonzague was keen, incisive, and effective. Mr. Shiel Barry's Marquis de Chavernay was a pleasing and well-balanced depiction of a dandy of the period; and Mr. Herbert Jarman's tall figure and firm and bold method were well suited to the portrayal of the genial adventurer, Cocardasse, Mr. Alec F. Thompson supplying a comical contrast as the little bravo Passepoil. Mr. A. E. George was grimly malevolent as the hunchback, Æsop; and Mr. Hubert Druce contributed a convincing and plausible depiction of De Gonzague's unscrupulous instrument, Peyrolles. Miss Sybil Carlisle looked and acted the Princess Gabrielle de Gonzague unimpeachably, her appearance in the masquerade scene being handsome and aristocratic; and Miss Valli Valli was a charmingly ingenuous and impulsive representative of Blanche de Nevers, the freshness and innocence of the girl being very sweetly suggested. Miss Valli Valli's performance was a most winsome and natural one. Miss Gwendolin Floyd hit off cleverly the little character of Cidalise; and Miss Dorothy Minto made a bright and alert Flora, doing a Spanish dance with bare feet in the second act with grace, activity, and spirit. All the accessory characters had conscientious and careful exponents; and the mounting was excellent. Mr. McClery's practised skill had been well employed in the scenery for the first and second acts, the moonlit moat being a fine example of building-up and painting; and Mr. Hann's Palace set did that clever artist great credit, Mr. Hicks's Garden scene being capitally painted, planned, and lighted. In the task of production Mr. Waller had the valuable assistance of Mr. Herbert Jarman, the result being a performance of perfect smoothness; and the costumes designed by Mr. Tom Heslewood were picturesque and appropriate. Mr. Frederick Rosse's music assisted the effect of the situations; and with M. Felix Bertrand to arrange the fights and Mr. John D'Auban to attend to the dancing the completeness of the tout ensemble was well ensured. The Duke's Motto was received with enthusiastic acclamations; and Mr. Lewis Waller's admirers will flock to the Lyric to see him in a part which brings out some of his strongest points, and shows him to the greatest advantage.

"THE EARLY WORM."

An Original Farce, in Three Acts, by Frederick Lonsdale, produced at Wyndham's Theatre on Monday, Sept. 7.

George, Duke of Tadcaster MR. A. E. MATTHEWS
Lord Steyne ..... MR. ALFRED BISHOP
Sir William Mayton .... MR. WILFRED DRAYCOTT
Allan Marchmont ..... MR. WEEDON GROSSMITH
Captain Baxter ..... MR. HENRY STEPHENSON
Tom ..... MR. A. W. BASKCOMB
Boatman ..... MR. E. W. LACEY
Sailor ..... MR. GERALD MALVERN
Naylor ..... MR. EDGAR B. PAYNE
Sybil Annesley ..... MISS MURIEL BEAUMONT
Lady Steyne ..... MISS FANNY BROUGH

Mr. Frederick Lonsdale came into the arena of the theatre as a playwright as the author of the book of The King of Cadonia, and he added further to the honours gained by him as a writer for the stage on Monday, when Mr. Frank Curzon produced the new farce from his pen entitled The Early Worm at Wyndham's as a successor to When Knights Were Bold, which has been filling the house for a year. The new author has managed, with familiar characters, to create a number of farcical situations without resorting to buffoonery. In its place we have witty lines, occasionally satire that is biting, and the exhilaration of real fun. The imbroglio is all so simple and direct that one wonders at the ingenuity by which the interest of the farce is sustained and the attention of the audience gripped for three acts. In writing of the plot, we may repeat the well-known lines of Sir Walter Scott:

"O, what a tangled web we weave,
When first we practise to deceive!"

When George Duke of Tadcaster starts on a motor ride to Southampton with his elderly friend Lord Steyne and completes the parti carré at the dinner-table at an hotel by inviting two ladies of dubious reputation, he did not foresee that the little bounder Allan Marchmont, of whose company he had rid himself on the road, would get back in time to tell the Duke's sweetheart, Sybil Annesley, and the peer's wife the destination of the motor and the name of the hotel. The telephone is set to work; the escapade of the wanderers is revealed in all its awkwardness; and the ready lies of both the Duke and Lord Steyne only emphasise the gravity of the situation. At least, it would be grave were not Sybil a sensible girl. She is far too fond of George to marry anyone else; but, just for the sake of making him jealous, she arranges a pretty little scheme whereby she advances to Allan Marchmont (alias "the worm") out of her ample income of £50,000 a year a sum of £20,000 to buy George's yacht the Firefly. The purchase is managed for £16,000. The bargain having been concluded, Marchmont invites Sybil and Lady Steyne on board as his guests, and in the second act, in the cabin of the yacht, everybody arrives. The fun is kept going by the rivals—the "worm" and the Duke—making endeavours to secure the favour of the heiress. The repentant Duke bribes the steward to fall overboard, and permit himself to be rescued; but the "worm" has been a little previous with a precisely similar ruse, and it is he that wins the coveted reputation for bravery by plunging in and saving the well-paid victim. The Duke, who has been so neatly foiled, has no scruples about locking his rival in the yacht cabin and leaving him to his fate; but the "worm" dives through a porthole, and turns up to dinner in the last act with a remarkable tale of his adventures at sea. As a matter of fact, he has been picked up by a boatman after an immersion of two minutes. Of course, Sybil refuses him and forgives the Duke, and Lord Steyne makes his peace with his better half, not by any more subterfuge, but by blurting out the plain, unvarnished truth.

The farce does a great service to the lovers of laughter by enabling them to see Mr. Weedon Grossmith in the title-rôle, a character that fits his methods exactly. As the ridiculous little bounder Allan Marchmont, he is refreshingly funny always; but he has several supreme moments. One of them is the negotiation for the purchase of the yacht; another is his advent on board; and there is almost a touch of pathos in his cry, "Who cares for me?" The rendering of the character is a mixture of unabashed impudence and invincible cheerfulness; and the comedian's attitudes and "business" are admirably illustrative of the character to which he gives life and truth. Mr. A. E. Matthews is irreproachable as the Duke of Tadcaster, whose agreeable flippancy and mercurial temperament he so exactly and cleverly suggests. Mr. Alfred Bishop has no great chances as Lord Steyne, but that the character is presented in a finished manner may be readily guessed by those who know the work of this favourite delineator of the old men of comedy. Sir William Mayton, who is as ready to give advice as he is to laugh at the foibles of his guests, is genially played by Mr. Wilfred Draycott, whose buoyancy and gaiety are infectious. Miss Muriel Beaumont, a pretty picture of English womanhood as Sybil Annesley, wears some beautiful gowns, and is sweetly natural and dainty. The farcical elements of the second act are materially helped by the quietly quaint and droll acting of Mr. A. W. Baskcomb as Tom, the cabin-boy, whose ambition to become a steward is ignored by his superiors. Melancholy has marked Tom for its own, and his woe-begone appearance and unhappy experiences evoke some of the loudest laughter heard during the evening. To Miss Fanny Brough, who completes the cast of principals as Lady Steyne, is given speeches of biting satire, and the scorn with which she withers the backsliding Lord Steyne is as effective as it is amusing. Mr. Henry Stephenson does exceedingly well as the Captain of the yacht, and the parts of Naylor and the boatman are adequately presented by Mr. E. W. Laceby and Mr. Edgar B. Payne. The Early Worm should be providing hilarious evenings at Wyndham's for many nights to come. It is cleverly written and cleverly played.

The curtain-raiser, adapted from a story by Tom Gallon by Leon M. Lion, is entitled

"FILBY THE FAKER."

John Griffin ..... MR. W. BRANDON
Lucy Winwood ..... MISS MARY LESLIE
Dr. Arthur Wakefield ..... MR. FORBES DAWSON
Timothy Filby ..... MR. BEN NATHAN

This piece, originally known as The Fairy Uncle when it was produced at the New Theatre on Nov. 28 last year, brings back to the London stage Mr. Ben Nathan, who as Filby, the self-sacrificing convict, makes a hit by a capital piece of character acting. He is well supported by Mr. Forbes Dawson as Dr. Wakefield, Miss Mary Leslie as Lucy Winwood, and Mr. W. Brandon as John Griffin.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

In a chat with a Daily Telegraph representative on Thursday Mr. Stoll said: "I have the firmest belief that the regulations of the proposed scheme will be conformed to by practically every music hall and variety theatre in the land. I am now in negotiations, already far advanced, for the inclusion of the houses controlled by Mr. Walter de Frece."

Miss Marie Lloyd has been recently offered the whole of the box office receipts to appear this season in America; but English proprietors are much too enterprising to allow the queen of variety comediennes to depart from these shores, and will not release her from engagements long since signed for. Marie Lloyd's comment is: "'Tis true 'tis pity, and pity 'tis 'tis true."

"We are to have Mlle. Genée at the Empire for another week," so Mr. Hitchins informed our representative on Wednesday, and there will therefore be further opportunities of seeing the brilliant dancer in The Dryad, Dora Bright's charming little pantomime play. Her place in Coppélia will, however, be taken by Mlle. Lydia Kyaksht.

To succeed Mlle. Genée at the Empire is a task sufficient to tax the resources of the most experienced dancer. But Mlle. Kyaksht has made a beginning, which leaves no sort of doubt of her success. Her dances with M. Adolf Bolm have been received each evening with fervour and enthusiasm, and there can be no doubt that the Empire patrons have vindicated the judgment of the directors.

Mr. Harry Lauder on Thursday gave a special "command" performance before the King at Rufford Abbey. Mr. Lauder travelled in full Highland costume, and there was an enthusiastic crowd of his admirers at King's Cross to see him off. His place at the Tivoli was taken by his brother, Mr. Alick Lauder.

Miss Daisy Wood, who sailed on Wednesday by the Cunarder Etruria to fulfil an engagement in America, with Mr. William Morris, had enthusiastic receptions on Saturday at her farewell appearances at the Chelsea Palace, Hammersmith Palace, and the Oxford. Miss Wood is returning early in December to take up the part of principal girl in Mr. Chute's forthcoming pantomime of Aladdin at the Prince's Theatre, Bristol.

Miss Nellie Wallace relates the following funny incident. She had just made her appearance on a provincial stage after some performing seals. No sooner had she commenced her song when one of the amphibians reappeared, "and raised an unearthly howl as soon as I had got my first note out. He continued to howl all the time, and refused to budge. Of course, I soon stopped, but finding that he stopped too, I went on again, only to find the annoyance repeated. The audience were in roars. At last a man rushed on, and together we hauled the brute off the stage. But it was some time before I recovered my composure, and my performance was quite spoint by the incident."

Mr. Will Bennett, the popular Hippodrome Press agent, has been presented by Mr. Frank Bostock, of the Earl's Court Jungle, with a baby lion. When Mr. Bennett arrived at his offices in Cranbourn-street on Tuesday the young cub, with a steel chain round its neck, had taken possession of the firegrate. The Press agent spent several hours last night in trying to find a suitable name for Mr. Bostock's present, but he was unsuccessful, and the public are invited to send in suggestions.

Mr. Bert Wickham, the well-known athlete, his manager, Mr. Evans, and Mr. Ben de Frece, manager of the Hippodrome, Colchester, had an exciting experience in the recent fire at the Market Hotel, Birmingham. On receiving the alarm from Mr. Rowland, the proprietor, the three gentlemen named made their way to the ground floor.

Mr. Wickham then got on to the roof and attempted to keep back the flames by means of buckets of water handed to him through one of the hotel windows. Eventually a hose-pipe was got to work, and, standing upon a sloping roof four storeys high, Mr. Wickham, despite the peril of his position, played upon the flames. Mr. De Frece took up his position on an adjoining flat roof, where Mr. Wickham eventually joined him. The pair continued to assist the firemen by playing steadily upon the flames.

Alec Hurley and company will appear at the Hackney Empire next week in the successful comedy-scena The Costers' Beano. The story has local colouring, and teems with life. Its bustle, its pathetic touches, its excitement, and, more than all, the admirable singing of the coster's "love" song by Alec Hurley, make it a production to be remembered.

Miss Madge Temple, one of the few musical comedy stars who have scored genuine and deserved success on the variety stage, has in preparation a most elaborate scena, shortly to be produced at the London Coliseum. For one week prior to her appearance in London Miss Temple will fulfill a starring engagement at Southsea, commencing next Monday.

The tabloid version of Il Trovatore, given so excellently at the Oxford by Mr. Charles Fisher's Pocket Opera Company, has been listened to with great delight by packed houses at the Oxford this week. "The Tempest of the Heart," the Miserere music, and other popular numbers have elicited loud applause, and the enthusiasm of music-lovers has resulted in curtain calls. The Oxford revives its ancient operatic traditions under newer and more artistic conditions, and this is a fact on which the management may be congratulated.

Miss Katie Lawrence, one of our brightest comediennes, has been secured for London, Collins's, and Camberwell, and will start work almost immediately. The improvement in the serious condition of Mr. George Fuller, upon whom she has been in constant attendance for four months, has enabled her to resume business.

A party of Americans were being shown round the East End by Mr. Tom MacNaughton and Miss Alice Lloyd. Among them were Mr. George Leventhrit, a New York lawyer, and Mr. Jack Goodson, a music hall agent. While walking down Middlesex-street they heard a beautiful voice singing the simple ballad—"Why do they ask you if I love you?"

Miss Ruth Davenport, whose singing did so much for the popularity of Gretna Green and other delightful productions at the Alhambra, is to take the title-rôle in a reproduction of Dorothy on the 28th inst. at the Grand, Glasgow. This will be under the stage direction of Mr. Charles Wilson, Mr. Oswald Stoll's producer, and it is interesting to learn that Mr. Arthur Williams and Mr. Hayden Coffin will play their original parts of Lurcher and Harry Sherwood. The Geoffrey Wilder will be Mr. John Coates, who will be remembered at the Alhambra as the singer of the late Sir Arthur Sullivan's last song, "The Absent-minded Beggar," in 1899. Mr. Coates has done some excellent operatic work since. The opera will be toured in the provinces and suburbs.

The New Hippodrome, Peterborough, was sold on Wednesday by Messrs. Willder and Willder, of 240, High Holborn, for £1,540. The property is held on lease direct from the Corporation of the town for a term of ten years from March 25, 1907, at a ground rent of £100. It seats 800.

The proprietors of the new Hippodrome erected at Devonport are a small syndicate, under the chairmanship of Mr. Alfred Moul, the house, in its management, being allied to the United County Theatres, which controls the Palace Theatre, Plymouth.

On Friday, the 4th, the new house was granted a full licence by the Devonport Watch Committee, and to-day a commemoration tablet will be unveiled by the Mayor of Devonport, Mr. Richard Smerdon, in the presence of about 150 of the leading officials and citizens of the town. Subsequently all those present will be entertained at luncheon on the stage, Mr. Moul presiding.

The work of the construction of this beautiful house of entertainment has proceeded most expeditiously under the guidance of Mr. Bertie Crewe, the architect, and the contractors, Messrs. Parkinson, of Blackpool. After Wednesday's inspection by the Watch Committee, the theatre was found to be fully equipped and practically ready for immediate opening. The first performance takes place on Monday evening next, when a strong programme has been provided. The theatre will fill a much-needed want in Devonport, and the enterprise of the proprietors in erecting a variety house of such excellence has caused lively satisfaction.

The King's Theatre, Southsea, which had to close its doors to dramatic business, is now under the management of Mr. Claude Marner, who is acting for Messrs. Barrasford and company, and is doing excellent business on the two-houses-a-night plan.

The Empire, George-street, Aberdeen, will be reopened for the season on Monday, under the management of those skilled entertainers, Messrs Robert Calder and James Montagu, who conducted the place with so much success last year.

A new house, the Gaiety, which is run by the Aberdeen Cinematograph Bureau, with Mr. Dave Paterson, the popular entertainer and lantern expert, as sale-manager, was opened in Ship-row on Monday. Bailie Alex. Wilkie, J.P., presided at the opening function. Mr. Paterson gave a splendid display of cinematograms and he was ably assisted in the work by his son, Mr. Leo Paterson. Two shows are given nightly. The audiences are gratifyingly large.

Mr. John Stephen, who was lessee of the Alhambra, Aberdeen, from fifteen to twenty years ago, died on Monday. The deceased, who was about fifty-four years of age, had a host of friends in the profession. For many years he occupied the extensive wine and spirit vaults in Guild-street. This in its day was a noted "variety house."

Subsequently Mr. Stephen was proprietor of the Gordon Arms Hotel at Culter on Deeside. Latterly he acted as traveller to an important firm of Aberdeen wine merchants and whiskey blenders. As the deceased gentleman was one of the most generous and lavishly hospitable of men as well as a fine sportsman, his death will be sincerely regretted by all who knew him.

Mr. William Coutts, the manager of the Star, Swansea, on Sunday gave another proof of his charitable instincts by arranging two Sunday concerts at the Star and Palace, the total proceeds of which were given to the widows and children of the sailors who lost their lives by the wreck of the Amazon, near Swansea. Mr. Coutts's efforts resulted in over £40 being raised.

Mr. Reg. H. Foster is having a complimentary benefit at the Palace Theatre, Halifax, by kind permission of Mr. Frank Macnaghten, on Thursday next, Sept. 17. The strong bill on that occasion will include the popular Yorkshire favourite Jack Pleasants, and the company for the matinée, it is hoped, will be augmented by well-known performers from adjacent towns. Mr. Foster, who has been at Halifax for nearly two years, was formerly manager of the Palace, Bradford.

The benefit given to Mr. Chas. Fox, jun., at the Palace, Douglas, on Tuesday was a grand and convincing testimony of public favour. Everyone seemed determined to make the occasion a brilliant success, and they succeeded to the top of their bent. Lord and Lady Raglan and a considerable party from Government House witnessed the brilliant scene in the ballroom, and during the evening Lord Raglan, from a box in the Opera House, had an opportunity of witnessing some of the best turns in the comprehensive and varied programme.

The list is as follows:—Professor Norton, sleight-of-hand expert; Dot Stephens, refined comedienne; Selbo, wonderful club juggler; Wilson Hallett, mimic of children; the Violas, mental telepathists; Frank Leon, dancing expert; Vernon Quartette of Lady vocalists; Rapoli, sensational juggler; Horace Wheatley, Irish comedian and dancer; Burley and Burley, acrobatic comedians; Ouida Macdermott, vocal actress; Burke, Andrus, and Frisco, in absurdity; and the Royal Comedy Entertainers.

The varieties were not altogether confined to the Opera House. In the ballroom there was a Veleta competition for generous prizes, which resulted in some twenty couples entering the ring; and a special display of films. The grounds were beautifully illuminated.

The annual outing of the Bristol Palace Theatre staff took place on Sunday, the favoured spot being Weston-super-Mare. The weather was all that could be desired, and as the journey was made viâ Brockley Coombe, the drive was greatly enjoyed. At this delightful spot luncheon was taken, and after about three-quarters of an hour's break the journey was resumed. Weston was reached in time for a capital dinner.

There was a short toast-list. Mr. F. J. V. Welchman, in proposing the health of Mr. Horace Livermore (resident-manager), referred in felicitous terms to the excellent feeling that existed between that gentleman and the staff. The party, numbering about sixty, were conveyed by a motor char-à-banc and a two-in-hand. Home was reached at 9.45.

Mr. Bert Dent, the well-known and popular manager of the Palace of Varieties, Greenwich, for the last six years, has severed his connection with that house, at one time known as the Parthenon.

At the close of the Scottish National Exhibition, Edinburgh, 1908, on Oct. 31, the following attractions are for sale:—The great Canadian water chute, with double electric lift and twelve boats; and the flying machine, an entirely new model, with eight cars; the Spider's Web Maze, covering 1¼ miles of intricate passages; the Moulin Rouge, a helter-skelter windmill, the highest ever built; four Venetian gondolas from Venice, almost new; and the Hall of Laughter, with distorting mirrors, jumping floor, and other mechanical effects. The Director, Popular Amusements, Ltd., Scottish National Exhibition, Edinburgh, will give all necessary information.

The production of A Ride to Win takes place on Monday at the Empire Palace, Croydon (in lieu of Rotherhithe). The play, which deals with the Turf, is by Mr. John F. Preston.

Mirzka Gynt, a poor Polish lad recently singing in the streets of Whitechapel, is to appear at the American Theatre, New York, for £50 a week. This Ghetto ballad-singer's swift rise from poverty to wealth is due to a lucky chance.

Harry Randall, Herbert Shelley, and Dan Rolyat have been spending an enjoyable week's holiday on the Harbourne golf links. We have no record of any gags cracked on the green, and even the rollicking Rolyat's remarks when his approach shot was "bunkered" have not reached us.

"It sounds like Caruso," said Miss Lloyd. "Let's wait and hear the finish." When the unseen singer had ended his song they walked on, and presently the same voice started again. As they turned the corner they saw a poor lad, with his foot in the half-opened door of a public-house, singing to those inside in the hope of getting pennies. Calling the singer to them, they asked him to come to the Monte Carlo offices in Berners-street. Mirzka Gynt is now being taught to read music, while Messrs. Orlando Powell and J. P. Harrington are writing a series of new ballads for him.

We regret to hear that Miss Gwennie Hasto is seriously ill at Darlington with acute pleurisy, and has had to cancel all her engagements indefinitely.

The Meymotts (Jack and Ada) are having an exciting time in Australia. On their arrival in Melbourne they were on the bill in "invisible type." Their success, however, was such that the next issue of posters found them at the top, in type that was very much seen. They have established some sort of a record in their popular sketch of Semi-Detached.

Mr. Ben Nathan is making his return to the theatrical stage this week at Wyndham's in the character of Filby the Faker, in the play of that name. He will be remembered also as a clever mimic and comedian on the variety stage, and those accustomed to regard Ben only as a smart business man would be surprised at his rare versatility. Those who visit Wyndham's will discover in him, at any rate, a character-actor of remarkable merit.

Mr. Maurice Farkoa contradicts emphatically the statement made on the authority of Mr Henry S. Hart that the latter has booked him at the Holborn Empire.

To Mr. Alec Johnstone, the manager of Messrs. Arthur and Mills' troupe at Eastbourne, a complimentary benefit was given on Friday of last week. A very large audience filled the Pier Pavilion, and when Mr. Johnstone appeared he was greeted with a reception which left no doubt as to his popularity and success. A handsome umbrella was also given to him by the boys and girls of the troupe.

Mrs. Harry Bawn (My Fancy) on Wednesday at 2 p.m. will lay the foundation stone of the new Empire, Edmonton. The new house will be adjacent to Lower Edmonton Station (G.E.R.). Mr. Harry Bawn, the chairman of the board of directors, will have the support and experience of Mr. Jesse Sparrow, Mr. Henry Bolding, and Mr. E. B. Marshall Frost in the control of the latest amusement house in London beyond the border. The house will open Christmas week.

The success of Mr. Biff Hall at the Empress, Brixton, last week has resulted in a series of engagements with a West End syndicate. London is always ready to receive a new turn, and Mr. Hall has certainly meet with the approval of the public and the managers.

Miss Haidee Vorzanger, the child violinist, secured the praise of Mr. Dan Godfrey, the conductor of the Winter Gardens, Bournemouth, where she played with his excellent orchestra, the Mendelssohn Concerto and various other difficult solos. At Buxton she played under the baton of Mr. Lyell Taylor; and at Harrogate, under the conductorship of Julian Clifford. Miss Vorzanger will play at a recital in London at the end of October at the Bechstein Hall, under the direction of Carl Yongermann.

Miss Doris Dean, who makes such an attractive figure of "The statue come to life" at the London Pavilion, writes to say that the song was written for her by Mr. Percy Greenbank, the music being by Mr. Herbert E. Haines. Miss Dean has been engaged for Christmas at Newcastle, making her sixth pantomime with Mr. Robert Arthur.

Mrs. Stanislaus Calhaem is showing the value of ripe experience and the real histrionic gift by her clever impersonation at the Holloway Empire this week. Araminta, in Davy Garrick (the playlet presented by Mr. Hubert Carter), has comic responsibilities, and Mrs. Calhaem, by her breadth of style and command of drollery, extracts every ounce of humour from the part.

A judgment of prime importance to trade unionists and labour leaders was given in Paris by M. Henriquez, the juge de paix of the 10th Ward on Thursday. It had reference to the strike of electricians, which, though it lasted only two hours, had disastrous results to the cafés and theatres. When the electric light failed performances in some theatres and music halls had to be stopped, café-keepers had to resort to candles and Chinese lanterns, but these improvised illuminants did not prevent their takings from being seriously affected.

Neither the managers of theatres nor the proprietors of cafés thought of taking action against the person who had caused this serious loss and inconvenience. It remained for the music-hall artist to take this step. They had lost their pay for the night, and they took acion for damages agains M. Pataud, the secretary of the Electricians' Union. They have won their case, M. Pataud being called upon to pay each his night's salary and the costs of the action.

All the scenes and incidents relative to the launch of His Majesty's ship St. Vincent were shown on the Urbanora Bioscope on Thursday evening at the Palace Theatre. Several photographing machines were requisitioned, and not only has the actual launch been taken, but also a unique series depicting the preparations made prior to the event.

Little Zola returns to London on Oct. 12, to Walham Green, after a successful Stoll tour. Mr. Stoll has secured his services until 1912. He is, however, vacant for Christmas. During thirteen pantomime engagements Little Zola has never been absent from a single performance. This constitutes a record.

Master Max Darewski, the famous boy composer, conductor, and pianist, had indeed a royal reception on Tuesday, when he made his reappearance at the Winter Gardens, Bournemouth, before crowded houses both afternoon and evening. His rendering of the most difficult piano solos by the great masters was astounding, and the thorough and masterful way he conducted the band was amazing. We can only endorse the words of Mmes. Patti and Melba and M. Paderewski, "The child is a genius of the highest magnitude."

Miss Harriett Vernon produced her new and original scena, entitled A Yule-Tide Story, at the Hippodrome, Hulme, Manchester. It proved at once another sensational success, the audience being unanimous in their appreciation. The beautiful setting is by Mr. F. le Maitre, Manchester.

There will be an interesting ceremony at the Church of the Ascension, Lavender-hill, on Sunday, when Miss Grace Grahame will be godmother at the christening of Miss Marjorie Grace Georgina, the newest arrival in the family of Gilbert Wells, the popular song-writer. Mr. George Beard, the well-known sport and friend of the profession, is the male sponsor on this occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Lucas have been rebooked by Mr. Oswald Stoll into 1911 at a big increase of salary, after he had personally seen their act, and also by Mr. Walter Gibbons, Mr. Bostock, and Mr. Dan Godfrey on the same conditions. This week they are at the top of the bill at the Palace, Douglas, where their success has brought them offers for next season at the popular seaside resort in Manxland.

Mr. Harry Bedford is a comedian of distinct individuality, and at the South London this week he is singing a couple of songs in which his quaintness takes a new turn. It was not to be expected that the Old Age Pensions would long remain without treatment on the music hall stage, and Mr. Bedford's latest song takes a comic view of the subject. He impersonates a shabby individual who keenly looks forward to "sweet seventy," when he will take his princely pension and be eligible again for matrimony. In addition to its humorous rhyme the song boasts a tuneful refrain, which was taken up with unanimity.

"The Salome Dance," which has been burlesqued from many standpoints, is also travestied by Mr. Bedford, who, as a harassed husband, tells how his wife has caught the "Salome" craze, and walks around at all hours of the night bearing a plate on which a sheep's head reposes. Mr. Bedford accompanies his songs with the oddest antics and quaintest steps, and gains much laughter. The chorus of his second effusion has a rhythmical lilt which cannot be resisted, and the refrain will probably become as popular with the multitude as did the comedian's former song, "A little bit off the top."

The blind boy, Albert Marsh, for whom the St. Albans Board of Guardians has arranged special musical tuition to enable him to sit for the examination of the Royal College of Music, recently gave the members of the Board a demonstration of his musical abilities. Marsh is not ten years old, and has been blind from birth, but he executed upon the pianoforte intricate compositions of a classical character with accuracy, brilliant technique, and excellent expression. Pieces of his own composition which he also played disclosed talent.

Mr. J. Gar Kiddie's House of Tinn is one of the liveliest absurdities imaginable, and such a fruitful source of honest laughter is naturally fully booked this year, its first vacant date being May 31, 1909. Its success is well deserved.

Mr. F. A. Fullagar has resigned his directorship of Walter Tyler, Ltd., and has opened offices under the name of F. A. Fullagar and Co., at 10, Cecil-court, Charing Cross-road, W.C. His specialities will be cinematographs, films, song slides, and posters. Artists would do well to pay him a visit.

Miss Cressie Leonard, the charming comedienne who made such a hit in the Kennington pantomime last Christmas, opens at the Tivoli and Brixton Empress on Monday next with new Irish songs and dances. Miss Leonard, who has been taking a holiday in her native land, will be principal boy in the forthcoming Nottingham pantomime.

Mr. Fred Boulton, who is engaged by Mr. Chas. Elderton to play the part of Will Atkins in his forthcoming pantomime, has purchased the pantomime rights of John E. Coyle's famous song, "Don't you think he ought to see a doctor?" which has been one of his biggest successes at his alfresco entertainments at Cheltenham this season.

Mr. George Zalva, the popular proprietor and caterer, leaves England on Wednesday for a trip abroad, visiting Berlin, Vienna, Frankfort, and returning by way of Paris and London, in search of novelties for Hengler's Cirque, Glasgow; the Yarmouth and Lowestoft Hippodromes, New Palaces at Exeter and Gorleston, and other ventures in which he is interested.

Mr. Vernon Pierson, the famous flute and piccolo soloist, will shortly make his first appearance on the halls, in a new comedy sketch, written for him by Neville Lynn, entitled An Alpine Adventure, which deals with the experiences of a merry Swiss goat-herd and a dashing young English lady, both stranded in a mountain hut for the night through the fall of a glacier. Mr. Pierson, who is largely known in the profession as the "Paderewski of the Piccolo," introduces both flute and piccolo solos in the sketch, and also, very appropriately, some of Rossini's magnificent Guillaume Tell music.

Mr. Charles Evans, the popular general-manager of the Hall-by-the-Sea, Margate, took his annual complimentary benefit on Wednesday evening, when every inch of the floor-space in the commodious concert-room was filled. Among those who gave Mr. Evans their patronage were the Mayor (Mr. D. T. Evans), Mr. Harry Rickards, theatrical proprietor, of Sydney, Melbourne, Adelaide, and Perth, Australia (who is staying at Chapel Hill, Margate, whilst on vacation in Europe), and most of the prominent residents in the district.

The programme, a long and varied one, was much enjoyed. Æolia opened with his sensational act on the high trapeze, followed by Charles Williams, vocal comedian, Leoville, the lady wire-walker, and Mostol, musical entertainer, who elicited applause. Miss Fifi Gordon and her talented girls gave their picturesque song scena, My Tiny Firefly, and the Dutch operetta, New Sabots. Allsopp and Bekwith, vaudeville entertainers, were extremely good, and George Kenway, a clever mimic and entertainer, was vociferously encored. Harry Edson and his dog evoked enthusiasm; Miss Sybil Montague, ballad vocalist, sang with good effect; Arthur J. Hill, in his Lilliputian act, came in for popular favour; and Mr. Eric Williams recited with good effect "The Surgeon's Child." Poole and Maguire, in their duet, took the house by storm, and a capital finish was put upon an enjoyable entertainment by Billy Hobbs, the coon delineator, whose amusing songs and neat dancing roused the audience to enthusiasm.

Following the concert there were some fireworks, and the evening concluded with a grand ball. The floor of the magnificent ballroom was inconveniently crowded, but dancing under the direction of Mr. W. Dennis, the courteous M.C., was kept up to midnight, to which time an extension had been granted by the magistrates. During the evening Mr. Evans was made the recipient of a walking-stick, handsomely mounted in silver, by the members of the male staff. The presentation was made by Mr. C. Hunter, one of the oldest members of the staff, in a few appropriate words expressive of their regard and esteem, and the gift was gratefully acknowledged.

It is with much regret that we announce the death of Mrs. Bond Sayers, wife of the London Pavilion musical director, who passed away on Tuesday at Rutland House nursing home, after an operation for tumour. The operation was quite successful, but pneumonia set in, and from this there was no possibility of recovery. Mrs. Bond-Sayers during her short professional life was known as Dollie Morell, under which name she played several engagements at the London and provincial halls. She met Mr. Bond-Sayers at Hastings, and they were married there nine years ago.

The amiable qualities of the deceased lady endeared her to a large circle, and in her flat at Ridgmount-gardens she entertained largely. The sympathy shown by the profession to Mr. Bond-Sayers, who is known to his many friends as "Patsy," has been widespread, and he finds it impossible to reply individually to the number of telegrams and letters that have been sent. He desires, however, to convey through our columns his grateful thanks to the senders, and to say how much he has been touched by them in his deep sorrow.

The funeral took place on Friday, the interment being at Kensal Green. The polished oak casket bore the inscription,

Dorothy Bond-Sayers,
Died Sept. 8, 1908,
Aged 37 years.

On the lid was placed a large heart in white asters, with the simple inscription in heliotrope flowers, "From Patsy." This was the tribute of the bereaved husband. A cross from Mother and Eva, and a harp from Sister Millie and George were also placed on the coffin. Among the flowers sent by private friends were a large white cushion with the word "Dollie" in heliotrope bloom from Mr. and Mrs. David Levy, and other flower memorials were sent by Phœbe Yuta, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hopkins, Dr. Sandford Arnott, Mr. Rosenfeld, Mrs. Nanson, Talbot. and Nora, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hopkins, Mr. and Mrs. J. Addlestone, and from the coachman, personal maid, and domestics.

The impressive cortège consisted of an open car (drawn by four horses), which conveyed the massive oak coffin, an open landau laden with flowers, and some dozen carriages, with the mourners and friends. The Rev. T. Richardson officiated, both in the chapel and at the grave, which was choicely lined and banked with white chrysanthemums and evergreens. Messrs. Maxwell Bros., of Brixton-road and Streatham, satisfactorily carried out the funeral arrangements.

Among the mourners were the husband and his mother, Mrs. Bond-Sayers, and Mr. and Mrs. McCormick (sister and brother-in-law). In the second carriage were Miss Eva Sayers, Mrs. John Nanson, Mr. Talbot Nanson, Miss Norah Nanson. Miss Marie Lloyd followed in the third carriage, with Mrs. Bathurst, Miss Trissie Bathurst, and Miss Bella Burge. In the other carriages were Mr. and Mrs. de Reeder, Mr. Cyril Smith, Mr. B. Friedberg, Miss Lay, Miss Marriott, Miss Carter, Miss Shephard, Miss Callcutt, Mrs. David Levy, and Mrs. David Carpenter. Others present at the graveside included Mr. Frank Glenister, Mr. Will Sampson, Mr. Fred MacAvoy, Dr. Sandford Arnott, Mr. Harry H. Marks, Captain L. Bell, Mr. J. H. Montague, Mr. G. Dyball, Mr. S. Bartlett, Mr. T. Perry, Mrs. Alfred Harris, Miss Millie Hylton, Mrs. Bannister Howard, and Mrs. Arthur Ansell.

Many and beautiful were the floral tokens of sympathy sent by friends and brother and sister artists. From Miss Marie Lloyd came a lovely wreath of mauve orchids and Scotch heather. Others of the Lloyd family who sent flowers in sweet remembrance were Rosie Lloyd, Mr. and Mrs. H. Aylin (Little Marie), Miss Ella Lane, Mr. Alec Hurley, and Mr. and Mrs. Tom McNaughton (Alice Lloyd). Other wreaths came from Mr. and Mrs. E. Romaine, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Elen, Mr. and Mrs. G. Mozart, Mr. and Mrs. Louis de Reeder, Mr. and Mrs. Marie Dainton, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Stuart, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Honri, Miss Millie Hylton, Miss Queenie Lawrence, the Directors and Managers of the London Pavilion, the Orchestra there, Mr. and Mrs. Bannister Howard, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Levy, Mr. Lay, Ellen, and Lottie, the London Pavilion Stage Staff, Mr. and Mrs. Whit Cunliffe, Mr. and Mrs. J. Harris (Clifton Gardens), Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Flateau and family, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ansell, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ansell, Mlle. Lodora, Mr. F. G. Rodger, the Thames Valley Yacht Club, Mr. J. L. Symon, Mr. Fred W. McAvoy, Mr. and Mrs. J. Nathan, Mr. Hugo Lustig, the company at the London Pavilion, Mr. and Mrs. Wilkie Bard, Miss "Trissie" Bathurst, Captain and Mrs. Bathurst, Mr. and Mrs. Neil Kenyon, Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett, Miss May Henderson, Miss Jennie Hartley, Mr. Edwin Boyde, Master Cyril Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Whelan, Mr. J. Lowman, Frank and Lydia Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Cross, Frank Adee, and Charlie Parker.

Mr. Chas. C. Ommanney is appearing, with his company, at the Empress, Brixton, next week in a military dramatic scena entitled The Last Shot. This piece is written by Mr. Sydney Bowkett, and Mr. Ommanney is well supported in his representation of it by a strong cast, which includes Mr. Sidney Kearns, Mr. J. Gillespie, and Miss Maggie Byron. The piece represents an incident in the American Civil War.

Miss Carrie Swain, whose recent success at the Coliseum is well remembered, has just completed an engagement at the Tivoli, Manchester. Miss Swain, whose name is a household word in both America and Australia, has spent several years in Paris under the tutelage of Mme. Mathilde Marchesi, who has every reason to be proud of her brilliant pupil. Miss Swain returns to the United States under the management of Mr. J. Duff, and will be seen in comic opera, playing leading rôles.

Miss Annie Charnley, of The Charnleys, is now working a single turn under the name of Nellie Neil, and meeting with big success in her dainty songs and dances. She is appearing this week at the Bedford, and is getting well booked ahead.

Mr. Maurice H. Hoffman's latest production, The Martyrdom of Michael, the notice of which appeared in our last issue, has been secured for the Syndicate halls through the agency of Mr. Harry Day. It is written by the successful author, Mr. Leonard Mortimer.

The Gipsies and their Jester, on their return to the Leas Pavilion, Folkestone, on Monday, had a most enthusiastic reception from a crowded house. Their performance is extremely smart and always up to date.

The annual picnic of the staff of the Middlesbrough Empire on Sunday last was enjoyed by a party of nearly fifty, who were accommodated in special saloons on the rail journey to Darlington, where brakes were in readiness to convey them, viâ Staindrop and Raby Castle, to Barnard Castle. The lunch at the King's Head Hotel, Barnard Castle, was fully appreciated, and the afternoon was spent in a quiet ramble through the woods, tea being provided immediately before the return journey. The drive home viâ Gainford was most enjoyable. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to Mr. Charles Rembges, the popular manager.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

THIS is an age of combines, and the interesting news that reaches us from America of the amalgamation in New York of two great music-publishing concerns—to wit, Messrs. T. B. Harms and Co. and Messrs. Francis and Day—has caused some little surprise across the "pond," but it is the most natural thing in the world when the ties which have existed between the two firms for many years are considered. Long before the advent in New York of the English house as an independent concern the firm of Messrs. T. B. Harms and Co. acted as Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter's agents, and even when the latter firm started for themselves Mr. Louis Dreyfus, of the American firm, continued the association as their travelling representative. In this way the common interests of the two business concerns were more closely bound together, and their amalgamation as one house should effect a considerable saving so far as actual expense is concerned.

BOTH Mr. Fred Day and Mr. Max Dreyfus—a gentleman to whose executive ability the past success of the T. B. Harms Co. (since the death of the founders of the firm) is due—have been overwhelmed with messages of congratulation and good wishes from the Press, the publishers, and the music trade. The future policy of the new firm comprises extensive and ambitious projects which will have far-reaching effects on the musical education of Young America, and to that end arrangements have been concluded to obtain the American rights of the high-class catalogues of music-teaching pieces of the Berlin houses of Simrock and Bote and Bock and the London firm of Larway.

UNDER the name of T. B. Harms and Francis, Day, and Hunter, the concern has been incorporated at Albany with a nominal capital of 25,000 dols. The business of Messrs. Francis and Day is likely to remove in the near future to 1431, Broadway, where already an entire enormous floor has been acquired. Mr. Max Dreyfus will be president of the new concern, Mr. Fred Day treasurer, whilst Mr. Louis Dreyfus (secretary), who accompanied Mr. Fred Day on his recent visit to England, will, as in the past, take charge of the retail trade branch, assisted by Mr. John Abbott, who will shortly start on a tour of the West in the interests of the amalgamated concern.

MR. JEROME D. KERN, the popular young composer, will give his attention to the composition of comic operas and high-class numbers for interpolation. Whilst every attention will be paid to Messrs. Francis and Day's Charing Cross-road novelties, the new combine will not in future interest themselves in what is known as "popular music," but comic operas, high-class production numbers, and ballads will find a prominent place in its catalogue.

FATHER CHRISTMAS will soon have to be thinking about his annual novelties, for already Messrs. Francis and Day's portentious list of dance music, suitable for the festive season, is attracting the attention of the trade, and the votaries of terpsichore will have a bewildering number of plums to tire themselves out to when the Christmas party and ball season arrives. Among the acquisitions of the famous house may be mentioned "Lamora," the round dance which was awarded first honours by the British Association of Teachers of Dancing, and which is by W. M. Primrose and Walter Jennings; "The Wilton" square dance (also a first prize in its class), by G. F. Childs and Celian Kottaun; "The Alma," by Mrs. Tom Walton and Luke Cavendish Everett; "The Boston" (two step), by Tom Walton and Luke Cavendish Everett; "The Territorial" (two step), awarded first prize by the United Kingdom Association of Teachers of Dancing, by Arthur Morris; "The Elmaida" (round dance), by H. R. Johnson and Clement Harris; "The Sefton" (waltz), by J. B. McEwen and Luke Cavendish Everett; "The Excelsior" (waltz), by J. Finnigan and J. G. Hahn; "Valse Belvedere," awarded first prize by the Southern Association of Teachers of Dancing, by Charles Gardner and F. Brockett; "Halcyon Days" (waltz), by Henry Coates; "Cecelia" (waltz), by Henry E. Pether; and "Glasgow Belles" (dance), by Alfred Carpenter.

AMONG the songs just acquired by Messrs. Francis and Day are "Won't you come for a sail in my yacht?" by Stanley Damerell and Harry Lane; "Spring cleaning" (sung by Miss Amber Austa), by George Arthurs and C. W. Murphy; "When they ask you what your name is," by Castling and Godfrey; "Would you harmonise with me?" by Geo. Arthurs and C. W. Murphy; "I could get along so nicely with you," by George Arthurs and C. W. Murphy; "Wouldn't you like to be the bridegroom?" by Murphy and Lipton; "Goo-goo land," by F. W. Leigh and C. W. Murphy; "K-I-double T-Y," by Murphy and Lipton; "There's a pair of bright blue eyes" and "Come with me in my caravan," by T. W. Connor; "Oh what an exhibition!" (Ben Albert), by F. W. Leigh; "I'm happy" and "Nothing from nothing leaves me" (Miss Daisy Mayer), by Paul Knox; "Always smile" (Billy Bint), by J. H. Brownson and Orlando Powell; and "The land of promise."

MISS VESTA TILLEY'S newest purchase in the song line is entitled "No girl's a fairy," and is by Fred Leigh and Kenneth Lyle. Messrs. Francis and Day have secured it, and also another great star's recent acquisition, that is, Wilkie Bard's "She sells sea shells," by Terry Sullivan and Harry Gifford.

MR. R. G. KNOWLES, who has long been noted for his happy knack of acquiring only the best humorous songs, has at Richmond made a great hit with Charles Wilmott and Hermann E. Darewski's new number, "L S D," which the artist declares to be one of the very finest songs he has ever sung. It is in the press, and will be issued immediately by Messrs. Francis and Day. Mr. Knowles will shortly produce a ditty, entitled "The Daylight Bill; or, Altering the Clock," written by Edgar Bateman and T. M. Down, and composed by H. E. Darewski. This also will be issued by Mr. David Day's firm.

MISS MARGARET ASHTON, at the Tivoli, has riveted the attention of the huge houses during the week with two of Messrs. Francis and Day's publications, "Honey boy," by Jack Norworth and Albert von Tilzer, and "Wouldn't you like to learn to love me?" by Fred Day.

MR. HARRY LAUDER'S new chorus song "He was very, very kind to me," a humorous number, the words and music of which are both from his own pen, was not only the cause of some of the heartiest laughter at the Tivoli on Monday, but provoked one of the most rousing choruses from his huge crowd of admirers ever heard. It has already been issued by Messrs. Francis and Day.

MISS CRESSIE LEONARD will, on her return to the Tivoli on Monday, introduce Murphy and Lipton's pretty number, "Who's the lucky boy?" This is the song with which Miss Millie Legarde made such a pronounced hit on a recent visit to the Holborn Empire.

MR. BILLY WILLIAMS has during the week been scoring heavily with the same writers' "We don't want more daylight." Both the above songs have been secured by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter, who, by the way, also publish Murphy and Lipton's "Oh! Oh! Antonio," so successfully exploited by Miss Florrie Forde.

FEDERATIONS AND FUNDS.

THE elected committees of the Trades Union Congress struck off the list on Monday the Artists' Protection League, which sits in Mitre-court, Strand, on the ground that it is not a bona-fide trade union.

THIS action of the Congress has prevented the resolution concerning the licensing laws as they affect artists, variety and legitimate theatres, and the actor, which was down in the agenda in the names of the A.P.L. and the A.U., coming before the delegates to be voted upon. The resolution was framed on such broad lines that it covered all the grievances and absurdities of the present laws regulating theatres and halls—anomalies that have been pointed out in these columns again and again. The resolution put forward by the V.A.F. was withdrawn.

THE musicians, through their secretary, Mr. J. B. Williams, carried two resolutions condemning the action of the Government in allowing Army and Navy bandsmen and police bandsmen to enter into unfair competition with civilian musicians. The resolutions were seconded by Mr. Will Johnson, secretary of the N.A.T.E.

As reported in the daily papers of yesterday, the position of the Artists' Protection League at the Trades Union Congress came up again on Thursday. The President of the Congress, Mr. David Shackleton, M.P., informed the Congress that the Parliamentary Committee considered that the action of the General Purposes Committee was wrong and the attitude adopted unfair to the defendant organisation. Questions like these should be dealt with by the Joint Board, which was formed for that purpose. The inquiry will be held early in October.

AT the committee meeting of the Music Hall Home at the Palace, Camberwell, on Thursday, Sept. 3, Mr. Percy Ford was in the chair. There were also present James Traynor (of Tray and Rich), C. C. Cornish, Joe Lawrence, P. A. Lennon, Ben Obo, Jim Obo, and Benj. Woodger (secretary). There are ten inmates at present, and the funds were reported to be running very low. The committee would be pleased to receive the contents of any boxes which are in the hands of many managers and workers. They thank Mr. E. E. Giles for collection of £2 1s. 6d., and appreciate the parcels of clothes sent by Harry Blake and L. A. Smith (of Smith and Johnson), a packet of cake tobacco from Mr. Hopter (the "pro.'s" frame maker, Oakley-street, Westminster), and a large quantity of fruit from Harold Hough per James Traynor.

THE general meeting of the Music Hall Home will be held at the Palace, Camberwell, on Thursday next, at 3 p.m., Mr. Harry Barnard being in the chair. All interested in the Home are asked to attend. The following gentlemen have been added to the list of committeemen:—James Elmo, Ted E. Box, George Pearson, Bert Chapman, Harold Hough, P. A. Lennon, Ben Obo, Jim Obo, and Harry Wright. The next committee meeting will be Oct. 1.

MRS. FRED GINNETT begs to tender her most sincere thanks to the ladies of the executive committee of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, who, on the occasion of the inauguration dinner at the Boulogne Restaurant on Sunday last, presented to her a magnificent gold curb chain bracelet, with padlock attachment, inscribed as follows:—"From the Committee to their President, Sept. 6, '08." Also for their artistic address and an elaborate basket of flowers, measuring 4ft. in height. The thanks, though simple, are very profound, no one being more surprised than the recipient. With such enthusiastic co-workers success to the Ladies' Guild seems assured; and Mrs. Ginnett will redouble her efforts.

THE usual monthly meeting of the committee of the Music Hall Sick Fund was held on Wednesday at the Crown Hotel, Charing Cross-road. In the unavoidable absence of the president (Mr. Fred Karno) the chair was taken by Mr. W. J. Wainratta, and there were also present Messrs. F. Heath, Geo. Fredericks, Fred D. Harris, Tom Carney, W. Brisco, H. E. High, T. B. Brydge, and R. T. Baines (secretary). Six new members were elected, and it was stated that this old-established society was now making most satisfactory progress. The next meeting will be held at the Crown Hotel (to which all communications should be sent) on the second Wednesday in October, at 4 p.m.

MISS EDITH CRUIKSHANKS, so long associated with musical comedy, is producing a sketch entitled Peter's Picture at the Bedford on Monday. The scene is laid in the picture gallery of a well-known collector, and is said to be extremely effective.

PRESENTATION.—Mr. Harry Jones, stage-manager at the Pavilion, Abertillery, was presented with a watch and chain on the occasion of his leaving the Pavilion to take up a similar position at Messrs. Tilney's Palace at Ebbw Vale. Mr. E. Pryce, manager, made the presentation.

MR. W. S. CROSS has taken over on lease the whole of the Winter Gardens, Southport, with the exception of the Opera House, and the motor garage that exists on the site of the old Hippodrome. The directors will adapt certain portions of the buildings for the purposes of a menagerie. At the same time they will erect others for the same purpose. Mr. Cross will also provide high-class variety entertainments in the Albert Hall, dancing and skating in the Conservatory, and has under consideration the provision of high-class concerts, &c., for the winter months. He hopes to open about Christmas.

MR. JULIAN CLIFFORD, the popular manager and musical-director of the Harrogate Kursaal, took his annual benefit on Saturday afternoon and evening. He had a host of well-known names on the bill, including Mme. Ella Russell, Mme. Alice Gomez, Mr. Ben Davies, Datas, Mr. Joseph Lycett, and Miss Fanny Wentworth. Master Herbert Julian Clifford, aged four, conducted the Harrogate Municipal Orchestra in Sousa's "Invincible Eagle" march, and the Hon. Mrs. Julian Clifford also sang. Master Clifford was presented with a handsome baton. The function was a great success, both from an artistic and financial point of view. After the performance Mr. Julian Clifford entertained the members of the orchestra to supper in the Spa Rooms.

MLLE. BRITTA PETERSEN, the young Danish dancer, who will probably be announced as Mlle. Britta, will make her début in the new romantic ballet due at the Alhambra early next month. The forthcoming production has for its subject old Spain, with a very picturesque setting closely associated with the Moorish occupation. The scenario is by Signor Curti, with music by Mr. George Byng. It will be in three scenes, and every opportunity will be given to the costumier and scenic artist to revel in the riot of colour the locality demands. On the production of the new ballet the Sal, Oh My! travesty will be withdrawn, to enable Mlle. Leonora to take a much-needed rest prior to her return to London to rehearse for an important production at the Alhambra early next year.

MUSIC HALL LADIES' GUILD DINNER.

The impulse given of late to charitable effort in its own behalf has been seen in the establishment on a sound basis of societies representative of both sexes in the variety profession. Of these, the Music Hall Ladies' Guild is some few months older than the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund, and each institution is making strenuous efforts to cope with the distress which unhappily exists in the ranks of the profession. The good work of the first-named society was partially revealed at their first annual dinner, which took place at the Boulogne Restaurant, Gerrard-street, on Sunday, when Mrs. FRED GINNETT, the president, occupied the chair. There were also present:—Mrs. Eugene Stratton (vice-president), Miss Belle Elmore (treasurer), Miss Melinda May (secretary), the Rev. Donald Hole (hon. secretary of the Actors' Church Union), and Mrs. Hole, Mr. C. Douglas Stuart (hon. secretary of the Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund), Mr. Fred Ginnett, Miss Constance Moxon, Miss Alice and Miss Elsie Chapin, Miss Freda Sharlotte, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Chapman, Mr. and Mrs. Max, Mrs. Herbert Shelley and Miss Shelley, Miss Millie Payne, Miss Rae, Mrs. Crowther, Miss Vivie, Miss Louie Davis, Mrs. Lockhart, Mrs. Mayer, Mrs. Bartlett, Mr. and Mrs. S. Aarons, Mrs. Pettitt, Mr. Harry Thurston, Mr. and Mrs. Honnest-Redlich, Miss Silvie, Mr. C. P. Richards, Mr. C. Mitchell, Miss Georgie Corlass, Mr. W. Skinner, Mr. and Mrs. Hitchings, Mr. Edgar White, Mr. A. Coles Armstrong, Dr. Crippen, Mr. Joe Clements, and Mr. Wm. Manning.

The men were in the minority, due no doubt to the meeting of the Variety Artists' Federation, which took place at the same time; but the cosy room was quite full, forty-five siting down to an excellent repast, and the enjoyment derived from the evening was such as to induce the generally-expressed hope that the function would become an annual one. The Theatrical Ladies' Guild, which has taken its sister society so cordially by the hand, was not represented in force, as many of the executive were at the time on vacation.

Mr. DOUGLAS STUART volunteered to act as "toastmaster," and under his direction the proceedings went very well. The secretary read telegrams from various sympathisers, regretting inability to be present, and also gave the following list of amounts subscribed:—Sir Edward and Lady Moss, 1 guinea; Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Irving, £3 3s.; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Chevalier, £2 2s.; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Passmore, £1 1s.; Mr. Walter De Frece and Miss Vesta Tilley, £1; Miss Marie Loftus, £1 1s.; La Milo, £1 1s.; Miss Queenie Leighton, £1 1s.; Little Tich, 15s.; Cinquevalli, £1 1s.; R. A. Roberts, 5s.; T. E. Dunville, £1 1s.; Harry Lauder, £1 1s.; Miss Millie Hylton, £1 1s.; Mr. Hibbert, £1 1s.; Variety Artists' Benevolent Fund, £2 2s.; and Mrs. Herbert Shelley, 10s.; Miss Topsy Sinden, 10s. 6d.; Mrs. Smith, 10s.; and 19s. kindly collected by Miss Louie Davis.

The PRESIDENT, who was very cordially received, proposed "The Guild and its Officers." As president of the Guild, she said she was very happy to say a few words regarding it. The Guild was founded on Sept. 5, 1906, just two years ago. She was the founder of the Guild, which started with the modest amount of 2s. 6d., but now they had a great deal more at their back. The cases they had helped ran into considerably over three hundred, but that estimate did not include the children, who averaged six to every case, and the poorer the family the more children there were. For their maternity cases they had a medical practitioner, who gave his services free, and a few hospital nurses also acted gratuitously. They thus had their doctor and nurses, and it remained for the Guild to supply milk and other nutritious food. When the baby arrived they supplied clothes, which were to be returned at the end of two months, if convenient; if it was not convenient, then they would forego the articles. If the patient was an artist the Guild endeavoured to find work. They asked managers to give her a chance, and it was gratifying to state that never once had they been refused. (Applause.) Sometimes they got gratitude for their work, sometimes indifference, but the former overbalanced the latter, and that was what made their work so pleasant. Mrs. Ginnett read a letter from a former recipient, full of gratitude for the assistance given by the Guild, by means of which an ailing child had been preserved from consumption. The speaker added she would not mention the writer of the letter, as it is one of the strongest and most stringent rules of the Guild never to disclose the names of their cases.

Mrs. EUGENE STRATTON announced that Miss Belle Elmore had something to say about their president, who, she said, had taken up the work most enthusiastically.

Miss ELMORE said she had a tribute to pay to their president. It was only the ladies of the committee who realised Mrs. Ginnett's generosity towards the Guild. She was always coming forward with assistance in every way, especially in finding material for their entertainments. She always said she "would see Fred about it," and "Fred" always saw it through, obtaining many influential performers. Words really failed her to express the gratitude they owed their president, and they had accordingly prepared a little surprise for that night to convey to her an earnest of their appreciation. Miss Elmore then presented to Mrs. Ginnett a monumental basket of flowers, in which was deposited a massive gold bangle. Accompanying the gift was an address on parchment in a silver frame, which read:—"To Mrs. Fred Ginnett, President of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild. We, the undersigned, your friends and associates of the committee, tender you with every respect and esteem this little token in the form of a golden bangle in appreciation of all the good works you have done for the Guild. All good-luck and prosperity." Here follow the signatures of the members of the executive.

Mrs. Ginnett was also presented with a pretty steel matinée bag by Miss May, the secretary.

Mrs. GINNETT confessed herself overwhelmed at the kindness thus shown her. Her first speech had not been half so difficult as the present, as she had been up in her room having a cut at it for hours during the day. Now, however, she had been taken completely by surprise. She was more than pleased by the presentation; she was honoured. She would never forget the kind words of the address, which went right to her heart. She had a little girl who would treasure the token after her, and might possibly act in the same capacity in years to come. She hoped that if, in the past, she had not done all that was expected of her, she certainly would do so in the few more months that she held that office. (Cheers.)

Miss MELINDA MAY, in proposing the toast of "The Visitors," said they were delighted to see everyone of them there that night, and trusted they had thoroughly enjoyed themselves, whilst assisting as well to help the funds. Perhaps there were some present who might not yet have been enlisted in their sacred cause, the highest cause in the whole world—charity. Had time permitted, she could have told some facts so distressing, and yet alas so true, that had come before her notice during the short time she had been with the Guild, investigating and searching to find the deserving cases, and to separate the sheep from the goats, to render immediate aid to those who are weak and ailing, and stricken with that awful disease which doctors cannot cure—poverty. They had heard a little of the work, and sincerely did she trust they might be granted grace and a pitying heart to render a helping hand in the great work they were striving to fulfil—namely, to help, succour, and comfort those of their comrades in the music hall profession whose bright stars had fallen, who unwillingly had to go and beg a crust of bread for their little ones through no fault of their own, merely through bad luck. "Help us," concluded Miss May, "and I promise that for every shilling you hand us, which will be wisely spent, you shall receive the best reward that can be possible—the prayers of the poor and the blessings of the beloved of the Almighty." Miss May coupled with the toast the names of the Rev. Donald Hole and Mr. Fred Ginnett.

The former gentleman said it was not the most convenient day for a parson to attend a dinner, but he felt so strongly the excellent work that was being done by the Music Hall Ladies' Guild that he felt he must show his appreciation of that work by coming down that night. As they knew, he fulfilled the humble duties of hon. sec. to the Actors' Church Union, and his presence that night showed something of the friendliness which they all felt existed between those two great professions, the Church and the Stage.

MRS. F. GINNETT. [Photo by Hana.

Mr. FRED GINNETT, who was received with much applause, said:—Ladies and gentlemen,—I think our friend, the Rev. Mr. Hole, has told you all I wanted to tell you. I thank you very much for all you have said about me. (Laughter.) You did not say much (laughter), but perhaps you will say more when I have finished. (Laughter.) Thank you very much.

Mr. DOUGLAS STUART, called upon for a speech, said he could bear testimony from the inside as to the working of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild. His own Variety Benevolent Fund and the Guild worked hand in hand, and together they were able to assist many cases by granting relief. The Benevolent Fund advanced the money to pay the rent, and the Ladies' Guild assisted in the matter of food and clothing. Mr. Stuart told of an artist who had once been in a good position, but who had come to absolute starvation. He had gone to investigate the case, and found the artist living with his wife and four little ones in one room, with no bed. So impressed was the friend who accompanied him that he handed the unfortunate man a substantial sum out of his own pocket. It was very difficult to discriminate in many cases, and the Ladies' Guild were of the utmost assistance in their work.

THE MUSIC HALL HOME.

It will be seen by the balance-sheet for the past year that the Music Hall Home is still in a flourishing position, and to those ladies and gentlemen who have so generously contributed towards its support the committee begs to tender its most sincere thanks, especially to Mr. F. H. Pedgrift for again placing the columns of The Era at its disposal for the New Year appeal, which had such a very satisfactory result. To the M.H.A.R.A for their donations, to the committee of the Liverpool Theatre Gala, to Mr. Joe Elvin, to My Fancy, to Dr. Walford Bodie, to Mr. Arthur R. Welchman, the hon. auditors, and to all other ladies and gentlemen who have generously assisted the fund, the chairman (Mr. Harry Barnard) and the committee of management tender their heartiest acknowledgments. The balance-sheet is appended:—

July 24, 1908.

MR. GUS ELEN, who opens at the Coliseum on Monday, hooked and landed 22lb. of codling at Deal on the 7th inst.

MR. J. WELLESLEY LYNN, the entertaining conjurer, unfortunately met with a serious bicycle accident on Sunday, the 30th ult., and has had to cancel all contracts.

MISS VERITA VIVIEN, a new recruit to the variety stage, will recite at the Brighton Alhambra, on Monday next, a scena, entitled "Motherhood," that is thoroughly human in character. Miss Vivien bears an extraordinary resemblance to Miss Ellen Terry.

THE latest quotations of music-hall shares are as follow:—Alhambra, 1½; Canterbury, ¼; Empire, 15s. paid 1½, 10s. paid 1; London Pavilion, Ordinary ¾, Preference 4½; Metropolitan, 10s. 6d.; Moss' Empire, 4¾, 5 per cent. Preference 3½; Oxford, 6½; Palace, 19s. 6d.; Tivoli, 5; Variety Consolidated Theatres, 7-16.

MLLE. LYDIA KYASHT, the successor of Adeline Genée, who will play Swanilda in Coppélia at the Empire on Monday, began her professional career at sixteen, being now twenty-two. She studied her art in the school attached to the Imperial Theatre, St. Petersburg, where she made her début.

THE Lava Roller Skating Rink, at Denmark Hill, reopened on Saturday. The rink has been redecorated, and the asphalt floor renovated. The managing-director, Mr. Bert Chapman, who looks forward to a good season, does everything possible for the skaters' comfort. Arrangements are in progress by Mr. Benj. Woodger to make this rink the headquarters of the Association of Professional Skaters of Great Britain. Among those present on Saturday were C. G. Fuller (secretary of the Amateur Skating Association), C. B. Phillips, H. Bussey, Tommy Dando, Percy Power, Arthur West, L. Brown, jun., Mr. and Mrs. Thacker, Miss Marie Gould, Miss Mabel Wyatt, and Miss Maud Shack. The band is conducted by Mr. A. Allen Knight. The membership is increasing daily.

VARIETY ARTISTS' FEDERATION.

A general meeting of members of the V.A.F., under the chairmanship of Mr. Joe O'Gorman, was held on Sunday evening at the Bedford Head Hotel, Maiden-lane, to consider various proposals and other matters affecting the interests of music hall artists. There was an excellent attendance of members of the Federation, which afforded striking testimony of the unity that exists in that body.

The first item for discussion was thus described on the agenda paper:—"To consider the position of the Variety Artists' Federation with respect to the rumoured managerial combine."

The Chairman, speaking as to this, said, in the course of his opening statement: I have come to the conclusion now that the aim of the managers is to endeavour to sow dissension and strife amongst our members. Within the last few days they have been telling Miss Marie Lloyd that I have been hawking her contracts about all over the place, showing the salary to everyone. I have written to Miss Lloyd saying I was surprised she had ever entertained such a suggestion, and telling her that her contracts have never left the safe of the Variety Artists' Federation. We hear again on all sides that Mr. Stoll and Mr. Tozer, and the rest of them, have spied out our camp at our executive committee meetings. They have done nothing of the kind. They know less about our affairs than we know about theirs. I am not here to-night to hide myself or anybody else; if anybody in this movement, whether on the side of the managers or on the side of the artists, commits himself, however insidiously, I for one am on all occasions going to expose him and mention his name. Mr. Collins has gone out of his way to tell two of our members—Miss Lloyd and Mr. Hurley—that during the strike a committeeman who carried information to Mr. Stoll was Mr. Fred Ginnett. As a matter of fact, Mr. Fred Ginnett was not a committeeman until long after the strike. You now see where they are aiming. By fair fighting they could not break us up; now they are trying to bring about that internecine strife which, if allowed to go its way, will break any organisation up, no matter how strong. I warn the managers that two can play at this game. Mr. Stoll has favoured us to-day with a long interview in the Referee. Mr. Stoll says "the managers will never be the aggressors." I have, as you know, the greatest admiration for Mr. Stoll and his business capabilities; but he forgets that the managers up to now have been the aggressors, and not the artists. When we held our preliminary meetings of the Conference which brought into existence this great organisation, Mr. Stoll, the late Mr. Payne, Mr. Barrasford, Mr. Gibbons, and all the rest of them were memorialised. We sent out a memorial which, I think, was one of the most brilliant efforts that has ever been put forward by any trade union in this country. Mr. Payne ignored us altogether—never answered us. We sent a letter, saying that it was customary when one gentleman or body of gentlemen addressed a letter to another gentleman, that the gentleman so addressed should condescend to answer. We got our answer from the late Mr. Payne. He said: "Gentlemen, I am in receipt of your letter of the 14th inst.—Yours, George Adney Payne." Mr. Stoll, on the other hand, offered us an argument, and a very strong argument. But with this exception we were treated with the utmost contumely. You are all aware that I was most strenuously opposed to the calling of the late strike, but out of evil cometh good, and I am here to-night to state that had that strike not happened our position at the present moment would have been positively intolerable. At the conclusion of the strike we went to arbitration, we got an Award, and Mr. Stoll says that the managers are going to abide by that Award. They accepted the Award. So did we. Now, as to this combine, which we are told has come into existence. It has not come into existence at all! How can a combine be possible when we have Messrs. Macnaghten, Barrasford, and Gibbons outside refusing to have anything whatever to do with it? Mr. De Frece has gone in with Mr. Stoll. We have a list in the Referee to-day of those who have joined this pseudo combine. I hope those flies who have gone into the spider's parlour will have their interests looked after better than they were during the arbitration. During the arbitration the little proprietors, or the independent managers, got nothing. They were never considered for one moment; and serve them right. They should have come with us as they promised to do when we started this Federation. What will happen? The little men can have the crumbs which fall from the big men's tables. On the charity matinée question Mr. Stoll says: "We had no interference at the Manchester Hippodrome on Thursday last, which shows that the spirit of reasonableness is gaining ground in the deliberations of the executive committee." Now, as you are probably aware, I am the one who was wholly and solely responsible for withdrawing all the formalities in connection with the Wigan mine disaster, which my committee have endorsed. Let me assure Mr. Stoll that my committee, even in connection with these charity matinées, wish to do nothing unreasonable, and are still prepared to accept any reasonable solution which preserves to us the right of collective bargaining. Some time ago we accepted an invitation from Mr. Askwith to meet Mr. Stoll, with a view to settling the matinée dispute. Mr. Clemart, Mr. Pink, Mr. Bayly and myself, together with Mr. Pete Curran and Mr. Appleton, accordingly met Mr. Stoll, under the friendly chairmanship of Mr. Askwith. At the conclusion we agreed that Mr. Stoll or his representative should write a letter to the executive committee saying that he purposed giving a charity matinée. We were to inquire as to whether it was a genuine charity matinée or not, and then grant or withhold our permission accordingly. On the question of the 2½ per cent. we, representing the artists, were to forego the 2½ per cent., Mr. Stoll promising to give an adequate donation annually to the V.A.B.F. Was ever anything more reasonable put before a sane body of business men? Were there any intimidations or threats? There was nothing of the kind. Mr. Stoll accepted the conditions, subject to the confirmation of his brother managers. Mr. Stoll was very pleased at the arrangement. Mr. Stoll went away; and later on we had a letter from Mr. Askwith saying that Mr. Stoll had conferred with his colleagues, and they had arrived at the conclusion that the charity matinée question was a question between the artists and the managers, and that the Federation had no right whatever to interfere in the matter. We immediately resumed our old position, with the result that these charity matinées are not occurring with such singular regularity. I notice, however, one announced presently for Leeds. But we have not had any of those anniversaries whereat we all had to turn up, whether we liked it or not. Another point that may have missed some of you: they have opened several halls since this rule has come into operation, but opened them with the regular companies. Mr. Stoll says: "With such influences at work the manager may, and one would consider prudently, quite prudently, render himself powerful to resist an organised attack." Now there is no organised attack contemplated. Mr. Stoll says the managers want to abide by the Award. And in Mr. Stoll's own words, the artists have been abiding by the Award most loyally. But have the managers? Is Mr. Stoll going to stand forth as the mouthpiece of people who descend to such paltry tricks to evade the Award as Mr. Tozer did recently in the case of Mr. Harry Tate, Miss Marie Lloyd, and several others? Is he going to be the mouthpiece of Mr. Tom Richards, who has gone in with his arrangement, and who has absolutely refused to abide by the Arbitrator's Award? Is he going to uphold Walter de Frece? The latter engages artists on the understanding that those matinées will be paid for. When they get there, thinking that their salaries are going to be a certain price, they are left out of two or three matinées. I don't think for a moment that Mr. Stoll would condone anything so despicable, or be a party to anything so questionable. We have a long list of these cases against Mr. De Frece. So we decided that we should try a test case with Mr. De Frece. The Arbitrator having failed to show that gentleman the right way, we tried His Majesty's Courts. Mr. De Frece paid the amount and costs into court. The matter is not ended with one case. Mr. De Frece must pay into Court for all of them, big and little. The managers say they are going to encourage the making of stars—Lloyds, Elvins, Lenos, Lauders, and all the rest. How are they going to do it? Surely they are not under the impression that geniuses grow on grape vines. I contend also that there are quite a lot of excellent artists who have everything in them that is necessary to the making of stars. If one of these artists, as has happened in hundreds of cases, displeases one of the powers that be, he is a gone coon. Your leaders are considering a scheme of mine which, when it has crystallised, will be sufficiently strong to adequately render nugatory the evil of any combine. Supposing that the combine fizzles out, as did the one which was in 1882 heralded with just as loud a flourish of trumpets as this. On that occasion I met Johnny Hart. He had just come away from the meeting of the managers which had arranged a 33 per cent. reduction of all our salaries. The first thing that Hart said in answer to my question as to how they got along was that he had never heard of such a farce in his life. He said: "They have settled all the salaries, and I have got to pay the same in my little place as they have to pay at the Alhambra." The great MacDermott, who was not then an agent or a manager, was approached by the late Mr. Villiers the same night. Mr. Villiers was the chairman of the amalgamation. He said: "George, they have put you down as a £12 turn." MacDermott said: "I will go to the legitimate!" Mr. Villiers said: "You will do nothing of the kind; come into the office!" MacDermott was getting £20 a turn at the time at the London Pavilion, which was a fairly good salary in those days. He came out with a contract for as long as he liked to stay in London at £25 a week. He was to give a week's notice when he wanted to leave, and a week's notice when he wanted to return. Our question is now, as Mr. Stoll informs us that there is no intention of cutting down salaries. Why has the combine been formed? What is there to gain? It is either to cut down salaries or to intimidate our members. It is rather belated now for anybody to try and use their power and authority, and turn our members away from the path which they have already decided is a just and proper one to follow. On looking over the books on Saturday I find we have 4,000 fully-paid-up members of our organisation, and we are making at the rate of from fifteen to sixteen members weekly. We have again been buying Consols, and we hope in another week or two to buy some more. While our members remain as loyal as they have been all will be well. I may tell you, ladies and gentlemen, without throwing any unnecessary compliments to you, that the V.A.F. is the talk of the trade union world. There has never been such loyalty known. The working men cannot understand how a man getting £100 a week can fraternise with and fight the battles of a man getting 30s. with such a fine spirit. With your leaders fully determined not to allow anything to happen to divert them from the line they have laid down for themselves, I think the success of the V.A.F. is assured. Let me say that all I desire is the prosperity and protection of my brother and sister artists and the industry by which we earn our livelihood. I want it distinctly understood that threats of victimisation and boycott have no terrors for me, whether they emanate from Durham House or elsewhere.

An important item on the agenda paper had reference to the business relations carried on between artists and agents. A draft of a new commission note had been drawn up by the executive committee, and was submitted to the meeting. This document read as follows:—

"Draft of suggested commission note for engagement to be fulfilled in Great Britain and Ireland:

"In consideration of .....having procured for me (us).....the following engagement .....

.....I (we) hereby agree to pay to the said.....or to his (or their) heirs, a commission of.....per cent. (not to exceed TEN per cent.) on the above-mentioned engagement, and also on any continuous prolongation thereof, and a like percentage on the first re-engagement, if made direct with the management within THREE months of the expiration of the said engagement. This commission to be deducted by the management from my (or our) salary should the agents so desire. This commission is not to be payable when the engagement is not fulfilled through the illness of the artist or default of the proprietor, or any other circumstances over which the artist has no control.

"Should a dispute arise between the parties the matter may be referred to a board of arbitration consisting of three agents, three members of the executive committee of the V.A.F., and an independent chairman agreed to by the said board of arbitration.

"It is understood that the agent is not responsible for any breach of this contract on the part of either proprietor or artist through whatsoever cause arising."

After Mr. Monte Bayly, the general secretary, had read this draft,

The Chairman, in speaking upon it, said that a plebiscite vote of the members of the V.A.F. had decided that this form of agreement should go out. If an agent had got an engagement for an artist he should be honourably paid his commission. At a meeting before the agents a few days ago, when the question arose as to the great amount of money owing by artists to agents, he (the chairman) claimed that the greater proportion of it was due on re-engagements—which the artists thought unreasonable—and on commission on direct contracts made in cases where the artists came to England for a few weeks, and on finishing went back to their own country, and left the agents with a bad debt. The committee had drawn up this commission note after a great deal of consideration, and had placed it before the agents. The latter took a vote upon the matter, and they voted unanimously in favour of it. The committee of the Federation, however, reserved to themselves the right to have the arrangement ratified by the general meeting of the members. It was distinctly understood between them and the agents that the commission should not exceed ten per cent. Since this agreement was arrived at, Mr. Granville, of Fortune and Granville, who was at the meeting, had had an interview with him (Mr. O'Gorman), and the latter had received a letter confirming what passed at the interview, wherein Mr. Granville withdrew from the arrangement previously entered into. It was on the point of the re-engagements that he objected. Mr. Granville considered that he had earned twenty per cent. when he had got an engagement for an artist. He was the first of the agents to break away from the agreement. The other agents, who were prepared to accept what had been laid before them, had asked what we were going to do with the agents who withheld from the arrangement. They were told that the Federation would do its utmost to endeavour to bring these refractory gentlemen into line with their brethren; otherwise the artists would be withdrawn from their books and put on the books of the agents who were prepared to accept a reasonable amount of money. When an agent sent his own office copy to an artist to be signed, all the artist need do was to put it aside, and return to him the V.A.F. agreement form, and see if it would be refused. The commission on transatlantic engagements was five per cent to the American agent and five per cent. to the agent here, and he (the speaker) agreed with their American brothers that any possibility of a commission exceeding ten per cent. would not be right.

Mr. Walter Hast stated that the agents, instead of working for the benefit of the artists, seemed to be exerting themselves on behalf of the managers. Then, they had never had a receipt for an office copy taken from the agent. When they put a date in their date-book they did not know that the engagement to which it referred was legitimately secured by a certain agent. He would move as an addition to the commission note that an artist sending an office copy to the agent should receive from the latter a coupon showing what the artist had signed. He would also move as an amendment that the "three months" mentioned in the proposed form of agreement be set down as "one month."

Mr W. H. Clemart explained that the clause in question meant that the agents had agreed that the old re-engagement clause should be buried. It signified that if an agent got an engagement, the artist must not go to the manager for a return engagement within three months, or else a commission on such engagement would be payable to the agent who obtained the original booking. But he (Mr. Clemart) thought that this clause did not give that incentive to the agent to look after the artist's interests which, in his opinion, should be afforded. He himself had found that Mr. Tom Shaw had not been examining the blanks in his engagement book, so he secured bookings through Mr Wilmott. Mr. Clemart then read a letter addressed to Howard and Sinclair, from Mr. Ernest Edelsten, who claimed commission on a re-engagement made four years ago. Mr. Clemart emphasised the fact that this letter had been sent after the agreement had been made with the agents.

Mr. "Dutch" Daly expressed the opinion that the agents who attended the meeting referred to, and who had agreed to the commission note, were not a responsible or representative body. Neither Mr. Warner nor Mr. Oliver was present. He was further of opinion that the clause they had been discussing did not eliminate the old trouble as to re-engagement, but only made the matter a little more difficult to comprehend. His own contention was that, if an agent had got work for an artist, immediately that work was done the agent's commission was due. No greater incentive could be given to an agent than to make him understand clearly that he only got paid for work that he actually did.

The Chairman disagreed with Mr. Daly in the view the latter had taken as to the agents mentioned not constituting a representative body. Mr. Warner was away, but he suggested sending Mr. Chapman to represent him. Mr. O'Gorman and Mr. Clemart agreed that they only wanted to deal with principals in so important a matter, and Mr. Warner's proposal as to sending Mr. Chapman was not, therefore, accepted. Mr. Oliver was away at Margate, but wrote a letter stating that he would be satisfied with anything the meeting agreed to provided he got ten per cent. Mr. Harry Day also agreed. Mr. Hugh J. Didcot, through a clerical error, was not invited, and a letter of apology was forwarded to him for the neglect.

Mr. Daly stated that in some of the managerial offices it was customary to charge 2½ per cent. for office expenses. Why should one place charge 2½ per cent. and another 5 per cent.? These charges, as well, sometimes, as the commission, were deducted from the salaries of artists. He thought that they should come to some arrangement whereby such commission should be or should not be so deducted. He proposed that the words "And a like percentage on the first re-engagement if made direct with the management within three months of the expiration of the said engagement" be deleted.

Mr. Hal Forde seconded.

Mr. Clemart remarked that neither Mr. Stoll nor Mr. Barrasford deducted commission. The artists were therefore placed in a rather difficult position. He thought it would be better to allow it to remain as it was.

Miss Lorraine thought that they should do away with "office copies." What were they for? She had always paid her 10 per cent to her agent, and on the Continent she had never signed "office copies."

The Chairman pointed out that while some prominent artists might be able to do without an office copy, the smaller members of the profession could not.

Mr. Joe Elvin stated that it was a long time since he had an agent. He considered that the clause was fair and just. When they signed a contract they paid the agent, and there the matter was ended. When the agent brought another contract, the artist signed it and paid his account. If another agent came along he would be paid for what he did, and the other fellow would be left out. The artists should remember that they, and not the agents, were masters of the situation.

The resolution as to the clause was then put to the meeting, and declared carried with one dissentient.

Mr. Watson proposed that the words "For engagements to be fulfilled in Great Britain and Ireland" be deleted.

This was seconded by Mr. Walter Hast and carried unanimously.

Mr. James Howard proposed, and Mr. George Sanford seconded, that the clause "This commission to be deducted by the management from my (or our) salary should the agent so desire" be passed. This was also carried unanimously, as well as another reading: "This commission not to be payable when the engagement is not fulfilled through the illness of the artist or default of the proprietor, or any other circumstances over which the artist has no control."

After other clauses had been discussed, the amended commission note, as passed by the meeting (proposed by Mr. Jack Bland and seconded by Mr. Barney Armstrong) stood as follows:—

"In consideration of .....having procured for me (us).....the following engagement, ...

.....I (we) hereby agree to pay to the said .....or to his (or their) heirs, a commission of.....per cent. (not to exceed TEN per cent.) on the above-mentioned engagement, and also on the continuous prolongation thereof. This commission to be deducted by the management from my (or our) salary should the agent so desire. This commission is not to be payable when the engagement is not fulfilled through the illness of the artist or default of the proprietor, or any other circumstances over which the artist has no control.

"Should a dispute arise between the parties the matter may be referred to a board of arbitration consisting of three agents, three members of the executive committee of the V.A.F., and an independent chairman agreed to by the said board of arbitration.

"Signed.....

"Date .....

"It is understood that the agent is not responsible for any breach of this contract on the part of either proprietor or artist through whatsoever cause arising.

"This commission note to be issued in duplicate.

"This commission note to come into operation on Oct. 1, 1908, and to continue until July 14, 1912.

Mr. Clemart moved a resolution to rescind Rule 30, which reads as follows:—

"At the discretion of the executive committee, a loan may be granted to a member in full benefit for the purpose of travelling to an engagement, on the presentation of contract for said engagement; a receipt must be given in the form of a promissory note, agreeing to repay the amount out of the salary of said engagement. At the discretion of the committee all expenses involved in granting of such loans, and collecting of same, must be defrayed by the member receiving such loan. On no account shall more than three pounds per member be granted."

Speaking to his motion, Mr. Clemart stated that when he first put it on the agenda paper he thought that the amount of money outstanding on loans represented a worst condition of things than it actually did. He had since obtained the full figures from Mr. McCarthy. There had been 481 loans granted, amounting to £808 15s. 11d., 377 had repaid a total of £623 1s., and 104 were outstanding, with amounts totalling £185 14s. 11d. He would suggest that they make a rule that those members who do not honestly pay their loan back should be forthwith expelled from the Federation and sued for the balance.

The Chairman pointed out that it should be necessary to prove that an artist was in a position to repay a loan. Of course, if an artist were in a position to pay he would be compelled to do so. One member in particular owed them several pounds, and every inducement was tried to make him reimburse the Federation. A county court judgment was obtained, but as that proved ineffective a warrant was executed for his arrest, and then the debt was settled. He thought that they could not make a hard-and-fast rule on the matter, and was of opinion that things were working satisfactorily as they stood.

Mr. Clemart then withdrew his resolution.

The Chairman brought the speech-making to a conclusion by stating that he and Mr. Bayly were going to Nottingham the following morning in order to register a protest at the Trades Union Congress to compel the withdrawal of the Artists' Protection League from that Congress. It was quite impossible for a recognised association like the Federation to permit Mr. Frank Gerald to form himself into an association and claim a right to speak for the profession.

ESSEX C.C. MUSIC LICENCES.

The annual meeting of the Metropolitan Committee of the Essex County Council, under the presidency of Mr. W. Langman, was held at the Court House, Stratford, on the 4th inst., to receive applications for music and dancing licences.

Mr. R. O. Lane applied for the renewal of a music licence on behalf of Mr. Samuel George Beal, the licensee of the George Hotel, South Woodford. The renewal was objected to by Mr T. Humphreys on behalf of Mr. Richard Durell, of Grove Lodge, a house close to the hotel. Mr. Humphreys said that the house had been in existence for many years, but recently it had been used in such a manner by Mr. Beal that it had become, he alleged, an intolerable nuisance to his neighbours. In the garden of the hotel it had been the practice to hold concerts, and when this was objected to Mr. Beal expressed a hope that a music hall would soon occupy the site of the garden. On four evenings a week in the summer a troupe of pierrots gave concerts, which he (Mr. Humphreys) contended were given to attract people to the hotel. A piano and violin, and occasionally a cornet, were played, and the result was that Mr. Durell, who was the father of eleven young children, had been unable to use his lawn-tennis court, croquet lawn, billiard or dining-rooms.

The licensee declared that a very high-class business was carried on at the hotel, which had been licensed for music since 1885. In his opinion the licence was absolutely necessary to enable the hotel to be carried on successfully.

Mr. Lane said that a harrowing tale of suffering had been told, but it was obvious that the concerts were a great source of pleasure to hundreds of people. He contended that the objection would not justify the committee interfering with the licence The committee adjourned the application until Sept. 18.

Mr. W. Daybell applied, on behalf of Richard Frederick Bywater, the licensee of the George and Dragon, High-street, Wanstead, for a music and dancing licence, and mentioned that the premises were built at a cost of thousands of pounds, and there was no other similar licence in the neighbourhood. Mr. F. A. S. Stern appeared on behalf of an overseer and a number of residents in the parish, and said that a petition had been signed by 750 persons, including the clergy, doctors, and members of the urban district council, against the licence. The application was adjourned.

The Rev. C. Cavell applied for a music and dancing licence in respect of All Saints' Church Hall, Woodford Green, and the chairman said that it was at his suggestion that the application was made. The application was adjourned.

Mr F. A. S. Stern, for Mr. William Cahill, the licensee of the Green Man, Plashet-grove, East Ham, applied for a dancing licence, and mentioned that the Harmonic Hall, adjoining the premises, had been licensed for music for about six years, and during that time over £2,000, part of the proceeds of the concerts, had been given to charity. This was also adjourned.

The Rev. H. W. Maloney applied for a music and dancing licence in respect of the Cecil Hall, Ilford. Several tradesmen opposed the granting of the licence on the grounds that since the opening of the hall in February last concerts, dancing, and marriage parties had been a source of great annoyance to the inhabitants. The huge windows had proved to be splendid sounding-boards, and as a result of the noises property had depreciated in value. The application was adjourned.

LA MILO AT THE OLYMPIA.

Last evening crowds of people flocked to see La Milo, the inimitable, and it must be confessed that for a beautiful, artistic entertainment La Milo's cannot be surpassed. We notice on the programme that La Milo has received the approbation of some thirty-three watch committees throughout the kingdom. This is nothing to wonder at, for there is absolutely nothing to take exception to. The subjects represented were "The Tambourine Girl," "The Greek Slave," "La Cigale," "Venus di Milo," "Harvest," "Una and the Lion," "Omnia Vanitas," and "Lady Godiva." Of these one cannot help admiring most of all "Venus di Milo," but all are magnificent, and representations of art—true art.—Excerpt from Liverpool Echo, Sept. 1, 1908.

We learn that the Corn Exchange, Wakefield, has been taken for a season by an animated picture syndicate. Electric light is being installed throughout the building and arc lamps fitted outside.

MUSIC-HALL CO-OPERATION.

It has been no secret that for months past negotiations have been carried on between the directors and managers of the London music halls with a view of effecting some combination which would secure better working arrangements in the running of the various theatres of variety. The negotiations took a practical aspect early this week when the following initial and official announcement was made:—

"Co-operative working arrangements are now concluded whereby the 'Syndicate Halls,' which comprise the Oxford, Tivoli, Metropolitan, Canterbury, Paragon, the Euston, South London, Chelsea, Walthamstow, East Ham, and Tottenham Palaces, have become associated in mutual bookings of artists, &c., with the London Pavilion, Collins's (now Islington Empire), the London (now Shoreditch Empire), the Hammersmith Palace, and the Crouch End Hippodrome. In connection therewith other arrangements of an equally important character are also pending.

Mr. Henry Tozer, the chairman of most of the Syndicate Halls, was seen by our interviewer on Tuesday morning, and made the following statement:—

"The question as to some form of co-operation has been in the mind of every manager for a long time, and this association of the halls named in the bookings of artists is perhaps the first practical step towards a more general arrangement, which will probably embrace the whole of the music halls in London and the provinces.

"The chief feature of the announcement that has just been made is that the London Pavilion rejoins, to a certain extent, the Tivoli and Oxford. Although the board of the Pavilion is at present dissimilar from the boards of the Tivoli and Oxford, yet the exchange of business facilities will be of a most thorough character, and will be advantageous to all concerned. Whilst the solid position of the Tivoli and Oxford will not be affected, there is no doubt that that of the London Pavilion will be materially improved and strengthened. Each hall will preserve its own individuality to a considerable degree, and the new partnership will be of benefit to the artists inasmuch as their present long runs will be shortened with advantage to them, thus giving the public a more frequent change of programme, which is the modern trend of music-hall entertainments.

"Undoubtedly the Tivoli, Oxford, and Pavilion (the initials of which are curiously suggestive) constitute a goal for the best artists to reach. Whilst the outside halls help to sustain the reputation of the star artists the Tivoli, Oxford, or Pavilion—being the recognised central variety halls—are considered by the star artists as their rightful home, for there they have, as a rule, created their positions.

"We are not combining with the object of securing the reduction of salaries of the artists, but it must be obvious that business necessities demand that all expenses connected with the running of our music halls, which have been advancing very considerably for some time past, should be most carefully controlled and kept within reasonable limits in order to maintain financial prosperity. Our new scheme of co-operation will enlarge the opportunities for the newer artists in the variety profession, and I have no doubt that the combination just formed will be for the ultimate good of all concerned."

In the course of an interview on the same subject, Mr. Oswald Stoll said: "The artists have organised themselves for the benefit of artists, both individually and generally. The managers must do likewise. But, in the case of the managers, the public will be taken carefully into account in every phase of our procedure, for we recognise that on the public the success of every factor in the music hall industry absolutely depends. Our scheme is not designed towards the formation of a trust, but to apply the principle of organisation to many individual businesses which may—nay, must—maintain their individuality, and yet have the benefit of order as distinct from chaos in respect of procedure affecting the common interests that are inevitable to concerns in a similar category. We want a sort of Clearing House, to procure, not the employment of a minimum of cash, such as is the useful purpose served by the Bankers' Clearing House, but rather to procure the employment of the minimum of time, trouble, and competition.

"As an instance, you may assume that an artist can play for only one of three managers in respect of a particular date, and, notwithstanding this, offers from three different managers have been made to him for that date, whilst there are at least three different artists, one of which would suit each of those managers for such date. Time and trouble are wasted, and unconscious competition between interests that do not really conflict is created by the three managerial spiders unconsciously pursuing the one poor fly. This unconscious competition and wastage will be eliminated by one manager being enabled to ascertain that another has made an offer to a particular artist for a particular date, and he will himself select another artist for his own vacancy. The machinery by which our aims will be attained is still under discussion. But it contemplates attacks upon nobody, though it may not lack means of defence against attacks upon the interests that are entrusted to our care. It will be simple, practical, and effective, as our aims involve nothing visionary. The fact that the public demand entertainments of increasing merit and novelty is recognised.

"The fact that real talent is rare and must be paid well, both to retain what we have, and encourage the development of more, is deeply implanted in our minds. I do not know any manager of repute who does not consider an artist at £150 per week who draws the money into the house cheaper than another at £5 per week who keeps the public away. So long as we get value for the money we pay, and are thus able to give the public value for the money they pay, the amount that we are willing to pay artists is only limited by what will leave sufficient margin for a fair return to shareholders and financial stability of the owning company. But we are not content to accept any criterion but ability to entertain the public as indicating the right to the name of artist. With closer communion between managers the thorny path of a beginner with talent can be made very smooth. With friendlier communion between managers, artists of talent who have signed one or two houses with one firm, and are greatly prejudiced with others by having done so, will not then be so prejudiced.

"In our establishment of a sort of central chamber of commerce, with a recognition of the interests of all its members, affording guidance and help towards their prosperity, we shall not forget that the public must have a good entertainment, ever rising in the scale of attractiveness; that clever artists can only be tempted to their best by ample opportunity and handsome remuneration; that well-equipped houses must have a public capable of supporting them in a manner that will allow of this expenditure; that the prosperity of the music halls must mean the prosperity of both owner and artist, to say nothing for the moment of the general staff; and that unregulated competition after a brief spurt means the prosperity of neither."

THE LATE TONY PASTOR.

The following record of Tony Pastor's career has been contributed to the New York Tribune by Mr. William Winter:—"The career of Tony Pastor has been long, active, and strangely diversified. When only six years old he was singing ducts with Christian B. Woodruff, in after life State Senator, at meetings of the Hand-to-Hand Temperance Society. His father, a musician, disapproved of his apparent inclination to become a public performer, and therefore sent him into the country, to dwell with a friend of his who was a farmer. There the lad turned the haystack into a stage and allured the farm labourers from their work, so that it became necessary to send him home.

"His inclination for the stage proved irrepressible. He was permitted to make his professional appearance as 'an infant prodigy,' and as such he came out at Barnum's Museum, where his good vocalism made a distinctly favourable impression. In April, 1844, when eight years old (he was born in 1836), he joined Raymond and Waring's Menagerie, appearing with a black face and playing the tambourine in a minstrel band. A little later he served as an apprentice to John J. Nathan and was trained for the circus. In the autumn of 1847 he appeared at Welch's National Amphitheatre, Philadelphia, playing juvenile parts, tumblers, &c., in the afterpieces that were then used in the circus. In the summer of 1848 he joined the travelling circus of Welsh, Delavan, and Nathan, and, as no performances were given by it at night, he composed a concert company and performed in schoolhouses till his enterprise was suppressed by his displeased managers.

"He went then to the old Federal-street Theatre, Boston, where he remained for some time. The death of a ring-master opened the way for him to be installed in that office, in 1851. He also had to sing, and he played the Countryman in Peter Jenkins, and he danced in Lucy Long. In the autumn of 1852 he was ring-master at the Bowery Amphitheatre, New York, and he also acted there, in plays. In the spring of 1853 he joined Franconi's Travelling Hippodrome, but in the winter of that year he appeared in New York as Bones, in a minstrel company. In 1854 he joined Mabie's Circus as singing clown, and a little later he appeared as clown in the pantomime at the Old Bowery Theatre, where, later, George L. Fox began his career, in which ultimately he became so widely and highly distinguished as clown: it was not till Fox came to the theatre which had been Laura Keene's that he made his mark in Humpty Dumpty—the name selected by Clifton W. Tayleure for the pantomime. In 1855 Tony Pastor was associated, as ring-master and general performer, with Levi North's Circus, and he went with North to Chicago and appeared there in North's Amphitheatre. Later he appeared at the Broadway Music Hall, New York, and from 1861 to 1865 he was established at No. 444, Broadway—a resort that became exceedingly popular. On one occasion there, the time being war time, he aroused tremendous enthusiasm by appearing on his stage with the Flag of the Republic in his hand and asking the audience to join in singing 'The Star-Spangled Banner.' That was repeated on many nights.

"At about that time, 1865, Mr. Pastor determined to devote himself to the vaudeville stage and to improve it. Smoking and the sale of liquors had always been allowed in the variety music halls. He determined to abolish these customs, and in association with Sam Sharpley he leased the Vokes Garden, No. 201, Bowery, and turned it into a neat, handsome little theatre. He had already tried the experiment of clean vaudeville at Paterson, N.J., and he felt confident of success in attracting the better elements of the community. His plan succeeded, and he has ever since persisted in the policy and method then adopted.

"In October, 1875, he opened his theatre at No. 585, Broadway, where, from time to time, he introduced performers, some from abroad, other of native origin, who have since become distinguished. 'Nat' Goodwin appeared there on Feb. 5, 1876. Lillian Russell appeared there in the prime of her beauty. Among others who appeared there were May Irwin and her sister 'Flo,' the performer calling herself Sapho, the Hansel Troupe, Tyrolese warblers, Florence Bindley, 'Gus' Williams, Richard Carroll, Francis Wilson (then a song and dance performer, now a leading comedian in comic opera); Denman Thompson, Nov. 2, 1876, as Joshua Whitcomb; 'Old Hoss' Hoey and Charles Evans, 'Billy' Barry, William J. Scanlan, the Irish comedian; Jennie Yeamans, Harry and John Kernell, and 'Pat' Rooney.

"There Mr. Pastor introduced comic opera in condensed form, presenting Pinafore, and setting an example which has been extensively followed by many persons and with much profit to themselves—whatever detriment may have befallen the plays and the music. In 1881 Mr. Pastor established his theatre where it now is, in the Tammany Building, in East 14th-street, and there he has maintained a high standard of vaudeville performance and met with abundant and richly-deserved success. Among the distinguished performers from abroad whom he has there introduced to the American public mention may be made of Jenny Hill, Vesta Tilley, Bessie Bonehill, Bessie Bellwood, and Vesta Victoria."

AGENTS AND AUTHOR.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—In view of the prominence which the vexed question of agents and their ways is arousing, you may be good enough to allow me to treat of this subject in relationship to authors?

I am the writer of a certain sketch which a firm of repute have leased from me, and which was produced with marked success at a suburban hall a month ago. I believe a free trial-week was arranged, but notwithstanding personal and written applications, few or no agents came to see it, although you and your contemporaries (both daily and weekly) spoke in terms of high praise of the production. Various agents made excuses that the hall was too far away, and promised to see it if a more central hall was obtained. Reluctantly the firm consented to give another trial show, and again the agents failed to keep the promises they made.

The most extraordinary part of the affair is this, that managers of the halls in which this sketch has been played, as well as other "star" turns, have pronounced the sketch great. Yet this firm are unable to get a fair hearing. In conversation with a "star" the other day I learnt that in all probability the secret of this non-booking is owing to my clients not having put their hands in their pockets and sent round to the agent a little present, such as a case of champagne or a motor-car! "Do this, my boy," he said, "and your sketch will run for years."

I may be a very young and very green dramatic author; but if this sort of thing is prevalent at the music halls then the sooner the Corrupt Practices Act applies to agents and artists the better for the British public—Yours faithfully,

LOUIS DAGMAR.

HARRY WRIGHT and Nellie Gannon leave London on Sunday for a well-booked provincial tour, returning to town April, 1909.

MR. HARRY TRESHAM, the popular leading juvenile gentleman of the stock dramatic company at the Theatre Royal, Liverpool, has been presented by his fellow artists with a fine gold watch on his transference to the stock company at Hoxton (London), which is now under the management of his employer, Mr. Montgomery. His successor at Liverpool is Mr. David G. Noble, who has already become a favourite.

OPERA AT THE HALLS.

CHAT WITH MR. CHARLES FISHER.

Mr. Charles Fisher, whose miniature operas at the Oxford are attracting so much interest just now, has something to say on his experiences:—

"This is," he says, "my twenty-fifth year on the boards, and I have had exceptional experience as manager and artist. I have been to India, China, Japan, and twice to Africa, performing professionally. I have sang solidly for thirty-two years, starting as a choir boy in St. Peter's Church, Wolverhampton, where I was born forty-six years ago. I never had any liking or romantic ideas of the stage. I drifted on to it, for I had a voice.

"Level-headed business men cannot understand an artistic temperament; if they did, they would probably cease to be business men. It is an absolute curse to be born an artist in my opinion, with all its attenuating diagnoses, such as nerves, the feeling that when you appear on the stage, 'Suppose I fail? I know I've got a cold. Still, I must do it; it's my bread and butter.' I take off my hat to all the stars who are reigning supreme at our halls, for I, as an artist and a manager, know that they have gained their position by climbing over mountains of trouble and adversities.

"I have been a member of the D'Oyly Carte, Carl Rosa, J. W. Turner, and Arthur Rousbey opera companies, and others too numerous to mention. In 1888 I was in China and Japan with the Willard and John F. Sheridan company, and as I carry my memory back to that tour, what a wonderfully versatile company we had. Here's a fortnight's productions. We only played three nights a week, as we played to practically the same audiences at each performance. The pieces we presented and the "business" we did included Faust, Jack Sheppard, burlesque, comic songs and dances, Nanki Poo, Mikado, Hummingtop, Arabian Nights, The Shaughraun, Geoffrey Wilder, Dorothy, Dick Dauntless, Ruddigore, with the sailors' hornpipe, then Manrico, Il Trovatore, and so on. I think we played a répertoire of forty different pieces. There's an experience for you! All loyal and true artists working for one end—the success of the enterprise; and so I have continued. Our parts were given to us, and we had to 'create,' not 'parrot.'

"Opera in the halls? Ah, that was evidently a bright idea, and so thought the late Frank Weeks, of the South London. Shall I ever forget the scratch rehearsal in our everyday clothes we gave to him, as the audience. How eagerly he followed the plot of Maritana, and his blunt, soldierly way of expressing his approval at the finish. Shall I ever forget the first night how the gallery boys followed the plot? and their expressions!

"Being engaged for a month at the Oxford, I asked Mr. Collins to let me revive the operas. I can now proudly state without boast that I have repeated the success I made at the South London before a West-End audience. I am the fortunate possessor of a wife who has a marvellous range of voice, and who can double the contralto parts with the prima donna. Without my wife, I could never have succeeded, because I should have had to engage two artists to do her work.

"Now, as I have had experiences of both the theatres and halls, I should like here to answer several questions often put to me by theatrical brothers and sisters, simply with the idea that, if my experience is of any use to them they are welcome to it. In my opinion, the variety and the legitimate are two distinct professions. What one learns in the theatres is possibly a barrier to the music-halls. In the theatres one is engaged for a cetrain part in a piece, and taught how to play that part, and to keep in the picture, or asked to give a slavish imitation of somebody else. Consequently, the more experienced artists are engaged in theatrical work, and the more difficult it becomes for them to make a success on the halls for the simple reason that they have lost their self-reliance of individuality.

"My experience has been that one must forget nearly all one has learnt in the theatre. Watch a successful star and study his style, but do not imitate him. Use your own inventive powers. There is undoubtedly a colossal field in our variety theatres for workers and originality; but, unfortunately, one gets little encouragement to speak of. It has taken me nearly six years to reach the Oxford, and I'll give you my word I have not been asleep. How to account for my difficulty is a mystery to me. I read the other day that managers were going to encourage and foster new talent. There is plenty of room for improvement in this direction, especially if they would give the English artists a chance. I am absolutely certain that we can well hold our own with the foreigners. We are a slow nation, and we get behindhand for the want of a little encouragement. Originality is a very scarce commodity on the halls, and is becoming more so daily. Who can wonder at it? Bitter experiences are closing up the channels of originality. I myself have seen sound drawing acts with empty date books; others strangled at their birth. On the other hand, I have known acts which were bad imitations of others, booked for years ahead. Truly, there must be something rotten in the state of Denmark."

MR. ARTHUR BLOUNT concludes his successful summer tour at the Hippodrome, Hastings, to-night, and will be in town till April next, with new songs and patter.

MR. HAYDN REANO will conduct his famous band at the London Hippodrome on Monday next. He is a great believer in English musicians, and has toured his organisation all over the world. A brawny Sheffielder once described to an acquaintance the band's playing of "1812." "Fust," said the son of Vulcan, "he shakes his fist at t' fellers on one side, then he wayes his hand to t' fellers on t' other.' Then he cusses at t' chaps in t' middle, and in t' finish he sets fire to t' whole dashed lot of 'em."

MR. FRED MILLER'S TESTIMONIAL.

The excellent qualities of Mr. Fred Miller, as a man, as a sportsman, and as a manager, are generally recognised by all branches of the profession, and no artist or proprietor who has ever come into contact with him has failed to recognise his sterling honesty of purpose, or to be impressed by his unobtrusive courtesy and consideration to everyone working with him. For fifteen years Mr. Miller has been associated with the halls, and though the sphere of his activity for most of that time has been restricted to the South and East of London, his connection with the Syndicate has brought him much popularity up West. Several of his friends, taking into consideration his long and honourable career, feel that the present time is very opportune for presenting him with a testimonial, which it is intended shall take the shape of a purse of gold. Mr. W. H. Armstrong, the well-known professional solicitor, of 1, Renfrew-road, Lambeth, is interesting himself in the project, and Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, manager of The Era, who has consented to become the hon. treasurer of the fund, will be pleased to receive subscriptions. A strong and influential committee is being formed.

It was at Lechlade, Gloucestershire, that Mr. Fred Miller first saw the light. His father, an influential grazing farmer, was an enthusiastic rider to hounds, and from the age of twelve young Fred followed his father in the field, and in many an eventful run was in the first flight. At the age of seventeen he accepted an offer from an uncle in the cattle trade, and settled down with him at Wormholt Farm, Shepherd's Bush, where he gained considerable experience and became a good business man. The death of his uncle brought about a change in his fortunes, and he accepted a situation as travelling secretary with Captain Macdonald. Again his employer died, and he had to try fresh fields and pastures new. Through the instrumentality of the late Mr. Harry Lundy, distantly related to him through marriage, Mr. Miller was introduced to Mr. George Adney Payne, who gave him the position of secretary to Mr. Arthur Tressidder, then manager of the Paragon. On Mr. Tressidder's departure on a voyage in search of health Mr. Miller was transferred to Mr. Will Lennon, the successor of Mr. Tressidder at the Paragon. At his death Mr. G. A. Payne chose Mr. Miller for the managership of the house in the Mile End-road, and on the resignation of Mr. Fred Holden of his position at the Canterbury Mr. Miller was installed as manager of both the Canterbury and the Paragon.

The jubilee of the Canterbury in November, 1902, when Charles Morton paid his last visit to a house that was indelibly associated with his career, owed its interest and its success to the organising powers of Mr. Miller, who placed before the patrons of the historic house a novel realisation of the present and past in music-hall entertainment. The portraits of favourites of the 'sixties, the 'seventies, and the 'eighties were thrown upon a screen, and many of the famous old songs were sung by new favourites. It was a great night. Though Mr. Miller has severed his connection with the Canterbury, it is to be hoped that he will be placed in a position commensurate with his abilities and experience at another hall. His many friends anticipate that it will be in London.

Mr. Kendall Robinson, a staunch friend of Mr. Fred Miller, in sending a contribution to this Fund, testifies as follows:—"I have much pleasure in enclosing cheque for one guinea for the Miller Testimonial. I have known Mr. Miller for many years. Uniformly warm-hearted and open-handed, his kindnesses and 'good turns' to large numbers of those who were brought in contact with him at the Paragon and Canterbury can only have been limited by his physical capacity for doing them."

MR. J. B. WILLIAMS, on behalf of the Musicians' Amalgamated Union, moved a resolution on Tuesday at the Trades Union Congress instructing the Parliamentary Committee to aid the Union in putting an end to the competition of Army and Naval bandsmen with civilian musicians. He stated that a man in the band of the 7th Hussars, which had played at the Franco-British Exhibition, received 24s. for one week, although the arbitrator appointed by the Board of Trade in the recent music-hall dispute had decided that the payment should be 30s. for playing in the evening only, and 50s. when there were afternoon performances as well. The soldier had no personal voice in the matter. He had to take what he could get, and he believed the only share of some of the youngsters was often a bun.

DURING this season five or six seaside resorts had dispensed with civilian bands and introduced military bands. At Clacton the soldiers fired volleys from a hotel window, but whether to give effect to the music or to drown it he could not say. Owing to this competition dozens of civilian musicians had complained to the Union that they could not get work. Mr. W. Johnson, of the Theatrical Employés' Society, seconded, and the resolution was unanimously adopted. A similar resolution, dealing with the competition of police bandsmen, was also carried.

A CHAT ABOUT CONSUL.

Mr. Frank C. Bostock's intelligent chimpanzee, Consul, now being exhibited in the Bostock Jungle and Arena at Earl's Court, has been a centre of interest since the opening of the Hungarian Exhibition. During his captivity the little animal has been trained to a really remarkable degree of intelligence, as will be understood from what here follows.

Consul, who belongs to the anthropoid ape species, and is a native of equatorial Africa, is in his seventh year, having been born towards the close of 1901.

"The first thing that we have to do with chimpanzees," said Mr. Harold Hilliard, the cicerone of the Bostock Jungle and Arena at Earl's Court, in conversation with our interviewer the other day, "if you wish to make them become public performers, is to humanise them in every way possible, and to do that it is necessary that they should be placed to live with some human family. The chimpanzee is immediately clothed and goes through the ordinary every-day life of a little child, sleeping at night in a child's cot, wearing either pyjamas or a night-shirt, rising at seven o'clock each morning, tubbing as an ordinary man or woman, and, after being assisted to dress, taking his place at the breakfast table, properly seated with the rest of the family. He very soon acquires a taste for ordinary human food, drinking a cup of tea, to which he will add his own sugar and milk, according to his own particular liking, eating bread and butter and an egg—the latter quite in etiquette, with a spoon—and usually finishing his meal with some fruit. Just as from observation and admonition a child learns to be cleanly at its meals, so does your chimpanzee soon learn the use of a serviette and the general advantages accruing from good behaviour at the table. Speaking of Consul himself, after breakfast he usually enjoys his first cigarette, and then indulges in a game of romp with his keeper, whom, in quite affectionate language, he addresses as 'Papa.' He plays with such toys as a rocking-horse, a ball, bricks, and picture books. Though not performing the operation too well, he is able to mend his own underclothing, always insisting on threading his needles himself. Owing to the defect of the thumb in the chimpanzee he certainly has to be assisted in dressing, but he is able to button up all his own clothing, such as his braces, shirt-collar, waistcoat, and so on, and to carefully put on and lace up his own boots."

Perhaps the best way to gather an exact idea of what Consul is capable of doing is to attend one of his receptions. At a given signal Consul enters his reception-rooms from his apartments behind, holding the hand of his keeper just as a child might hold its parent's. Garbed in a natty little dress suit, he proceeds to the umbrella-stand, carefully places his cane in it, and hanging up his small tall hat, he divests himself of his gloves, which he carefully folds and puts in his pocket. He then clambers up into his chair, placed at the head of his dining-table, and ringing a bell which is by his side, is served with his soup. Having eaten this with evident gusto, he again rings his bell, and for a second course is supplied with an egg and some bread and butter. Carefully picking the shell from the top of the egg, he proceeds to eat it with a spoon in quite the genteel manner, taking a mouthful of bread and butter after each spoonful of egg. This course finished, he demolishes with relish some fruit and cream. This completes the solid portion of the meal. He is then supplied with a bottle of wine and a glass. Carefully pouring out a glassful of wine, he drinks it, meanwhile firmly holding the bottle in his left hand, as though fearful that it may be taken from him before he has had time to gulp down its contents. His wine enjoyed to the last drop, he again rings his bell, and is on this occasion provided with a box of cigarettes, a cigarette-holder, and a box of matches. Selecting a fag, which he punctiliously places in the holder, he strikes a match and lights his cigarette. Throwing himself back in his chair, he then thoroughly enjoys his after-meal smoke, contemplatively watching the rings of smoke as they issue from his lips and disappear into space. The operation with the weed concluded, by a sort of inverse sense of reasoning he performs his toilet, washing his hands and face and drying the same on an ordinary towel. He then brushes his hair, and, being handed a looking-glass, surveys his features with evident satisfaction. After having with a small clothes brush removed all crumbs from the sleeves and lappels of his coat, he indicates his desire that the table should be cleared. This done, he takes his stand upon the table, and to the amusement of his audience begins to undress, carefully divesting his body of each garment, which one by one he passes to his trainer. With only his shirt on now, he whispers something in his companion's ear, which causes that individual to give him a candle and box of matches. Lighting the former he jumps from the table, candle in hand, and proceeds to his bedroom, which adjoins the dining-room, and forthwith lies down to repose. Having blown out his candle and kissed the attendant "Good-night," he would, one might presume, go to sleep in the ordinary course of affairs. But, ever mindful of a watchful concourse of spectators, he jumps out of bed and makes vigorous use of a Sandow developer attached to the bedpost. Afterwards he brings forward his bicycle, which is standing in the corner of the bedroom, and, mounting it, rides back into the dining-room, where he pauses for a moment, and by a gentle clapping of his own hands indicates to his audience that he hopes he has deserved their applause. His hint being heartily responded to, he quickly pedals off into the sanctity of his private apartments.

Consul has had the honour of being presented to Royalty. On the 23rd of last July, on the occasion of the King's visit to the Hungarian Exhibition, Consul was driving through the Hungarian street in his smart little dogcart, handling the reins in quite an able manner, with, of course, his indispensable cigarette between his lips. Catching sight of His Majesty standing in the doorway of one of the Hungarian cottages, Consul promptly pulled up and gravely saluted the King. His Majesty seemed intensely amused, and, turning to a gentleman by his side, said, "I see he has a cigarette in his mouth, but it does not appear to be lit." Consul promptly drew a box of matches from his pocket, and, striking one, proceeded to light the cigarette. "Wonderful!" exclaimed His Majesty. "I declare he is positively human." On the afternoon of the same day on which Consul had the honour of appearing before the King the little animal motored down to the Duke of York's School at Chelsea to be present at the annual distribution of prizes to the boys prior to their breaking up for the holidays. There he had the honour of appearing before the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, before whom he went through an entire performance as given at one of his receptions. Consul has also appeared before the Presidents of the United States and the French Republic.

Undoubtedly Consul is quite one of the principal attractions in the Jungle at Earl's Court. Mr. Bostock purposes sending him on tour through the provinces at the close of the Hungarian Exhibition, and we doubt not that he will be engaged to appear in most of the provincial halls.

AMALGAMATED MUSICIANS' UNION.

At the meeting of the Trades Union Congress, at the Mechanics' Hall, Nottingham, on Tuesday, Mr. J. B. Williams (Amalgamated Musicians' Union, Leeds) introduced a resolution, asking the Congress to reaffirm the condemnation of the action of the Government in allowing Army and Navy bandsmen to compete with civilian musicians, and to instruct the Parliamentary Committee to render every assistance to the Musicians' Union to put an end to the competition of Army and Navy bandsmen against civilian musicians, a great many of whom through that competition were thrown out of employment and deprived of their means of livelihood. He mentioned that though on the occasion of the music hall dispute the Board of Trade arbitrator fixed the minimum wage for playing in the evening at 30s., the 7th Hussars' Band had recently been playing twice daily at the Franco-British Exhibition, and he had it on the authority of the bandmaster that one man received only 24s. for that special week. In some instances bands had received the magnificent sum of £5 for playing at garden parties, and some of the youngsters got a bun for their share. None of the members of his Union were, unfortunately, able to exist merely on buns, and were, therefore, cut out entirely by that unfair competition from Army men. Some years ago Mr. Brodrick declared that the men were allowed to accept engagements so long as they did not interfere with their duties as soldiers. A number of seaside resorts this season dispensed with civilian bands and engaged them from the Army. At Clacton-on-Sea men from the regiment were allowed to fire volleys from the Grand Hotel, either to give effect to the music or drown it. As indicating the feeling on the subject, it was interesting to point out that the whole of the National Unions were fighting it, and in America a law had actually been passed forbidding enlisted men from competing with the civilian musicians. The British Government should be asked to do the same. The payment of a small wage to Army bandsmen, and allowing them to supplement it by taking engagements at the seaside, was merely bolstering up the payment of a sweating rate. They were paid as soldiers instead of musicians.

Mr. W. Johnson (Theatrical Employees, London) seconded, and the resolution was carried unanimously.

The A.M.U., as the result of a concert recently given by the Southport Branch in aid of sufferers in the great disaster at Wigan Colliery, had the pleasure of handing over to the Mayor's Fund the sum of £28 1s. 5d.

On Wednesday, Mr. J. Sexton (Dock Labourers' National Union, Liverpool) moved a resolution expressing deep censure upon those Britishers who had thought proper to engage themselves to cosmopolitan syndicates to interfere in foreign labour disputes, believing that such action was purposely adopted by unscrupulous capitalist combinations to generate and foster bad feeling between the workers of different countries, and suggesting that the Government should seek to apply the principles of the Foreign Enlistments Act to such as organise these blackleg expeditions to other States.

Mr. Williams (Musicians, Manchester), in seconding, said that hitherto it had been the proud boast of the British musicians that they did nothing of this kind, and they had to complain of Continental blacklegs coming over here, but now, in consequence of a dispute at Munich, they were trying, through a British agent to get British musicians.

MR. HAROLD MONTAGUE, late of Olympia, Shoreditch, and other halls, is now managing the Putney Hippodrome, in succession to Mr. Harry Long.

AT the Palace, Islington, on Monday, the day of the marriage of Mr. Fred Gough (leader), a very handsome marble clock was presented to him by Mr. Edward P. Delevanti, the musical director, on behalf of the manager, Mr. W. Hardy, and the members of the orchestra, with their very best wishes for a happy and prosperous future.

VISITORS to the Crystal Palace will have another opportunity next week of hearing Mr. W. D. Mackenzie and company in their extremely interesting entertainment, entitled Moments with the Masters. Three performances will be given daily in the Concert Hall.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

Fairs Ahead.

The fairs ahead for next week are—Ardsley, on the Great Northern; Barstaple, on the London and South-Western and Great Western; Glastonbury, on the Midland and South-Western; Holbeck, on the Great Northern, North-Eastern, Midland, and Lancashire and Yorkshire; Sandal Feast, on the Great Northern; Boston, on the Great Northern; Ottery St. Mary, on the London and South-Western; Ware, on the Great Eastern; Alford, on the Great Northern; Langwith, on the Midland; Penn (Bucks.), on the Great Western; Second Lee Fair; Bury, on the Lancashire and Yorkshire; Amersham, on the Metropolitan; Atherstone, on the London and North-Western; Beminster, on the Great Western; Hayfield, on the Great Central; Ilkley, on the Midland and North-Eastern; New Mills, on the London and North-Western, Midland, and Great Central; Northampton, on the London and North-Western, Great Northern, and Midland; Pateley Bridge, on the North-Eastern; Ratcliffe, on the Midland; Staines, on the Great Western and London and South-Western; Worcester, on the Great Western and Midland; Johnstone (N.B.), on the Glasgow and South-Western; Moss of Balloch, on the North British; Brynmawr, on the Great Western and London and North-Western; and Tredegar, on the London and North-Western Railways.

Notes from Wales.

White's electric coliseum paid a successful visit to Maesteg, and gave immense satisfaction to the people of the district. A special item of local interest was the animated picture of the Wreck of the Amazon on Port Talbot Sands. The last portion of the picture gave fine portraits of the four survivors, one of whom has since succumbed to his injuries. A much-appreciated item on the variety programme was Walter Gibbons, baritone vocalist and song illustrator, his song-scena A Pal of Mine giving immense delight to hundreds of people nightly.

The Showmen's Guild at the Fairs.

Owing to the unfortunate clash of dates this year, the Rev. T. Horne, Guild Chaplain, will not be able to visit Ayr. Holbeck Feast and Ayr being on the same dates, the Guild Chaplain is obliged (owing to long-standing arrangements with the local clergy) to give Holbeck the preference. There will be meetings of the Showmen's Guild on Holbeck Moor both afternoon and evening. As Holbeck Feast is the great gathering-ground of Yorkshire showmen before the break-up of the Yorkshire Round for the back-end fairs, it is confidently anticipated that there will be a big rally to the Trade Defence Movement at the Holbeck meetings. At Ayr Fair the Scotch showmen, led by Messrs. George Green and John Wilmot, have generously promised to give a benefit for the Guild Funds.

We also understand that a big effort will be made at Hull Fair to replenish the society's exchequer. A suggestion made at the Oldham meeting last week to give a benefit at Hull Fair was warmly taken up.

Mr. John Collins, the lessee of the fairground at Rotherham Statutes, has also promised to give a benefit for the Guild Funds at that fair.

Neath Fair.

Neath great September Fair provided a great variety of amusements for the tremendous crowds this year. Mr. James Dooner had a capital array of talent, and some excellent pictures, one of the features being the Wreck of the Amazon on Margam Sands. Messrs. Wadbrooke also had a fine specimen of the wreck, also a fine selection of films and variety turns. Messrs. Wm. Haggar and Sons had their No. 1 and 2 Bioscope shows, with a good picture of the wreck, along with other good subjects of an attractive character. Mr. John Studt had a good reception with his new Bioscope, and had a very nice lot of pictures of a pleasing kind. Mr. E. Danter has some very fine pictures and varieties. Mr. Dixon Fisher, ventriloquist, made a hit. Messrs. Crecraft completes the list of a good variety of picture exhibitions, some fine pictures being shown nightly. Princess and Prince Samouda in their occult mysteries were, as usual, a big success.

In the machine list are Mr. John Studt's Royal motors and No. 1 zoological sets, Messrs. Hy. Studt and Son's motors, zoological, and gondolas, E. Danter's gondolas, S. White's tunnel railway and helter-skelter.

In the noble art of self-defence we have Frank Goss and J. Scarrot; Reader's smallest woman exhibition and menagerie, Leons, male and female athletes, Blower's tattooed man, Roberts's spotted lady, and Gipsy Smith, and the Lee Family of society palmists found many admirers.

Juvenile sets were catered for by Messrs. Wm. North, Mathews and Butlin; Emmas, swings, shooters, cokernuts, rifle saloons, &c., were provided by the following:—Messrs. D. Boswell, John North, Wm. North, Chas. North, James Day, Blower, Scott, Freeman, Winsper, Oadley, Scheldon, Sheen, Chadwick, Fossett, Powell, Buthin, Case Danter; photos by Fossets and Oulson; big wheel, Roberts. By the kindness of the leading showmen the various charitable institutions are enjoying the fun of the fair on Saturday afternoon, further particulars of which will be reported next week.

Barnet Old Fair.

This increasingly popular London suburban fair was attended by a larger gathering of showmen than we have noticed in recent years. The whole of the available fairground, stretching for nearly a quarter of a mile alongside the high road, was filled with shows, roundabouts, throwing games, and stalls. The opening day of the fair was spoilt by the rain, and but little business was done. The Saturday, Monday, and Tuesday were blessed with fine weather. Great crowds of people went out from London by special train and great crowds came in from the neighbouring towns, now linked with Barnet by electric tramways. The principal shows were those of Biddall Bros., H. and W. Thurston, J. Purchase, J. Chittock, and E. Elliott. Motor-car sets, galloping horses, and riding machines were provided by Messrs. Thurston, Jacob Studt, J. Manders, F. Gray, J. Harris, and Forrest Bros. There were also gem motors, horses, and swings by S. Mayne and other caterers. Throwing games, shooting galleries, hoop-la! circles, coker sheets, variety frames, and stalls in great array by Messrs. Harris, Mayne, Shaw, Kefford, S. Jones, C. Bailey, Matthews, the Harris family, the Bond family, and a great number of local caterers.

The White City, Old Trafford.

The weekly Wednesday evening carnivals and dancing competitions in the magnificent ballroom are a great success, and on the other evenings the room is also crowded with people passionately fond of dancing. Another popular resort is the skating rink, with Professor Alec Payne as the leading genial spirit. Professor Frank Burley continues his sensational bicycle ride down the water-chute and his 60ft. dive enveloped in fire. Hale's tours of the world continue to prove popular, and the ten hours' round of entertainments, including the Igorrote Village, Old Plantation Show, and Drake's Pierrots, keep visitors busy.

Mr. Norton's School-van at the Western Fairs.

Mr. Geoffrey Norton, whose keen interest in van-life and earnest championship of showpeople we have often chronicled in the Showman World, sends us the following deeply-interesting letter:—

"Dear Mr. Horne,—I was just about to write you to inform you of my temporary retirement from the Western Fair fields when I saw your kind reference to me in last Saturday's Era. Your remarks were undeserved, I fear. I have been following the fairs for the last five months, and I cannot point to anything like success; but I 'did my durnd'est.' On arrival at Newton Abbot prior to attending Paignton Regatta, I heard of the Exeter Mission-van at work, and having regard to the fact that the missioners were two and could carry on during the back-end fairs (which I was uncertain of being able to attend myself), I thought it best, for the children's sake, to leave the field to the new arrivals.

"The Exeter Diocesan Mission last year omitted to send out a wagon to follow the regattas, which is the reason why I took the road myself. I also wrote the Canon Missioner of Exeter last winter asking him to help me with a man during the whole of the fair season, but could get no help from him. It was scarcely sportsmanlike of the Exeter Mission to send out a wagon with a priest and a layman to conduct a school for the travellers' children without a word to me, seeing that I had already been on the road for that very purpose for five months. I do not wish to seem ungenerous in criticising a mission and school which is our ideal of the Showmen's Guild, but the drawback of a Diocesan Mission is that the van cannot go outside the particular diocese, and consequently must lessen its practical utility.

"No one is more pleased than I to see such a mission of help on the fairgrounds; but I should like to suggest to those responsible for the expenses of the van and its agents that they consider the advisability of following the fairs right through next year, taking the snow and the mud with the showmen as well as the sunshine.

"My memories of kindnesses received from my friends in Showland are grateful and enduring: they have been to me good comrades all. If I have been of any use to any of them the knowledge of that will more than repay me. And I am ready to again take the road at very slight provocation should I see a need that I think I can fill. "Geoffrey W. A. Norton.

"Beachfield Hotel, Penzance, Sept. 1."

We are entirely in sympathy with Mr. Norton and think with him that the work he set out to do ought to have met with greater encouragement. The Exeter Diocesan Mission, whose work we noticed in The Era a fortnight ago, would have been all the more successful if the Mission had co-operated with Mr. Norton's school-van scheme. As Mr. Norton points out, the work ought to be so linked up by the Bishops that the children would have the same school from Easter to the end of the show season on the Western fair-fields. There were possibilities about Mr. Norton's scheme that would have secured a school even in the showmen's winter quarters, say at Bristol. We sincerely hope that, in the light of this year's experiment, an effort will be made to link up the diocesan machinery with Mr. Norton's more practical scheme, and that next Easter a school-van will follow the Western Circuit right through.

We are confident that Mr. Norton has with him the best wishes and the gratitude of the Western showpeople, and that he will ultimately secure the desire of his heart—the education and uplifting of "the kiddies of the fairground" he so dearly loves.

Tenders are invited by the Town Council of Ludlow for the ground used for the old-established pleasure fair, held on May 1, sufficient space being reserved for the local stall-holders. Full information can be obtained from the Clerk of the Markets. Tenders are to be sent in before five o'clock on Thursday, Oct. 8, to Mr. John Herbert Williams, the Town Clerk.

AN INTERESTING WEDDING IN SHOWLAND.

On Tuesday, Sept. 9, at Tottenham, a wedding of great interest took place. The happy pair were Mr. Joseph Alport (son of Joseph Alport, of Birmingham, and for five years manager of one of P. Collins' roundabouts), and Miss Eliza Matthews (daughter of Mrs. Amy Matthews, widow, well known in the London district as travelling with shooting galleries and other fairground novelties). Both the bride and bridegroom are well known and highly esteemed by the show colony at the Alexandra Palace. After the marriage ceremony they received quite an ovation from their friends at the Palace, being welcomed on the fair-ground by a salute of ten guns. The reception took place in a beautifully-decorated marquee on the Alexandra Palace fair-ground. The bride and bridegroom were enthusiastically toasted by their numerous friends, and after their departure the wedding festivities were vigorously kept up, and concluded with dancing and music till the wee hours of the morning.

The presents were numerous and costly, and included very handsome sets of electro-silver plate, the gift of Mrs. Alport, sen.; a full complement of household goods from Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wilson and family. Other useful and attractive presents came from Mrs. R. Matthews, Miss Matthews, and G. Upchurch; Mr. and Mrs. J. Collinson, Mr. and Mrs. Upchurch, Miss Hetty Green, Mr. and Mrs. Andrews, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mayne, Mr. and Mrs. Bramhall, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wood, Mrs. Wales, Mrs. Harry Prentice, Mr. W. Wilson, Miss Florrie Parvey, Mr. and Mrs. W. Alport (of Birmingham), Mr. and Mrs. John Hamilton, Captain Henry, Mr. A. B. O'Shie, Mr. Edwin Wheatley, Messrs. Shearsmith, Pickering, Madlow, Mott, Cordell, Hill, and Davies, Charley and Martha Andrews, the Misses Stanton, Fitzgerald, and Fossett, Mr. and Miss Skeats, the men at the machines at the Palace fair-ground, and the members of Alexandra Palace staff. The bridegroom's present to the bride was a gold watch and chain. We join our congratulations with those of the numerous friends of the happy couple.

MR. JOSEPH ALPORT AND MISS ELIZA MATTHEWS.

SHOWMEN, TRACTION ENGINES, AND THE ELECTRIC LIGHT.

TO THE EDITOR, SHOWMAN WORLD.

Sir,—Owing to frequent inquiries at various periods re the above question, I do not think it can be generally known, notwithstanding it has been stated on all my biographies and memos. for some years, that the late Randall Williams was the first showman in this country to travel with a traction engine and adopt the electric light, and the next one was—Yours faithfully,

TOM NORMAN (Silver King).

The Fair at Doncaster.

For the famous Leger Week at Doncaster there is always a big fair, for where a crowd is there the itinerant entertainers gather together. The local showman Councillor G. T. Tuby hath honour in his own town and amongst his own people, the principal attractions being supplied by Councillor Tuby, who exhibited the superb coliseum of varieties and living pictures, the fine set of Gordon-Bennett motor cars, the three-abreast galloping horses, the racing birds, shooting ranges, and park swings. The other entertainers present were Farrar and Tyler, with electric palace of animated pictures and varieties, and Messrs. Graham, Pattison, Warwick, and Buff Bill with side shows, Richards with Brooklyn cake-walk machine, Pullen with shooting range and swings, and shooters, throwing games, and variety stalls by Messrs. Rutter, Lever, Brennan, Walser, Colver, Webber, Doubtfire, Ling, Farran, Barraclough, Ramsden, Holt, Richardson, Illingworth, Frampton, Smith, Fisher, Wills, Black, and others.

DETERMINED OPPOSITION TO THE MOVABLE DWELLINGS BILL.

As briefly chronicled last week, a highly important and representative gathering of showmen was held at Oldham Wakes to determine what further steps shall be taken in opposition to the Movable Dwellings Bill. Although every showman present was a member of the old society, the Showmen's Guild, there were present members of the other active trade organisations dealing with the business of the fair ground, representatives being present of both the Roundabout Proprietors' and Showmen's Union and the Stallholders' Federation. This union of all the trade societies under the banner of the Guild was an indication of the great spirit of unity which prevails in the showman world, and the strong determination to oppose all legislation having for its object the curtailment of the trade rights and liberties, and the domestic peace and security, of travelling showpeople. Mr. P. Collins occupied the chair, and supporting him were the Rev. T. Horne (Guild chaplain), Mr. T. Hurst (hon. secretary the Showmen's Guild and secretary of the Roundabout Proprietors' and Showmen's Union), Mr. Wm. Gibson (member of the executive committee of the Guild, and secretary of the Stallholders' Federation), Mr. R. Ingham (member of the Guild committee and of the Stallholders' Federation), vice-presidents John Collins and George Cornwell of the Showmen's Guild, Mr. Wm. Mitchell and Mr. B. Mitchell (trustees of the Guild), and Messrs. H. Hibbert, E. Geoghegan, W. Holmes, F. Mellor, T. Geoghegan, P. R. Collins, and others.

Work already Done in Opposition to the Bill.

Mr. P. Collins, in opening the conference, very forcibly indicated the serious nature of the dangers threatening the show business if such measures as Lord Clifford's Bill passed Parliament. He warned the conference that it would be the death blow to their business, and the destruction of the privacy of their homes and family life. It was to him a constant source of amazement that gentlemen like Lord Clifford and those who stood behind the Movable Dwellings Bill could not be brought to recognise that, in their effort to deal with the problem of gipsy life, they were inflicting a terrible injury upon a hard-working and deserving class, that outnumbered the gipsies more than twenty to one, and whose interests were more than a hundred times greater than any possible advantage that could come to the nation even by the total suppression of gipsy life. They were gathered together, he said, to hear from the executive officers of the Guild all the measures that had been taken up to that time to bring the claims of showmen before the promoters of the Bill.

The Failure of Negotiations with the Promoters of the Bill.

They would hear from the Guild chaplain, who would address them presently, how far they had been able to enter into negotiations with a view to amendments of the Bill, and they would have to consider and determine whether there was any further hope of securing for show people justice from the promoters of the measure. He had followed very keenly every stage of the negotiations, and he was obliged to confess that the results had been very unsatisfactory. He would say no more at that juncture. It was for them, as the committee speaking for the whole body of showmen, to determine upon a working policy, and he would now call upon the Rev. T. Horne to open the discussion.

The Guild Chaplain's Report.

As they were well aware, he said, efforts had been made to effect a working understanding with the promoters of the Movable Dwellings Bill. It was now his duty to report in full with regard to those efforts of peaceful settlement, and also to lay before that committee the prospects of successful opposition to the measure. First of all, he would endeavour to show them what had been tentatively agreed upon as a possible basis of compromise—in other words, how far Lord Clifford had agreed to go in modification of his Bill, so that it would injure the show business less than it would have done if passed in its original form.

They would remember that the machinery of the Bill set up every county as a registration authority, with power of compulsory registration of all vans used for human habitation. This licensing of vans would have been a direct invasion of the domestic liberty of show people. The only modification Lord Clifford was willing to accept was that registration in any given county should be effective for the whole of the country. This certainly modified the irksomeness of registration. With reference to Clause 5 in the Bill, which gave power to county authorities to prohibit fairs, Lord Clifford was willing to accept an amendment—that the Act, if passed, should not apply to recognised fair grounds. But even with that reservation it would still leave the extremely important privilege hitherto enjoyed by showmen of carrying on their business upon private land, and at other times than the time of the fair or local feast. He had been particularly insistent in putting before Lord Clifford and the promoters of the Bill the important fact that showmen strongly denied that any fresh legislation was necessary with regard to the sanitation of their movable dwellings, and, before he was done with this part of the subject before them, he would refresh their minds by quoting from the Public Health Act and subsequent measures with regard to the health of the general community, that showmen were fully justified in their opposition to further legislation. Whatever might be necessary for gipsy encampments, it was a libel on the healthy life of the travelling showmen to say that his life, admittedly superior in all its forms, and totally different in every respect to that of the gipsy, needs more law than at present existed.

Essential Points of Difference.

By the Public Health Act of 1875, in every district of the United Kingdom a sanitary authority was set up, with full power of control over all buildings and erections used for human habitation. In a further Act dealing with the health of the people, the Housing of the Working Classes Act, movable dwellings of all kinds, vans, tents, and sheds, were brought under the control and inspection of the sanitary authority. In every Act of Parliament dealing with public health it is clearly set forth that living vans, tents, or movable dwellings of all kinds are just as much under the authority of the sanitary officer as permanent dwellings. That being so, the question arises—what do the promoters of the Bill hope to gain by passing it? First of all, a tremendous change will be made in the administration of the law, and an invidious distinction would be drawn between house-dwellers and van-dwellers. As the law now stands, it is the sanitary authority that has the power of control of all dwellings in the interest of public health; but under Lord Clifford's Bill the administration would be entirely in the hands of the county police. They would at once see the invidious stigma placed upon van-dwellers. Not the sanitary officer, but the county policeman would come to their door in order to be satisfied as to the sanitary conditions of their movable dwellings. He had pointed this out to the promoters of the Bill, but they refused to see the injustice that such a tremendous change in the administration of the law of public health would inflict upon showmen as a class.

Another important difference with the promoters of the Bill arose out of the fact that they refused to accept an exemption clause, and also refused to call their Bill by its true name—a Gipsy Encampment Bill.

The Line of Future Action.

There were two possible lines of future action that the organised showmen could take. The first was to accept the amendments already discussed between them and the promoters of the Bill—that is, the concession of one registration, and one only, for all living-vans, and the second, the exemption clause that the prohibition powers should not apply to recognised fair grounds. He had no doubt that an extension of these concessions might be obtained, but yet there would remain the important restrictions upon their business and domestic life, indicated by compulsory registration in some form, and by the administration of the sanitary law by the county police, when applied to movable dwellings.

The second line of united action would be to determine to oppose the Bill at every stage of its progress. He could assure them that the showmen had many friends in both Houses of Parliament, and that their case as against the Bill was so strong that there would be no doubt that their many friends in Parliament would vigorously oppose the Bill, and, even if they failed to defeat it, would obtain for them more practical amendments and greater concessions than the promoters of the Bill were willing to accept at the present time. He asked them to carefully consider both lines of action, and to determine, after the fullest discussion, the policy of united action with regard to the Bill.

The Rally of Showmen to Trade Defence.

He had already addressed at various centres, both in England and in Scotland, great gatherings of showmen, united in opposition to the Movable Dwellings Bill. Petitions had been signed extensively against the measure, and resolutions condemning it had been unanimously passed. The whole showman world, it was no exaggeration to state, condemned the Bill as an invasion of their home life, and also as a danger to their trade and business. It was now for the committee to settle its policy. Parliament would re-assemble next month, and the consideration of the Bill would be among the very first things that the House of Lords would consider. As far as he had been able to gauge the strength of public opinion, he had every confidence that they would be supported by the vast body of justice-loving people. If the promoters of this Bill refused to see, and steadily refused to recognise, that showmen deserve better treatment than gipsy squatters, he was confident that the people of this country would bring such pressure to bear upon Parliament that justice would be done to the travelling showman.

Other Speeches.

Mr. Wm. Gibson critically analysed the provisions of the Bill. He condemned it for its refusal to provide for the just rights and liberties of showmen in contradistinction to gipsies and the squatters on common lands. He felt sure that every means of peaceful conciliation and compromise had been used by the Guild chaplain in his conference with Lord Clifford. He regretted that the promoters of the Bill took so unreasonable a line as to refuse a clause exempting showmen from the provisions of the Bill. He considered Clause 5 was the most dangerous element in the measure, and he, for one, would not be satisfied with anything short of the dropping of that clause. Clause 5, according to his reading of it, gave them over, bound hand and foot, into the hands of the county authority. The value of Lord Clifford's suggested amendment to exempt recognised fair grounds was more apparent than real. They would all remember the growth of new fairs in recent years in the great centres of industry, and if the Bill, even with the amendment, had to become law, they would have constant trouble in the settlement of the highly disputable question—What is a recognised fair? He strongly condemned the exclusion of the sanitary officer by the policeman, and he thoroughly agreed with the Guild chaplain as to the insufferable nature of the injustice that this alone would impose upon showmen and their business in life. He stood for opposition to the measure at every stage.

Mr. T. Hurst's Resolution.

Mr. Hurst, in rising to propose a resolution, expressed his strong conviction that the Bill was beyond remedy, and that the refusal of its promoters to call it by its proper name, "The Gipsy Encampment Bill," coupled with the insult levelled at showmen as a class, by turning them over from the sanitary authority to the police, was so serious a matter that showmen could not be expected to submit without a struggle. He was for fighting the Bill. He therefore submitted the following resolution:—"That this meeting of showmen, held at Oldham Wakes, Sept. 2, 1908, and consisting of members of the united trade societies in the showman world, emphatically protests against the Movable Dwellings Bill, introduced by Lord Clifford. Further, we wish to state that the law of the land as it stands to-day is quite ample for all sanitary and health purposes, and it gives local authorities full power to deal with movable dwellings and fair grounds. We are convinced that Lord Clifford's Bill is quite unnecessary as regards travelling showmen, and that a copy of this resolution be sent to Lord Clifford.

The resolution was seconded by Mr. W. Gibson and supported by Mr. John Collins, Mr. Wm Mitchell, and Mr. R. Ingham.

Before putting the motion to the meeting, Mr. P. Collins invited further discussion, and very important contributions to the subject before the meeting were made by Messrs. Frank Mellor, J Collins, B. Mitchell, G. Cornwell, Wm. Holmes, and others.

The resolution was then put to the meeting, and carried unanimously.

A vote of thanks was most cordially given to the Rev. T. Horne, and a similar compliment was paid to the chairman.

Many of these Films we have seen ourselves, and can confidently recommend showmen to add them to their list of attractions.

Pathé Frères.

MARY STUART.—Under this title Messrs. Pathé have published an interesting pictorial romance associated with Scottish history. Mary Stuart, the daughter of James V. of Scotland and Mary of Guise, was married to François II., King of France. After the death of her husband, in 1560, Mary Stuart left France on account of the persecutions of Catherine of Medicis, and, weeping profusely, she came back to Scotland. Her father having died, the throne was hers. She was barely nineteen years of age, and her youth as well as her great beauty and charm of manners won for her the hearts of the Scots. To those qualities were added a great generosity and a deep attachment to the Roman Catholic Faith. When Mary Stuart arrived in Scotland she found it in the hands of the Protestants, who gave their young Queen much trouble, and at last revolted against her and put her into prison. She escaped to England, and asked her cousin, Elizabeth, for protection, but the latter betrayed her, and had her imprisoned during nineteen years, after which she had her beheaded. This film deals with the sad story of the Queen of Scots.

THE MILLER, HIS SON, AND HIS DONKEY.—This is a representation of La Fontaine's fable. A miller and his son, on the way to the fair, where they intend selling their donkey, carry the poor animal in order that he should be better-looking and easier to sell. The passers-by laugh at them, and the miller, somewhat abashed, causes his son to ride on the donkey's back, while he walks behind. Three tradesmen pass remarks as they pass the trio. "Oh, there, oh, get down you young fellow and let the old man ride." In order to satisfy them the miller makes his son dismount and he rides in his place. Three maidens laugh at them in their turn; they have never seen an old man riding thus like a bishop, while the poor young fellow comes hobbling behind. Both then ride on the donkey's back, and rather too late the old miller comes to the wise conclusion that in future he will do what he thinks best, without trying to please everybody, for he knows now that it would be impossible.

THE FRENCH MILITARY AIRSHIPS.—In this open-air series we witness the airship Ville-de-Paris, the Patrie on her last trip, the shed at Moissan, first trip of the airship République, the balloon Soude's return, the Airship's Evolutions, her landing and bringing back to the shed, concluding with portraits of Messrs. Julliot and Juchmès, the République's engineer and pilot.

A TRAGIC CORSO.—An old captain refuses his consent to his son's marriage with a young girl of humble origin, and her brothers resolve to avenge her. At the Carnival in Nice, the brothers, accompanied by their sister, all disguised, follow the young man, who is enjoying himself with some friends. The young girl, masked, goes up to the captain's son, calls him aside, and delivers him into her brothers' hands, when they promptly stab him. Not content with this, they drag him to his old father's house and tell him that his son is only drunk; he thanks them for bringing him home, and offers them wine, which they drink. It is only when they have gone that he discovers the trick played on him, and, sobbing, he throws himself on the silent form of his son.

A NOBLEMAN'S PLEASURE.—Nothing is easier for a powerful and rich man than to make a peasant woman forget her duties provided she is a bit of a flirt. The nobleman in this picture uses a stratagem in order to make her come to the court, where she is received with smiles and honeyed words. But as her husband discovers the plot, thanks to a servant, he goes to the palace, and he is recognised the moment he thinks he is going to have his revenge, and put into prison. His wife comes to him and asks for pardon, untying with her own hands the ropes which encircle his wrists. Yet, in spite of her entreaties, he makes her atone in a terrible manner for her foolishness.

Charles Urban Trading Co., Ltd.

SUNNY MADEIRA, PART I., introduces the spectator to the life, customs, and industries of an Atlantic winter resort, with a deeply-interesting and beautiful environment, still untrodden by the ordinary tourist. The series is never wanting in vivacity, and the scenes are all depicted with a satisfying fulness of detail in absolutely perfect photographic sequence. We get views of Madeira from the Sea, the Bay of Funchal, boats awaiting the steamer, diving boys of Madeira skilfully securing from the depths coins thrown overboard by the passengers, barge load of labourers on their way to coal the steamer, bullock teams hitched to the boats hauling luggage ashore and up the steep beach, sledges laden with baggage drawn over the loose stones to the Customs House, examination of baggage at the Customs House, the Market-place, Funchal, Portuguese children laden with produce going to market, the Mountain Railway, departure of train, panorama from the engine as the track rises 2,000 feet in two miles, the Fish Market, Funchal, and the arrival at Funchal of the Duke of Connaught.

THE WICKER CHAIR INDUSTRY OF MADEIRA.—This is an industry peculiar to this almost tropic island, which supplies the world with wicker easy-chairs and couches of every conceivable type. Steamer and house chairs, garden lounges and verandah seats, ornate and simple in design and appearance, are manufactured in great numbers at Funchal, and every facility was afforded to the Urban operators for illustrating the various processes of the industry.

OVER THE STUBAITHAL RAILWAY BY MOONLIGHT.—Here we are treated to a wonderful journey through one of the most remarkable and picturesque districts of the Southern Tyrol—lovely, peaceful, pastoral, rustic, majestic, and sublime; indeed, a combination of scenic qualities seldom seen in one and the same picture. The pictures include the departure of the train from Wiften-Stubai, panorama from the train, close panorama of the Dolomites and Earth Pyramids, great railway curve over a mountain torrent, descent by the Stubaithal train of one car, and beautiful effects as the last panorama gradually recedes, giving place to more detailed loveliness.

THE LAKE OF GARDA, ITALY, is another attractive series which presents a steamboat panorama of the largest and most eastern of the great lakes of Northern Italy, enclosed by Alpine ridges on both sides, and dividing the Austrian Tyrol from the old Italian provinces of Venetia and Lombardy. The lake at its greatest depth is about 1,000 feet. The lemon-tree ripens its fruit on the banks of this lake, though the trees require to be carefully covered, and even artificially warmed during frost. The number of trees in cultivation is over 20,000, each producing about 1,000 lemons. The scenery on Lake Garda, its islands and promontory, is remarkable for the luxuriance of its vegetation, for its island castle ruins, its sublime mountain peaks, and for the picturesque towns and villages on its banks.

THE BEAR PITS OF BERNE, SWITZERLAND.—Inquisitive, beseeching, playful, and athletic by turns, the bears greatly enjoy the State-provided semi-freedom of their quarters and surroundings. A cold bath is blissfully appreciated; human admirers minister to their needs by throwing a plentiful supply of buns, which are deftly caught. Their keeper joins them in a game of hide-and-seek, and their gymnastic proclivities are encouraged by a convenient pine-tree, cut to afford foothold until the higher branches are reached, amongst which they disport.

CLOSED ON SUNDAYS.—The scenes in this production show the comical experiences of a family arriving from the country to spend a pleasant Sunday in town. By municipal order, however, every shop, restaurant, and hotel is closed. The sherbet venders in the park, the cabmen, the very policemen joyfully take a day's rest, and the visitors are refused accommodation everywhere, save at the public drinking-fountain. In despair, they seek repose amongst the river barges, but are rudely disturbed by a gang of roughs—the only working men in the city—who steal all their belongings, and the stripped and stricken family sadly retrace their steps homewards.

WHEN RUBEN COMES TO TOWN.—In this film we are introduced to Farmer Green on the occasion of his leaving home for a holiday. His good wife, before saying "good-bye," gives him some good advice on the necessity of taking care of himself in town. Having arrived, he sets out to find a lodging, and succeeds in getting someone "to take him in." The landlord's welcome is nice; but his anxiety for payment in advance is evidently brought about by past experiences. However, our weary friend now seeks to woo the goddess of sleep, but he reckons without the other boarders, so has to put up a fight with an intruder ere he gets to sleep. He is not allowed to enjoy this trip to the land of dreams for long, as, after a scout has reconnoitred the position, the enemy attack in correct military fashion, and our hero is obliged to take cover in an old trunk. After getting nicely off again he is woke up by another terror—burglars—and he sees his clothes overhauled and his watch and wallet appropriated. Not content with money and valuables, the burglars unknowingly lock the poor farmer in the trunk and move off with it. The trunk getting heavy, a halt is called, but the motion has evidently set poor Ruben dreaming, and the trunk sets off on its own account. We are treated to many experiences until the burglars discover the trunk and fall out over the spoil, and upon opening the box to take the contents, our farmer friend is taken for a ghost. In the confusion the farmer escapes, and is obliged to make his way home dressed elegantly in a barrel, and after getting through a row with his better half, vows "Never again."

AEROPLANE FLIGHTS BY HENRY FARMAN, CONEY ISLAND, N.Y., U.S.A.—In this progressive age, when there is so much talk of flying machines, it is pleasing to be able to see how the great aeroplanists are overcoming the difficulties of flying. This film shows clearly in detail the exhibition of Mr. Henry Farman and his aeroplane, and the perfect handling of this airship by the French aviator.

THE SNAKE FILM.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—My attention has been called to an article in your issue of Saturday, Sept. 5, in the column devoted to "Film Gossip," under the heading of "Extraction of Poison from a Venomous Snake."

Osca, the famous snake handler, is under contract with me, and has never appeared (since his arrival in this country) in any such demonstration as your article would suggest, excepting for the firm of Messrs. Pathé Frères.

As Messrs. Pathé Frères have paid me a very handsome sum for the privilege of reproducing for cinematograph purposes the pictures of the scientific demonstration which took place in my Jungle at Earl's Court on Friday, Aug. 21, I feel it my duty to ask you to kindly publish this letter.—Yours truly,

F. C. BOSTOCK.

Earl's Court, London.
Sept. 7, 1908.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—In The Era of Sept. 5 you published an article concerning a film by the Urban Co. of a ruff adder, and state that the snake was handled by Osca.

It was owing to a mistake that the name was used. All snakes recently photographed by the Urban Co. are owned by me, and have only been handled by me.

I trust that you will publish this correction, and give me the credit for a dangerous work that very few would undertake. Thanking you in anticipation,—I am, yours faithfully,

WM. A. BEVAN.

Sept. 7, 1908.

MISS JEAN MACDUFF, the lady Scotch comedian in kilts, appeared last week at the Victoria Pier Pavilion, Blackpool, where she scored an immediate success in her latest hit, "I'm getting married in the morning."

MR. DAN ASHTON, the Lancashire collier, will appear at the Palace, Manchester, on Sept. 21, with a new, original, and up-to-date item founded on the facts of the Wigan colliery disaster, for the benefit of the widows and orphans.

FERRISS AND MAY, the musical comedy couple, are being rapidly booked up by Tom Pacey on the Stoll, Barrasford, and Gibbons tours. This week they are scoring a most gratifying success at Walham Green.

MISS LILY LONSDALE deputised at the London, Shoreditch, on Tuesday, and made a hit with her new character-song, "My little Deutcher girl," the audience immediately joining in the catchy chorus.

INVENTIONS.

[The particulars furnished below of recent applications for patents are taken from the official records. Correspondence is invited with our readers on all matters relating to new ideas and inventions, with a view to affording them advice and assistance. Letters should be addressed to the Manager, Inventions Department, "The Era," 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, London.]

Inventors and others who have no business representative are invited to communicate with the Manager of the Inventions Dept. as above.

APPLICATIONS.

17,761.—William Frederic Butcher, of London. Improved box for holding lantern slides and the like.

17,765.—Alfred Wrench and William Engelke, of London. Improved means for effecting the synchronous running of gramophones and the like, and cinematographic apparatus.

17,786.—William Henry Halstead, of London. Improvements in combined roundabouts and swing or fly boats.

17,920.—Thomas Ernest Raymond Phillips, of Liverpool. Improvements in or connected with acousto-cinematographic apparatus.

17,994.—Ernest Joseph Woodhouse and Jonathan Page, both of Stapleford, Notts. New set of steam roundabouts, jumping and galloping horses.

COMPLETE SPECIFICATION ACCEPTED.

563.—Lertourné. Shutters for cinematographs.

ABRIDGMENTS OF SPECIFICATIONS.

10,000.—Emergency-exit locks. A. Pordage, of Edinburgh.

The casing (C) for the handle (B) of an emergency-exit lock for factories, hotels, theatres, music halls, &c., has a slot (G), through which the glass front (D) may be withdrawn only when the door (E) is opened sufficiently to clear the jamb (F). In a modification for doors opening inwards, the casing (C) has a sliding end, which can be moved to release the glass front (D) only when the door is opened. If the use of a pass key is desired, the bolt casing (A) is extended beyond the casing (C), and a keyhole (H) is provided in this extension.

10,078.—Kinematographs. E. G. Homes and J. O. Guidert, of Vienna.

Kinematographs are fitted with appliances for preventing ignition of the film, and, in the case of the film tearing, for turning on the illuminating devices in the room where the instrument is in use, and for stopping the machine. A flap (3, Fig. 1) is placed over the usual door in the place where the amount of light is greatest. The flap is mounted on a shaft (2), carrying a toothed wheel (4), gearing with a rack (6), mounted on a plate (7), which slides between guides (5). This plate is attached to one arm of a bell-crank lever (17, Fig. 2), the other arm of which is joined by a bar (16) to a rod (15), constrained to move vertically. The lower end of this rod rests on one end of a lever (14, Fig. 4), which is controlled by clockwork (A). When this clockwork is started, a pin (12) on one of the wheels depresses the other end of the lever, and thus the rod (15) moves up, the rack is withdrawn from the wheel, and the flap falls. When the machine is started, the flap rises owing to a downward motion of the rack, caused by a centrifugal regulator, consisting of three springs with weights (18) on them, one end being attached to a fixed sleeve on a shaft worked from the main shaft, and the other to a sliding sleeve (19), which, when the speed reaches a certain value, makes contact with the lever (23), pivoted on a shaft (22), and carrying a lever (24), which is connected to the rack. The flap is only completely raised when the speed of the film is such that it is in no danger of being ignited. Beneath the flap (3) is a rotary plate (26), the shaft of which is insulated from the machine, and the plate kept in contact with the film or front of the machine. A wire (27) connects the plate to one terminal of a circuit, the other terminal of which is connected to the machine by a wire wound round a magnet (29), in front of which is an armature (9) controlling the clockwork. While the film is intact, the plate (26) is insulated from the apparatus. Should the film break, however, the circuit is completed, and by the attraction of the armature the clockwork sets in action the various levers and the flap (3) falls. The terminal (31) is connected to a spring contact (32), which makes contact with the sliding sleeve when the machine is not working. The wire (L1) is connected to a contact-piece (34), which, when the clockwork runs down, is connected to the terminal (M); when the clockwork is wound up, no connection is effected. The circuit (L), &c., is broken when the centrifugal regulator comes into operation; when the film tears, the operation of the clockwork closes the circuit through the contact (34), and also the lamp circuit (L, L1), before the sleeve (19) comes in contact with the spring contact (32). The motor circuit, which may run from L to M in parallel with the lamps, runs from the contact (38) to the contacts (39, 40, Fig. 3), which are only connected through the plate (37) when the clockwork is wound up. If the exhibiting room is lit by incandescent gas mantles, the gas may be turned on by the action of the pivoted lever (42), of which one end rests on the lever (14), and the other end is connected to the igniting device.

INFORMATION REQUIRED.—Will the owner of the English patent for the Katzenjammer Castle Amusement Structure please communicate with the Manager of The Era.

Can You Invent?—Do you wish to know of prizes offered to inventors valued at £10,000, £4,000, £1,000, £400, £300, £200, and £100? If so, then get a copy of Patents and Designs, a newspaper called into existence by Mr. Lloyd-George's Patents and Designs Act, 1907, which lately came into operation. Patents and Designs, price 2d., can be had at all bookstalls, newsagents', and at the Publishing Office, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

AN AMUSEMENT DEVICE.

When Mr. Robert Perris turns his attention to inventing he apparently seeks to devise the twin-acme of excitement and digestion, and in his latest form of amusement apparatus he appears rightly to lay claim to the realisation of his quest.

The invention relates to improvements in amusement devices of the type in which passengers are carried in a ball revolving along a track, and consists in the construction of the hollow spherical casing or frame containing the seats, and which is adapted to revolve on any surface, level or elevated, and is made in two halves capable of being opened and closed. The frame is provided on its inner surface with swivel casters, upon which rolls a semi-spherical car equipped with seats for passengers. The car carries a ballast whereby it will always tend to remain at the bottom of the inner surface of the spherical frame while the latter revolves.

To illustrate the invention we show an elevation of the spherical frame, as also a vertical section thereof, and of the semi-spherical car contained therein. a denotes a hollow spherical frame or casing, and b the semi-spherical car adapted to roll in said spherical frame upon swivel ball-bearing casters (c). The semi-spherical car is provided with seats (d) and railings (e), and at the bottom with a floor (f), below which a ballast (f1) is contained, whereby the semi-spherical car will always tend to remain at the bottom of the inner surface of the spherical frame. The frame may be constructed of strips or ribs (g) of wood or metal covered with wire netting (g1). The same is made in two sections, which at one point are hinged together as at h, and which opposite thereto are provided with a suitable spring lock (h1) for locking the halves when closed. The entrance to the inner semi-spherical car is obtained by opening the sections of the spherical casing. The car may be made of wood or metal, and may be covered on the even surface with rubber. The outer casing or frame may, instead of the above-mentioned construction, be solid, and may be made of wood or other material, and be provided with a number of apertures for ventilation or glass windows.

Mr. Perris, under another name, is a talented comedian with a répertoire of quaint character folk-lore ditties, and we trust his semi-spherical car is mercifully padded if in oscillation it rivals his side-splitting "patter."

CRYSTAL PALACE VARIETY.

The Crystal Palace company has done a wise thing in assembling the bright little band of variety artists who appear twice daily at the Sydenham pleasure house, and as a very moderate charge is made for admission there is generally a good attendance, especially of the younger generation, for whom the first part of the programme has been arranged. This consists of Astley's American Circus, with a miniature ring, a very droll clown of the Auguste order, and a large number of well-trained animals, such as ponies, a donkey, a mule, a sheep, and dogs, all of which are put through a series of performances, mostly of the comic order. The efforts of a number of lads to retain their equilibrium on a rapidly-turning table causes much hilarity.

Mr. Salmon, an able exponent of trick cycle-riding, both on the old-fashioned "ordinary" wheel and the more modern "safety" cycle, gives examples of some skill on the violin during the execution of some of his feats. The Itram family, three in number, give a graceful exhibition of difficult trapeze and bar work, the bar or trapeze being supported by the lady of the party, who succeeds in balancing them and it during their evolutions in the air.

Enzer is a turn which took on at once, for, in addition to some very neat and finished juggling with battle-axes, cannon-balls, and other similar trifles, he gives a most convincing exposition of ju-jitsu, in conjunction with a seemingly fragile lady, Miss Clarice. Habited as a ruffianly tramp, Mr. Enzer attacks her with every form of violence, only to be collared summarily or hurled violently to the mat, in a manner which leaves no doubt as to the genuineness of his intentions. These artists freely admit that occasionally Enzer will "get home" with one of his blows, with quite unpleasant consequences, if Miss Clarice happens to be in the slightest degree remiss in her defence

MISS MARIE LOVELACE is at present lying ill at Attercliffe, under the care of Dr. Bennett.

By Geo. A. De Gray.
WANTED, Wanted, Dates,
"THE POWER OF THE CROSS,"
Sept. 28, Sept. 28, Sept. 28,
Nov. 2, Nov. 2, Nov. 2.
All Dramatic records broken at Methil last week. Again, Friday night considerably better than Monday. Money refused at all parts at ten past seven on Saturday night. Hundreds turned away. Many thanks to Mr. Arnold for a happy week and choice of return dates. "A FIGHT FOR A THRONE." Wanted, Sept. 28, 29, 30 (three nights), Nov. 23. Refer W. Morton, Esq. Hyde Reporter, Sept. 5, says: "A Fight for a Throne" is, without exaggeration, one of the best things seen in the district for a long time. It is always maintained at a high level. The diction is smart, the incidents skilfully worked, the Ordeal by Touch scene being especially effective and clever, giving the whole play a tone and force which melodrama too frequently lacks. The staging is a triumph, and the scenery really fine. The dresses and uniforms, too, are splendid. Perhaps the most pleasing feature is that the cast is a strong one. Throughout the acting is clever and unconventional, the leading parts being in particularly good hands. In fact, in "A Fight for a Throne" there is not an uninteresting moment. All coms., GEORGE A. DE GRAY, this, Eden T., Bishop Auckland; next, T. R., North Shields.

WANTED, Wanted, Wanted,
Circus Proprietors, Hippodrome Managers, and Agents to Note that the Greatest Act before the Public of the World will shortly return to England.
The Royal Ohmys,
The Royal Ohmys,
The Royal Ohmys,
Greatest of all Acrobatic Equestrians, on Three, Four, and Five Bare-back Horses. The only act of the kind ever seen in a Circus Ring. The talk of every town in Denmark. Just had the great honour of appearing by command before H.R.H. the Crown Prince of Denmark and Royal Family. Complimented by H.R.H. and crowd of 3,000 people. Read what the Denmark paper says:—The Royal Ohmys' appearance before the Crown Prince has caused a sensation in Aarhus, and so delighted H.R.H. that, after their wonderful performance on three bare-backed horses, they were commanded to return before him to receive Royal congratulations. The Royal Ohmys return to England end of October, after fulfilling a six months' engagement with Bech. Olsen's Great Circus, Denmark. The Royal Ohmys have been the talk of every town visited by this great circus, and the Royal Ohmys are now the talk of Denmark. Bech. Olsen, Director, says:—Mr. Ohmy, your family are the finest performers I have ever seen. They have raised my circus above all the others in this country. They must come back to me next season, whatever the cost may be. This should prove to Proprietors and Managers what these Acts are like. Will be at liberty for the winter season end of October, with six good numbers. The most up-to-date acts before the public. For list of acts, &c., address, THE ROYAL OHMYS, Bech Olsen, Copenhagen, Denmark.

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow:

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON,
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON,
Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT BULMER,
The Empire, Liverpool.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT MITCHELL,
Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. J. CHRISTIE,
Empire Theatre, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

JUST AN IDEA.

"What has become of the Laureates of the Music Hall stage?" Thus enquires the "Daily Telegraph" of Aug. 29, 1908, and further adds that an accomplished vocalist complains, more in sorrow than in anger, that, although she is willing to pay a high price for a good song, she is quite unable to obtain that commodity.

SAY NOT SO, FAIR MAIDEN.

Come to the Home of Melody and Song,

WITMARK'S

and let us pour sweet strains of music in thine ear.

WE HAVE NO PRICE—HIGH OR LOW.

We will devote our time and attention to finding you a vehicle with which to exploit your talents if you will take the same time and trouble to hear our gems of song. We will again suggest to you that "the" SONG makes the singer and the SINGER makes the SONGS. We would call your attention to the most popular song in Great Britain to-day,

"LOVE ME AND THE WORLD IS MINE."

Perhaps you have heard it?

Our catalogue is so extensive and our novelties are published in such rapid succession that we are enabled to reserve exclusively FROM OUR NEW ISSUES for a certain time any number suited to your style of work. Come and hear them. We have a staff of pianists ready and willing to demonstrate our publications and to fit you with a suitable song, WITHOUT MONEY and WITHOUT PRICE. Do not procrastinate, but come at once. Make an appointment with our Manager, hear the beautiful strains of our infectious melodies, select the song most suitable to your requirements, and go your way rejoicing. Do not bring your cheque-book. We do not need the money.

NOTE.—Our Recent Successes.

THIS WEEK'S NOVELTIES.

THE BOSTOCK ARENA & JUNGLE —NEW YORK—LONDON—PARIS

Code Word, "FEMINISTE."

As already announced some time ago, we have been successful in taking unique and exclusive pictures at the Bostock Jungle of Oses, the strange mortal (immune to snake poison), toying with the deadly Arizona Rattlers—The extraction of poison for scientific purposes from the deadly diamond-backed rattler of Arizona, whose venom is said to produce death in a human being in from two to twenty minutes. Another interesting picture is that of a first lesson in lion domestication, where a snappy little cub is being petted by two young ladies, Mr. Bostock himself presiding over the performance. "Wee Wee," the very smallest horse in the world, is seen driving a little girl in the gardens at Earl's Court. Other pictures, such as that of a tame crocodile or the recapture of a vulture, add to the interest of the film.

MARY STUART.

Code Word "ESTIME."

Mary Stuart, the daughter of Jacques V. and Mary of Guise, was married to François II. King of France. After the death of her husband in 1560, Mary Stuart left France on account of the persecutions of Catherine of Medicis, and, weeping bitterly, she came back to Scotland. Her father having died, the throne was hers. She was barely nineteen years of age, and her youth, as well as her great beauty and charm of manners, won for her the hearts of the Scots. To those qualities were added a great generosity and a deep attachment to the Roman Catholic Faith. When Mary arrived in Scotland she found it in the hands of the Protestants, who gave their young Queen much trouble, and at last revolted against her and put her into prison. She escaped to England, and asked her cousin, Elizabeth, for protection, but the latter betrayed her, and had her imprisoned during nineteen years, after which she had her beheaded. This film, although put on the market last Tuesday morning only, has proved such a success that we have already sold all the copies we received from Paris. But we are expecting a fresh supply to-day in order to cope with the demand.

840ft. The Subject, £14. Colouring and Toning, £9 5s.

THE BEE AND THE ROSE.

Code Word, "ETABLE."

The Bee Queen in her wanderings meets the Queen of the Roses in a flower-bed, and kisses the living flower. Suddenly the latter returns to its former state, the bee drinks in its perfume, and falls asleep. A spider, seeing its opportunity, wraps the bee into its cobwebs; but the Queen is released by a swarm of bees coming to the rescue, and the film ends with a delightful ballet, composed of bees and roses.

346ft. The Subject, £5 15s. 4d. Colouring, £3 12s.

THE LITTLE MAGICIAN.

Code Word, "EPITAPHE."

This small gentleman is performing all sorts of clever conjuring tricks to the amusement of the audience.

610ft. The Subject, £10 3s. 4d. Toning, £1.

THE FRENCH MILITARY AIRSHIPS.

Code Word, "FACHEUX."

Titles of Pictures:—The Airship, "Ville de Paris"—The "Patrie" on Her Last Trip—The Shed at Moisan—First Trip of the Airship "Republique"—The Balloon "Soude's" Return—Leaving the Shed—Preparing for the Start. Let Go!—The Airship's Evolutions—Landing—Back to the Shed—Messrs. Juliot and Juchmès, the "Republique's" Engineer and Pilot.

510ft. The Subject, £8 10s.

A NOBLEMAN'S PLEASURE.

Code Word, "FAUTE."

Nothing is easier for a rich man than to make a peasant woman forget her duties, provided she is a bit of a flirt. The nobleman in this film uses a stratagem in order to make her come to the Court. But as her husband has his suspicions he goes to the palace, and being recognised the moment he thinks he is going to have his revenge, he is put into prison. His wife comes to him and asks for pardon. Yet, in spite of her entreaties, he makes her atone in a terrible manner for her lekieness.

595ft. The Subject, £9 18s. 4d.

A TRAGIC CORSO.

Code Word, "ENDROIT."

Old Captain Le Kerden has refused his consent to his son's marriage with a young girl of humble origin, and her brothers resolve to avenge her. At the carnival in Nice, the brothers, accompanied by their sister, and all disguised, follow the young man, who is enjoying himself with some friends. The girl calls him aside, and delivers him into her brothers' hands, when they promptly stab him. Not content with this, they drag him to his old father's house, and tell him that he is only drunk. He thanks them, and offers them wine, which they drink. It is only when they have gone that he discovers the trick played on him, and, sobbing, he throws himself on the silent form of his son.

790ft. The Subject, £13 3s. 4d. Toning, £1 10s.

THE MILLER, HIS SON AND HIS DONKEY. (La Fontaine's Fable).

Code Word, "ESCARGOT."

A miller and his son, on the way to the fair where they intend selling their donkey, carry the poor animal in order that it should be better looking and easier to sell. The passers-by laugh at them, and the miller tries to please each of them in turn; but at last, laughed at, and tired of the experiment, the old miller comes to the conclusion that in future he will do what he thinks best, without trying to please everybody.

LAST WEEK'S NOVELTIES.

DONKEY-SKIN.

Code Word, "EMBARDEE."

Once upon a time there was a king who, being a widower, was made to think about marrying again in order that there should be an heir to the throne. Unhappily, he took it into his head that his daughter, who was so beautiful and charming, should marry him. But she ran to her godmother, who was a fairy, and the latter advised her to ask her impossible lover for a dress as bright as the sun, or otherwise she would not listen to him. Seeing that her wish was likely to be granted, she went back to the good fairy, and this time she was advised to ask for the skin of a donkey whose stable every morning was covered in gold sufficient to supply the needs of the whole royal household. As this second wish of hers was also complied with, the young princess, in desperation decided to run away in the donkey-skin, which disguised her entirely. She ran ever so far, and was found by a farmer's wife, and was made to wash the dishes and help with the pigs and poultry. On a certain fête day, having put on her bright sun-coloured coat, a prince saw her, and was so much in love with her that he was rendered quite ill. Having asked for a cake made by Donkey-skin, he found in it a tiny ring that the princess had dropped, and he declared that he would marry none other than the girl whose finger would fit the ring. The princess was the last called, and as the ring slipped on her finger quite easily, the marriage took place with great rejoicings, which lasted three months.

1023ft. The Subject, £17 1s. 0d. Toning, £4.

THE WORRIES OF KING SLAP-ON-THE-HEAD.

Code Word, "ENSEIGNE."

Young Noodle, the son of an unknown magician, is so much in love with the king's daughter that he must propose for her hand. The king, furious, shows the impertinent the door. But he had reckoned without the magician's power, which can be felt from a distance, and which takes the form of a daily flogging, at all and any hour of the day. Life is not worth living for the king, with such a punishment always threatening him, and he at last gives his consent to his daughter marrying the more than tiresome young man.

676ft. The Subject, £11 5s. 4d. Toning, £1 4s.

A ROMAN IDYLL.

Code Word, "ESPRIT."

Saphora, a proud and beautiful Roman patrician, is in love with the plebeian Marcus Petrus; but as Marcus is engaged to Lydia, a girl of his own class, Saphora has no chance of bringing him to her feet. One day Lydia, with a pitcher on her shapely shoulders is going to fetch water, when Saphora has her taken by her slaves and thrown into a dark dungeon, where the poor girl thinks with despair that she is going to die slowly. Yet a kindly slave has pity on the prisoner, and he informs Marcus of her whereabouts. After setting her free, Marcus inflicts on Saphora the very same treatment she had planned for her young victim. She is thrown alive into the horrible dungeon, and the story does not say whether she ever escaped.

773ft. The Subject, £12 17s. 8d. Colouring and Toning, £8 16s. 8d.

No. 2197. Code "Bahn." Length 360ft.

The Bear Pits of Berne, Switzerland.

Inquisitive, beseeching, playful, and athletic by turns, the bears greatly enjoy the state-provided semi-freedom of their quarters and surroundings. A cold bath is blissfully appreciated; admirers minister to their needs; they play with their keeper a game of hide and seek; and a convenient pine tree encourages their gymnastic proclivities.

No. 2218. Code "Ursa." Length 215ft.

The Lake of Garda, Italy.

A steamboat panorama of the largest of the great lakes of Northern Italy, enclosed by Alpine ridges on both sides. The scenery on Lake Garda, its Islands and Promontory is remarkable for luxuriance of vegetation, for the romantic Castle Ruins, Lemon Groves, sublime Mountain Peaks, and for the picturesque towns and villages on its banks.

No. 2195. Code, "Garda." Length 435ft.

Sunny Madeira.

Sunny Madeira. Part I. By courtesy of the Union Castle Royal Mail S.S. Co.

Life, Customs, and Industries of an Atlantic Winter Resort, with a deeply interesting and beautiful environment. The series is never wanting in vivacity, and the scenes are all depicted with satisfying fulness of detail in absolutely perfect photographic sequence.

No. 2223. Code "Funchal." Length 460ft.

The Wicker Chair Industry of Madeira.

An Industry peculiar to this almost tropic Island, which supplies the World with wicker easy chairs and couches of every conceivable type. Facilities were courteously afforded to our operators for illustrating the various processes of the craft, and the scenes of cheerful and vivacious toil are admirably reproduced, every phase of the work being depicted.

No. 2222. Code "Ease." Length 180ft.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1908.
Morning Advertiser, Jan. 20:—
That very useful, one might with truth add indispensable, publication, "The Era" Annual, has once again made its welcome appearance, and once again it is crowded with information concerning the theatrical doings of the past year. Those who purchase it (it is sold at the modest price of 1s.) will have in their possession a complete and succinct history of the year's drama in this country, and a record of the plays produced in Paris and Berlin. As an appetising hors d'œuvre to the solid information, the book contains a number of interesting short stories and amusing anecdotes by well-known actors and theatrical managers.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1908.
Daily Express:—
An interesting illustration of the proverb, "Brevity is the soul of wit," is given in some correspondence between Mr. Robert Arthur, the theatrical manager, and Mr. Lennox Pawle, published by the latter in "The Era" Annual for 1908.

THEATRE ROYAL, WHITEHAVEN.
FOR SALE.
TO BE SOLD BY AUCTION,
by MESSRS. JACKSON and MURRAY, at their MART, WHITEHAVEN, on THURSDAY, the 17th of SEPTEMBER,
at 3·0 p.m.,
The Freehold Property known as
THE THEATRE ROYAL,

Situate in Roper-street, Whitehaven, lately occupied by Mr. Joseph Clark, Lessee thereof, with frontage to Roper-street 65ft. 6in. and extending backwards 70ft., together with the yard behind the same, and also all the Furniture, Fixtures, Fittings, Scenery, Stage Accessories, Stock Properties, and other effects of the Vendors therein.

The Theatre is a substantial stone structure, with ornamental porch, and it contains spacious Auditorium, Stage, Dressing-rooms, Property-rooms, Refreshment Bars, Offices, &c. The Auditorium affords seating accommodation for 600, and comprises Stalls, Pit, Private Boxes, Dress Circle, Upper Circle, and Gallery. The Stage is in depth 26ft., in width 43ft. 10in., and in height 20ft. 4in. to the "flies," and 33ft. 5in. to the "gridiron." There are five Dressing-rooms, two Property-rooms, and two Refreshment Bars.

The Premises are conveniently situated, and have been successfully used as a Theatre for many years past, and the rent paid by the outgoing Lessee was £200 per annum. Certain alterations required by the Corporation of Whitehaven as to additional Exits, &c., can be carried out at a moderate cost.

There being no other Theatre in Whitehaven, or in the wide district between Workington, on the North, and Barrow-in-Furness, on the South, the present sale affords an exceptional opportunity for enterprising theatrical managers.

Immediate possession can be given. Mr. John Tyson, 11A, King-street, Whitehaven, House Agent, will show the property. For Conditions of Sale and further particulars apply to
MUSGRAVE AND McKELVIE,
Solicitors, Whitehaven;
or to
BROWN, AULD, AND BROWN,
Solicitors, Whitehaven.

FREEHOLD MUSIC HALL (old-established), situate in main street of densely-populated neighbourhood, important South Coast town; commodious, well-fitted premises, seating 1200; two houses nightly. Excellent business now being done, but capable of great extension under more up-to-date management. Proprietor retiring. Will leave large proportion of purchase-money on mortgage.—FREDK. C. BRIDGES, 76, Commercial-road, Portsmouth.

SCOTTISH NATIONAL EXHIBITION, EDINBURGH, 1908

At the close of the above Exhibition on Oct. 31, the following attractions are for sale:—

GREAT CANADIAN WATER CHUTE,
65ft. high, 280ft. run, with double electric lift for passengers (by Waygoods); twelve boats, each holding eight people.

FLYING MACHINE,
Entirely new model, with eight cars, each holding four passengers, including electric plant, a 17 h.p. motor, and 500 lights.

SPIDER'S WEB MAZE,
Covering 1¼ miles of intricate passages; entirely new idea; including electrical fittings and 380 lamps.

MOULIN ROUGE,
Most novel sensational Helter-Skelter Windmill, the highest ever built—60ft. to the top—including motor for windmill and a large quantity of lamps.

4 VENETIAN GONDOLAS
in splendid condition, gorgeous fittings, straight from Venice, almost new.

HALL OF LAUGHTER,
Entirely new device for drawing crowds, including eleven full-sized distorting mirrors, jumping-floor, and other mechanical effects.

The above Entertainments can now be seen working, and can either be bought as they stand or re-erected in any part of Great Britain.

All further information to be had on application to DIRECTOR, Popular Amusements, Ltd., Scottish National Exhibition, Edinburgh.

THE ROYAL COURT THEATRE and ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES, WARRINGTON, LANCASHIRE.
DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.
TO BE SOLD BY AUCTION,
by MR. W. H. ROBINSON, at the ALBION HOTEL, PICCADILLY, MANCHESTER, on TUESDAY, the 15th Day of SEPTEMBER, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon prompt, subject to Conditions of Sale to be then and there produced.

LOT 1.
THE ROYAL COURT THEATRE,
Situate in Rylands-street, Warrington, Lancashire.
The site contains 965 square yards, or thereabouts, with a frontage of about 33 yards to Rylands-street.
This Lot is leasehold, and held for the residue of a term of 999 years from the 2nd day of July, 1860, subject to the payment of the yearly ground rent of £15 6s. 7d.
The property occupies a most central position in Warrington, which is a town of 70,000 inhabitants.
The Theatre is absolutely up to date, having been rebuilt last year from plans prepared by Mr. F. Bennett Smith, F.R.I.B.A. It is thoroughly equipped for the most elaborate dramatic and stage representations, is fully licensed, and contains, besides the usual Auditorium, with Circle and Gallery, two Bars, 10 splendid Dressing-rooms (heated), three property-rooms, engine-room (containing gas engine (National, 1907) and complete electrical plant), and four extra rooms under stage. The Theatre is beautifully decorated, is brilliantly lighted by electricity generated on the premises, duplicated by a complete system of gas lighting throughout, and is heated by hot water, well ventilated, and capable of accommodating 1,800 persons.
The purchaser shall take over all the Bookings from the date of the completion of the purchase, a list whereof can be inspected at the Offices of the undermentioned Manchester Solicitors 14 days prior to the date of the sale, and shall also take over the wet stock and cigars which shall be upon this Lot at the time of the completion of the purchase at a valuation, as provided by the Conditions of Sale.

LOT 2.
THE ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES
(previously known as the "Theatre Royal"), situate in Scotland-road, Warrington.
This Lot is freehold of inheritance and free from chief rent.
This Theatre has a dramatic licence. It was built in 1883, re-seated and decorated in 1907 by Messrs. Dean, of Birmingham, and contains Pit and Pit Stalls, Centre Circle, and Side Circles. During the past 4½ years it has been run with great success on the two-houses-a-night system. The existing Bookings do not extend beyond the date to be fixed for completion of the purchase.
The purchaser of each Lot shall take over the scenery, loose furniture, and trade utensils, chattels, and effects in and upon the premises included in the Inventory thereof signed by the Auctioneer, at a Valuation to be declared at the time of Sale. The Inventories may be inspected 14 days prior to the date of sale at the Offices of the undermentioned Manchester Solicitors, from whom, also, orders to view the Theatres can be obtained.
For further particulars apply to the Auctioneer, Cromwell Buildings, 11, Blackfriars-street, Manchester; Messrs. Henry Greenall and Co., Solicitors, Warrington; Messrs. Nasmith, Coutts, and Co., Chartered Accountants, 40, Brazennose-street, Manchester; or to
MESSRS. LAWSON, COPPOCK, AND HART,
Solicitors.
18, Tib-lane, Cross-street, Manchester.

1908. Letter L. No. 679.
IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE (CHANCERY DIVISION), LIVERPOOL DISTRICT REGISTRY.
Mr. Justice Joyce.
In the Matter of the LIVERPOOL THEATRES OF VARIETIES, LIMITED (Kiernan v. The Liverpool Theatres of Varieties, Limited, and Others).

Particulars of Important and Valuable Licensed THEATRES AND MUSIC HALLS in the City of Liverpool,
TO BE SOLD BY AUCTION
(Pursuant to an order dated the 11th day of July, 1908, made in the above action) by
MR. PETER DAVIES, F.A.I.
(the person appointed by Mr. Justice Joyce to sell the same),
On Thursday, the 24th day of September, 1908, at Three o'clock in the Afternoon prompt, at the Law Association Rooms, 14, Cook-street, Liverpool (subject to conditions of sale to be then and there produced).

PARTICULARS:—
Firstly, all that building licensed for use as a Theatre and Music Hall, known as THE TIVOLI THEATRE,
situate on the south-west side of Lime-street, in the city of Liverpool, together with the scenery, stage effects, loose furniture, trade utensils, and other loose articles used in connection therewith or belonging thereto, but save and excepting therefrom the electric lighting installation in and upon the premises which is not included in the sale. The building has an entire frontage of 115ft. and 5in. or thereabouts to Lime-street, and the site thereof is held for the unexpired residue of a term of seventy-five years from the 4th day of November, 1882, created by an indenture of lease dated the 24th day of February, 1884, and made between the Mayor, Aldermen, and Citizens of the City of Liverpool of the one part and The Liverpool Real Property Company, Limited, of the other part, and will be sold subject to a peppercorn rent and to the covenants and conditions contained in the said indenture of lease.
SECONDLY, all that building licensed for use as a Theatre and Music Hall, known as
situate on the east side of Mill-street, in the city of Liverpool, having a frontage to such street of 82ft. 4in. or thereabouts, together with the scenery, stage effects, loose furniture, trade utensils, and other loose articles used in connection therewith or belonging thereto, but save and excepting therefrom the electric lighting installation in and upon the premises, which is not included in the sale. This property is subject to restrictive covenants referred to in Condition 9 of the Conditions of Sale. The site, which contains 722 5-9 superficial square yards or thereabouts, is freehold and free from chief rent.
THIRDLY, all that building licensed for use as a Theatre and Music Hall, known as
with the FOUR SHOPS forming part of such building, situate on the northerly side of Paddington and easterly side of Upper Mason-street, in the city of Liverpool, and having a frontage to Paddington of 102ft. 6in. or thereabouts, and to Upper Mason-street of 55ft. 6in. or thereabouts, together with the loose scenery, furniture, trade utensils, and other loose articles used in connection therewith or belonging thereto. The site is freehold and free from chief rent, but is subject to restrictive covenants referred to in Condition 9 of the Conditions of Sale. The said four shops are let at a total annual rental amounting to £88 8s. gross.
These well-known and established properties will be offered in one lot.
They are especially adapted for music halls, and are situate in very desirable positions in the city of Liverpool, the Tivoli, in Lime-street, being in the centre of the city, and the Park and Paddington being situated in the densely-populated districts of Toxteth Park and Edge Hill.
Particulars and Conditions of Sale may be obtained from, and the schedule of furniture fittings, scenery, and stage effects in the premises may be seen, at the Offices of the Auctioneer,
Mr. PETER DAVIES, 8, Cook-street, Liverpool;
Messrs. G. E. HOLT and SONS, Chartered Accountants, 8, Cook-street, Liverpool;
Messrs. OLIVER JONES, BILLSON, and CO., Solicitors, 5, Cook-street, Liverpool; or

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT
FOR
ACTOR AND COMPOSER,
By ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).

"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," by Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor, author of "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" office), seems to be the one compendious and indispensable authority on the subject, as vexed as the "Bermoothes" and as tortuous as a Chancery suit, that has long been wanted. It is in every essential a text book for the perplexed layman, and no solicitor or barrister worth his salt ought to think of taking or appearing in "proceedings" without consulting its pages. It must suffice, after what has been said, to state little more than that the contents include five chapters, respectively named "Copyright as Opposed to Performing Right," "Performing Right," "Infringement and Remedies," "Musical Copyright," and "International and Colonial Copyright." The work, for all its precise authority, is not dry reading. The statutes with the elucidatory notes, necessarily impose a task on the reader which takes some tackling, but they had to be there. The cases adduced, however, are full of interest. Certain of them might fitly find a place in the romance of copyright. There was the fight of Charles Reade with George Conquest over "It's Never Too Late to Mend," for instance, and the equally interesting conflict of Mr J. A. Cave with Chatterton over "The Wandering Jew." The latter was a famous battle. Chatterton took it to the House of Lords, and was finally beaten, to the unspeakable relief of Mr. Cave, who is never weary of relating the story. Had the result been otherwise, it would have meant his ruin. I well remember meeting him on the day of his victory and "crashing a cup with him" in honour of the same. "The Law of Copyright" is dedicated to Mr. A. W. Pinero.—Sportsman.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS

(FROM OUR NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT.)

NEW YORK, SEPT. 9.—The Regeneration, a drama in four acts and five scenes, in which Mr. Arnold Daly has won new laurels in a sort of Bill Sikes rôle at Wallack's Theatre, is a dramatisation of a story entitled My Mamie Rose, part of which tells of incidents in the life of Owen Kildare, its author, who collaborated with Walter Hackett in writing the play. The scenes are laid in the slums of New York, and the purport of the story is that a union between a man of low instincts and a woman of the better class would tend to degrade her rather than elevate him.

The first act begins in "Chicory Hall," a resort on the Bowery which is the home of a gang of toughs and thieves, of which Owen Conway, played by Mr. Daly, is the leader. This is one of the show places for "slumming parties," and one of these parties visits the resort for the purpose of witnessing a prize-fight. The party is conducted by Arthur Ames, and the gang has arranged among themselves to relieve the members of the party of their money and valuables. After the first round Ames is attacked, and the "thugs" are about to go through his pockets, when Marie Deering, a settlement worker, hearing the noise, enters the place from the street and orders the men to stop. They pay no attention to her, but she insists, and turns to Conway, repeating her peremptory command. Through some peculiar influence she appears to have she is successful, and Ames is allowed to depart. She then turns her attention to Conway as a subject for reformation, and makes an impression upon him by attacking his courage. Before she leaves he promises to come to her home on the following evening to take his first lesson. True to his promise, Conway arrives there in the second act, and meets Ames, who has been making love to Miss Deering. She tells Conway of the possibilities in life when one is good, and succeeds in making him offer up his first prayer. He returns to "Chicory Hall," and in a strong scene with Nellie, his sweetheart, renounces his associates and tells them he means to reform.

The third act apens a year later, with Miss Deering and Ames discussing the progress made by Conway. The latter comes in and goes through his paces, which arouses Ames to the fact that Miss Deering no longer looks on Conway merely as a pupil, but that she has fallen in love with him and that both are in danger of the consequences. Ames takes advantage of Miss Deering's absence from the room to explain the situation to Conway, who finally agrees with Ames. He is told that he can only drag Miss Deering down, and that the only way for him to succeed is to do it alone. He has an opportunity of showing his mettle when one of his old associates is brought into the room, a fugitive from justice, followed closely by the police. He hides his former pal and lies to Miss Deering, and for the moment she is so disappointed in him that she refuses to listen to any explanation. But the love in her heart for Conway prompts her to return and beg his forgiveness, and it is then that the full light comes to Conway, and in a dramatic manner he tries to kill her love for him. He renounces her, and pretends to renounce all the good things he has learned from her, and starts off avowedly to join his old associates. There he is surrounded by his friends, and the police arrest him for complicity in the crime committed by the pal he has shielded. Miss Deering declares that she was the guilty one, and shows her love in every possible way; but realising that Ames was right and that caste counts, Conway refuses to let her sacrifice herself and is marched off to prison.

Mr. Daly's Conway is a striking portrayal. Remembering that this actor has hitherto been identified with light comedy or eccentric rôles, his embodiment of the Bowery "thug" is a remarkable exhibition of versatility and power. Miss Helen Ware is conspicuously successful as Conway's sweetheart, Nellie, a Bowery concert-hall singer; and Miss Jessie Izett as the settlement worker, Marie Deering, acts the part in a sympathetic and appealing manner; Mr. Edwin Arden is excellent as Arthur Ames; Mr. John Harrington plays a detective well; and several "East Side" characters are cleverly represented by Messrs. William Harrigan, Roy Fairchild, Edward Heron, George Leach, and Charles Haynes. The play holds the interest of the spectator from start to finish, and is likely to have a long run.

"THE MOLLUSC," by Hubert Henry Davies, which opened the season at the Garrick Theatre on the 1st inst., was received with frequent laughter and applause by a full house. Miss Alexandra Carlisle made her American début on this occasion, appearing as Mrs. Baxter, otherwise known as "the mollusc." Miss Carlisle's attractive and pleasing personality made an agreeable impression at the outset, and she depicted the unconscious selfishness and whimsicality of the central character in such a graceful and charming manner that she was firmly established in the good graces of the audience before the performance was half over. Mr. Joseph Coyne, an old favourite, who made his reappearance on the local stage after a lengthy absence, as Tom Kemp, received a hearty welcome and his performance gave evident satisfaction to his numerous friends. Miss Beatrice Forbes-Robertson as the subservient and affectionate, governess, Miss Roberts, gave a faithful and finished portrayal; and Mr. Forrest Robinson was capital as Mr. Baxter. There was a curtain-raiser, The Likes o' Me, called "an episode," and written by Mr. Wilfred T. Coleby, in which Miss Doris Keane cleverly impersonated a Cockney waif named Billy. Master George Clarke was natural as an eleven-year-old youngster; and other parts were acceptably played by Miss Maud S. Love, Mr. W. H. Gilmore, and Mr. Dudley Digges.

MISS GERTIE MILLAR and Mr. James Blakeley are chiefly responsible for the unequivocal success of The Girls of Gottenberg at the Knickerbocker Theatre. Miss Millar was recognised immediately as a charming artist, and before she leaves these shores she will have completely conquered those parts of America which she has deigned to visit. There are so many taking numbers that it is hard to say which is the first favourite; but Miss Millar's song about "Mr. Schneider" and the dance that accompanied it certainly brought down the house, and "Sausages," in which number she was joined by Mr. Blakeley, was enjoyed immensely. The company, part English and part American, includes Messrs. Lionel Mackinder, John E. Hazzard, Warwick Wellington, Edward Garvie, and Misses Louise Dresser, May Naudain, and Mabel Hollins, each of whom contributed to the general success. Miss Edith Kelley's dance was a popular feature.

THE new Gaiety Theatre, at the corner of Forty-sixth street and Broadway, was opened on the 31st ult., the initial attraction being George M. Cohan's musical play The Yankee Prince, with the author in the title-rôle. The new playhouse seats 935 persons. It has a handsome entrance on Broadway and another on Forty-sixth-street. The architecture and decorations are in the Louis Quinze style. There are no posts or pillows to obstruct the view of the stage from any part of the auditorium. One of the proscenium boxes has an adjoining room for the reception and entertainment of box parties. The dressing-rooms are large and airy, and supplied with hot and cold water and full-length mirrors. The "star" dressing-room has a bath-room adjoining. The curtain is of steel, five inches thick, and can be lowered in a flash. Messrs. Klaw and Erlanger, George M. Cohan, and Sam H. Harris are the lessees and managers of the new theatre.

MISS ISADORA DUNCAN has fulfilled a very successful engagement at the Criterion Theatre. Her classic dances were witnessed by large and appreciative audiences.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

SYDNEY, AUG. 11.—Miss Margaret Anglin, by far the cleverest actress whom America has ever sent us, changed her bill on the 8th from Zira to a comedy by Clyde Fitch called The Truth. Miss Anglin as Becky Warder enchains her hearers by her winsome innocence. A very handsome presence, purity of English diction, and elaborate dressing help Miss Anglin to success, but she is, above all, a consummate comedienne. Mr. George S. Titheradge was the ruined "sport" father, Stephen Roland, and a better character-portrait has never been painted by the talented and popular actor; Mr. Henry Kolker was the bewildered, loving husband. The scenes between husband and wife were most artistically acted, and so were those where Miss Susie Vaughan as the landlady seeks to marry Stephen Roland; and Mr. Cyril Mackay played the would-be roué, Lindon. A pleasant surprise was the admirable work done by Miss Alma Vaughan as Mrs. Lindon; and Miss Eileen Warren (Miss Anglin's sister) gave additional value to a very strong cast by her acting as Laura Fraser. Mr. Harry Overton did yeoman service as the footman, necessary and important. Mr. J. C. Williamson mounted the comedy in superb style, and the advance booking will make the end of the Margaret Anglin season a veritable "boom."

MR. WILLIAMSON'S other venture, The Red Mill, at the Theatre Royal, shows no abatement in attraction or attendance, but it must make way for Peter Pan, in which Miss Tittell Brune will return to Sydney.

"MISS HOOK OF HOLLAND" has drawn enormous houses at the Criterion, in spite of the tramway strike and weeks of pouring rain. Last night their Excellencies the departing Governor-General and Lady Northcote and the Governor, Sir Harry Rawson, and Miss Rawson, with their respective suites, were present.

THE TIVOLI keeps its end up with the succession of new artists sent out by Mr. Harry Rickards, now in London. The bill now includes a long list of prominent vaudevillians, amongst them being Miss Mignonette Kokin, the Miles-Stavordale Quintette, Austin Rudd, Fanny Powers (the Australian mimic), Baby Watson, Clarence Tidsdale, Naomi Tanner, Harry Linden, Regan and Ryan, George Bentley, the Gibson Girls, Maude Florence and Belle Permane.

MUCH excitement was caused on the Palace Pier at Brighton, on Wednesday, owing to a remarkable catch by an angler. Mr. R. F. Bedford, of the Hippodrome Orchestra, was fishing with lob worms when he felt a terrible tug at his line. Another angler ran for a large landing-net, and Mr. Bedford found he had captured an octopus, whose efforts to escape from the net were very interesting to watch. The octopus was transferred with great difficulty from the net to a tank in the Royal Aquarium. It weighs about ten pounds. Mr. Bedford has presented it to the Aquarium.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

ABERDARE.—New Theatre.—Proprietors, the Aberdare Public Hall, Theatre, and Billposting Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Acting-Manager, Mr. B. Richards.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company, in The Little Breadwinner, is appearing here this week. Miss Winnie Crisp's depiction of Meg is sympathetic; Mr. H. B. Peppin is quaint and dignified as Lord William Dorrington; Mr. Reginald Brown presents a capital study of Richard Lawrence; Mr. Alfred Maurice as Joseph Prior effectively carries out the author's intentions; and Mr. Sidney Lynn as Charles Prior keeps the fun going. Mr. Wallace Carey and Mr. E. Thomas are good as Dr. Chadwick and Monty respectively; Miss Lissa Young gives an effective rendering of Bobby Trott; Miss May Richardson plays Margaret Daventry in pleasing style; Miss Millie Ford and Miss Kitty Melville do good work as the sisters, Kate and Ruth Cherry; and Miss Clara Hunt is seen to advantage as Bridget.

ABERDEEN.—H. M. Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—The sensational drama, Her Second Time on Earth, is presented this week. Miss Edith Blande plays with much dramatic fervour as Dora Grey; Miss Emily Stevens is highly effective as the drunken mother; and the parts of Captain Jasper, Guy Brand, Tom Norman, Reppo, and Jack Carlton are most capably filled by Messrs. Otto Minster, Ellis Preston, Ernest Batley, Fellows Basset, and Robert Purdie. The piece is elaborately staged.

Palace Theatre.—Lessees, the United County Theatres, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—The principal parts in the delightful musical comedy, A King for a Day, are taken by Messrs. Will Letters, James Newlands, Sidney Dooley, Alfred Clegg, and Misses Ethel Watkins and Maidie Berker. All play very cleverly. Mr. Fred Poplar, comedian, is enthusiastically received; Mr. Sid Cotterell and his company are most successful in their mirthful sketch, The Substitute; Hunter and Maris appear in a novel comedy act, in which they introduce some marvellous acrobatic effects; Mr. Charlie Carr, comedian, dances very smartly; Miss Kitty Wager is a sprightly comedienne; Mr. Steve Bartley shows exceptional talent as an instrumentalist; and Miss Minnie Fenton is appreciated as a Scotch comedienne.

Beach Pavilion.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. David Thomson.—The wonderful Howards give a really remarkable display of telepathy; and Mr. Thomson reappears with a number of capital humorous Scotch songs. Les Bruns are heartily encored, both in their vocal and juggling turns; and a series of admirable cinematograms are shown by the London Safety Bioscope Company.

Alhambra Music Hall. — Proprietor, Mr. John Sinclair; General-Manager, Mr. George B. Lee.—Among this week's artists are Mr. George Millard and Miss Ada Brogden, highly sucessful humorous duettists; Miss Ethel Osbourne, a charming young soprano; Mr. Jack Brindall, who is popular as a comedian and dancer; and Mr. Dan Fraser, the noted Scotch comedian.

Empire Music Hall.—Managers, Messrs. R. Calder and J. Montague.—There is a very good company here this week, including Mr. G. W. Fyvie comedian; Mr. Arthur Bright, comedian and musical expert; Miss Jessie Bunting, vocalist and dancer; Mr. James Grant, tenor; and Mr. James Montague, entertainer. All the artists are cordially encored. The cinematograph is directed by Mr. W. Calder.

ABERTILLERY.—Theatre Metropole.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. J. Seaborn.—The Silver King, staged by a powerful company, has been warmly welcomed here this week. Mr. Sydney T. Pease handled the difficult character of Wilfred Denver with entire satisfaction; and Miss Gladys Hastings Walton found great favour as Nellie Denver. Mr. Tom Paulton was a capital Captain Herbert Skinner, the "Spider"; Mr. Harry Colbeck did justice to Henry Corket; and Mr. Claude Gravely played Geoffrey Ware with tact and considerable effect. A creditable Cissie Denver came from Miss Dorothy Love. The play was well staged. The same company is playing The Prodigal Son and A Mother's Salvation during the week.

Pavilion.—Lessees, Messrs. E. and H. Tilney; Manager, Mr. E. Pryce.—The Geni Troupe of acrobats top the bill in their clever acrobatic feats; the Sisters Herbert, juvenile artists, give excellent renderings of pretty songs and dance skilfully; Geo. Antill is a droll comedian; the Markies are prominent in their musical sketch, From Pavement to Stage; another pleasing sketch, entitled Married or Photographed, by Reed and Stevens; Ida Brophy is an attractive comedienne and dancer; and excellent pictures are shown on the Bioscope.

ACCRINGTON.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. B. Barnes.—The attraction here this week is the return visit of Mr. George Kirk and Miss Mary Neil's company, in Her Luck in London. Mr. Douglas Cecil impersonates the part of Fitzgerald O'Connor with marked ability; the unscrupulous Richard Lenowen is strikingly depicted by Mr. Frank Strickland; the Rev. Lionel Strong finds a manly exponent in Mr. Douglas Tremayne; Mr. Lionel T. Ellis is very successful as Stephen Harbourne; and a popular Jerry Gotobed is supplied by Mr. Henri Gerald. As Nellie Harbourne Miss Mary Neil acts with dramatic power; Miss Beatrice Hudson is admirable as Lilian Harbourne; and Miss Marie Clavering is praiseworthy as Mme. Gaberielle. Maud Gladys Shovepenny is pleasingly drawn by Miss Florrie Groves; and Angelina Plantagenet is carefully sustained by Miss Amy B. Ellis.

ALDERSHOT. — Fred Karno's Saturday to Monday has met with great success at the Aldershot Hippodrome. The "week-end" is brimful of excitement and adventure. All the fun centres round the marriage of John Willie Jaggs (Mr. Gilbert Childs) and Clorinda Dobbs (Miss Julia Bassett), one of two "beautiful creatures" whose fascinations are certainly novel. Miss Bassett sang "Matilda Drew" excellently; and Miss Mary Young, as the handsome cousin, rendered "Love me and the world is mine." The railway scene is about the best of the three, as it affords Mr. John Willie Jaggs, senior, full scope for his humour, his assumption of nurse for the time being sending the house into roars of laughter. Spinks, as played by Mr. J. Fletcher, makes a quaint old butler; and Mr. Harry Fischer personates the avaricious guardian to a T.

ATTERCLIFFE.—Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Pease; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harry Sanders.—This week's programme is headed by the Davis and Gledhill Trio, in a motor and cycling act, in connection with which an "amateur cycling competition," for valuable prizes given by the management, has been held each evening. Other contributors to the bill are the Wambas (lady and gentleman), in a clever and graceful trapeze act; the Milfords, comedians and dancers; Mr. Charles Gardener, the versatile eccentric comedian; the Two Zampas, vocalists, dancers, and bâton swingers; Miss Violet Gibson's Coons, vocalists and dancers; La Belle Lily and Albert, in a highly-appreciated turn as instrumentalists; and the Attergraph pictures.

AYR.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—This "the race week" in Ayr the theatre is occupied by Mr. Gilbert Payne and his company, in the musical farcical play from his own pen, entitled The Honeymoon. Mr. Payne takes the leading part of Nathaniel Noodle, and infuses into it no end of fun. He is supported by an accomplished company, who are untiring in their efforts to create fun. The piece is completely staged.

BACUP.—New Court Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood.—Mr. Montague Beaudyn's company opened here on Monday with Send Him Victorious. Mr. George Derricke as Captain Frank Allison played the part of the hero with marked ability, and was ably backed up by Mr. James Burt as Sergeant Max. Mr. Arthur Tomlin as Geordie Walker and Miss Cecilia Crawford as Gretchen Holtz evoked much laughter; Mr. John Baxter as Major Carl Strauss portrayed the character cleverly; Miss Marie Robson as Countess Kara von Mechlinberg presented a powerful study; Miss Netta Mitchell as Ethel Hardinge sustained her part well; and Mr. Frank Holyoake was effective as the King of Ravonia.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — Royalty Theatre and Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer's répertoire company is here. Mary, Queen of Scots opened. She herself in the title-rôle was as eminently successful as heretofore; and Mr. Howard Rose acted most ably as Sir Edward Mortimer. Mr. F. Skein was a skilful Earl of Leicester; and Mr. Bern Merifield looked the born diplomat as Lord Burleigh. Mr. F. Owen Chambers was a good Sir Amias Paulet; and Mrs. Alice O'Dea a queenly Elizabeth. East Lynne, Hamlet, Leah, Nell Gwynn, Jane Shore, and Robert Macaire are also billed.

His Majesty's Theatre.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Mr. Herbert Greville's company, in Merely Mary Ann, is here. The part of Mary Ann is admirably done by Miss Jessica Solomon; and Mr. Paul Lovett is a most interesting Lancelot; Miss Florence Radcliffe makes an entertaining Rosie; and Miss Violet Greville a capital Mrs. Leadbatter. Mr. Stanley Logan is a good Peter.

Tivoli.—Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. G. Laban.—The following artists are appearing here this week:—Jock Whiteford, Harry Gerard, Derenda and Grau, Colonna and Cumminger, Welman, Cara-Maga, and Sisters Melba. Vernon's Bioscope also contributes acceptably.

New Hippodrome.—Owners and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Some interesting and up-to-date pictures are being shown here to capital houses. The vaudeville turns are excellent.

BARRY DOCK.—New Theatre and Hippodrome.—Mr. Morton Powell's company in The Mystery of Edwin Drood was well received here on Monday. As John Jasper Mr. Bartlett Garth deserves special praise; Mr. Y. Ridgway Thorne was very successful as Edwin Drood; Mr. David Philips as Durdles was entertaining; Neville Landless in the hands of Mr. Hy. Tywford left nothing to be desired; Mrs. Morton Powell scored a success as Rosa Bud; and the Helena Landless of Miss May Beatrice was interesting.

BATH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—Often as The Christian has been presented locally, yet another visit is being fulfilled this week with the new version, which has proved much to the taste of good audiences. Mr. Wentworth Croke can always be relied upon to stage and cast the popular play in excellent style, and the present production is no exception to the rule. Mr. P. Gedge Twyman looks and acts the leading rôle of John Storm to the life; as Glory, Miss Margaret Fane fulfils with ability her task of depicting the ambitious Manx girl; Mr. J. Hastings Batson and Mr. William Mallalieu impersonate cleverly and deliver well the "sermonettes" of the author, as Father Lamplugh and Archdeacon Wealthy; Mr. Edward Ouston and Mr. G. Montague Lane enact Horatio Drake and Lord Robert Ure with point and firmness; Polly Love is undertaken by Miss Gladys Vernon with becoming modesty; in the character-sketch of Meg Miss Grace Baring deserves praise; as the tender-hearted Mrs. Callender Miss Alice Maude is well placed.

Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—The bright, particular star in this week's bill is Florrie Forde, whose periodical visits are always hailed with acclamation from her numerous admirers. Her latest song, "Oh! oh! Antonio," is a great hit; W. G. Wesley, with his amusing patter, goes well; the Sisters Dainton sing pretty duets; Carr and Rose, in a vocal domestic squabble, create much hilarity; Gracie Hunt, comedienne, gains admirers; Dave Samuels succeeds with his burlesque Hebrew creations and eccentric dancing; the Miltons, in their roller-skating exhibition, win applause; and Raymond's Bio-tableaux are showing local subjects.

BATLEY.—Theatre.—Proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Whitty; Manager, Mr. Alfred A. Taylor.—"One of the best all-round shows we have had here for some time" was the general verdict of a full house on Monday night, after seeing The Love that Women Desire, presented by Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company. The scenery and stage effects are elaborate and effective. Miss Aimee Grattan Clyndes is greatly admired as Sybil Thornbury, a part she plays with conspicuous success; Mr. Sydney Leighton effectively portrays the character of Philip Carnaby, her lover; and the wicked devices and actions of Squire Abingdon, Richard Abingdon, and Madge Abingdon are capably represented by Mr. J. O. Stewart, Mr. Morris Maud, and Miss Jessie Elvin respectively. The rôle of P.C. Sowerberry is extremely well played by Mr. J. W. Wilkinson, who infuses the true spirit of humour into the part; and Mr. John Hignett as Dennis O'Rourke and Miss May Nelson as Patty Swift create considerable amusement.

BEDFORD. — Royal County Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson. — The Lion's Heart is this week being presented by Mr. Joseph Bebb's company. The part of Rigardo, the lion-tamer, is impersonated by Mr. Henry Bedford with undoubted power and spirit; Mr. Stephen Scanlan is exceedingly clever as the villain, Gaspard Dobré; and Mr. Archie Helsby is good as Colonel Robert de Villifort. Miss Ada Oakley, who doubles the parts of Rigardo's wife, Louise, and his child, Marion, acts with much passion and fervour; Miss Madge Beresford is a charming and vivacious Bessie Lorrimore; and Mr. Edward J. Coyne's dry humour as Jack Bealey, a young barrister, is much appreciated. The numerous other parts are skilfully handled, and the scenery is beyond reproach.

BELFAST.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann. — Mr. W. W. Kelly's company opened here on Monday with The New East Lynne, which had a capital reception. In the dual rôle of Lady Isabel and Mme. Vine Miss Beth Elliott, a clever emotional actress was decidedly successful; and honours were also achieved by Mr. Frederick Harker, whose impersonation of Archibald Carlyle it would certainly be difficult to excel; Mr. W. H. Garbois's acting as Francis Levison, alias Captain Thorne, reflected much credit on him, and the rôle of Justice Hare was in the safe hands of Mr. Wm. Lowe; Mr. M. Talbot was dignified as Lord Mountsevern; and Mr. W. T. Ellonby deserves praise for his able impersonation of Richard Hare; the rôles of Cornelia Carlyle and Barbara Hare were done full justice to by Miss Sophy Shenton and Miss Josephine Gwynne; and Miss Doris Denville exhibited much skill as Willie Carlyle; humour was extracted from the character of Murty O'Flynn by the talented comedian Mr. Richard Nugent; and other parts were capably sustained by Miss Guinevere Shilton and Messrs. Byron Pedley, Cole Aspinall, W. Clarke, W. Long, &c.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General-Manager, Mr. J. De Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. A. Salmond.—Miss Marie Loftus is the star here this week, and the accomplished comedienne, who is always welcome, again achieved a great success; Mr. Arthur Reece, who is no stranger to Belfast, has been accorded a terrific reception for his capital rendering of several songs; and Mr. Nat Clifford's comic songs have been hugely enjoyed; and the juggling feats of Ernesto are quite amazing; Henry and Tyler, comedy cyclists, gain much approval for their clever act; and Miss Amy Sullivan is a charming comedienne with good songs. Also here are Souplessi, L. B. Athol, character comedian; and the Palace Pictures.

Royal Hippodrome.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Will Sley and Fred Willmott; Resident-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—Mr. George Leyton, the clever actor-vocalist, is the star here, and has aroused much enthusiasm with his act, "Boys of the Chelsea School"; much amusement has been created with the comedy sketch, Jemmy All-of-a-Twist, presented by Eva Lumley and Freda Ettrick's company; the grand illuminated spectacle, Electra's Dream, presented by Abdullah and La Superba, has been much admired; and a hit has been made by Mr. Tony Iveson with his clever performance at the piano; Coverdale and Huxley's Bijou Juvenile Troupe appear to advantage in their musical scena entitled Pansy's Birthday; and others on the programme are Miss Edith Chantler, aptly described as a wonderful child soprano; Kirkham, the original singing conductor; and the Hipposcope.

Empire Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—On Monday the clever comedienne, Miss Ethel Ra-Leslie and capable company presented a new scena entitled The Voice of the Nile. It is beautifully staged and mounted, while Miss Ra-Leslie's voice is heard to much advantage in her several numbers. Miss Jennie Johns, who has come rapidly to the front, is gaining the highest encomiums for her delightful rendering of several songs; the humorous Scotch songs of Mr. Bob Hamilton have been applauded to the echo; and Messrs. Stewart and Morgan, in their vocal act "Leaving Ireland," have been loudly and deservedly encored; Miss Arabella Allen, "the Dickens Girl," deserves high praise for her realistic impersonations; and also appearing are Mr. C. J. Johnston, the "Black Diamond," and Johnson and Bert, comedians.

New Alhambra Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Will White.—An attractive programme is again provided here. The following films have been exhibited:—Legend of the Ghost, the Salome Dance, Trouble of the Twins, the Mad Heroine, Remember the Fifth of November, &c. Also appearing are Mr. George Edney, vocalist; and Bishop and Vale, comedians and acrobatic dancers.

St. George's Hall.—General-Manager, Mr. Robert Wilson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur.—The introduction of the two-houses-per-night system has caught on here, the result being good houses at each performance. This week the latest pictures have been exhibited, including 'Twixt Love and Duty, Unknown Brazil, Our Flat, &c. In addition Miss Ailsa Douglas, soprano vocalist, appears with much success; and Palette introduces his extraordinary dog Max, whose feats are quite amazing.

HEAVY TABLEAUX CURTAINS.

Dear Sir,

It gives me much pleasure to testify to the admirable work done by you in the cleaning of the exceptionally heavy tableaux curtains of this theatre. It must have been no easy task, especially the bringing up of the gold to the state of perfection you have achieved.

Yours truly,
HERBERT BEERBOHM TREE,
His Majesty's Theatre, March 4th, 1905.

BILSTON.—NEW ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Battersby.—The detective drama, £1,000 Reward, is being presented here this week by Mr. Frank J. Pitt's company. Mr. J. Wilton is very successful as Gilbert Lisle; Miss Kathryne Eckart as Mme. Sansom acts with marked skill; Mr. Arthur Merton gives a boisterous character-sketch as Uncle Jeppa, "once the pride of the ring"; and other parts are well sustained. The staging is satisfactory.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant; Secretary, Miss Isabel Morris.—A return visit from one of the lessee's companies in A Royal Divorce is an interesting and attractive event. On Monday a large and fashionable audience greeted the re-appearance of Miss Edith Cole (Mrs. W. W. Kelly), and her charming and effective performance of the exacting rôle of the Empress Josephine was received with keen enjoyment. Admirable support was accorded by Mr. Keith Fraser, who, as Napoleon, acquitted himself with distinction; the wily old diplomat, Talleyrand, was cleverly represented by Mr. Percy H. Vernon; the Marquis de Beaumont was effectively enacted by Mr. Stanley Harrison; General Angereau was carefully played by Mr. Walter T. Clifford; and Mr. Harold S. Standing was commendable as Marshal Murat. Marie Louise was faultlessly embodied by Miss Winnie Tempest; Miss Maude Lacy was a bewitching Stephanie; Mr. George Hudson gave a humorous rendering of Grimaud; and Mr. W. Robbins, Mr. Rex Lowrey, Miss Nellie Lucas, Miss Violet Hudson, Miss Loyale Frere, and Miss Ethel Love were conspicuous in the cast. The band of the 5th Battalion The King's Liverpool Regiment was introduced with excellent effect.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Zona Vevey, a vocalist of undoubted ability, gives a delightful entertainment, in which she is assisted by Herr Max Erard as accompanist. Among the return visitors are included Miss Gertie Gitana, a clever vocalist and dancer, and always a sure card here; Park's Eton Boys and Girls, with an excellent répertoire of songs and dances; Mr. Pat Rafferty; O'Connor and Brady, comedians of resource; Miss Nan Farren, a talented comedienne and dancer; Wright and Lawson, in a good acrobatic show; Leo Trainer, comedian and patterer; L. W. Harris, a smart comedian; and Sandall and Somers, the simultaneous dancers, also contribute. Brown's Royal Bioscope is an acquisition.

OLYMPIAN GARDENS, ROCK FERRY.—Lessees, Messrs. Adeler and Sutton; Manager, Mr. Edwin Adeler.—A capital combination includes Mr. Julian Mack, comedian; Miss Audrey Esmonde, comedienne; Mr. Tom Evans, baritone; Mr. Frank Hook, comedian; Mr. Colin Mail, light comedian; Fielding and Hull, sketch artists; and Miss Theresa Foote, accompanist.

BIRMINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—Carmen drew a fine house on Monday, when the Moody-Manners company started another popular engagement here, with Mlle. Zelie de Lussan once more available for the part. Every mood of love, passion, and hate was expressed by this accomplished artist, facially and vocally, and her reception after her absence from the company must have highly gratified her. The Don José of Mr. Philip Brozel was a stirring assumption; Mr. Lewys James again came in for honours as Escamillo; and the Michaela of Miss Kate Anderson was, as ever, a beautifully pathetic and vocally perfect performance. The opera was excellently mounted, the chorus was superb, and the orchestra, under Herr Richard Eckhold, played in great style. The subsidiary parts deserve mention for the admirable work of the Misses M. Rigby and Penville, and Messrs. B. King, C. Moppett, R. Carter, and G. King. Madame Butterfly, Lohengrin, Faust, Tannhäuser, Cavalleria Rusticana, and Pagliacci, are in the bill.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—Miss Hook of Holland figures here with Mr. George Dance's company. Miss Marie Wilson, in the title-rôle, commands plenty of applause with her vivacious acting, singing, and dancing; Miss Mabel Sealby makes a hit with the maid's part, Mina; Miss Queenie Preston and the Misses Amy Preston and Mandy Jennings are popular, respectively, as Gretchen and Freda, and Clara Voos; Mr. Arthur Reynolds makes a very comical Mr. Hook; the Captain, Lieutenant, and Bandmaster are made the most of by Messrs. Fredk. Hobbs, Lionel Scott, and Powis Pinder; and Messrs. Percy Davidson, Fred Lyne, P. Murray, and H. Smith, &c., assist greatly with their comedy powers. A capital chorus and an augmented orchestra support.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. T. Guest.—The Best of Her Sex is popular here, with Mr. William A. Armour's company. Miss Dora Price is starred as Vera Delorme, which she makes an exceedingly strong part; Mr. Henry Lloyd does his part well as Leslie Verney; Mr. Percy Horton carries the audiences with him as Philip Faringdon; the rôle of Sir Stanton is rendered dignified by Mr. Herbert J. Walton; Mr. William A. Armour puts in some excellent work as Stephen Maxwell; Miss Alvina Mining elicits full approval as Ruth; and the comedy rôles are well acted by Mr. J. W. Hooper as Jorkins, Mr. Dan Mining as "Holy Joe," and Mr. Hume Fergus as Simon Downey.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—Second to None was received with great favour on its appearance here with Mr. T. Edward Ward's company. Mr. Leonard Williams stirs the audience into enthusiastic cheers with his dashing portrayal of Harry Wilding; the softer attributes of Nell Greystone are feelingly portrayed by Miss Dorothy Clifton; the evil passions of Philip Mannering find full vent in the portrayal of Mr. Fredk. F. Loyd; Miss Mary Mallalieu gives a dramatic ring to the part of May Greystone; Mr. Theo. Balfour is soldierly as Sir Reginald (Colonel) Greystone; Mr. Chas. Halling acts with engaging frankness as Frank Wilding; Mr. Arthur D. Layland does justice to the lieutenant's character, Arthur Ballater; Mr. G. G. Maine gives full significance to the rôle of Sergeant Horseman; and Messrs. Allan Carruthers, Louis Edmonds, and Miss Clarrie Yandell create welcome diversion in the humorous parts.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—When Other Lips made a successful appearance here on Monday, with Mr. T. Arthur Jones and company. Mr. Jones, besides being the author of the play, is the actor of the hero, and in both cases his work is very well done; Mr. Juan D'Alberti shows power and resource as Basil Cunningham; Miss Marie Daventry makes an excellent Ruth Lingley; Mr. Albert M. Clarke is successful as Robert Lingley; and Mr. Cecil H. Raymond wins hearty laughter as Tommy Neccles.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Lake.—The Eve of Her Wedding has gone very well here, with Mr. Wilson Benge, in the rôle of Tremain, to which he gives fine effect. Mr. Arthur Keand does well in two rôles, the Squire and Groggins, to wit; Mr. Henry Danson puts all his energies into the part of Dick Leverton; Miss Sadie Smith presents herself as Mavis with much art and charm; Miss Effie Bartlett plays well as Renie de Tella; Mr. Arthur E. Holland gives a realistic portrayal of the cripple Jack Hearne; Mr. Fred Rivers finds plenty of scope as Giovanni; Mr. Wallace Campbell acts with skill as Dean Clifton; Mr. Chas. Groves, jun., as Paul Cairshaw and Hyram P. Younger is good; and Mr. Chas. Digby and Miss Daisy Cook shine well in the lighter rôles.

PALACE THEATRE, BOURNEMOUTH.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Goodwin Woodward.—Sapho was received well here on Monday, with Mr. Ernest R. Abbott and company. Mr. Abbott's acting of Jean was brimful of ability; Miss Ada Abbott made an enthralling Sapho, and commanded rapt attention throughout; Mr. W. H. Morgan's Dechelette was very good; Mr. Chas. Tring played Flamant's rôle ably; Mr. Frank Stephens gave a fine zest to the character of Cessaire; Mr. Walter Rosier gave a clever characterisation of Legrand; Miss Louise Morley was suited well as Aunt Divonne; and the Misses B. Gertrude Jones and Florence North were also good.

GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—The principal item this week is provided by Mr. George Gray and his company, in The Fighting Parson; Ella Shields delights her audience with some smart coon songs, which she renders in excellent style; Olga and Edgar are responsible for a refined and clever musical entertainment; as a mimic of well-known artists Agnes Tina is decidedly talented; the Rizarelis are lady gymnasts of exceptional ability; O'Malley and Brown have an amusing skit. Jack Hayton, Happy Tom Parker, and Sydney Lee are in the bill.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—With George Robey at the head of affairs, packed houses are the order here. Fred Kitchen and Frank Lister have an excellent sketch in No. 99; Ethel Haydon sings some delightful songs; Verno and Voyce are applauded for their aeroplane skit; and other popular turns are those of Spry and Austin, Kathleen Gray, David Steward, and the Three Brothers Huxter.

HIPPODROME.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Lyons.—The Great Lafayette, who has scored greatly, has been retained for this week; the Three Sisters Sprightly are always popular; Rosie Elliott sings sweetly; the Three Braggs are seen in a clever acrobatic act, their "living bridge" trick being daring; and Hayes and Watson and the Aners complete the programme.

GAIETY THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—Chris. Richards is the big turn here, his eccentric dances and songs being loudly applauded; Ferguson and Mack come in for a big share of applause; Talberto and Douglas are clever knockabouts; Eily Adair is a dainty comedienne. Other turns include Broome and Broome, the Velter Bros., the Padhas, and Robins and Collier, and the McConnell Trio, in a smart comedy act.

KING'S HALL.—Lessees, Messrs. Moore and Kennedy.—This new hall was opened on Monday with animated pictures, and secured great success.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — EDEN THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Addison, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. J. Huntley.—Mr. T. Morton Powell's company opened to a capital house on Monday in The Greed of Gold. Mr. Walter H. Domoney gives a fine portrayal of Harry Hood; and as Arthur Erroll, Mr. Wilson Gunning as admirable. Mr. Sydney Bryant makes a real good "tipster" as Cully Snig; Mr. Victor C. Rolfe and Mr. J. P. Marsden, in the respective parts of Mr. Brightstone and Conn Creamer, are deserving of every praise; Mr. James Jarrett is all that can be desired as Tom Welstead; and as Mee Chow, Mr. J. Field is excellent. Miss Elma C. Turner is a worthy exponent of the part of Dora; and the same can be said of Miss Jennie Douglas Hick for her representation of Mrs. Maxwell. Miss May Watts-Knight, Miss Beatrice Maud Hughes, Mr. Ernest, Mr. C. R. Eglington, Mr. D. Carr, Mr. C. Williams, and Mr. W. Launder all sustain their respective parts in a praiseworthy manner.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Mr. Arthur Bourchier and company have received a warm welcome on this their first visit to Blackpool this week, and their productoin of John Glayde's Honour has met with the entire approbation of packed houses. Mr. Bourchier's impersonation of John Glayde is a grand piece of acting and rivets attention from start to finish, whilst Miss Violet Vanbrugh's admirable portrayal of Muriel Glayde is equally effective. Christopher Branley is played by Mr. Arthur Whitby in an exceedingly able manner; Mr. Chas. Bryant, who represents Trevor Lerode, also proves himself to be an actor of no mean order; and Mr. Bertram Forsyth as Howard Collingham and Mr. Leon Quartermaine as Michael Shurmur likewise merit favourable notice. The Princess de Castagnary finds exactly the right exponent in Miss Henrietta Watson, who may be always relied on for sterling work. The staging and dresses are a special feature.

GRAND THEATRE.—Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—My Mimosa Maid, played by Mr. Frank Curzon and company, is drawing tremendous houses here this week. The title-rôle is assumed by Miss Marie Studholme, who is a great favourite in Blackpool. Mr. Charles McNaughton scores a success as Victor Guilbert, and Master Archie McCaig has established himself a great favourite as Bock. Mr. Charles E. Paton as Max Guilbert, Mr. Percy Carr as M. Gerrard, and Mr. Arthur Jackson as Grove also contribute in no small degree to the success of the production. A fine chorus is under the direction of Mr. Leonard Horney.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Arthur Roberts tops this week's bill, and appears with great success in a farcical sketch entitled Till Sunday, in which he is assisted by Miss Ruby Celeste. Arthur Aldridge, the "golden-voiced tenor," is retained, and his success is as great as last week. Frank Seeley, an able and eccentric comedian; Parr and Parland, the "aristocratic comedians"; the Brothers Wright in a clever athletic exposition; Winifred Ward, the boy impersonator; Pyck, Tholl, and Taylor, in a sketch; Barlee and Smith, musical comedians; and Pipifax and Paulo in their mélange of eccentricity, Humpti-Bumpsti, are included in the bill.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mrs. Fioni.—The latest pictures are shown here twice daily, and capital variety turns are supplied by Harry Bland, comedian; the Orchids, speciality artists; and Mueller and Coyne, the American comedy duo.

BOLTON. — THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Moncur.—A strong attraction is provided here by Messrs. Hallett and Howard's principal company in Her Love Against the World. Miss Grace Heywood gives a fine rendering of the part of Iris; Mr. Fred Emery acts in a manly fashion as Eric; Mr. Lewis Gilbert is forcible as the scheming Prince Ulric; Mr. W. H. Hallett acts well as Prince Othmar; and Mr. Victor Rowland makes a capital Prince Maurice; Miss Nellie Fletcher is excellent as Shulah, Countess of Rasselyn; and Miss Julie De Esco is good as Corona, an Austrian dancer. Miss Rossie St. John plays in good style as Nello. Misses Gertie Reid, as Katinka, and Hettie Ferguson as Gretchen, with the assistance of Messrs. Henry B. Lewis and John Mill, are responsible for some excellent comedy. Mr. Charles R. Hann makes a good General Gessler; and Mr. John Chesson as Colonel Esterhazy and Mr. A. B. Cushman as Colonel Lindorf give able assistance.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—Miss Ada Colley, prima donna (the Australian nightingale), is a great attraction here this week, as the principal turn. Other artists appearing in a strong programme are Natalia and Diana, aerial gymnasts, with a clever performance on the trapeze; Miss Madge Allan, comedienne and dancer; the Edmonds, in their statuary act, called Golden Deeds in South Africa; Nellie Haydee's miniature vaudeville theatre; Mollie Woolstenhulme, operatic vocalist; Kid Johnson and Maisie Pelham, in their comedy pot-pourri act; Pasquali Brothers, speciality equilibrists and tumblers; and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope.

THE EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; General-Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. R. Harrison.—Appearing here are the Kurios, in a comical concoction of comicalities, introducing pantomime, art, and mystery; Victor Courtney, as Boots at the piano; Flo. Chevalier, vocalist and comedienne; Fred Lyndo, eccentric comedian; the Two Erolls, comedy tumblers and leapers; Almon, the upside-down marvel; Mabel Robarts, vocalist in illustrated songs; Percy Farrimond, the original Lancashire singing collier; the Three Orros on the silver chains; and the Bioscope.

BOOTLE.—MUNCASTER THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Wilmott; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Young.—The stock company is this week giving an excellent performance of the historical drama, A Fatal Crown, by Brandon Ellis. All the principal characters are well sustained by Messrs. Stanley S. Gordon, Albert Sember, Alfred D. Adams, Tom H. Solly, Cyril Grier, and Alfred Grenville; also Miss Nina Vaughton; Kathleen Magee, Effie Macintosh, and Louie Heathfield.

BOSCOMBE.—HIPPODROME, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Ball.—Howard and Harris, in their sketch, entitled The Adventures of a Happy Tramp, are very successful here; the Delevines, in Flipp and Flopp, keep the house in roars of laughter; a smart acrobatic comedy act, entitled African Gambols, is performed by the Tintos; Rose Hamilton, the popular versatile comedienne, is a great favourite; Julian Ross is heard to advantage as a vocal comedian; and other turns worthy of mention are Kitty Taylor, comedienne, and W. A. Hardie.

BOURNEMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietors, Messrs. David Allen and Sons; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Aubert Dunbar.—Mr. Seymour Hicks' company in The Gay Gordons had an enthusiastic reception here on Monday. Miss Zena Dare as the fascinating Peggy Quainton played in a manner which quickly established her in favour; the Angus Graeme of Mr. Stanley Brett was particularly excellent; and mention should be made of Mr. Edward Lewis as Nervy Nat, of Mr. Wilfred Norman as Edmund Siddons, of Mr. Ernest Torrance as Andrew Quainton, of Miss Nellie Dade as Charlotte Siddons, and of Miss Doris Stocker, a charming Mary McLeod. Valuable services were rendered by Mr. Arthur Spittle, the musical director.

BRADFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—Mr. Milton Bode's company is paying a return visit in A Chinese Honeymoon. Monday night's audience was a large one, and very appreciative. Miss Gwennie Harcourt scored in a clever and humorous performance of Fi-Fi; as Mr. Pineapple Mr. Will Harman was very funny; and charmingly and with much brightness Miss Veronica Brady played Mrs. Pineapple. Miss Maud Adams was much in evidence as Mrs. Brown; Miss Elsie Skillings was an attractive Soo-Soo; Mr. Harry Jennings was good as Tom Hatherton; and Mr. Rudolph Kloss as Hang Chow, Mr. P. Allerton Turner as Chippie Chop, and Mr. Leonard May as High Lung, made a diverting trio. The music in the comedy was brightly rendered, and the costumes and scenic effects won admiration.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee, Councillor F. Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—Married to the Wrong Man is presented here this week, and the representation is in the hands of an all-round capable company, excellent scenic effects adding to the thrilling interest in the piece, which is well sustained throughout. As Ruth, the sorely-tried heroine of the story, Miss Gertrude Boswell is convincing and effective; Mr. Charles Vivian as her foster-father is forcible; and as his villainous son Mr. H. Lane Bayliff is excellent. Mr. Oswald Cray admirably fills the part of Captain Gladwin; and the other characters are in able hands.

THE EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—That remarkably expert "chameleon comedian," Mr. Hymack, is again mystifying the audience; and those clever trick cyclists, the Dunedin Troupe, are once more eliciting applause for their intrepid feats. Mlle. Eldee presents a charming series of effective poses; Will English is a very funny coloured comedian; there is originality and good comedy in the musical act, The Garden of Melody, given by the Schaffers; Rhoda Paul is very smart in male impersonations; the Seven Wulfrunas do some funny and smart acrobatic work in Fun in a Café; Ruth Lytton, Scotch comedienne; and Walter Wade, comedian, supply very acceptable turns; and there are some fine pictures shown by the American Bioscope.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Harrison.—Miss Annie Schuberth, the popular and gifted soprano vocalist, receives great applause; Harry Weldon's eccentricities are again a source of uncontrollable laughter; Dolly and Elsie are acceptable vocalists and dancers; in a clever absurdity, The Dummy, the Gregson Comedy Trio are very good; Charles Tuppen's performance as a horn blower is clever; excellent contributions to the programme are supplied by Cullen and Carthy, comedians; Jack Neil, Scotch comedian; the smart Paulaston troupe of comedy acrobats; Minnie D'Aubyn, vocalist; and Raymond's interesting Bio-tableaux.

BRIDLINGTON.—SPA OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. Harry Tunbridge.—We are enjoying a visit from Mr. Mouillot's No. 1 company, in Tom Jones. Mr. Cyril Thompson makes a fine hero, his vocalism being a great treat; Mr. Fred Seymour is a great success as Squire Western; and the Partridge of Mr. Geo. Elton is most amusing. Miss Margaret Stonor sings admirably as Sophia; Miss Florrie Saunders gives delight by her portrayal of Honour; and Miss Olive Elton makes an admirable Lady Bellaston.

NEW SPA GARDENS.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry Tunbridge.—Herr Simon Wurm and his Imperial Viennese Band are giving their last performances of the season this week, and on Monday night a capital programme was presented.

ROYAL PRINCE'S PARADE.—Manager, Mr. Charles Palmer.—Mr. H. Flockton-Foster, whose costume comedy company has been such a success in the Grand Pavilion during the season, and Mr. Will H. Emmerson, proprietor of the popular Loyal Dominion Animated Picture Company, were accorded a complimentary benefit on Friday last, when they were rewarded with a crowded house. A monster programme was presented. The Flockton-Foster's burlesque scena, The Stage-Struck Company, was an excellent turn; and Mr. Will Emmerson showed some of his choicest animated pictures.

SUMMER GARDENS.—Lessees, Messrs. Beanland, Bath, and Danton; Manager, Mr. Chas. Beanland.—The Waterloo Pierrots are giving some good programmes this week, including the laughable sketch, Lady Samuell's At Home. Mr. Harry Tomlin had a well-earned benefit on Friday.

BRIGHTON. — GRAND THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ben Court.—Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company are here this week with The Midnight Wedding. Mr. Alfred Paumier gives a masterly enactment of Paul Valmar; Miss Yvonne Orchardson submits a charming impersonation of Princess Astrea von Streisburg; Mr. Mayor-Cooke's Captain Rudolf, Mr. A. E. Winnington-Barnes' Lieut. Eugene von Streisburg, and Mr. John Nesbitt's Crown Prince Leopold are admirably played. The comic element was capitally presented, much laughter being afforded by Miss Ida Champion (Kathie), Mr. Jas. B. Page (Sergeant Max), Mr. Harry Richardson (Corporal Otto), and Mr. Aigle Spalding (Private Bobo). The scenery, uniforms, and costumes are excellent, and the performances are attracting crowded houses.

ALHAMBRA.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. Ernest Lepard.—An excellent programme is sustained here this week. Phil Ray is delightfully entertaining with his songs and patter; Viretta Vivien wins enthusiastic applause with her recitations; Harvey's American Boys and Girls give a capital turn; Driscoll and Felino introduce some very praiseworthy comedy business; Albert Le Fre is well received in a smart mélange; Lizzie Glenroy is a pleasing Scotch comedienne and dancer; the Two Jagos are pleasing in comedy and dancing; Frances Letty is a versatile singer; Frank Lynn, comedian, is highly successful; Jack Hamilton, a popular patter comedian, affords much fun; and the Alhambrascope pictures are interesting and amusing.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur R. Hollands.—There is a capital company here this week. Harry Ford wins warm applause for his humorous songs; Albert Bellman and Lottie Moore, American comedy artists, are very entertaining; Addie Dorina is a clever protean actress; Richard Taylor, whistling ventriloquist, achieves much success; John Tiller's company are well received in their musical absurdity, The Queen of Monte Carlo; Norah Desmond is a pleasing pictorial songstress; F. Cull-Pitt, a droll deceptionist, assisted by Mlle. Adele, is cordially received; Gladys Huxley is a dainty comedienne; the Lyons Trio are good pantomimists and dancers; and the Barrascope pictures are interesting.

WEST PIER.—Secretary and Entertainment Manager, Mr. A. D. Norman.—Mr. Lionel Glenister and Mr. Wood-Ingram's company, including Miss Florence St. John, opened here on Monday with Jack Straw. Miss Florence St. John, who was cordially received, gave a very clever character-study as the rich and vulgar Mrs. Parker-Jennings; Mr. Lionel Glenister was highly effective as Jack Straw; Mr. A. T. Gullifer's Parker-Jennings merits praise; Mr. Frederick Moyes made an admirable Ambrose Holland; Mr. J. Edgar Stevenson was a typical lover; Miss Edie Graham as Lady Wanley was well placed; and others who rendered able support included Miss Lucie Milner, Miss Estelle Despa, and Mr. Ernest Graham.

PALACE PIER THEATRE.—Miss Olive Wilton, Mr. Arthur Hare, and company are here this week with A Pair of Spectacles. Mr. Arthur Hare submits an excellent representation of Mr. Benjamin Goldsmith; Mr. Milroy Cooper achieves great success as Uncle Gregory; Mr. R. Henderson Bland's Dick and Mr. Cyril Scott's Percy merit warm commendation; Miss Olive Wilton is a graceful and pleasing Mrs. Goldfinch; Miss Eilleen Terence makes an admirable Lucy Lorimer; and Mr. Charles Irwen is a capital Lorimer.

COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. M. Barrasford; Secretary and Manager, Mr. Fred Bauer.—Excellent business marks the admirable exhibition of animated pictures this week. The Race for the St. Leger is highly interesting; The Battle of Salisbury is an attractive film; The Wreckers, The Adventuress, and A Never-Forgotten Melody, convey dramatic stories; A Tour Through Zambesi to Central Africa is picturesque; and much humour is afforded by The Charmed Umbrella, A Troublesome Thief, and Phantom Games.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—The Merry Widow is drawing packed houses here, the musical play being well performed by Mr. George Edwardes's company. The piece is elaborately mounted and beautifully dressed, the chorus is strong and tuneful, and the increased orchestra, under the direction of Mr. A. MacCunn, does full justice to Franz Lehar's pretty music. Miss Constance Drever acts in charming style as Sonia, her excellent singing and dancing obtaining the utmost appreciation; Mr. Leonard Mackay is well placed as Prince Danilo, he also acting, singing, and dancing most effectively. Mr. Haigh Jackson scores as the Vicomte Camille de Jolidon. He has a nice tenor voice, and uses it artistically. Miss Ethel Cadman makes a dainty Natalie, and sings her songs well; Miss Sylvia May is pleasing as Olga; Mr. Eric Thorne presents a good comic study of Baron Popoff; Mr. W. H. Rawlins makes the most of Nisch; and the remaining parts are all carefully played.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. C. Alty.—Mr. Frank Bertram and company are here with The Convict's Daughter, the drama being staged well. Mr. Bertram acts admirably as Michael Grahame, being successful both in the humorous and serious phases of the character; Miss Lillian Dene is both convincing and interesting as Edith; Mr. William Burgess displays kindliness and dignity as Frederick Neville; Mr. Walter Graham acts in manly style as Harold Trevalyan; Mr. Escott Robson is consistent in the heavy part of Jasper Thorne; and the comic parts of Betty Hyne and Patrick O'Laragan are capitally taken by Miss Amy Randolph and Mr. Willie Black.

PALACE — Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—Charles Majilton and company score with their amusing sketch, in three scenes, The Trippers; Albertus the First and Jessie Millar, eccentric comedian and lady cornetist, amuse with their speciality A Scene at the Fair Ground; the Haytors have a smart speciality, The Plumber; George Prince, comedian, obtains applause; Fred Dunstone, comedian, is also successful; Bowman and Morton, comedy duo, do well; and Marie Collins is a pleasing comedienne. The performance concludes with Too Old for Work, by Vernon's Bioscope.

EMPIRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—George Lashwood, comedian, successfully heads the programme; John Beauchamp and company amuse with their comic sketch The Schoolmaster's Mistake; the Eight 'Varsity Girls are pleasing vocalists and dancers; Mr. and Mrs. Shelley have a funny sketch, Miss Sommerson's Baby; Edith Fink, burlesque actress, presents a pleasing turn; Stevens and Rennoir, comedians and dancers, are appreciated; Johnny Val, comedian, obtains applause; Violet Herbert is a capable vocalist; and Margaret Radcliffe, comedienne, is highly successful. The performance concludes with a good selection of animated pictures.

COLSTON HALL.—Ralph Pringle's animated pictures are still attracting good houses, the leading item this week being a magnificent set of coloured pictures, depicting the Biblical story of Samson and Delilah. There is a good band, and a competent variety company.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson. — Mr. Charles M. Bestic's company, under the stage-management of Mr. Louis Stanislaus, is providing a bright entertainment in the interesting, pleasing musical comedy, The Flower Girl, the book, lyrics, and music being by Mr. Wm. T. Gliddon, who personally directs the orchestra and chorusses. The picturesque scenery and pretty dresses add much to the enjoyment, and on Monday a good house gave unstinted approval of the singing, dancing, and acting throughout, the audience requiring many repetitions of the principal numbers. Miss Dorothy Firmin as Lily is very effective, and makes a good impression with her singing; Mr. Martin Adeson is irresistibly funny and clever as Joe Wheeler; Mr. Alfred Donohoe skilfully plays Johnny Wheeler; Mr. Norman Bowyer is also decidedly funny as Reginald Rackit; Mr. Robert H. Howard sings and acts well as the hero, the Hon. Billy Greenhill; a most comical French couple are presented by Mr. Henry Adnes (Alphonse) and Miss Florence Wilton (Lizette). Miss Jeannie Holmes as Miss Greenhill gives an excellent study of a pretty Suffragette. The singing and manœuvres of the chorusses showed excellent training.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Mr. H. Hamilton Stewart's company is here presenting Sherlock Holmes. Mr. Stewart is a clever exponent of the title-rôle, and is heartily applauded; Mr. Robert Gilbert is a clever exponent of Professor Moriarty; and like praise is due to Mr. Arthur Shelton as Dr. Watson. Charming, too, is the Alice Faulkner of Miss Betty Fairfax. Another prominent figure is Billy, in the hands of Master Thomas Russell; and James Larrabee is capitally rendered by Mr. M. D. Draper. Miss Edith Vogue is good as Madge Larrabee; and Mr. W. A. Cheetham ably represents John Forman.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Packed houses are the rule here this week. The Kremo Family, rider acrobats, perform a series of sensational feats with neatness; smart and sparkling is Miss Florrie Gallimore, who pleases greatly with her catchy chorus songs; H. O. Wills keeps the house in roars of laughter; and Chicko is a smart equilibristic contortionist. Josie Delaine, comedienne, is a neat exponent of national dances; and Nellie Moore is good in a selection from Les Cloches de Corneville. J. S. James is clever with banjo and tambourine; and the Empire Theatroscope presents a capital picture.

PALACE THEATRE AND HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—Berzac's Comedy Animals provide an interesting and funny turn, which is fully appreciated; Herbert Clifton gives several songs, and also creates laughter with a burlesque on the Gibson Girl. A distinctly funny turn is given by Clark and Hayden, entitled By Appointment; and the Waldrons, in The Silly Burglar, provide a laughable sketch. Fun in a Billiard Room introduces smart somersaults by Kelly and Ashby; and Les Zelovas display great strength in acrobatic feats. Harry Cotton is a good comedian; and the Five Broadway Girls prove themselves good vocalists and dancers. Raymond's Bio-tableaux shows a realistic film, Baby's Playmate.

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — NEW HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett and Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. de Hague Body. — Mr. Fred Karno's company is paying a return visit with His Majesty's Guests. Mr. Geo. Hestor appears with much success as Sergeant Lightning, and is responsible for most of the fun; Mr. Rupert Strutfield and Mr. Chas. Usher also do well as Lord Easum and Mr. Miffin respectively.

BURY (Lancs.).—THEATRE ROYAL AND PALACE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—A score of Indian Mutiny and Crimean veterans occupied seats in the stalls on Monday at the invitation of Mr. Culling, whose little speech of welcome was received with great cheers. At the head of the bill is Maurice de Riaz, the Swiss champion wrestler, who challenges all comers up to 11st. 6lb. Other very clever items are contributed by the Troupe Lafaille, balancers; Mena Brae, vocalist and dancer; Napier Trio, eccentric jugglers; Billy Downes, comedian; Muir, Bartlett and company, in a novelty, entitled The Collar Stud; and Craig, Roze, and Craig, gymnasts.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—A capital series of pictures is given on the Ottograph this week. The best are Manners and Customs of Australia, Funny Fisheries, Chieftain's Revenge, Tramp's Daughter, Waiter, the Rural Postman, and Miss Pimpernel's Gown.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Sons.—Caban's French Circus of ponies, dogs, donkeys, and goats are highly trained, and give a very novel show. Other items of the bill are Fanny Robina, comedienne; Florry Cooper, vocalist; Major Arnold, in a magical scena; Les Zeldas, acrobats; Arthur Albert, comedian; Braund and Davies, comedians and dancers; and Edith St. Clair, vocalist.

About six weeks ago I was suffering with

PIMPLES

ALL OVER MY FACE,

brought on probably by painting my face for my eccentric business. I was also suffering with SCURF IN THE HAIR. Being rather alarmed, I asked a friend's advice, and he recommended me to take "Clarke's Blood Mixture." I purchased a 2/9 bottle, and within a week I found marked improvement. The pimples and the scurf is entirely gone. I cannot tell you how thankful I am at having taken "Clarke's Blood Mixture," and I shall recommend it to everybody, as I think it only right that such a remedy should be known.—(Signed) JOHN HENRY JONES, known as "Little Johnny," Llandudno's Popular Comedian, Thorndale, Llandudno, Feb. 24, 1908.

VANISHED LIKE MAGIC,

BURY ST. EDMUNDS. — THEATRE ROYAL. — General-Manager, Mr. Auguste A. Peuleve.—Mr. Alfred B. Cross's company, in The Manxman, opened a three nights' engagement on Monday. Mr. Cross himself was responsible for a fine interpretation of the title-rôle; Mr. Fred Mace made a satisfactory Cæsar Cregeen; the part of Philip Christian was entrusted to Mr. Harold B. Lewis; and that of Ross Christian found a capable exponent in Mr. Fred Charles. Miss Minnie Waterford as Kate acquitted herself well; Miss Nancy Mitchell was successful as Nancy; and Miss Blanche Lee (Miss Christian) fulfilled all requirements of the part. A word of praise is due to the mounting of the piece.

BUXTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. Arthur Willoughby.—Mr. Mouillot's company in Tom Jones made a name for itself here during the first three nights of this week. Mr. Cyril Thompson as the hero is a fine singer and a good actor, and Miss Margaret Stonor is a particularly gifted vocalist, and played artistically as Sophia. Miss Florrie Saunders as Honora was chic and dainty, and quite captivated the audience; Mr. A. J. Nicholls was the Mr. Allworthy; and Blifil was satisfactorily filled by Mr. Alfred H. Majilton. Mr. George Elton kept the house quite merry as Partridge, and Mr. Fred Seymour scored heavily as the rollicking Squire Western. Mr. Michael Dwyer was amusing as the servant Gregory; and Miss Olive Elton was admirably cast as Lady Bellaston. The choruses were tunefully sung, and the opera finely staged. Mr. Edward Terry and company fill in the remainder of the week.

CARDIFF.—NEW THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robt. Redford.—A welcome visit is being paid here this week by Miss May Palfrey and company in the successful comedy Mrs. Dot. Miss May Palfrey gives a representation of the title-rôle which pleases all, the sprightly Mrs. Dot being depicted in a most vivacious manner. Miss Palfrey is supported by a small but powerful company, prominent amongst which appears Mr. Hugh C. Buckler as Gerald Halstane, this character being portrayed in a distinctly able manner. As James Bienkinsop Mr. F. Kinsey Peile is a great success; and special praise is due to Mr. Basil Hallam for his clever impersonation of the "silly" Freddie Perkins. Miss Evelyn Beaumont makes a pleasing Nellie Sellenger; and Miss Ida Jerome is good as Lady Sellenger; while Mrs. Kemmis undertakes with care the part of Miss Eliza Macgregor. A notable feature of the production is the exceptionally fine setting to the three acts. The piece is preceded by a laughable sketch, A Lively Dinner, in which Mr. Frank H. Denton appears with effect as Mr. Crawford.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—Packed houses have ruled here at every performance. Horace Goldin heads the bill, and is more bewildering and more entertaining than ever; the charming Miss Jeanne Fransioli still assists the "King's illusionist," as Mr. Goldin is described. A delightful item is that provided by Duncan and Godfrey, who appear in a capitally-acted coster sketch, Me and 'Er; Lydia Yeamans takes exceedingly well, particularly in her baby impersonations; Leo Tell earns flattering applause for his remarkably clever mimetic performance; Ben Albert and Fred Keeton, comedians, provide a couple of individual turns that are much appreciated; the smart step-dancing and clever drill of the Eight Lancashire Lads are accorded outbursts of applause; Madge Osmond opens the programme in a pleasing little character-song; and the Bioscope concludes with interesting local views.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Rollo Balmain.—The Private Secretary is excellently produced by Mr. Eugene C. Stafford's company. Mr. Donald Price-Evans undertakes the difficult rôle of the Rev. Mr. Spalding, and a really capital rendition he submits; Mr. W. Hargreaves as Mr. Cattermole plays the part to perfection; and Mr. Frederick Tyrrell as Gibson affects the peculiarities of the character exceedingly well. Messrs. Andrew Wight (Harry Marsland) and Lawrence Grove (Douglas Cattermole) are the right men for their parts; and Mr. Frank Stanley makes the most of the rôle of Mr. Marsland. Miss Edith Savery (Eva) and Miss Violet Darling (Edith Marsland) impersonate their characters with delightful vivacity; and Mrs. Alfred Davis as Miss Ashford and Miss Cecily Wade as Mrs. Stead are praiseworthy.

PALACE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Arthur Burton.—Pride of place is occupied this week by J. Wright Aitken and company in a domestic sketch entitled The Battle of Life. Mr. J. Wright Aitken makes a great impression as John Melville; and the other characters are in capable hands. Emma Don, character comedienne, is vigorously encored; Hayes and Merrit appear in a novel turn, and well deserve the title of champion bounding trampolinists; Tossing Austins, American comedy jugglers and expert dancers, cause laughter and applause; Margit and Lener are exceptionally smart comedy acrobats; Norah Stockelle, chic comedienne and dancer; Gladys and Alber, comedy artists; and Raymond's Bio-tableaux are also included in the programme.

CARLISLE.—H.M. THEATRE.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—The Dandy Doctor again fills the bill here after a lengthy absence. Mr. Edward Marris, who is responsible for the production, has brought an excellent company. Miss Florence Smithers as Jane has a part exactly suited to her eccentric humour; Miss Molly Wynne makes a dainty Ivy Pendred; as the tinned-meat millionaire, Mr. George Brentwood works hard and successfully throughout; Mr. Herbert Pearce has a nice voice and acts with finished effect. In the title-rôle Mr. C. Burrunston Williams is amusing, and sings well.

PALACE.—Managing-Director, Signor Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Morgan.—Charles Parkers, æolians, renew acquaintance here this week with a most attractive and artistic act. Especially bright and vivacious is the dancing of the younger members of the troupe. Bert Williams is a ventriloquist par excellence; Nightingale and Stigant are immensely amusing in a comedy duologue, Two Sides of a Wall; Ernest Rees does exceedingly well; Frank Leon shines in song and dance; Woolmer Young, vocal comedian, meets with appreciation; and Lizzie Kirk is a bright comedienne. The Pepiscope completes.

CASTLEFORD.—ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Councillor Hy. Masterman, J.P.—A cordial reception was given to Mrs. Sam Duckworth's clever company on Monday on their first visit here in Her Nameless Child. The drama is excellently staged. Mr. J. W. Evelyn portrays Anthony Ford, a blacksmith, consistently and well; Miss Pattie Hastings supplies an artistic delineation of Phillis Ford; Mr. Sidney C. Cranston has an easy and natural method and is successful in the rôle of Arthur Ford; as Lord Woodville Mr. Arthur E. Pringle makes a thorough-going villain; and as the subsidiary scoundrel Mongrole Mr. Frank Thompson plays efficiently. As Lady Sibil Miss Mona Grey proves herself an actress of considerable ability. The lighter side of the play is well sustained by Mr. Larry Clements as Tom Rivers and Miss Renie Douglas as Bessie Brooke, both of whom keep the house in continuous laughter. The part of Crayont is carefully handled by Miss Geraldine Verner.

QUEEN'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Proprietors, Messrs. Chas. Beanland and W. H. Emerson; General-Manager, Mr. Will H. Emerson; Acting-Manager, Mr. James Travis.—This popular place of amusement continues to be well patronised. Capner and Steele are decidedly clever as character duettists, and their turn is fully appreciated; Claude H. Howell is an elocutionist of no mean order, his recitations illustrated by lantern slides eliciting loud applause; the Loyal Dominion Co.'s animated pictures are still running strong. Large audiences nightly witness the two hours performance.

CHATHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard.—This week marks the annual visit of the Carl Rosa Opera Company, who opened here on Monday to a full house with Carmen. The performance was up to the Carl Rosa high standard of excellence, and in the title-rôle Miss Doris Woodall scored a triumphant success. The programme for the remainder of the week consisted of Faust, Il Trovatore, Tannhäuser, The Merry Wives of Windsor, Cavalleria Rusticana, Pagliacci, and The Bohemian Girl.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—Phillips and Terry are in their second week here with another of their popular duologues, The Revolt of Man. The Six Brothers Lucks' company are again causing plenty of fun in The Demon of the Cellar; Fred Cary makes quite a hit with songs and patter; Tamamoto surprises all with his dexterity on the perpendicular rope; Evelyn Taylor is back again with new chorus songs; Lacey's Erascope contributes a goodly share towards the evening's entertainment; and the Sisters Du Cane, duettists and dancers, and Lucy Coventry, comedienne, also appear.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Captain H. E. Davis.—Charles Austin's songs and patter are meeting with their customary success here; the Della Sisters, in Directoire costume, sing a patriotic ballad; James Dale and Cissie Vale sing and dance together, the latter's dancing being particularly smart; Luici Salvino, the boy instrumentalist, gets a flattering reception; the entertainment given by the King's College Boys, under the style of The Students' Concert, affords much satisfaction; the Four Aces are comedy acrobats with some unique feats; Rosa Filley goes well; and the Edisonograph has an entire change of films.

CHELTENHAM.—OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—Diana of Dobson's is this week introduced here by Miss Lena Ashwell's principal company. Miss Dorothy Green in the title-rôle is delightful; Mr. H. Grendon Bentley's study of Captain Bretherton is distinctly clever; Miss Mary Stuart is capital as Mrs. Cantelupe; Mr. Alfred Harris neatly hits off the vulgarity and bounce of Sir Jabez Grindlay, Bart.; Miss Georgette de Serville acts pleasingly as Mrs. Whyte Fraser; and various types of shop girls are cleverly portrayed by Messrs. Molly Tremaine, Kate Turner, Nannie Griffin, and Eva Leonard Boyne. Mr. Albert Wainwright presents a clever study of Police-constable Fellows; and Miss Nannie Griffin as an old woman is good. The Bishop's Candlesticks precedes.

MONTPELLIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. A. W. Newton.—The Dandies on Saturday last concluded an excellent all-round season, and on Wednesday Mr. Newton, the popular manager, takes a well-earned benefit, having secured the magnificent band of the Royal Irish Guards, who will give two performances in the gardens of the beautiful summer resort.

CHESTER. — ROYALTY THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—The Brothers O'Brien, in their first-class horizontal bar act, are topping the bill; Adah Payne, a melodious soprano, is well applauded; Chas. Lestree, juggler, is an able manipulator of billiard balls, plates, &c.; Allis and Cassati, in a funny few minutes, introduce song, comedy, and dancing. Dot Stephens is back again, and the applause which greeted her first entrance on Monday evening speaks volumes for the place she holds in the favour of Cestrians. Her turn goes as well as ever, and she is recalled again and again. May and Arthur are a juvenile couple who indulge in song, dance, and cross patter, which is much to the liking of the audience. Other contributors to the programme are Eric Johns, tenor vocalist; the Brady and Johnson sketch combination; and the Premier Imperial pictures. Mr. Herbert Stone entered upon his duties as musical-director here last week.

CHORLEY (Lancs.).—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Santé.—Messrs. M. H. Glenville and Fred Osmond's company is paying a welcome return visit here with A Soldier of France. As Corporal (Father Jean) Mr. Leonard Aardale gives an exceptionally strong and effective rendering; Mr. Edward Hobart is distinctly successful as Capt. Louis Loraine; Mr. Albert Guyon capitally undertakes Judas Delaria; Mr. Milton C. Curtis cleverly portrays the Duke d'Laval; and Mr. Freddie Edwards is good as Pollyput Jollyboy. Miss Florence Zillwood's charmingly sympathetic rendering of Pauline is much appreciated; Miss Dora Weber is capital as Rita; Miss Phœbe Jones cleverly enacts Lippi; and Miss Jennie Claire is a vivacious Margot.

CLACTON-ON-SEA.—WEST CLIFF GARDENS.—Proprietors, Messrs. Graham, Russell, and Bentley.—Although the season is rapidly drawing to a close, the audiences at these popular gardens are well maintained. Miss Emily Foxcroft, soprano, is popular. Mr. P. Gorton Young, basso, makes a great hit with his song, "The windmill." He also contributes silver handbell solos, which are well received. Mr. Sidney Locklynne's farmyard imitations are a great attraction; Mr. Bert Graham gives a clever rendering of the monologue, "The Centenarian," and his clever manipulation of living marionettes gains him an enthusiastic encore; Mr. Bernard Russell's humorous items create roars of laughter, and Mr. Will Bentley also contributes laughable items.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessee, Mr. Harold Montague; Business-Manager, Mr. G. Ivor Sparke.—The Vagabonds are still a great attraction here. Harold Montague gives a sketch at the piano in his usual humorous style; Leslie Burgess sings "Jonathan Jones" and "A soldier's toast" with spirit; Arthur Thomas is extremely clever with his eccentric musical items; Olive Sparke appears to advantage, with Harold Montague, in the duet, "Dancing dolls"; Leslie Lulu is exceptionally good in her song, "Dolly's lullaby"; and Marie Longmore charmingly renders "Little blue flower." Mr. Claude Russell's pianoforte solos are a pleasing feature. Mention should also be made of the concerted numbers by the company.

OPERETTA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. W. F. Jury; Business-Manager, Mr. Dudley Harcourt.—Excellent films are being exhibited here to large audiences, and Miss Clairette Florence's illustrated songs are still one of the most attractive features.

COLCHESTER. — HIPPODROME.—Joint-Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. Jack de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—The principal item on this week's programme is supplied by Miss Dolly Elsworthy and company in the dramatic playlet The Orange Girl. Miss Elsworthy as Nell Gwynn has a rôle in which she is admirably suited, and is capably assisted by Mr. J. Richter, Mr. A. Lancaster, Mr. A. Howard, Miss M. Kumersley, and Miss Steele. Ted Cowan sings a couple of droll songs in his quaint style. Layern, the mystic, gives a versatile demonstration; Rosie Bartlett, charmingly attired in male hunting costume, sings in a very pleasing manner; Nellie Ridgway vocalises on the wire with effect; Flo Inman contributes much that is popular; and capital films by the Gaumont Company complete.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Graham Macdona.—Mr. Ernest Dare's company in the farcical comedy In the Soup opened a week's engagement here on Monday. Miss Vera Wallace, with a charming stage presence, is delightfully natural as Mme. Moppert, and as her husband Mr. James Taylor is effective. Mr. L. Palgrave is irresistibly funny as Horace Gillibrand, and Miss M. Lowe-Dare works hard as Judith Gillibrand. Mr. A. Field Fisher presents Uncle Ruppershaw, and Mr. Evelyn Beerbohm is nicely placed as Paul. The piece was preceded by a short play, entitled The Glow of the Ember, founded on a poem of Ian Anderson's.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. R. J. Bell.—Mr. James Welch and company appeared here this week in When Knights Were Bold. The farce was finely acted, and the house rang with laughter from the rise to the fall of the curtain. Mr. Welch as Sir Guy De Vere was the central figure, and created all the fun of the piece. Miss Audrey Ford as Lady Rowen Eggington acts with much grace and effect; Mr. Arthur Grenville as Isaac Isaacson gives an extremely clever performance; Mr. George Desmond as the Hon. Chas. Widdicombe is capital; Mr. Guy Lane as the Rev. Peter Pottlebury supplies an excellent study; as Sir Owen Gwynneth Mr. Cecil Kinnaird is very good; and Miss Daisy Cordell as Miss Isaacson fills the part admirably. The Wittle of Mr. George F. Tully, the Barker of Mr. George Tompkins, and the Lady Millicent of Miss Maev O'Hea are other parts of much merit.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Thomas F. O'Brien.—The Aramis, in A Night in Naples, render vocal selections capitally; Mlle. Ada Gatley does juggling and balancing on a slack wire with much grace and skill; Ryan and Hall, comic wrestlers and acrobats, are a very clever and amusing pair; Harris and Gibbs are an admirable pair of comedians; Les Voces, lady and gentleman, contribute selections from several operas in a pleasing manner; Sam Walsh is a clever conjurer and card manipulator; Molly Seymour is a good vocalist, and plays with skill on the violin; Charles M. Daly and his company, in I Must Have It, arouse continuous laughter; and the Palacescope shows some good pictures.

COVENTRY.—THE OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. W. Bennett.—The Dairymaids is paying a return visit. Miss Mabel Younge capitally portrays the character of Lady Brudenell; Mr. J. A. Warden is seen to advantage as Dr. O'Byrne, R.N.; Mr. Johnny Osborne is a humorous Joe Mivens, being ably assisted by Miss Gladys Silvani as Eliza.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. S. T. Newsome; General-Manager, Mr. G. E. Wright.—Hallam and Stanton appear in a musical comedy sketch, entitled A Broken Journey, which causes endless mirth; Harry Champion is a great success with his comic songs; Jack and Evelyn are wonderfully smart in their turn, Cigarette Papers; the Society Quartette are good characteristic singers and clever dancers; Ford and Barras introduce a novel act, entitled The Boys in White and Gold; Bicknelle adds much to the evening's enjoyment with his comedy modelling act; Arthur Elvy and May Fayre are both very good; and the Bioscope pictures are up to date.

THE EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. George Dance; Manager, Mr. K. Draco.—The chief item in this week's programme is John Warren, an illusionist of "magic carpet fame," assisted by Miss Mollie Wynter, Mr. F. G. Penn, Frank Morton, and H. J. Collis. This week he presents an entirely new sketch, which teems with illusions, and is well received; an admirable turn is presented by Billy McClain and company, a coloured company in a sketch, Parson Johnson, in which some good dancing is witnessed; Kent and Keith make a welcome reappearance. Other artists who capably assist are the Three Sisters Grovini, acrobats; Harry Anderson, comedian; Little Keeno, boy comedian; and Gaumont's patent Chronomegaphone, the Bioscope pictures concluding.

CREWE.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. G. Dudley Bennett; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. Howard.—Messrs. H. B. Levy and J. E. Cardwell's company in A Merry Maid opened here to a crowded house on Monday. Miss May Gibson acted with grace and charm as Peggy O'Hooligan; Miss F. Adamson ably sustained the rôle of Angelina Vere de Vere; Miss Ray Watson was good as Flossie Nixie; Mr. Vivian Wakeman was very successful as Larry O'Hooligan; Mr. W. S. Hutchinson, an old favourite here, was responsible for most of the fun; Mr. Neil Hardy was suitably placed as the Hon. Cecil Toft; Mr. Howard Lawrence made a capital Thady Clancy; Mr. Harry Tracey as the Dutch servant, Von Swank, was amusing; Mr. C. W. James as Sharpe Scrivener was a typical lawyer; and Wee George Wood, another Crewe favourite, as Bertie Vere de Vere, gave a remarkably clever performance.

CROOK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Wallace Davidson. Ltd.; Resident-Manageress, Mrs. Wallace Davidson.—Mr. R. A. Roberts' company in Straight from the Shoulder is having an excellent reception here. Mr. Matthew Boulton in the dual rôle of Dr. Bedford and Harry Bletchley is exceptionally good; Millicent Grant is well portrayed by Miss Beatrice Burdett; Mr. Leonard Clarke makes a capital Major Lucas; Jim Green is in the capable hands of Mr. Fred Beck; Mr. Cuthbert Dennison is good as Donald MacGregor; and Mr. Bertram Carlton makes an excellent Sergeant Bright. Mr. George H. Child is an able Rev. John Armitage; Miss Edie Casson as Miss Brittle and her niece Gladys (Miss Beatrice Moore) are both above the average.

CROYDON. — GRAND THEATRE. — Manager, Mr. Roland Daniel; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Ernest Archer.—Mr. George Alexander's company is submitting admirable renderings of The Thief and Too Happy by Half here this week. In the first-named Mr. Rupert Lister touches the right note as Richard Chelford; Mr. Cyril Harcourt is quite up to the mark as Raymond Leyton; Mr. Owen Nares is capital in the rôle of Harry Leyton; Mr. Luke Forster is good as Mr. Protheroe; Mr. Bernard Stevens is suitable as a servant; Miss Marie Polini gives an accomplished performance in the character of Marise Chelford; and Miss Jean Cadell is appropriately suited as Isabel Leyton. In the one-act play Mr. Charles King is seen to advantage as Eric Verner; Mr. Owen Nares is satisfactory as Jack Fortescue; Miss Eileen Kerin makes a pleasing Mary Verner; and Mr. Bernard Stevens completes the cast as James.

HIPPODROME AND NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Samuel James and Newman Maurice.—Two very fine sketches, entitled The Guilty Man and Acting Mad, are submitted by Mr. John Hare, who is ably supported by Miss Irene Clifford. Powers and Bardle, comedians, give a smart turn; Lily Rae is an excellent serio and dancer; Will Farrell creates much merriment; Lily Stewart is a capable comedienne; Gordan and Bell, in musical-comedy duo, earn well-deserved applause; and Raymond's Bio-tableaux pictures conclude a good programme.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley.—Mr. George Dance's company is paying a return visit here this week with Miss Hook of Holland, and crowded houses are ruling. Mr. T. A. Shale is a striking figure as Mr. Hook, and is in every way a thoroughly good representative of the part; Mr. Tom Seymour as Simon Slinks proves himself a comedian of considerable versatility; the Mina of Miss Cissie Sephton is a mirth-provoking depiction, and she is also a vocalist of distinct ability; the name-part is very charmingly impersonated by Miss Alice Coverick, who sings the songs allotted to her in a sweet and tuneful manner; Bandmaster Von Vuyt, a pleasing figure in the play, is satisfactorily accounted for by Mr. Frank Crimp; and Mr. Geo. Mudie, jun., appears with great acceptation as Ludwig Schnappe, and has plenty of scope for his excellent voice in the two duets in which he takes part. The other characters are done full justice to by Mr. George Ide, Mr. James Davies, Mr. W. Ogle, Mr. G. Foley, and Mr. Len Neville, Misses Isabel Vivian, Mary Allen, Tattie Leonard, May Leslie, and Maud Leonard, and a large chorus, whose efforts were most effective. The orchestra, specially augmented for the occasion, did well under the conductorship of Mr. Albert Vernon.

PALACE. — Lessee and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes.—The attraction here this week is Mr. Harry Roxbury's company, in a sensational episode, entitled What Women Do; the Tennessee Guards perform a series of lightning drills, and scale walls, in a highly commendable manner; Sterling and Love, vocalists and instrumentalists, are responsible for a pleasing entertainment; Harry Luck, comedian, provokes much hearty laughter; Bros. Lawrence are agreeable vocalists and dancers; Sergt. Mumford gives a neat turn on the slack wire; and Nancy Renshaw, negro comedienne and bone soloist, is praiseworthy. The Bioscope, with interesting films, concludes the entertainment.

DEVONPORT.—THEATRE METROPOLE.—Manager, Mr. G. S. King.—The Russian drama The Nihilist is produced here by Messrs. O. Silverstone and H. Wright's powerful company. Mr. Walter Bentley appears as Ivan Mousky, the village blacksmith, and deservedly wins applause; the character of Princess Olga is undertaken in an admirable manner by Miss Florrie Kelsey, and Miss Edna Clare as Alexina Orloff and Mr. Leo R. Neilson as Prince Alexander win distinction. The comic interludes are introduced successfully by Mr. Henry Wright as Bobbie Smart, and the other parts are in capable hands.

DONCASTER. — NEW GRAND THEATRE AND EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—A variety combination holds the boards this week. Ferdie's Ma-in-Law, billed "the greatest of all comedy sketches," was well received. Mr. Laws as Ferdie was humorous; and Miss Ethel Lonsdale was au fait as the ma-in-law; and Mr. Arnold Richardson did well as pa-in-law. Munroe's Comedy Team convulsed the house; the Brothers Corcoran, in their musical speciality act, won admiration; Edna Latonne, male impersonator, renewed pleasant impressions in Doncaster; the Reays, silver-chain acrobats, are clever; and Dan Noble, comedian, the Sisters Hampel, cross-talk comediennes, and Walter Bishop, comedian, were greeted with rounds of applause.

DOUGLAS.—GRAND.—Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Hemming; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. R. Wood.—Peter's Mother is admirably portrayed by the clever members of Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company. The Lady Mary Crewys of Miss Lilias Earle was an artistic impersonation; as John Crewys Mr. Eille Norwood was thoroughly effective; the Peter of Mr. Vivian Gilbert was a clever portrayal; Miss Mary Griffiths as Lady Belstone, Miss Josephine Ray as Miss Crewys, and Miss Hilda Sims as Sarah all played in finished style. The Timothy Crewys of Mr. Townsend Whitling was well in evidence; Mr. Walter Beech as Canon Birch, and Mr. Joseph Jephson as Dr. Blundell enacted their characters successfully. The one-act farce Turtle Doves preceded.

GAIETY, LTD.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Fox, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Gray.—Brewster's Millions has caught on in Douglas. The Monty Brewster of Mr. Percy Hutchison is debonnaire and interesting; Mr. Cyril Rawdon is quite excellent as Charlie Harrison; Miss Cicely Stuckey makes a charming Peggy; and all the characters are excellently portrayed. The entire original production of Mr. Charles Frohman. The Yacht scene has caused much talk. Miss Violet Ley sings the ballad in the second act charmingly.

PALACE, LTD.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Fox, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Brittain.—Miss Lil Hawthorne, with her new and popular songs, has made a great success; Messrs. Hinton and Wootton cause excitement in a new and daring act, A Football Match on Cycles; A-Ba-Bee's picture postcard album, which presents up-to-date tableaux vivants, is much appreciated; the Cromwells are expert jugglers; Vernon's Bioscope still remains a prime favourite; Mr. Edward H. Lucas shows dramatic capacity and artistic intention in his scenes from Dickens.

MR. F. J. CONNOR closes up at the Hippodrome this week-end, and benefits have been in evidence. Monday was devoted to Mr. W. R. Albino, the popular ringmaster; Tuesday to Whimsical Walker, the Royal clown; Wednesday to Willie Rickards, an eccentric comedian; Thursday to Bishop and Winkles, comical mimes; Friday to the advertising staff; and to-night will be celebrated the benefit of the proprietor of the Douglas Hippodrome.

MR. CHARLES DARE will continue running the Empire with two shows nightly throughout the winter.

DOVER.—ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. T. C. Whitlock.—Much wonder and admiration is aroused by the marvellous feats of Carlton, card manipulator, who also presents a sensational illusion entitled The Mysterious Cross. The musical abilities of Taree, the Australian bushman, are excellently displayed during his interesting performance; Miss Phœbe Mercer and company, who appear in the farcical sketch Mistakes will Happen, have a most enthusiastic reception; and Fyne and Burley are entertaining in their Coster and Dude scena. Alf Davies, a quaint comedian; the Bright Trio, in refined vocal and instrumental specialities; and the Eugenies, graceful and daring gymnasts, with the Hippodrome pictures, conclude a strong bill.

DUBLIN.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mrs. Michael Gunn; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Hyland.—Mr. Reginald Dance and his excellent company are appearing here this week in the new romantic play, Beau Brocade, and drawing crowded houses. In the title-rôle Mr. Reginald Dance acts with judgment and excellent effect; and Miss Ruth Mackay distinguishes herself in the rôle of Lady Patience. The Duke of Cumberland has a capital exponent in Mr. R. Hayes; Mr. Frank Powell is seen to advantage as Sir Humphrey Challoner; the part of Betty is admirably enacted by Miss May Brooke; Mr. Dalziel Heron gives a clever performance as John Stitch; Mr. Frank Darch is well placed as the Earl of Stretton; Squire West is ably sustained by Mr. A. E. Mayne; and Mr. Mittachip is well played by Mr. Stanley Lathbury; and the parts of Jock Miggs, Jeremiah Inch, and Master Duffy are satisfactorily filled by Messrs. Edward Irwin, H. Asheton Tonge, and Albert Thomas respectively.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—A White Man, by Edwin Milton Royale, produced here for the first time on Monday, met with a cordial reception. As Captain James Wynnegate, V.C., Mr. Herbert Sleath achieves a decided success, and is ably supported by Miss Ellis Jeffreys as the Countess of Kerhill. The Earl of Kerhill has a capital representative in Mr. Harold Weston; and much credit is due to Miss Dorothy Dix for her excellent portrayal of Nat-u-ritch. Mr. Menifee Johnstone as Cash Hawkins is highly successful; and the rôle of Lady Mabel Wynnegate is ably undertaken by Miss Enid Sass. Mr. George Fawcett is particularly good as Big Bill; as the Dowager Lady Kerhill Miss Emma Gwynne makes a favourable impression; Mr. A. G. Poulton does well in the part of Sir John Applegate; Mr. Norman Yates does full justice to the part of Mr. Chiswick; and as Mrs. Hiram Doolitte and Little Hall the Misses Helen Castle and Victoria Harris are also good.

QUEEN'S THEATRE. — Lessee, Mr. W. S. Pearce; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Hereford Jones.—The pictures, which are attracting large audiences here this week, include The Kelly Gang, The Yellow Peril, The Washerwoman's Wedding, Thompson's Night Out, &c. Interesting turns are provided by Will Beanland, female impersonator; Harlin and Hanlon, comedians; and Bob Pearson, the popular humorist and guide.

EMPIRE. — General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—The big attraction here this week is Mlle. Sahara, in a series of classical dances, which merit to the full the hearty approval with which they are received. Beale and Broadway, in a comedy and dancing act, are clever and entertaining; and Miss Bessie Butt is an attractive soubrette and dancer. Howe and Ardie, in their gymnastic act, provide a turn of excellence; and Clarice Sefton's songs are much enjoyed. Some smart feats of jumping are performed by the McAleany's; and Miss Bella White sings several catchy numbers. Harry Herbert, comedian, scores successfully; Mackintosh and Royal provide a capital dancing turn; Tom Casey, vocalist and whistler, is well received; and Films, Ltd., depicting The Eucharistic Congress, concludes.

TIVOLI.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—Miss May Mooro Duprez is the star turn here this week, and the enthusiastic reception accorded her is in every way merited. Cosgrove and Burns, in their drawing-room scena, give another well-appreciated turn; the Brothers Artois are clever and amusing in their triple bar act; the Sisters Allen, duettists and dancers, are lively; Bernard and Weston are good patterers; a successful turn is given by Carl Rosine, magician; Miss Alma Gray speedily gains favour for her pleasing song scena; Frazer and French, in their clog dancing, are exceedingly smart; and the Bioscope is, as usual, entertaining.

PAVILION (KINGSTOWN).—Lessees, Messrs. Adeler and Sutton; Manager, Mr. Jack Macdermott.—A really good all-round show is delighting the patrons here this week. Mr. Tom Stuart, a clever mimic and character impersonator, scores a decided success; Miss Lilian Barnes possesses a rich contralto voice, and sings brilliantly; Maynard Dakin, the pierrot Mephisto, contributes an enjoyable turn; Elfie Vincent, comedienne and dancer, obtains a good reception; and other excellent turns are furnished by Mr. Jack Macdermott, comedian, and Mr. Forshaw Kershaw, solo pianist.

WORLD'S FAIR AND MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—A bright and varied programme her includes Foster and West, comedy duo; Sadie Yost, comedienne and double-voiced vocalist; Harry Monkhouse, comedian; Allan Morgan, London's dancing messenger; Bert Osborne, actor-vocalist and banjoist; and the cinematograph.

DUNFERMLINE.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts.—Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Mackey's company had a hearty welcome on the return visit on Monday, when the new Irish play, Rollicking Rory, was submitted. As Rory O'Donohoe Mr. Mackey gives a delightfully entertaining representation; Mr. Charles Homer is well placed as Desmond Fitzgerald; Mr. Fred W. Leonard makes a good impression as Stephen D'Arcy; Mr. St. John Stuart assumes Shaun Brady with credit; Mr. Richard Hutton makes an admirable General Ashleigh; Miss Nana Flensberg scores a success as Rosie O'Donohoe; Miss Adele Liddon gives a good account of herself as Widow Callagan; Mme. Constance Bellamy as Queen of the Fairies achieves a distinct success, her singing being of a high order; and Mrs. Chalmers Mackey as Rosaleen Ashleigh is very charming.

EASTBOURNE.—NEW PIER PAVILION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—During the early part of the week Mr. Fred Mouillot's company was appearing here in A Message from Mars. Mr. Wallace Widdicombe as Horace Parker worked very hard; Mr. Norman Clark as the Tramp gave a genuinely clever and effective performance; Mr. William H. Brougham was an impressive Messenger; Mr. Robert Grey a sincere Arthur Dicey; and Mr. Eric Ward as Dr. Chapman, Mr. Eustace French as Sir E. Vivian, and Mr. Eric Fowler as Mr. Fergusson did their duty ably in smaller parts, Mr. Walter Selby being an appropriate Policeman. Miss Rose Helene made a girlish and sympathetic Minnie Templer, Miss Flora Hastings a characteristic Miss Parker, and Miss Mary Glanbrane a handsome Mrs. Clarence. Mr. Charles Frohman's company supplied the entertainment on Thursday in The Hypocrites.

DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Murray King and Clarke.—Mr. and Mrs. Kendal are here for three evening performances, and are producing for the first time locally The Whirlpool. In the part of Miss Livingstone, Mrs. Kendal is admirably suited; Mrs. A. B. Tapping was a delightfully dignified Miss Gretchen; Miss Ethel Dare proved a brightly attractive and vivacious Miss Van Stuyler; and Miss Sara de Groot was a voluble Elise. Mr. Kendal quite captivated the house with his fine work as the good-hearted, generous Elijah D. Tillottson; Mr. Bassett Roe, in the difficult part of Bertram Livingstone, gave us the refined work of an accomplished actor; Mr. Wellesley Draper, too, was finely realistic in the rôle of Cutter; Mr. Edmund Gurney contributed one of the brilliant successes of the evening as Ephraim Johnstone; Mr. T. Holding was a very pleasing Killiegrew, Mr. Metcalfe Wood an excellent Chappin, and Mr. W. M. Rutherford a dignified Parker. The Beloved Vagabond, played by Mr. F. Mouillot's company, was billed for the last three nights.

THE ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sidney W. Winter; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Holloway.—The Rio Brothers head the bill here this week, and their gymnastic show is nicely staged and smartly worked; Bromley and Fontein, a lady and gentleman, appear in a successful and novel sketch, The Man Behind the Music Stand; Mr. James Stewart, the clever tramp musician, pays a welcome return visit; the San Remo Girls are smart acrobatic dancers; Mr. Jack Crawley is particularly successful in his imitations; the Kimberley Boys are capable duettists and comedians; and Miss Daisy Hicks and Miss Marie Goodwin are pleasing comediennes who complete the bill.

EDINBURGH.—ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—Mrs. Patrick Campbell and company began their tour with The Thunderbolt here last Monday evening under the most favourable auspices. The

Every Pretty Girl

SHOULD ENTER THE

ALL BRITAIN BEAUTY CONTEST

PROMOTED BY

PEARSON'S WEEKLY.

First Prize, £250. Total Prize Money, £350.

PEARSON'S WEEKLY, with its usual enterprise, has just inaugurated what is going to be ever held. The object is to discover the lady who, in the opinion of her fellow-countrymen, is entitled to the distinction of being the MOST BEAUTIFUL WOMAN IN THESE ISLES.

THE GREATEST BEAUTY CONTEST

In Beauty Competitions as a rule the judging is left in the hands of one or two individuals whose taste may differ from that of the majority and whose decisions therefore seldom, if ever, give satisfaction.

In the PEARSON'S WEEKLY Competition this difficulty will be avoided entirely by leaving

THE JUDGING IN THE HANDS OF THE READERS.

Voting coupons are published each week in PEARSON'S WEEKLY, and at the close of the Competition the lady who has secured the largest number of votes will be awarded the

FIRST PRIZE OF TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY POUNDS.

To facilitate the adjudication the British Isles are being divided into ten sections. The lady in each division who is credited with the largest number of votes will be awarded a special prize of so that the total sum awarded will be

THREE HUNDRED AND FIFTY POUNDS.

Full details of the scheme and voting coupons appear in this week's

PEARSON'S WEEKLY.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—The presentation of the new version of The Christian by Mr. Wentworth Croke's company is notable for the general excellence of the performers in the matter of character acting. Very admirable studies of the many varied types included in the cast of the play are contributed by their respective representatives, from the Horatio Drake and Lord Robert Ure of Mr. Oswald Marshall and Mr. Geo. R. Montford or the Father Lamplugh and Archdeacon Wealthy of Mr. Edwin Ling and Mr. C. P. Turpin to the Mrs. Callender and Polly Love of Miss Sinna St. Clair and Miss Margaret Brodie and the Black Meg and Liza of Miss May Dudley and Miss Alice Leigh, and even down to those very shady persons, the Bert and Mother Kent of Mr. W. S. Carter and Miss Mina Renouf. Lord Storm, Parson Quayle, and Lady Robert Ure are effectively portrayed by Mr. F. R. Holloway, Mr. Arthur E. Mascall, and Miss Katherine Maude; and all the minor parts are carefully filled. In his former rôle of John Storm Mr. Henry Renouf once more does sterling work, which is duly recognised at the close of each act; and associated with him in the success of the production is the promising actress Miss Doris Gilham, whose rendering of the difficult part of Glory Quayle shows her ability for strong emotional and convincing work.

KING'S THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Amand Mascard.—The place of honour on the programme here is held by Mr. George D'Albert, a comedian with a bright, taking style, who is at home both in serious and humorous work; Mr. Fred Sinclair and Miss Gracie Whiteford prove vastly entertaining in their sketch, Getting Even; while Drum and Major, and Sandy and Carl evoke peals of laughter by their funny business and clever patter; Bert Welda and Dorothy Wynne provide a smart juggling and tumbling act, and Marlo's sleight-of-hand tricks are admirably done; Miss Radie Furman, "the jolly Dutch Girl," sings and dances herself into the favour of the audience; Cynthia, an intelligent youthful vocalist, sings with ability, and the Bioscope shows a capital series of up-to-date films.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Aynsley Cook.—The double turn provided by Bella and Bijou at the head of this week's bill has been received with infinite relish by well-filled houses. In their latest success, The Suffragette, these popular entertainers are at their best, and the sketch creates considerable diversion. The New York Nippers appear in a dancing act which is carried through with much vigour; the Simms, Rosa and Kitty, are a lively pair of young artists, whose From School to Stage scena is greatly enjoyed; George Newburn gives smart imitations of sundry music-hall celebrities; Nellie Martell shows vivacity as a comedienne; and J. W. Rowley submits a pleasant turn as a sound comedian of the old type; great force and energy mark the efforts of Harry Rogers, Miss Newcomb, and John Roberts in the melodramatic episode Told in a Flat; and the Narrow Brothers display some broad effects in their acrobatic trick cycling; under the title "Makers of History" an interesting representation of living statuary is exhibited, the series including figures of distinguished statesmen, warriors, poets, actors, and philanthropists; and the American Bioscope shows a fine set of films depicting the processes involved in the production of The Scotsman newspaper.

EXETER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford. — You Never Can Tell, Bernard Shaw's farcical comedy, is being staged here. Miss Catherine Stewart as Miss Clandon, in a difficult part, is excellent; the same may be said of Mr. J. Edward Pearce as Fergus Crampton; Miss Gwladys Morris as Gloria Clandon is quite charming; Mr. Leslie Hamer makes a clever Valentine; and Miss Clara Earle as Dolly Clandon and Mr. Donald Calthrop as Philip Clandon are smart. Mr. Trevor Lowe's study of the waiter is worth seeing; Mr. Charles Daly is at home as Finch McComas; and Mr. George Howard is a masterful Bohun, K.C.

FALKIRK.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE, —Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace W. Ebbutt.—Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company is this week presenting the late F. A. Scudamore's play, Is Life Worth Living? As the hero of a spirited play, Lionel Roy, Mr. Ernest Owtrim has a part which suits him well, and he gives an earnest and well-conceived impersonation of the character; Mr. Herbert Hollister, who takes the part of the hated Randolph Kerr, is well up to the business, and plays with appropriate dash and daring; Miss Jeannie Burgoyne has a really difficult rôle to fill in that of Isabel Corsbie, and gives a powerful interpretation of the pitiable plight af a fallen woman. Miss Lilian Earle as Madge Roxton, the heroine, acts with brightness and naturalness. The other parts are all well filled, notably those by Mr. Harry Bristow and Miss Lottie Moss.

FLEETWOOD.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry J. Snelson.—An Abandoned Woman is paying a welcome return visit this week. Miss Marion West, in the title-rôle, gives a rendering of the part full of dramatic fire; Mr. Herbert M. King as Capt. Seaton is robust and manly, and quickly gains favour; Mr. Teddy Myles is a typical Paddy Boyle, and has the audience in continual laughter; Mr. F. Healey as Sir Marmaduke Seaton and Miss Nellie Thorne-Hallam as Eleanor Deane prove decidedly clever; Miss Queenie Fraser-Brunner adds largely to the comedy element as Sally Sloper. The piece is exceptionally well staged.

CO-OPERATIVE HALL.—Manager, Mr. Thos. Robinson.—The Loyal British Empire Animated Picture Co. are now in their eighteenth week, and are drawing larger houses than ever. A Pirate's Honour is a dramatic picture of thrilling interest, while 2,000 Miles Without a Dollar is well received. Several other dramatic and humorous films go to complete an excellent evening's entertainment. Mr. Reg. Jeeks contributes several songs in his usual finished manner.

FOLKESTONE.—PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—For the first three nights of the week Miss Lena Ashwell's principal company appeared in the romantic comedy, Diana of Dobson's, which was thoroughly appreciated by a large audience. Miss Emelie Polini is a gifted actress, and was seen to great advantage in the title-rôle; Captain the Hon. Victor Bretherton was played in a natural manner by Mr. E. C. Villiers, who possesses quite the voice and appearance of an officer of the Guards; Mr. W. Kingsford Pearce submitted a careful study of the prosperous, self-made Sir Jabez Grindlay; special mention should be made of Miss Gwynneth Galton for the clever way in which she depicted the matchmaking Mrs. Cantelupe; Miss Daisy England was a complete success as the martinet forewoman at Dobson's; and Miss Clarissa Selwynne looked and acted the part of the aristocratic Mrs. White Fraser. A word of praise must be given to Misses Violet Gould, Eva Lonsdale, Dorothy Garth, and Olga Esme, who, as shop girls at Dobson's, assist in the cause of merriment. The play was preceded nightly by the powerful little drama, The Bishop's Candlesticks, in which the characters were ably sustained by Misses Daisy England and Olga Esme, and Messrs. W. Kingsford Pearce, Frank Woolfe, and Stewart Dawson.

LEAS PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. D'Arcy Clayton.—At this fashionable and popular entertainment place the Gipsies and their Jester are received with the utmost enthusiasm by crowded houses, and the admirable programmes they are giving fully merit the remarkable success they are achieving.

GAINSBOROUGH.—KING'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Stear.—Miss Lydia Donovan's company appeared here on Monday in Niobe. Miss Donovan gave a pleasing representation of Niobe, and she was supported by Mr. Quinton Fulford as Peter Amos Dunn. Mr. Frank Lennard, Mr. Alfred G. Raymond, Mr. J. Croudace, Miss Ray Fairfax, Miss Louie Walton, &c. My Soldier Boy was produced on Tuesday, and each evening Nan concluded the performance.

GLASGOW.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys.—A crowded audience welcomed Miss Lena Ashwell on Monday evening in Irene Wycherley, which proved of enthralling interest. Miss Ashwell's performance as the sorely-tried Irene is a particularly strong one throughout, and recalls were frequent. Mr. Norman McKinnell gave a striking performance as Philip Wycherley; Mr. C. M. Hallard was excellent as Harry Chesterton; an exceedingly clever character sketch was the Sir Peter Wycherley of Mr. Dennis Eadie, and Miss Frances Ivor impersonated his dignified Lady with grim humour. Miss Doris Lytton was a bright and lively Muriel; Mr. T. A. Shannon made a strong part of Charles Summers; and various society ladies were well acted by Misses Gertrude Scott, Margaret Murray, Nannie Bennett, and Mary Barton. The clever little play The Likes o' Me was given in front, with Miss Beryl Mercer and Master Philip Tonge in the principal parts.

KING'S, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane. —This house is favoured with a second visit of Mr. George Edwardes's company in that highly entertaining production, The Girls of Gottenberg. The outstanding feature of the present visit is the appearance of Mr. Edmund Payne, whose drollery as Max Moddelkopf is keenly relished. A large share of the honours also fall to Happy Fanny Fields, whose versatile talent and merry laugh as Mitzi add much to the general gaiety of the piece. Mr. Leslie Holland is the Prince Otto, and looks and acts the part capitally; and as the Captain of Dragoons the bearing of Mr. Fred Allandale is all that could be wished. Brittlbotti is portrayed with genuine humour by Mr. Fred Payne; Mr. Jocelyn Hope makes an admirable General; the Colonel of Hussars is well delineated by Mr. Arnold Lucy, and the other officers by Messrs. Ernest Arundel, Arthur Whitehead, Lawrence Robbins, and Ellis Holland. Distinctive character is given the rôles of Burgomaster, Innkeeper, and Town Clerk by Messrs. Douglas Munro, A. Chentrens, and Louis Denver respectively. Miss Maisie Gay fills the part of Clementine, and sings her numbers in good style. Elsa is attractively represented by Miss Thelma Raye; and a sprightly Lucille is found in Miss Florence Phillips.

ROYALTY, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Carpenter.—Enthusiastic followers of Mr. J. W. Turner have not been slow this week to offer him their warmest support. Maritana occupied the stage on Monday, and was enthusiastically received. In the title-rôle Miss Christine Gomez was seen and heard to excellent advantage. Her voice is charming, while her acting is carefully studied and delightful. Mr. Turner appeared with his accustomed success as Don Cæsar de Bazan, his rendering of "Let me like a soldier fall" evoking the heartiest applause. As Lazarillo Miss Jessie Dennis appealed powerfully to her hearers. Her voice is capital, and her delivery of "Alas, those chimes" was quite a feature of the opera. Mr. Tom Griffiths was an admirable Don Jose, his songs being rendered in a delightful manner; as Charles II. Mr. S. Clifford lacked nothing vocally; as the Marquis de Montifiore and Marchioness Mr. R. Cummings and Miss Maud Esdale proved highly amusing. The chorus is nicely balanced, and sings well under the able leadership of Mr. Lawton. Il Trovatore and The Bohemian Girl are also included in the week's bill.

PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—Mr. Walter Melville's stirring drama, The Girl Who Wrecked His Home, has appealed strongly to the public taste. The part of Jack Marshall is entrusted to Mr. Fred Goddard, who brings his experience to bear on the impersonation. Miss Louise Hampton draws a strong and pathetic picture of Bertha Marshall. The villainies of Leonard Kenyon are convincingly depicted by Mr. Paul Barry Lewers; the character of the scheming adventuress Val Raymond is well brought out by Miss Georgie de Lara. Mr. W. L. Clement plays Josh Crockett in powerful fashion; Mr. Norman B. Cannon presents William Stevenson in fine style, and Winifred Marshall finds a good exponent in Miss Lulu Bowes. Most of the humorous element is supplied by Mr. Francis Hope, who causes a good deal of mirth as Tommy Biffon, being laudably aided by Miss Alys Eden as Lottie Primrose.

METROPOLE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Gordon Jefferson.—Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company is here presenting The Village Blacksmith, with Mr. Sam Livesey in the title-part, of which he gives a powerful representation. Miss Maggie Edwards is excellent as the blacksmith's wife; and Miss Lily Leicester gives a pleasing portrayal of their boy Harry. Mr. Albert Sinclair as Captain Leo makes an effective villain, while his sometime accomplice finds a good interpreter in Mr. Edwin Maydew as Lucas Marler. Mr. Thomas E. Marshall as an itinerant tinker, and Mrs. T. C. Livesey as his wife are amusing presentations. Mr. Fred Harning as Billy Twigg supplies plenty of fun, assisted by Miss Edith Giddens as Martha Mopps. Ruth Parkins, one of the villain's victims, is pathetically played by Miss Cassie le Grande. The last act is located on the stage of a music-hall, on which some good turns are given.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—A return visit here of Miss Bonwin Carlton's company in two plays is attracting good houses. On Monday The Plucky Nipper was given, and as Polly Hithard Miss Carlton makes a most entertaining nipper, and carried the sympathies of the audience with her. Mr. Edward Surrey as Bill Burgess gives a good study of low life; Mr. W. Lowther acts well as the old Colonel; Mr. A. P. Lee made a dashing Captain Leslie; Miss Esther Lamart gives a good rendering of the part of Ida Fenwick, and the blind girl, Daisy, is played with quiet pathos by Miss Kitty Maynard. Mr. T. Hadlin as Henry Paget, Mr. Frank Dalem as the Detective, and Mr. J. P. Dryden as Richard Vanborough lend able support. On three evenings The Old, Old Story was given.

EMPIRE, LTD.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Manners.—Clark and Hamilton are starring here, and in song, dance, and comedy business again prove their strong hold on the Glasgow public. G. H. Elliott shares the top of the bill, and the chocolate-coloured songster is a prime favourite; Daley Cooper and Mabel Lait present a lively tea-room sketch, Tigers, Ltd., which is very amusing. The Ten-ji Troupe of Japanese conjurers show new and wonderful tricks; Ralph and Nellie Howard give a smart musical turn; Mary Dundas and Mavis Clare are clever vocalists; Prof. Dubois' educated baboon is a marvel, and the Bioscope shows the latest films.

ZOO-HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Councillor E. H. Bostock; Assistant-Manager, Mr. E. H. A. Bostock. —The principal item in this week's bill is the lively sketch The House of Tinn, in which Mr. J. Gar Kiddie is intensely funny as Jinks, the waiter. Mr. J. W. Groves as Arabella, Mr. Douglas B. Watson as Augustus, and Miss Lizzie Payne as Molly give excellent support. Charles Russell, assisted by several veterans, gives a striking military scena entitled 1854, which goes well; Ernest Montefiore's company, in the pathetic sketch The Little Colonel, is another good turn. Wilson Hallett's imitations of children are very clever; the Three Phydoras give a smart speciality item; and clever turns are also contributed by Charles Rose, Les Rallis, Little Baby Sophie, and the Three Gartis.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Evan Good.—Harry Tate, in Motoring, is responsible for roars of laughter all the time he is on. Radford and Valentine, in a comedy and juggling act, are most entertaining. The Motramos (Tom and Marie) gain hearty applause for their eccentric musical act; Lily Burnand sings several songs in her own dashing style, and takes well; Macdonald and Huntington are a smart couple of duettists; Simms and Simms shine as musical comedians; Baby Betty Green is always a favourite here; Kelly and Agnes get a hearty reception for their eccentric comedy act; Beatty and Blanche are attractive duettists and dancers; and Brothers Ashley, in their boxing sketch, complete a lengthy programme.

PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Rich. Waldon; General-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—Harry Grattan and company are responsible for the top item, Man, the Brute, which creates great merriment; J. A. Wilson, the "black oracle," with the assistance of his well-trained dog, wins success. Other notable turns include those of Maud Prenton, comedienne, Howard and Collinson, speciality artists; Sam Vincent, acrobatic expert; Rosie Reval, comedy artist; the Lannons, expert dancers; J. W. Gallagher, comedian; and Karoly Czynski, a clever instrumentalist.

COLISEUM.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—The principal item of this week's bill is supplied by Fred Ginnett and Co. in the romantic equestrian spectacle Dick Turpin's Ride to York, which was thoroughly enjoyed; the ever-popular Black Justice, by Ben Brown and George Le Clerq, creates considerable amusement. The other artists include Edward Lauri and May Beatty and company, in a musical mélange; George Ridgwell, vocalist and cornet soloist; the Avrignys, Japanese jugglers; Lady Mansel's Juveniles, comedy specialists; Rossi Ashton in his speciality, "song sketching"; Walter Curtis, comedian; Walter Ray, vocalist; and the Bioscope, with a series of novel pictures.

GAIETY, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Harry Bowerman.—Good houses have been the rule here this week. A singing contest never fails to draw at this house, and entries were numerous. The regular company includes Miss Maude Clifton, a tasteful vocalist; Dusty Rhodes, in his inimitable patter and vocalism; the Scotch humorist, Bob Alexander; the Gondolier Glee Singerse, in some fine quartettes; and Hurmann, in a juggling performance and clever show of hoop-manipulation; and the Bioscope contributes agreeably to the entertainment.

PANOPTICON.—Proprietor, Mr. A. E. Pickard.—Harvey and Holt do well with a military song, and the Brothers Bellis are mirth-provoking eccentrics; Lily Arden is happy in song and dance; Phil Lee contributes capital songs; and the Bioscope, with a series of interesting pictures, A Rustic Heroine, The Robber's Daughter, Troubles of a Cine-Taker, and The Unemployed Demonstration in Glasgow, makes up a capital entertainment.

GLOUCESTER.—Palace.—Proprietors, Messrs. Poole's Theatres, Ltd.; Director, Mr. C. W. Poole.—This week we have the modern Hercules, John Mark, topping a good bill. May Lilian Levey speedily finds favour with her original songs; a welcome return visit is made by Carl Lynn, a very fine animal mimic, who is enthusiastically recalled; Kloof and Ramsey present a novel and interesting musical act; Ben Harris's Nippers do well in The Visitors and the Page; a turn that meets with approbation is given by the Forsyths, musical eccentrics; Dan Thomas is especially good in "dame" songs; and a juggling equilibristic performance by the Seymons meets with a good reception.

GOOLE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Fred Greaves.—Miss Loie Esmond's company, under the direction of Mr. Edward Neville, presented on Monday The Sorrows of Satan. Mr. Edward Neville scored a distinct success as Prince Lucio; Geoffrey Tempest had an admirable exponent in Mr. F. Douglas Howard; the part of the Earl of Elton was well sustained by Mr. J. Le Fleming; Mr. Edwin Ramsdale is a very amusing Morris; Mr. F. Holland Day ably presented Amiel; Miss Rosie Neville proved herself to be an accomplished actress as Lady Sybil; Miss Loie Esmond played with charming effect the rôle of Diana Chesney; Miss Hilary Burleigh made a sympathetic Mavis Clare; and Miss Cecil Byrne was a clever Mrs. Grimes. Nana was announced for the latter part of the week.

GRAVESEND.—Grand Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. T. W. Wright.—Mr. E., the man of mysteries, causes endless fun here; Will Burton, comedian and dancer, is a capital turn; the Evales, in their jocular juggling, are voted admirable; Blanche Vincent, burlesque artist, is smart and taking; MacAdam, in a mining scena, is good; and Johnny Holland and company, in The Boatbuilder, contribute largely to the amusement. The Brothers O'Gorman also appear.

GREAT YARMOUTH. — Royal Aquarium —Sole Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—A first-rate company is appearing here in The Girls of Gottenberg. Mr. Bertie Wright is irresistibly funny as Captain Max; Miss May Marshall is excellent as Clementine; Miss Susie Raymond executes an exceptionally clever solo dance; Miss Elaine Thorne is a charming Mitzi; and Mr. Tom Shelford a big favourite as Prince Otto.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company is presenting The Belle of Mayfair for the Race Week. Mr. Sidney Bart makes a fine Sir John Caldicott; Mr. Harley Ravenscroft appears to advantage as Raymond Finchley; Mr. Stephen Hall is a good Earl of Mount Highgate; Miss Nellie Barnwell a capital Julia; Miss Doris Lyons a lively Pincott; and Miss Denny Fitzherbert appears to advantage as Lady Caldicott. The orchestra was conducted by Mr. W. Brightwell.

Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. George Gilbert.—An excellent attraction has been secured for the Race Week in the Colibri Midgets, in their unique and clever entertainment; the Scotch Belles present a smart musical act; Addison introduces cleverly-trained dogs; the Dorians are clever gymnasts; and Alexander Prince repeats his success of last week. Chuting the Chute is still very popular.

Britannia Pier Pavilion.—Managing Director, Mr. J. W. Nightingale; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edward Gray.—The Yo-San Imperial Troupe are giving a fine exhibition of Eastern tricks; Mr. A. G. Spry is a big favourite; Miss Dorothy Sefton scores as the "White Girl"; Mlle. Lucretia is an excellent dancer; Margaret Ogilvie a pleasing comedienne; and Ray and Calden appear in a clever comedy act. Excellent pictures are shown on the Bioscope.

Wellington Pier Pavilion.—Proprietors, the Great Yarmouth Corporation; Manager, Mr. Arthur Cash.—A capital programme is presented here. Mr. Arthur Rigby and company have scored a big success in The Isle of Ooma; Lieut. Albini is mystifying everyone with his clever entertainment; Letty Lingard is a clever dancer; Will Crackles a big favourite; and Frank Boyce a smart comedian.

GREENOCK. — Alexandra Theatre, Ltd. — Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—Vasco, "the mad musician," is the star attraction here, and his clever turn is a big success. The delightful condensed operas The Daughter of the Regiment and The Last Rose, presented by Mr. Ernest Charles Gittins, are very welcome in that they feature Mlle. Adele Prescott, whose very charming work in the principal rôles is enthusiastically received. Alexandra and Bertie, in their refined aerial act, are very clever; Chummie La Mara, comedienne, Will Sergeant, vocal comedian, Frances Drew, burlesque actress, and George Beeves, comedian, also appear with success. The Alexandroscope pictures are good.

Empire.—Lessees, the Greenock Empire Syndicate; Responsible-Manager, Mr. Edward McCormick; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. J. Colquhoun.—Probyn's Brooklyn Comedy Four head the bill here this week, evoking the merriest laughter with their comedy; the musical entertainment provided by the Four Jumels is artistic; an acceptable number is presented by W. H. Downs, a coloured vocalist; and good turns are also given by Keith and Merson, comedy sketch artists; Willie and Johnnie, head and hand balancers; and Tom and Neil Thompson, in their club-swinging, boxing, and wrestling act. The Prince Edward pictures are also an attraction.

Hippodrome.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry L. Skivington.—The Five Sisters Warwick give a wonderfully smart, neat, and daring display of cycling feats; the Four Watsons present a charming and distinctly novel musical speciality; Luis Hardt is greeted with applause in a classical and athletic sketch, Flights of Imagination; those adept jugglers the Wallys are as entertaining as ever; and others who do well are Oakley and James, comedy artists; J. H. McCann, comedian and acrobatic skate dancer; and Miss Mary Glen, vocalist. The Dromscope shows an amusing series of pictures.

GRIMSBY.—Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—The Prince of Pilsen is proving as attractive as on its former visit. Mr. Harry Kilburn again appears as the eccentric brewer Hans Wagner, and gives a very droll impersonation of the character; Miss Sophie Harriss fills the part of Mrs. Maddison Crocker with success; Mr. Leslie Owen acts and sings well as the Prince; the same may be said of Mr. Arthur Geary as Tom Wagner; Miss Nellie Lomas charmingly represents Nellie Wagner, and her singing is admired; Miss Mabel Dent is pleasingly vivacious as Sidonie, and dances prettily; Mr. Charles Rogers is amusing as the Earl of Shrimpton; whilst Miss Dora Christian as Edith Adams and Mr. Ernest Gifford as François are also responsible for good work.

The Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. G. Rhodes Parry.—The Elliott-Savonas are repeating their former successes here. Their grand musical speciality, including the performance of Rossini's overture to William Tell, is greeted with the utmost enthusiasm. A dramatic episode, The Red Letter, is presented by Mr. H. Bell, Miss Lilly Pearl, Mr. G. Harrison, and others, and proves highly interesting; W. T. Thompson and company appear in an amusing comedy act Watch the Chalk, which introduces many laughable incidents; Captain Kettle is a clever illusionist; Ouida Macdermott is a pleasing vocal actress; and Lilian Lowe is also a success as a vocalist.

GUERNSEY. — Theatre St. Julians.—Lessee, Mr. Ed. Marris; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley Hope.—Vaudeville entertainments here are highly popular. Hilda Mascot, expert dancer; Jack Foley, comic singer; and Louie Hurman, chorus vocalist, are all successful in their respective numbers. H. D. Watson is a clever one-armed instrumentalist; Will Farrell is rightly termed a smart comedian; a special attraction is the introduction of Miss Carlotta de Yonson and company (including Mr. C. Douglass Carlile), with two stirring dramettes, entitled Crime and the Criminal and Sexton Blake.

HALIFAX.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Benson and their Shakespearean company opened here on Monday with The Merchant of Venice. The company all round is exceptionally strong in elocution. Mr. H. O. Nicholson was well placed as the Duke of Venice; Mr. Edward A. Warburton was manly and effective as the Prince of Morocco; Mr. Murray Carrington gave a scholarly interpretation of Antonio; Mr. Baliol Holloway was an ideal Bassanio; Mr. T. G. Worlock won universal approval as Lorenzo; Mr. F. R. Benson's Shylock was a clever performance, revealing much scholarly intuition; Tubal, Gratiano, Salanio, and Salarino were well played by Mr. J. P. Wilson, Mr. G. H. Clark, Mr. J. M. Johnston, and Mr. G. B. Rathbone; Mr. George R. Weir's Gobbo was genuine Shakespearean comedy; Mrs. Benson's Portia was praiseworthy in every way; Miss Helen Haye was an excellent Nerissa; and Miss Coris Hamilton's Jessica was a meritorious performance. Twelfth Night, Taming of the Shrew, Macbeth, School for Scandal, Hamlet, and King Henry V. are also in the week's bill, Mr. and Mrs. Benson taking part in every performance.

Grand Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—A good series of pictures is being shown at this house, notably A Trip Through Savoy, The Hypnotic Policeman, and Call Me at Seven o'clock. Miss Maud Melton, soprano, meets with a good reception; and Marie Terry and J. S. Bentley introduce some smart patter. The lady is a clever dancer, and Mr. Bentley is a good all-round acrobat.

Palace and Hippodrome, Ltd.—Managing-Director Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Reg. H Foster.—Rose Cabani is a successful comedienne, and meets with approval; Larola is a clever and quaint artist; Leo and Roland give a smart exhibition of hand balancing; Bertha Winder is a graceful and skilful step-dancer; Jack Pleasants creates roars of laughter; Alfonzo, tranka performer, gives a unique and entertaining turn; the Sisters Brenton are clever skipping-rope dancers; Harry Milton is good as a Dutch comedian and dancer; and Elmo and Rego provide a capital turn as comedy acrobats.

HAMILTON, N.B.—Hippodrome.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. René Clayton.—Mr. John Tiller's company is appearing here this week in the musical farce Down the Water. Mr. Bob Selvidge takes the part of George Jesmond Dene, and proves himself a comedian of marked ability; Inspector Smart, a detective, is played by Mr. Teddy Gibbs; and his assistant, Wm. Glum, by Mr. Barney Dixon. Both are very funny, and are responsible for much laughter. A feature of the performance is the smart work done by the chorus, and the dancing items are cleverly performed.

HANLEY.—Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—This week a right royal welcome is being accorded to Miss Ellen Terry, who is here in Captain Brassbound's Conversion. A finer interpretation than Lady Cicely has never been seen in the Potteries. Mr. James Carew is perfectly at his ease as the Captain; Mr. George Fitzgerald plays Sir Howard creditably; Mr. Story-Gofton as the missionary is responsible for a fine character part; Mr. Max Montesole as Felix Drinkwater is good; and Mr. Frank Powell looks and plays the part of Captain Hamlin capitally. The play is followed by Variations, a clever interlude, played by Miss Ellen Terry and Mr. James Carew.

Grand, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. G. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Arthur Rand.—Kelly and Gillette, comedy acrobats, cause much laughter by their funny and clever act; the Gothams, comedians and vocalists, are a great success; Bessie Ford has a charming voice, which she uses with great skill; the Brothers Martin are loudly recalled for their musical efforts; Tom Woottwell, comedian, returns, and again makes a hit; Ray Maskell is a charming singer and dancer; the Robertys, equilibrists, win favour with their clever performance; Harry Russon, an actor-comedian, is highly commendable; and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux are also attractive.

King's.—Lessees, Messrs. Moore and Kennedy; Acting-Manager and Operator, Capt. F. Shaw.—Another fine series of pictures are shown here this week.

HARROGATE.—Grand Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Eric Fielding Smith.—For the first three nights of this week the Hutchison company appeared in Mrs. Ponderbury's Past. Mr. George Mudie was very funny and quaint as Mr. Ponderbury; Miss Florence Wix was well placed as Mme. Polacca Modjeski; Miss Annie Stalman was an excellent Mrs. Ponderbury; Mr. Drew Macintosh a good Mervyn Thorpe; and Miss Florence Wellesley was pretty and pleasing as Ethel Peniston. Mr. Mouillot and company appeared in Tom Jones on Thursday.

The Kursaal.—General-Manager and Musical Director, Mr. Julian Clifford; Assistant-Manager and Secretary, Mr. R. Eldrid.—The Munograph, with new films, heads the bill here this week, and Mr. A. W. Peterkin is the vocalist. For the latter half of the week Mme. Alice Esty is announced to appear. The Zee Party of Dutch Serenaders appear in the Spa Café.

HARTLEPOOL.—Empress.—Proprietors, Messrs. Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charlie Ferrier.—Pictures continue to provide the evening's entertainment here. The films shown this week are exceptionally clear and interesting, The Dumb Man of Manchester particularly so. The funniest picture that could be imagined is that of The Plumber and the Lunatic. A number of other pictures are shown, and an illustrated song is capitally rendered by Mr. C. Ferrier.

HASTINGS.—Gaiety Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—The boards were occupied on Monday by Hardie and Von Leer's company with Two Lancashire Lasses in London. The rôle of John Edmunds, an inventor, was effectively presented by Mr. Herbert Pearson; Bessie was an amusing assumption of character by Miss Marguerite Trevosper; and Miss Marie Corri played pleasingly the rôle of their child Lucy. Constance and Nellie had excellent representatives in Miss Rosslyn Vane and Miss Alice Defoe, whose emotional acting aroused sympathy. Mr. Fred Morgan as the swindling Jonas Deane and Mr. Jack Miller as the loafing ruffian, Jim Price, were characteristic; Mr. Chris. Mason as Samuel Hallett was a refreshing character contrast; and plenty of humour was provided by Miss Evelyn Shaw as Jane Adelaide. Mr. E. Rayson Cousens was a success as the Rev. Frank Selby. Miss Lena Ashwell's company was billed for Thursday in the comedy, Diana of Dobson's.

Hastings Hippodrome.—General-Manager, Mr. Vivian Fisher; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Walter Norman.—An excellent programme is opened by an attractive comedienne, Miss Winnie Wentworth. The Three Westbrooks engage in a pretty dancing scena; the eccentric comedian Keane Harker imports some genuine humour into his songs; Eileen Desmond in "merry moments at the piano" is accorded a hearty reception; and a clever little company introduces a comedy episode, entitled Hester's Mystery, by A. W. Pinero. The artists include Messrs. Horace Pollock, Lionel Thompson, Edmund Pollock, Miss Pattie Groves, and Miss N. Nibloe. Alf Aubyn is a long-approved favourite here; and Virto, a clever musician, is assisted by his daughter Venita in a pleasing drawing-room act.

Hastings Pier Pavilion.—General-Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—In a variety entertainment some pretty and graceful dances are given by the Misses Lettie and Florence; Espinosa and Edwards engage in a clever musical act; Miss Margaret Lewys, a Welsh soprano, sings pleasing songs; the amusing drawing-room sketches by Miss Ada Ward are much applauded; and Payne's Bio-photoscope depicts some interesting pictures. On Monday Harry Lauder at a flying matinée gave selections from his Scotch répertoire of songs. He was listened to by a very crowded audience.

Beach Concert Pavilion.—Manager, Mr. George Blackmore.—Good-humoured audiences are secured here by the vivacious character-songs rendered by Miss Marie Schultz and Messrs. Frank Wood and George Blackmore, and the well-sung ballads of Miss Edith Blanchard and Mr. H. V. Crofton, Miss Elsie English proving an excellent accompanist.

Public Hall.—The People's Picture Palace Company, managed by Mr. F. R. Griffiths, continues its attractive exhibition of animated pictures, which secure good audiences. Variety is introduced by Miss Beverley and Dean and Dover.

HORWICH.—New Princes'.—Lessees, The Horwich Theatre Co.; Manager, Mr. R. H. White.—Miss Emma Litchfield's company, in A London Actress, provides the attraction this week under the direction of Mr. Stuart Cleveland. Miss Litchfield's impersonation of Hilda Mannering, the unscrupulous adventuress, is most artistic; Miss Mabel Durham gives a sympathetic rendering of Phyllis; Biddy Maloney has a capital exponent in Miss Helene Thomson; and Miss Nancy Blackwood as Mrs. Skinner is amusing. Miss Alice Granville plays Rosie Blythe in good style. Mr. Stuart Cleveland's Sergeant-major Clive Crawford is a typical study; Mr. Alfred Stretton plays Lieutenant Kingston, R.N., with vigour; Moses Mendoza has a fine exponent in Mr. Geo. Wallace; and Mr. Willie Reid fairly revels in the part of Pat Maloney.

HULL.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Manager, Mr. Tom Bogue. — Mr. Ian MacLaren pays a very pleasant return visit, and the impression formed of his work on the last occasion is strengthened by the fine talent now displayed. On Monday night he struck a fine note in his reading of Shylock, and this, added to the recollection of his striking performance of Hamlet on the last visit, stamps him at once as one of the great Shakespeareans. He has adequate support from his company, and Miss Violet Sterne, whom we remember in other productions, retains the hold she has on the Hull audiences. Mr. F. Stafford Dawson was a fine Prince of Morocco; and Mr. T. V. Bryant was a good Graham. Henry of Lancaster and The School for Scandal have also been included in the programme.

Alexandra Theatre.—Morton's, Ltd; Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—The Coal King, presented by Clifton Alderson's company, has caught on here. Miss Winifred Love carries the house with her; she has the histrionic gift to a large degree. Mr. Clifton Alderson has a part that fits him well, and his acting is much appreciated; Mr. Sam Roberts introduces the comic relief effectively, his humour appearing so spontaneous.

Grand Theatre.—Morton's, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. W. F. Morton.—Florodora still flourishes as a paying production, and again on Monday the patrons assembled in strong force to listen to Leslie Smart's pretty melodies, and welcome Mr. Fred Eastman as Tweedlepunch. Miss Maisie Ellinger is all that Dolores should be, and carries the house with the excellence of her vocal effort; Lady Holyrood is once more in the hands of Miss Edith Houseley, who repeats her former successes; Mr Fraser gave the "Palm" song with proper emphasis; the Angela of Miss Lily Gullick is invested with no small charm by that talented little lady. The chorus is strong and effective.

Hippodrome.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. Harry Dunford.—The Girl and the Tough is a dramatic incident presented by Jno. C. Brandon and Company; the Sages are a lively duo in songs and dances; Tray and Rich are very popular; Ted Saunders imitates some of the popular stars; and other turns include Charles Ulrick, Mark Heaton, and the Three Eldorados.

The Empire.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Slingsby.—The company includes Bros. Devant, Marie Rivers, Les Sardous, Fred Tenby, the Yokels, Pearce and Halma.

The Circus.—Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Emerson.—Animated pictures are a big draw here.

ILKESTON.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—Miss Kate Graham-Beck's company, under the management of Mr. Julian Graham, is here in The Gay Goddess. The title-rôle is taken by Miss Graham-Beck, who wins warm approval; Mr. Charles Leverton as Timothy Twinkle is a capital representative of a heavy part; and Miss Marie Beresford is highly successful as Priscilla. The Sherlock Blake of Mr. Richard Teasdale is a meritorious performance; Miss Fanny Morse is suitably placed as Mrs. Marie Strong; and Mr. Fred Carrington as Samuel Strong is an acquisition to the cast. Miss Lena Howard as Lottie is successful; and Les Papillions give a smart exhibition of dancing.

IPSWICH.—Lyceum.—The Gay Gordons, with its blending of pathos and humour, occupies the theatre during the present week. Miss Maie Ashe as Peggy Quainton, and Mr. Frank Lincoln as Angus Graeme, are excellent. Mr. Tom Graves is the old showman and Edward Nainby his dolorous son, Mr. Edward Brecher being the millionaire, Andrew Quainton. Miss Ida Mann is good as Janet McLeod; and the other characters are in capable hands.

Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Manager, Mr. Stead.—In an excellent all-round bill the chief item is the nautical sketch, in three scenes, entitled The Cruise of H.M.S. Victory. This is a return visit, but the merry comedy is as popular and pleasing as ever. The Two Lombards submit an extraordinary exhibition of strength and skill; a very clever show is that of the Cheers with their performing cats, whose training is admirable; the Strads give various impersonations of Kubelik, Van Biene, and others; Walker and Lake are clever extemporisers; the Lyric Mummers sing delightfully, as also does Miss Madeline Rees. Mr. Harry Simms also sings in excellent style.

JARROW.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson.—The attraction here this week is Mr. Chas. H. Lester's company with A Life for a Life. Mr. Lester proves himself a capable actor as Don Leon; Mr. Harry T. Wood makes a manly Kit Oswald; and Mr. Richard Bosco plays Pedro with force and skill. Mr. C. Osborne is well placed as John Evelyn; and Miss Dorothy Riddell is effective in the part of Kate Evelyn. Miss Beatrice Anderson does well as Eulalie; Mr. Horace Buckley is droll as Tim, being ably assisted by Miss Lydia Hart as Nancy.

JERSEY.—Opera House.—Lessee, Mr. E. Marris; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley Hope.—There were packed houses here nightly this week, numbers being turned away. Amongst new turns are the Menzies, in a comedy duologue entitled The Suffragette; the Woodwards give an inimitable cycle performance, the lady going through a number of sensational acrobatic feats; Stidder and Dunbar are a smart pair; and Winona and King give a marvellous rifle-shooting turn. Jack Foley and Louie Hurman are still here, and Carlotta de Yonson's company appears in a fresh tabloid melodrama entitled The Case of Coiners.

Oddfellows' Hall.—Poole's Myriorama completes a most successful visit here this week.

Triangle Park.—The Serenaders opened here on Tuesday night.

KEIGHLEY.—Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. R. Kendal; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Carson.—Mr. G. Watson Mill's company in For Love and the King, handsomely staged and dressed, is proving a strong attraction. Mr. Watson Mill appears as Jarval, a young English soldier, and gives a very fine performance; Mr. Henry Earlsmere displays much ability as Vladimir; Mr. Geoffrey Chatel, Mr. Alfred Hilliard, Mr. John Burton, Mr. J. K. Woods, Mr. Frank Lyndon, and Miss Rosalind Tate are seen to advantage in their respective parts.

KETTERING. — Victoria Theatre. — Lessees, Messrs. Bailey and Co.—The Walturdaw Bioscope Co. is fulfilling an engagement here with an up-to-date programme of pictures. Mr. Leo McWalker assists with several well-rendered comic songs.

KIDDERMINSTER. — New Opera House.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. C. Gudgeon.—Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company is fulfilling a week's engagement here with The Female Swindler. Mr. Joseph Millane as Jack Coulson, the detective, is well placed; Mr. Fred Rignold ably portrays the character of Abraham Mikestein; Miss Violet Bilicott as Lu Valroy, the female swindler, is artistic and realistic. The play is well staged.

KIRKCALDY.—Hippodrome.—Lessee, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—The premier place here is held by the Cumberlands, with a particularly clever display of trick cycling; Mackinnon's Scottish Meisters occupy the bottom position, and are having a big reception; Li Chang Hi is a smart illusionist and a fine musical turn is given by the Sisters Redfern. Madge Field is a dainty comedienne; and Williams and Warden, American comedians, make a hit in "Mr. Dooley." The programme concludes with some capital pictures.

LANCASTER. — Grand Theatre. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. C. Howitt.—The Grand—until February last known as the Athenæum—opened on Monday evening with Mr. Reginald Dance's company, in Raffles, which proved a very big attraction. The theatre was well filled, and the play was followed throughout with keen interest. Mr. Lewis Edgard gave striking proof of his capabilities as the "amateur cracksman," Mr. A. J. Raffles; Mr. C. Kean supplied a vigorous impersonation of Curtis Bedford, the detective; Mr. Arthur Bell gave a creditable portrayal of Harry Manders; and Mr. Oswald Griffiths ably took the part of Crawshay. Messrs. P. Alexander and Rivers Bertram were worthy exponents of Lord Amersteth and Lord Crowley respectively; Miss Ethel Stalman was well suited as Lady Melrose; the rôle of Gwendoline Conron was acted by Miss Beatrice Marsdene with marked ability; Mrs. Vidal had an able exponent in Miss Brenda Gibson; and Miss Frances Titheradge played capitally the part of Lady Ethel. Miss Eva Bevington, Mr. Chas. Baker, Mr. D. Grogson, and Mr. M. L. Willing all worked hard. The dresses and scenery are worthy of special mention. As a curtain-raiser, Jerry and a Sunbeam is exceedingly well presented by Mr. Arthur Bell and Miss Francis Titheradge. Altogether the opening was a distinct success.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. J. Porter and W. J. Fergusson.—Two big houses assembled here on Monday to enjoy the excellent bill of fare provided. Je Vente Coram, a very smart ventriloquist, is paying a return visit, and has a great reception; the Five Juanitos are a clever troupe; and Four Figaros, in a series of dances, are fine. Phern and Phern supply a pleasing musical turn; Fred Maitland, with his suffragette lecture, causes roars of laughter; Dolly Ross, comedienne, and Florrie Bray, comedienne, together with the Hippograph, depicting On Bad Terms with his Housekeeper, and Piracy in the Days of Nelson, complete.

LEAMINGTON. — Theatre Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. Walter P. Wright.—The Theatre Royal reopened its doors this week after the summer vacation with a good variety entertainment. The Saxonias are topping the bill in their musical entertainment with the saxophone—a really fine turn; Mr. L. Murray appears with conspicuous success as the Roman gladiator in an athletic speciality act; the Three Tivoli Girls, vocalists and dancers, prove exceedingly popular; and other items include Zellini, a clever comedy juggler; Hilda Cross, a good soprano vocalist; Carlo Bianci, a remarkable foot equilibrist; Vanbert, in his American illusionary act; and Master May, a refined boy vocalist. The Premier Imperial pictures add interest to the programme.

LEEDS.—Grand Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—Mr. G. Bernard Shaw's Man and Superman was presented here on Monday to a full house by a Vedrenne-Barker company. Mr. Granville Barker is in his original part of John Tanner, and his fine work aroused much enthusiasm. A skilful effort is that of Ann Whitefield by Miss Frances Dillon; the Octavius Robinson of Mr. David Powell is very satisfactory; and the Roebuck Ramsden of Mr. Michael Sherbrooke, and Malone as presented by Mr. James Hearn are both capable studies. Miss Auriol Lee does much good work as Violet Robinson, and Miss Helen Rous, Miss Frances Wetherall, Miss Maud Burton, Mr. Richard Haigh, and Mr. Frederick Lloyd in other parts all merit high praise. Two evenings this week are devoted to another of Mr. Shaw's plays, Arms and the Man.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—That popular drama The Still Alarm pays another visit to this theatre this week, and again proves a big attraction. On this occasion Mr. Matthew H. Glenville enacts the heroic part of Jack Manley in fine style, his acting being effective and convincing. Miss Beatrice Shirley makes a charming and sympathetic heroine; and the remaining parts are cleverly represented by a capable all-round company.

Empire Palace.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—Barton and Ashley lead here with a neat comedy sketch, which is very cordially received. The Jackson Family achieve big success with a musical entertainment; the Griffiths Bros. are doing their well-known wrestling burlesque; R. H. Douglass is making a big name for himself as a raconteur and character actor; Little Gantz, a popular humorist, comes in for the usual big reception; Cissy Curlette is having a most successful week; Carlotta Levey and Madge May are rewarded with lavish applause for their clever turns. There were many expressions of regret on Monday evening at the non-appearance of Bellonini, the popular juggler.

Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—J. C. Piddock and company are doing their clever sketch Capture of Venus to crowded houses and enthusiastic applause. Other successful turns are subscribed by the Fitzroys, Harry Conlin, Sinclair and Parr, and Martelloni.

Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. Thos. Barrasford.—That famous drama The Grip of Iron is presented here in condensed form, and the presence of Mr. Fred Powell in his old part of Simmonet ensures a favourable reception. Charles Prelle scores a prominent success with his bijou circus; Lillie Soutter, with a batch of new songs, is vastly popular; an entertaining speciality is submitted by Picitt and Lizette; and the efforts of Sibb and Sibb on the trapeze constitute a successful turn. Herbert La Martine again gets a good reception for his novelty dancing; Leonie de Lausanne arouses much enthusiasm by her remarkable shooting feats; and there are also capital turns by Mons. Gerard, a wonderful weight-lifter, and Violet Lorraine.

City Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Jones.—A very pleasing sketch, Christmas Eve, is cleverly enacted here by Hayman and Montague, and evokes the appreciative applause of full houses. Curwen and Belle are to the fore with a clever novelty; Stacey and Williams continue very popular; and of the rest Dunn and Reano, burlesque gymnasts, Ryde and Beeman, comedy specialists, Maston, a clever mimic, and Maud Esmond, burlesque artist, are particularly prominent.

LEICESTER.—Royal Opera House.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. Charles Hermann.—It is always a pleasure to record a visit of Mr. Edward Compton and his celebrated company to the Opera House, of which place he is one of the proprietors. The répertoire for the week is of a character that should satisfy everyone, including as it does such sterling plays as David Garrick, She Stoops to Conquer, The Gentleman in Grey, The School for Scandal, A Reformed Rake, and The Rivals. The engagement opened with the first-named comedy, in which Mr. Compton scored a success as David Garrick, his whole performance displaying histrionic talent of the highest order. He also met with a most cordial reception. Miss Kathleen Leigh plays charmingly as Violet; Mr. Henry Crocker is very good as Alderman Gresham; and Mr. Henry Worrall as the Hon. Tom Tallyhaut is capital. Others worthy of special praise are Miss Constance Morton as Selina, Miss Marie Hassell as Mrs. Rumbelow, Mr. Philip Gordon as Rumbelow, Mr. G. W. Johnston as Snowberry, and Mr. Ivan Leslie as Simpkins. The one-act comedy, The Desperate Lover, in which Miss Viola Compton as Mistress Prue made a conspicuous success, preceded. The plays are mounted and dressed in a manner for which this company is renowned.

Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—The well-known and elaborate play, Woman and Wine, is the attraction this week, being especially well presented by Miss Mary Austin and Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds' company. Miss C. St. Elmo is seen to considerable advantage as Marcel Ragadout, and Mr. Edmonds is very good as Dick Seymour; Miss Violet Sims plays sympathetically and well as Mary Andrews; Mr. J. Milne Taylor is excellent as Hugh Seymour; Miss Ethel Vinroy is good as Janet Marlow, and sings a couple of songs acceptably; Mr. R. Foulis (the manager of the company) is a success as the bully Alphonse Beaudet; Mr. Harry Harrop sings and acts with effect as Charles Sauter; and Mr. W. Manning as Professor Sauter, Mr. Ashmore Vincent as Phineas Collins, Mr. Edwin T. Kirby as Pierre Cruoru, and Miss Octavia De Noel as La Colombe are also to be commended. The Lottie Stone troupe of whirlwind dancers elicit applause for their cleverly executed dances. The play is most effectively staged.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. S. Bucclench.—The appearance of Vesta Tilley here is the signal for rounds of applause. This gifted and charming impersonator of male characters is as brisk and artistic as ever, and she renders her four songs in a manner that delights the crowded auditorium. A remarkably smart display of hand-balancing is submitted by the De Wynne Brothers; Ernie Mayne keeps the audience in a continued roar of merriment; Arnold Bell and company are seen to considerable advantage in the sensational episode Paul Kauvar, in which Miss Frances Campbell as Diane de Beaumont and Mr. Arnold Bell as Paul Kauvar are conspicuous with excellent embodiments; Bi-Bo-Bi is popular in a thoroughly clever and amusing musical act; the Brothers Redmond are acrobatic comedians who raise plenty of laughter; Marion Scott is a capital comedienne; and Sydney Stern, in an illustrated song, deputises with success for Lena Verdi. The Bioscope depicts a beautiful film, Quebec to Niagara.

PAVILION THEATRE. — Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Joe Lawrence.—The following company contribute to a capital entertainment here: Fred Moule and E. D. Nicholl's company in the dramatic sketch A Sailor's Star and the comedy sketch Princess Hercules; the Alskarno Trio of risley comedians; Millie Denham, comedienne; Edgar Budden, bone soloist and skate dancer; Dora Daly, burlesque artist; the Freres, in a trapeze performance; and Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope, with the St. Leger, The Policeman's Whistle, and The Motherless Child.

THE EMPIRE.—Lessees, The New Bioscope Trading Company; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. A. Hurley.—The leading moving pictures in a big programme this week are The Dog Outwits the Kidnapper, The Sign from Heaven, Abduction in the Reign of Louis XVI., Mary is Dismissed, The American Cowboy, and March Winds, which are interspersed with turns by Professor Holt, F.O.S., a most amusing ventriloquist, and Ephraim Clarke, vocalist.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Manager, Mr. George Stanyon.—Mr. Walter Jeffs, with his New Century Pictures, opened their season here on a return visit on Monday. The selection of films is, as usual, a good one, including Sports at the Stadium, A Trip Through Bonnie Scotland, The Theatrical Garden Party at Regent's Park, The Marathon Race, The Despatch Bearer, A Fisherman's Revenge, Chased by a Bull, Bobby's Dream, Happy Jim, The Laundrymaid's Joke, Hurry Up, Please, A Day's Holiday on a Tandem, and a goodly number of others. The Musical Palmers, including Miss Daisy Palmer, delight all with their clever and entertaining musical mélange; and Miss Dora Kingsley, contralto, and Mr. Fred Field, baritone, are also successful with well-rendered songs. Mr. Fred Jeffrey is the courteous manager for Mr. Jeffs. The balcony is now furnished with tip-up seats.

LEIGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wallace Childs.—Messrs. Armadale and Warren's company in the sensational drama The Face at the Window was accorded a hearty reception from a full house on Monday. Mr. E. Hoggan-Armadale contributes a well-thought-out embodiment of the scheming and knavish Lucio Delgado, alias Le Loup. Mr. Scott Leighton is responsible for a sound performance of the fearless Paul Gouffet; Mr. Arthur Beverley supplies an effective rendering of Lucian Cortier; Mr. Gilbert Hall is an acceptable Jean Barbelon; Miss Elsie Marriott-Watson is equal to the trying rôle of Marie de Brisson; and Miss Louie Lonora as Babette and Mr. Henri Stewart as Peter Pottlebury keep up the humour throughout. The Sleigh Bells was announced as a special attraction for Friday.

LIMERICK. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. George Victor Fogerty.—The Royal opened on Monday with the Brothers Poole's Myriorama, which attracted crowded houses. The panoramic and dioramic effects have been further enhanced by the Bioscopic shows of the most up-to-date character. In addition there is a capital variety company. Mr. Harry Dowsett as a comic singer is much appreciated, and the French troupe of cycle experts are very clever; Learto, in his musical eccentricities, is very popular; as is also his well-trained dog Bobo. The Snow Family of clever figure-skaters win well-deserved applause; Mr. Bert Gates is an admirable guide.

LIVERPOOL.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—Performances of The Gay Gordons, in every way admirable, have been given here during the week to crowded and delighted audiences. Mr. Seymour Hicks and Miss Ellaline Terriss, who are prime favourites in the Mersey city, brought a first-class company, who did full justice to this bright and cheerful musical comedy. The reception extended to both artists was of a most flattering character. As the gay and lively Angus, Mr. Hicks exhibited to the full that buoyancy of spirit and "go" so characteristic of him, and his little quips and jokes were richly amusing. Miss Terriss captivated everybody with her sweet depiction of the merry American girl, and several encores of her songs were demanded; the popular Johnny Danvers proved a pillar of strength in the matter of creating fun, his showman being particularly funny; thanks were certainly due to Miss Maud Milton for her entirely acceptable impersonation of Janet McLeod; Miss Sydney Fairbrother's Charlotte Siddons was brimful of excellent humour; Mr. George Carroll made a smart Edmund Siddons; in the part of Corporal John Smith Mr. Lawrence Caird distinguished himself; and other worthy supporters were Messrs. J. C. Buckstone (Archibald Speedy), Will Bishop (Jack McPhrisky), and the Misses Dorothy Ward (Victoria Siddons), Rosie Chesney (Lady Graeme), and Nell Carter (Mary McLeod).

SHAKESPEARE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wentworth Croke; Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney. — The Bondman was given here throughout the week by an able company, under the control of Mr. Wentworth Croke. As Greeba, Miss Georgina Wynter found much favour, and soon gained the sympathies of her audience; Mr. Lionel Atwill did every justice to the part of Michael Sunlocks; in the double rôle of Father Ferrati and Grandfather, Mr. W. Rotherham earned every credit; a manly Adam Fairbrother came from Mr. Oswald Lingard; and Mr. R. Scrope Quentin proved a powerful Jason. Excellent work was also done by the other members of a numerous cast, while the scenery and costumes were on a high and complete scale.

ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery—Convict 99 has proved a strong attraction here this week. The sensational incidents of the play have been loudly applauded, and full houses have warmly testified to its success. Mr. Frank Beresford made an admirable Lawrence Grey; as James Stinchcombe Mr. Edward Kipling afforded the utmost satisfaction; Mr. Benson North successfully impersonated Ralph Vickers; Miss Dorothy Milne submitted a sympathetic Geraldine Lucas; and valuable assistance also came from Messrs. J. Warris Lindon (Christopher Lucas), P. L. Julian (Jim Lacy), Miss Woolgar Mellon (Mrs. Smedley), and Miss Jennie Richards (Maggie Mason).

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—Here this week we have had Mr. C. Watson Mill's company with A Wrecker of Men. Miss Florence Melrose Millett was the Risca Mallinson, depicting the adventuress with considerable dramatic power; Mr. Eric Campbell submitted a telling impersonation of Jim Murley; Miss Gwendoline Talbot made a creditable Doris Melville; an amusing Vavasole was presented by Miss Beatrice Reynolds; and valuable work also came from Messrs. Milner Noble (Pharosaphus), J. Ansdell Wilson (Railton), Arthur Robinson (Guise Strange), and Thompson Carruthers (Eric Melville). The orchestra of the Star Theatre has been augmented, and is now conducted by Mr. Tom Shaw.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Cole.—Foremost here during the week was the St. Alban and Moore comic opera company, with Les Cloches de Corneville, which was much enjoyed. Included in the cast were Kitty Brownless (Serpolette), E. St. Alban (Gaspard), Marian Ayling (Germaine), Conrad Kingsley (the Marquis), Campbell Bishop (the Baillie), and Walter Cranbourne (Grenicheux). Leslie Harris, well known in Liverpool, had a gratifying reception for his songs and stories at the piano; the Bellclair Bros. went through a clever gymnastic performance; Will Poluski, jun., eccentric comedian and dancer, was a good turn; and others in the list were Venie Clements, comedienne and dancer; Seener and Fridkin's Russian troupe of vocalists and dancers; Charles Sauton, vocalist; and Carl Howard, comedian.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred Granville. — Miss Maud Hildyard and company have been here during the week with The Great Awakening.

LYRIC.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold.—Hill and Whitaker have topped the bill this week, and pleased greatly with their neat musical act; the funny Mr. C. proved exceedingly enjoyable; Maude Courtenay had some merry patter, which highly amused; a fine exhibition of rifle shooting was gone through by the expert Three Dreadnoughts; Robert Dhou showed himself an accomplished society athlete; Percival's piano playing, &c., was richly enjoyed; the Sisters Julian danced and sang tastefully; and also in the list were George Acre, comedian, and the Royal Delomes.

ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barraford; Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—The programme here this week was remarkable for the large array of comedians, among these being Edwin Boyde, Sammy Shields, Hal Forde, Lowenwirth and Cohan, and Harris and Worth. Accordingly, there was plently of laughter. Some excellent juggling came from B. Troba; Zeta Grey and company presented a neat musical comedy act; Blanche and Powell were seen to advantage as society entertainers; and a cordial reception was extended to Rosie Lloyd.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—At Bay, from the pen of Ina Leon Cassilis, has, during the week, been given here by the stock dramatic company, the cast including Messrs. Sydney Grant, David G. Noble, Leo. Montgomery, Robb Wilton, Cecil Ravenswood, R. Seath Innes, Misses Lilian Radbourne, Florence Palmer, Florence Cameron, and Helen Richmond. The latest films were shown by Mr. A. Brown's Bioscope.

WESTMINSTER.—Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Welsker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—In addition to the cinematograph pictures here, the following artists appeared during the week:—Janette Hall, lady baritone; and Daleno and Stream, comedians and dancers.

OLYMPIA.—District-Manager, Mr. Albert Bulmer; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Wighton. — Miss Adrienne Augarde, assisted by Mr. Fred Penley, gave a clever trifle, entitled Dick's Sister, which found general favour; Will and Sam Poluski gave their latest "pictures"; an amusing animal novelty, embracing trained monkeys, was brought by Maud Rochez; the Lumars went through a clever acrobatic act; Lee and Bentley submitted a humorous sketch, A Sure Thing; Vanando gave his latest ventriloquial novelty, "A Park Pest"; and contributions also came from Victor Travers, comedian and dancer; Will Cornish, with musical bell act; Venie Clements, child mimic and dancer.

PAVILION.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Son; Manager, Mr. Henry Hearn.—Top of the programme here this week were the smart Szarvaci Ferencz Troupe of acrobats; a cordial reception was given to Leo Dryden, who deputised for the Idara Quartette; Rose Atherton's sketch company gave a funny trifle, Murphy's Affinity; the Colonials, including James Grant, had a pleasing scena, Unexpected Guests; Pat O'Connor afforded satisfaction with his songs and dances; Edythe and Toto had a smart speciality; the Ramsey Trio caused endless laughter with Birdie's Welcome; Arthur Bearle sang several funny songs, including "I think I'll be going home now"; and the list also contained the names of Gena Manon, vocalist; Hilda de Grey, vocalist; and the Farrows, sketch artists.

LONG EATON.—ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.—This theatre was reopened on Monday, after undergoing internal alterations, with Mr. Granville's It's Never Too Late to Mend company. The piece is nicely staged, the scene at the goldfield being admirable. Mr. V. W. Carlyle is effective as George Fielding; Mr. E. Howard Templeton does well as Tom Robinson; the chaplain is well played by Mr. C. F. Johnson, while Mr. Leonard Marshall takes the part of Jacky very naturally. Miss M. Ashton is Mary, and Susan is well taken by Miss Gertrude Entwistle.

THE PALACE.—Mr. Alf H. Smith is an enterprising business-manager. The picture show is a big attraction, and the Empress Lady Hondini is again specially engaged. Dr. Crisford Garton gives his remarkable performance as a hypnotist.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne Seddon and George Robertson; Resident Business-Manager, Mr. W. Payne Seddon; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. B. Reed.—This theatre, which has been closed for the summer recess, reopened its doors to Mr. Clarence C. Corri's company (under the direction of Mr. Haldane Crichton) in the popular military comic opera The Dandy Fifth. Mr. Jack Crichton as Brown played with great spirit, his efforts being well received; Mr. Percy Baverstock makes a capital Colonel; Sergt.-Major Milligan was in the capable hands of Mr. George Beverley, who did the part full justice; and Mr. J. Edward Fraser as Dick Darville played the rôle in an artistic manner, his singing being most successful. Miss Pauline Hague as Kate Lorrimer was the success of the piece, her fine voice being heard to great advantage in the various songs which fell to her; Miss Norah Morra as Polly delighted the house by a charming and piquant performance; and Miss Maude Nichols as Mrs. Von Blitzen infused a deal of genuine humour into her acting. The rest of the large cast did well, their concerted pieces being given excellently. The Blue Moon Quartette sang several items, and were repeatedly encored. The opera is well mounted, and the dresses elaborate.

LUTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Manager, Mr. Louis J. Beard.—Harle and Von Leer's company in Two Little Vagabonds is occupying this theatre this week, and although the piece has been here before, it is more appreciated than ever. Dick and Wally, the two vagabonds, are splendidly portrayed by Miss Chrissie Francess and Miss Ethel Frances Greene respectively. Miss Dora Frank Harvey and Miss Leonora Castelle successfully impersonate Marion Thornton and Barbara Scarth. Mr. Geo. Denham as Geo. Thornton is exceptionally good, and Mr. Herbert Standing, jun., as Captain Darville plays his part perfectly.

MACCLESFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager and Proprietor, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—Miss Ada Frank's company is this week presenting a Fight for Life. Mr. Courtenay Robinson represents Count Adrian effectively; Miss Carrie Henderson as La Cardell is exceptionally good; Mr. George Scully causes much amusement as Dan Murphy; Mr. W. Matthews shows great skill in the part of Carlos Cardell; Marie is well presented by Miss Edna Earl; Miss Ada Frank displays much humorous ability as Susanne; and Mr. Templar Ellis is a clever exponent of Miser Fenard.

MAIDENHEAD.—PAVILION PLEASURE GARDENS.—Proprietor, Mr. George Gude.—The entertainments by the Cadets are of the usual varied and interesting character, and are well patronised. Miss Florrie Delamere gains much applause with "My birthday party"; and Miss Twort is much appreciated for her rendering of "Pretty Redwing." Mr. Colin Gent gains a vociferous encore for his spirited singing of the "The Skipper"; and Mr. Jack Anders as light comedian is applauded at every appearance; while Mr. Leo Fallowfield keeps the house alive with his humour. Mr. Will Harris took his benefit on Wednesday, when his admirers rallied round him in good number. The speciality for his benefit night was Witty Willis, who, as instrumentalist and raconteur, delighted the audience.

MAIDSTONE. — PALACE. — Manager, Mr. S. Baskerville.—Among the artists appearing here are Frank Bernard and company, in sketch Hello! Vestor, instrumentalist and cartoonist; Marie Nestle, ballad vocalist; Jack Jones, comedian; Leonard Gorney, dancer, and the Ten Union Jack Boys, singers and dancers.

MANCHESTER. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee, Mr. John Hart; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmondstone Shirra.—Mr. George Alexander is here with The Thief. Miss Irene Vanbrugh plays Marise Chelford with wonderful skill and spirit; Mr. Alexander's Richard Chelford is a very fine performance; Miss Nina Sevening enacts Isabel Leyton with exquisite grace and refinement; the Harry Leyton of Mr. Reginald Owen merits warm praise; and Mr. Dawson Milward as Raymond Leyton does himself great credit. Mr. E. Vivian Reynolds as Protheroe supplies a well-considered rendering. The first piece, The Nursery Governess, is well performed by Miss Jean Sterling Mackinlay as Mrs. Trent, Mr. Harcourt-Williams as Captain Trent, Mr. Ashton Pearse as Simpson Briggs, and Miss Barbara Hannay as Wilson.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee, Mr. John Hart; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—Mr. Robert Courtneidge's Tom Jones company is here. Miss Florence Smithson sings capitally as Sophia; Mr. Harry Welchman as Tom Jones acts and vocalises in excellent style; and as Mr. Allworthy Mr. John Morley is seen to great advantage. Mr. Ambrose Manning as Squire Western acts and sings with skill and spirit, and Mr. Dan Rolyat as Partridge is as irresistibly humorous as ever. Messrs. Macmillan, Rignold, and Braham are satisfactory in smaller parts, and Miss Isabelle Dillon wins favour as Honour. Miss Mary Southwell as Miss Western and Miss Alice Oppitz as Lady Bellaston work carefully and well. Mr. Deane Percival's Blifil is a performance of genuine merit.

ROYAL OSBORNE.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; General-Manager, Mr. H. Winstanley; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Mason.—Messrs. Paumier and Howard's The Prince and the Beggar Maid is doing good business here.

JUNCTION.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; General-Manager, Mr. H. Winstanley; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Dry.—Mrs. Frank Bateman and Mr. Stuart Lomath's company are here with No Wedding Bells for Her, which is again very successful.

GAIETY.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Miss A. E. F. Horniman; General-Manager, Mr. B. Iden Payne; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edwin T. Heys.—When the Devil Was Ill is in its second week here, and is going better than ever; and the first piece, Marriages Are Made in Heaven, is acted with even greater care and smartness.

QUEEN'S.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. Flanagan; Business and Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert Jones.—Messrs. Armitage and Leigh's company is here in With Edged Tools. Mr. Wm. F. Grant as Jack Meredith does decidedly creditable work; Mr. Henry Nunn as Guy Oscard deserves warm praise; and as Victor Duruvo Mr. Campbell Goldsmid is seen to real advantage. Mr. J. A. Rosier as Sir John Meredith is quite characteristic, and a charming Joselyn Gordon is Miss Phyllis Relph; Miss Marie Leonhard makes a good Millicent Chyne; and Miss Isabel Grey as Lady Canbourne is very commendable. As Lady Herries Miss Violet Thorold deserves favourable mention.

METROPOLE.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; General-Manager, Mr. H. Winstanley; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. Andrew.—Harriett Vernon is a great success here with some new songs; the Brothers Ford are as popular as ever; and Ada Whitton, male impersonator, has many admirers. Langslow's sharp shooting is clever; and Leslie Race; Henri Vernon Harcourt, dramatic mimic; Jenny Maninco, juggler; Chas. Rowen, and Marcus Boyle are all successful in their several lines.

HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr. G. F. Reynolds.—L'Incognita, a masked vocalist, sings capitally here; and a Japanese play by Mme. Hanako and company goes remarkably well; De Ganty's Water Grotto is much admired; the Three Meers's wire act and comedy business are keenly appreciated; and some pleasing part songs are sung by the Hippo. Choir. Fred Edwards and company are quite comical in Kleptomaniacs. May Edouin, a smart comedienne; Wood, Wells, and Wilkins, in a vocal comedy act; and Little Zola, comedian, complete an excellent company.

KING'S, LONGSIGHT.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. K. Trippett.—Mr. Harry Roxbury's Cowboy Millionaire company is doing well here; Rousby and Rene supply some smart Lancashire studies; Wyndham and Waters, comedy vocalists, contribute amusing items; Benson and Rose are funny in a sketch; Ikey Moe is an astonishing juvenile; and Petro and Leon, comedy gymnasts, George Young, blind musician, and Eldra, with his dog "Prince," complete a capital company.

GRAND.—Lessees, Messrs. Jasper Redfern and Co., Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Jas. Rolmaz.—The Carpos Brothers are expert acrobats; Johnson and De Vere's cyclo on a wire rope is clever and daring; Syd Herman is good in Jewish characters; and Tom Joy, comedian, wins much favour. A series of pictures depicting the Manchester Lifeboat Saturday Procession is exhibited.

PALACE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Secretary, Mr. Peter Watson; Business-Manager, Mr. Fred Leighton.—Fred Russell's ventriloquial sketch is received here with laughter and applause; Lew Lake and company, in My Pal Jerry, do remarkably well; smart cycling is contributed by the Westwoods; Les Sousloffs are neat and spirited dancers; Donovan and Arnold, in patter and song, are popular; and Athas and Collins supply an amusing turn.

TIVOLI. — Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Mysticus, human chameleon, creates astonishment here; Grant and Grant, in song and dance, delight all; Dickson Moffatt and his partner are effective in "He and She"; Zena Pana sings and dances well; and Mlle. A. Laserno's performing cats are well trained. Rita and Roma's vaudeville entertainment is warmly applauded.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; General-Manager, Mr. H. Winstanley; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Meek.—David Poole's ventriloquial sketch creates much merriment; the Three Merrions, vocal, instrumental, and musical artists, win success; Eva Chadwick, soprano, is favourably received; and Larry Lewis is decidedly comical. The Four Netherlands are neat dancers, and vocalise ably; Ricquo is an expert gymnast; as comedians Hearne and Palmer are clever; and Kendrick and Laura's dainty interlude is effective.

HULME HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; General-Manager, Mr. H. Winstanley.—Joe Peterman's operatic burlesque, The Singing Servants, is winning applause here; Kirk and Saraski are smart acrobats; and Ada Parker is good in song and dance. Walter Ellis and company in The Sleep Walker are successful; and Alfred Graham's Juveniles are intelligent and amusing. Geo. Westland's songs are well received and popular; Ghita Corri sings in a superior manner, and wins warm favour; A. E. Clifford succeeds; and Celest's wire act makes a sensation.

RUSHOLME PAVILION.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harry Leslie; Secretary and Acting-Manager, Mr. George Phillips.—In the cast of The Anglo-Indians, which is being performed here, are Harrison Brockbank, Lillian Wesson, Kitty Kennedy Allen, Alf. Johnson, Edna Barrett, and Kennedy Allen, each of whom works hard and well for the general success.

ARDWICK EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—George Formby, an eccentric comedian, makes a hit here; Nell Emerald is a lively comedienne; Harry Drew uses his bass voice ably; the Jackley Trio are excellent acrobats; and John Humphreys and company, in Ancient Britons, create much laughter. Nell of the Halls is spiritedly acted by Mabel Bardino and company; and Nellie Coleman, male impersonator, wins many friends. Ted and May Hopkins take well, and so do the Six Lancashire Lasses. New pictures on the Urban Bioscope are admired.

WHITE CITY.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. Calvin Brown; Manager, Mr. J. E. Maddocks.—Countess Romanoff dances with ease and grace, and the White City Military Band perform each afternoon and evening.

MANSFIELD.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, Mansfield, Sutton, and District Theatres, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Capt. Cecil Clayton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Mark Lorne.—Mr. Lingford Carson's company, in A Fight for a Throne, is the attraction here. Mr. John S. Millward plays the part of Capt. Jack Fortesque satisfactorily; Mr. Gerald Byrne is well placed as Nicholai I.; Prince Otto is capably portrayed by Mr. Charles E. Linney; Mr. Patrick Evans acts Lieut. Fitzmaurice effectively; Mr. John Worth is at home in the rôle of Paul Rodna; Miss Madge Clayton is an artistic Sister Ayatha; Lady Pat is admirably portrayed by Miss Lilith Gabriel; and Miss Margaretta Tueski fills the rôle of Countess Lorenski with credit. Princess Esmée is in the capable hands of Miss Dora Hammersley.

MARGATE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. E. Michael; General-Manager, Mr. W. W. Keene.—Mr. James Welch's company gave a successful presentation of When Knights Were Bold on Monday, when a crowded house testified to the popularity of the piece. Mr. Henry Ford gave a humorous presentment of the rôle of Sir Guy de Vere, and was ably supported by Miss Bruce-Joy, who capably enacted the part of Lady Rowena Eggington; Miss Phyllis Back was delightful as Miss Sarah Isaacson. Every character in the cast was efficiently handled by the respective members of the company, among them Messrs. W. Lockhart, George Rowlands, Talbot Homewood, Reginald Hunter, V. Sansbury, C. Clayton, and the Misses Violet Graham, Gretchen Yates, Bessie Walters, Ethel Royale, and others. On Thursday, and for the rest of the week, The Message from Mars was played by Mr. F. Monillot's company.

HIPPODROME. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—Owing to a severe cold, Peggy Pryde, who headed the bill this week, and appeared on Monday, was unable to continue her engagement on Tuesday and Wednesday. Kitty Colyer, American comedienne and dancer, has secured a most enthusiastic reception; James Fawn, the evergreen humorist, has been fulfilling a second week's engagement with conspicuous success; and Will Van Allen, the tramp musician, was received with great favour. Other contributors to the programme include Phil Bransby, coster comedian; Jules Kiaro, novelty equilibrist; and Les Itrams, in a startling balancing and gymnastic act. The pictures this week are amusing.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees, the South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Albert Jackson.—The Conscience of a Judge, presented by Mrs. Sam Duckworth's company, is here. Mr. Kenyon Musgrave as Herbert Granstone displays great ability; Jessica Draycott is admirably played by Miss Nellie Howett; Miss Mabel Coleman ably accounts for the part of Ethel Vaughan; and Miss Madge Seymour makes a versatile Mary Wilson. As the scheming Sir Edwin Mervin Mr. Sam Courtney is in every way successful; and Mr. Reginald Maurice capably represents Cecil Bentley.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Manager, Mr. Israel Price.—The Three Van Dammes, comedy acrobats and tumblers, give a fine performance, and win much applause; the Kangers, Australian trick cyclists, provide a clever turn; Bros. Lang, eccentric knockabout comedians, are responsible for much humour; and Abkar excels on the silver rings. Bella Leaburn, comedienne; Golden and Grey; Orros and George Robbins; Sharon, street musician; Fred Pollard, Hebrew comedian; and the Biograph are also well appreciated.

METHIL.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Methil Theatre Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Sydney Arnold.—The Way of the World, capably presented by Messrs. Herbert Skardon and H. Sherwood Martin's company, has been here this week. Mr. Clarence Temple as Matthew Malyon makes a decided hit; Mr. J. P. McBride is very popular as Cecil Hardy; treacherous Captain Slade is well played by Mr. Victor Gordon; and a hearty welcome greets Mr. D'Arcy Kelway (Joe Sparrow) and Mr. W. Gibson (Tiny Green). Kate Montague, equestrienne, was well played by Miss Nelly de Lacy; Miss Doris Brooks was good as Lady Adela Hardy; Miss Marie Marah made a very jolly little Eric Malyon; and Miss Violet Vivienne was very amusing as the strong woman, Polly Bell. Several smaller parts were in safe hands.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Mr. Dickie Clare's company is this week presenting the musical farce Lucky 'Liza. Miss Madge Brownie is a vivacious and captivating Eliza Bird (Lucky 'Liza); Miss Vesta Brownie is a petite and entertaining Virginia Blatherwick; Miss Evelyn Wood sings and acts capitally as Sadie Potts; a pleasing Marie is found in Miss Helen Douglas; Mr. Dickie Clare shows up prominently in a triple impersonation as Silas Slim, the Judge, and the French waiter; Mr. Norman H. Lee plays cleverly as Paul Pettitoe; the rival barristers, Peter Pettitoe and Barnaby Blatherwick have capable exponents in Mr. T. W. Benson and Mr. Harry George; a droll Biffins is found in Mr. J. W. Forrest; Miss Vesta Brownie gives Scotch dances, and the La Belle Trio are skilful exponents of the art of terpsichore.

The "DAILY MAIL" of Sept. 6, 1907, page 3, col. 7, states: "It is estimated that nearly 50,000 people attended the performance of the Ex-British Guards Band in Hyde Park last Sunday evening, this being the record attendance of the year.

New Picture Hall.—Proprietor, Mr. Will Hunter; Manager, Mr. E. H. Jones.—Mr. Will Hunter's Royal Court Pierrots are here this week. The artists include Harold Carlyle, Scotch character comedian; Miss Florrie D'Alton, vocalist; Charlie Orme, comedian; Ernie Graham, Yorkshire comedian; Miss Edie Green, soprano vocalist; Will Hunter, singing ventriloquist and humorist; and J. Leslie Tyrrell, pianist and vocalist.

MIDDLESBROUGH.—Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. Jno. Ed. Jowsey; Manager, Mr. W. Ker Chatto.—The Thief is being presented here this week by Mr. Geo. Alexander's company, and on Monday night there was a crowded house. Miss May Congdon gave a flawless portrayal of the part of Marise Chelford, and was at all times perfectly natural and womanly; Mr. Stephen Ewart has become a favourite with Tees-side playgoers, and in his hands the part of Richard Chelford became a skilled interpretation; Mr. Gerald Ames acted with distinction as Raymond Leyton, and Miss May Dibley as Isabel Leyton was charming. Mr. Alfred Lugg was responsible for a good rendition of the rôle of Harry Leyton, and Mr. Cyril Cuttley was good as Mr. Protheroe. The play was preceded by Too Happy by Half, in which Mr. Percy Marmount and Miss Irene Leonard caused much amusement.

Theatre Royal. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Chas. Imeson.—Mr. and Mrs. Kimberley's No. 1 company occupies the boards here this week with Two Little Drummer Boys. Into the leading part of General Kingsley, V.C., Mr. Edward Bikker infuses a large amount of skilful acting, and the rôle of Capt. Geo. Darrell, the villain, finds a capable exponent in Mr. Oswald Douglas; Mr. Harry Scott ably fills the part of Capt. Carsdale, and Mr. Alexander Knight as Lieut. Kingsley and Mr. Geo. Turner as Rev. John Rivers are also good. The Two Little Drummer Boys are admirably portrayed by Miss Maggie English and Miss Maudie Douglas; Miss A. Atheley is conspicuous as Margaret Rivers, and Miss Mary Ainslee is good as Alma Kingsley. The piece is well staged.

Empire Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill; Manager, Mr. Chas. G. Rembges.—Neil Kenyon provides the star turn here this week, and his Scottish character studies are received with the heartiest applause; Jordan and Harvey, Hebrew comedians, are also most amusing; the Lizette Troupe of lady acrobats give a clever display, and a smart turn is provided by Rappo and Ellis; Molly Augarde is a delightful vocalist, and Little Tichbourne and Forest and King complete the programme.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Signor R. Pepi; Manager, Mr. A. J. Nicholls.—An amusing musical comedy sketch entitled Belle of the Orient is presented here this week by Mr. J. Peterman's company, and another laughable sketch is provided by Chas. Kitts and Rhoda Windrum. Some excellent singing and dancing is given by Cissie Walmer and Minnie Mace; a clever trick-cycling turn is done by Bert Woodward, and the Elite Harmony Boys maintain their reputation. Other turns are given by Blake and Amber and Alec Kendall.

Oxford Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. Alf. Graham; Manager, Mr. R. L. Griffiths.—Animated pictures again form the programme here this week.

MIDDLETON.—Pardoe's Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. and J. Pardoe.—That evergreen melodrama The King of Crime is being played to good houses this week. Mr. F. B. Woulfe is a powerful and incisive actor; Miss Mildred Eversleigh touches both the sympathetic and the tragic note most effectively in her portrayal of Henriette; Mr. William Miller gives a good conception of the Miser. The scene "The Masquerade Ball" is capitally put on and enacted.

MOTHERWELL.—New Century Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Hales.—The company of Sidney Rennef and G. M. Copping are appearing here this week in the melodrama Love Rules the World. Mr. Richard Vane's interpretation of Harold Kingston is a smart and manly one; and the villainous Stephen Blight is acceptably rendered by Mr. Stephen Langton. Miss Constance Medwyn as Flo Morton enters cleverly into the spirit of the adventuress. The comedy element in the play is sustained by Mr. Walter Dale as Billy Binks.

MUSSELBURGH.—Gaiety Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. A. W. B. Kingston; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. M. Richardson.—The dramatic season at this house opened on the 11th inst. with the annual visit of La Comédie Anglaise Co., including Mr. William L. Dobell. The play was the time-honoured East Lynne, the Wilson Barrett-Heath version of Mrs. Henry Wood's famous novel. Mr. Dobell made a manly, good-looking Archibald Carlyle, and acted throughout in an earnest and convincing manner; Justice Hare was taken by Mr. W. H. Pointon, and Mr. Thompson Whiett produced the desirable effect as the villainous Levison. In the dual characters of Lady Isabel and Madame Vine, Miss Marion Carter displayed considerable ability; Miss Madge Merryweather as Cornelia was a source of much amusement; as Lord Mountsevern, Mr. Vincent Wardle made the most of a small part, and also played Lawyer Dill very creditably. Other performances worthy of notice were those of Mr. Horace Morton Wright as P.C. Bullock; Miss Alice Ayle as Joyce the maid-servant; and Miss Anita Palazzo as Barbara Hare. The piece was suitably mounted, and drew a large house. On the Saturday, Lured to London was presented by the same company. This week Mr. Howell Webb and company are appearing in Convent Bells and A Life of Pleasure.

NEW BRIGHTON.—Winter Gardens.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. H. E. Jones and A. Douglass.—Packed houses still continue. The Six St. Albyns present a bright and artistic vocal sketch, The Squire's Hunting Party; Mr. Barney Stuart scores in his versatile humorous entertainment; the Kebbles, two graceful young ladies, make a pronounced success, especially with their dancing; Mr. Fearon Fallows is a singer of descriptive songs, and possesses a really good voice; Zimpa evokes laughter and applause with his numerous imitations; Herr Spiegler's orchestra plays special selections in artistic style; and a remarkably clever young solo violinist is found in Mr. E. Parsons. Of special interest are the animated pictures.

Pier Pavilion.—Lessees, Messrs. Adeler and Sutton; Manager, Mr. W. G. Sutton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Parker.—A humorous and versatile entertainment is given this week by the well-known Pierrots. Mr. C. D. Reekie is a good singer and excellent comedian; Mr. Donal McDougal causes roars of laughter; and a lady of much humour is found in Miss Edith Heron-Brown. A favourite with New Brighton audiences is Miss Emilie Tait, who is a finished vocalist; Mr. Harold Brown, baritone, and Mr. J. A. Tunbridge, accompanist, complete a first-rate company. The popular manager, Mr. Sutton, takes his benefit on Oct. 3.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE. — Theatre Royal. — Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—Crowded and enthusiastic audiences greeted the first appearance in Newcastle of Lady Frederick, which was presented on Monday evening by Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's principal company. The cast is exceptionally strong, and includes Mrs. Brown-Potter and Mr. Philip Cunningham. In the title-rôle Mrs. Brown-Potter is seen to great advantage, her masterly handling of this difficult and complex character winning unstinted applause; whilst Mr. Philip Cunningham's portrayal of Paradine Fouldes is undoubtedly as fine a study of a "man of the world" as one could desire. Lady Mereston as played by Miss Audrey Campbell is a thoroughly artistic study; and Mr. Reginald Van Ranney ably sustains his part as Sir Gerald O'Mara. Other leading characters are capably played by Mr. Cecil Bevan as Captain Montgomerie, Mr. Shirley Lea as Admiral Carlisle, Mr. Herbert Garthorne as Lord Mereston, Miss Phyllis Manners, and Miss Edith Deverell. The Peacemaker, in which Miss Audrey Campbell, Miss Edith Deverell, Miss Phyllis Manners, Mr. Cecil Bevan, and Mr. Van Ranney appear, precedes the principal piece.

Tyne Theatre and Opera House.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—Mr. Oscar Asche and Miss Lily Brayton's company is here in a répertoire of favourite plays. Othello was presented on Monday evening before a large and appreciative audience. Mr. Oscar Asche's portrayal of the Moor is an artistic study, and proves one of the finest Othello's we have seen; a no less finished personation is Miss Brayton's Desdemona, her graceful presence and charming style proving very effective; Mr. Herbert Grimwood makes a complete success of the detestable character Iago; and the wife of Iago has a capable exponent in Miss Constance Robertson; whilst other rôles are well filled, Mr. R. Ian Penny as Cassio, Mr. George Sidden as Ludovico, and Mr. G. Kay Souper as Roderigo, being well worthy of mention. The Taming of the Shrew and The Two Pins were presented during the week.

Palace Theatre.—Manager, Mr. T. W. Rowe.—Mr. Harry Foxwell's company in A Broken Heart is drawing good houses this week. Miss Sheila Walsh wins chief honours as Mary Barnard, which part she plays in her usual excellent manner; Mr. Stanley Bedwell gives a fine performance as John Barnard; Mr. Edward Rawlinson acts with considerable skill as Gash Gills; Mr. George M. Newall does well as Stephen Royton; whilst the character of Little May is ably impersonated by Miss Daisy Rocheford; and the other characters are all well played.

Grand Theatre.—Sole Lessee, Mr. F. W. Bolam; General-Manager, Mr. R. G. Elder.—Rogues and Vagabonds is presented here this week by Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's company, and is proving a great attraction. Mr. Hill-Mitchelson himself is playing a principal part; and the other members of the company work hard for the success of the play. Mention may be made of the work of Mr. Graham Woods, Mr. Arthur McCulloch, Mr. Sinclair Holden, Miss Alice Barber, and Miss Mary Collier.

Empire Theatre.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—The chief attraction of a strong and interesting programme this week is Whit Cunliffe, who is proving a splendid draw. His songs, rendered in his own inimitable style, being heartily applauded. An extremely amusing turn is that of Tennyson and Wallis, comedians; and Gus Garrick, in "Music-hall tit-bits," makes a decided hit. The Lukushima troupe of Japanese acrobats present a clever and interesting act; Hubert Carter and company, in a condensed version of Davy Garrick, prove quite successful; whilst other good turns are provided by the Frank L. Gregory troupe in a marvellous exhibition of hoop-rolling and juggling; Kisbey, the call boy; Jock Mills, Scotch comedian; and Adey Spencer, "the girl from the hat shop." The Bioscope completes.

Pavilion Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thos. Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—Pride of place is this week accorded to Mr. Walter G. Kelly, American comedian, whose turn proves a huge success; Jan Rudyeni, violin virtuoso and actor, in a musical romance, The Power of Music, is heartily applauded; while other capital items are presented by Tom E. Hughes, the Three Sisters Tree, Bostock's baboons, the Three Rubys, and Ted Karno and company; the Barrascope completing with a series of pictures of the Launch of the Brazilian Battleship on the Tyne.

NEWPORT.—Lyceum.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—Miss Winifred Maude's company played The Convict here for the first three nights of the week. Mr. St. Clair Forbes (Capt. Hurley) made a capital villain; Mr. J. M. Olivert (Jack Britton) a manly hero; Miss Winifred Maude a charming and captivating heroine; and as Jenny Perkins Miss Amy Maitland, assisted by Freddy Freckles (Mr. Victor du Cane) and Nero (Mr. W. E. Simpson) supplied the fun. The Stowaway was billed for the last three nights of the week.

Empire.—Moss Empires, Ltd.; Manager, Major Gallagher. — The Boisset Troupe, in The Bricklayers, prove amusing, throwing new light and other things on the Labour question. Chas. Whittle is a comedian with a good style; the Carina Sisters are a couple of artistic musicians; Drew and Alders show ability in The Coastguards; Hal Hughman is one of the most successful imitators of his class; and Violet Roy, 'cello soloist, presents a pleasing turn. Edie King, comedienne and dancer, and the American Bioscope complete the bill.

NORTHAMPTON.—The New Palace Theatre.—Sole Proprietor and Director, Fred H. Anderson; Manager, Thos. A. Evans.—Prominent in this week's programme is the sketch entitled The Money-lender, which has created much excitement, as represented by Mr. Sidney Mason, Mr. H. Russell, Mr. Sid Leslie, Mr. H. Arnold, and Miss Theresa Moore. The Sisters Draycott charm with their harmonised vocalism; the Belmoire Sisters (Bertha and Kitty) gain great applause for their dancing; George Rapley is an amusing comedian. Mathews and Brown, American duo; Connie Mascot, comedienne and dancer; and the Breton Troupe of six comedians furnish good turns; and the Palace Pictures still hold their own.

NORTH SHIELDS. — Theatre Royal. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Mr. Lingford Carson's company, with The Power of the Cross, has been heartily greeted here by good houses this week. In the part of Baron Woulfe Curzola, Mr. George A. de Gray achieves much success; and Mr. Robert Hall is effective as Gerald Fairfax. Mr. Alexander J. Haviland presents a studied rendering of Doctor Leslie Fairfax; Mr. Francis Serle as Benjamin Hawke acts with distinction; Mr. Gilson Brooke makes the most of David Kingsley; and Mr. Tyrone Power as Timothy O'Dowd creates much hearty laughter. As Margaret Seaton Miss Annie Hylton submits a capital portrayal of the character; Miss Phyllis Vaughan makes an excellent Blanche Kingsley; Miss Stella Carmichael proves an admirable Rita Lascelles; and Miss Etta Turner displays much ability as Dolly Gray.

Central Palace.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—The programme provided here is attracting large audiences, the principal item being the Kramers, who appear in a smart gymnastic act. The Sisters Terry, duettists and mimics, keep adding to their popularity; Messrs. Wragg and Wragg, military athletes, are worthy of the praise bestowed upon them; the performance of Mr. Bob Pueblo and Miss Katie Cropp, creole artists, is greatly enjoyed; Indiana, the flexible Venus, is clever; Mr. Bert Crosbie, comedian and dancer, has many admirers; and the Pictures displayed by the Mouldoscope are well up to date.

NORTHWICH.—Pavilion.—Proprietress, Mrs. P. E. Fletcher; Manager, Mr. H. S. Dacre.—The Stockham Unique Troupe of harpists and entertainers have been re-engaged for this week, and their popularity is as great as ever. Mr. Willis C. Crisford is the cause of many a hearty laugh. The Ruffell's Bioscope is the other attraction, and the pictures shown are extremely good.

NORWICH.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. Edmund Tearle's excellent company is here this week, and on Monday opened with Othello, Mr. Tearle himself, in a masterly manner, appearing in the title-rôle. Mr. Bernhardt Turner was equally good as Iago; Mr. Fawcett Lomax was excellent as Brabantio; while Mr. Stewart Black did well as Cassio, Mr. Vernon Crabtree as Roderigo, Mr. A. W. Jones as Montano, Mr. Neal Fitzwilliam as the Duke of Venice, Mr. Herbert Tawse as Lodovico, and Mr. Thomas Price as Gratiano deserve praise. Miss Vera George won commendation for her acting as Desdemona, and Miss Madge Raper as Julia, Miss Madge Newell as Messenger, Miss Helen Macrae as Antonio, and Miss Mary Campbell as Emilia must be complimented on. Richard III. Jennie Deans, The Three Musketeers, and A Woman's Revenge are also billed.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—A capital programme this week includes Miss Clarice Mayne, comedienne and mimic, who wins hearty applause; Miss Dora Lyric, with her catchy choruses, is a great success; F. Mozzetto exhibits some clever juggling; the Donatos go through their marvellous one-legged performance with much ability; Harry Brayne and Bert Lloyd create laughter in their absurdity The Tree of Truth; Dan Whitley, eccentric, Bert Weston, comedian, and Dorothy Dundas, vocalist, are all highly appreciated. The Hippo-Bio is also good.

The Franco-British Bioscope Co. opened at the Bank Plain Assembly Rooms, a new place of entertainment, on Monday evening, when some very interesting scenes were thrown upon the screen. The company intends staying for a season, with a change of programme weekly.

NOTTINGHAM. — Theatre Royal. — Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—The return visit of Miss Phyllis Dare and The Dairymaids drew a crowded house on Monday. Miss Dare, a winsome and attractive Peggy, sings her various songs with charming effect; Mr. E. Statham Staples possesses a good voice, and admirably uses it in the music of Sam Brudenell; Mr. Fred Leslie, jun., ably supports him in the part of Frank Meredith; and the fun waxes fast and furious when they enter the ladies' school. In Mr. Percy Marshall is found a droll Dr. O'Byrne; Miss Edith Blanche shows excellent comedy talent as Lady Brudenell; and Miss Rose Lewis embodies Miss Pyechase in amusing manner. The work of Mr. Harry Dent (Joe) and Miss Lottie Sargent (Eliza) is worthy of all praise; whether singing or dancing, they are always in the picture, and uproarious applause greets their every appearance. The chorus parts are splendidly given, and minor rôles are well sustained by Misses Gladys Ivery, Dorothy Laine, Edythe Burnand, and Mr. Horace Percival.

Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Harry Upton.—Miss H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company is presenting Lucky Durham this week. Mr. S. Herbert Humber thoroughly grasps the dramatic possibilities of his rôle of John Durham; Mr. Arthur Leigh plays Reginald Steighton with subtlety and force; and Lord Mountfallen is intelligently portrayed by Mr. T. Renaud Lockwood. Miss Alice E. Belmore imparts dignity to the rôle of Helen Vallerton; and Miss Beatrice Sinclair makes a charming picture of Mrs. Durham; Mr. William Heilbronn as Mr. Vallerton and Mr. J. H. Gerald as Arthur Walcombe add to the success; and Miss Florence Dulhunty plays Margaret Steighton with thoughtfulness and care. Other parts are admirably filled by Misses Elsie Mayne, Rosabel Dodd, and Mr. W. F. Clitherow.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert C. Duncan.—Joseph Hart's Futurity Winner is a smart playlet, the mechanical effects showing the race being igeniously contrived, and eliciting hearty commendation. Charlene and Charlene contribute an excellent entertainment of jugglery and xylophone music; an artistic protean item, entitled Dan the Outlaw, is given by Herbert Shelley, the assumption of different characters being well carried out; Hans and Lux keep the fun rolling by their comic cross-talk. A comedy act, How to Treat a Burglar, makes for laughter, as presented by the Maples; a comedy singing act by the Leonards is good; and the humorous musical item of the Sisters Pine receives reward. Fred Lincoln introduces his scena, My Pal, Jenny; Valerie de Lacy gives a pleasing rendering of illustrated songs; and the Bioscope shows diverting films.

NUNEATON.—Prince of Wales's.—Theatre and Entertainments Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Bryan.—Miss Marie Dagmar and Mr. Fred C. Somerfield's company is proving a strong attraction here with The Tyrant. Mr. Somerfield submits a praiseworthy study of Homodei; Angelo finds a capable representative in Mr. Roy Fortescue; Mr. Edward E. Lewis is a good Rudolph; Mr. T. Ashmore is successful as Pau; Miss Margaret Frame is well placed as Lady Katherine; Miss Cherry Veheyne does well in the part of Eulle; Mr. Willie Barrett and Miss Nellie Freeland as Nobbo and Reginella are responsible for an amount of fun; and a thoroughly capable Tisbe comes from Miss Marie Dagmar. The piece is well staged and dressed.

OLDBURY.—Palace.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Jas. Tyrer.—This week's programme includes the Incemores, living marionettes; Chas. Clifford, harpist; Eric Walmore, comedian; Dolly Vince, comedienne; Chas. Huntley, comedian; the Mays; and the Bioscope.

OLDHAM.—Empire Theatre.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—Mr. Brandon Thomas's capable company in the evergreen Charley's Aunt had a good reception here on Monday. In the character of Lord Babberley Mr. G. A. Seager impersonates the old lady in a clever manner. He receives able assistance from Messrs. Hastings Lynn and Basil Lynton as Jack Chesney and Charley Wykeham. Miss Vere Gerald as Donna Lucia has an imposing personality; and Miss Olivia Glynn as Kitty Verdan and Miss Grace Russell as Amy Spettigue are capital. Miss Evelyn Gray also does well as Ela Delahay. Mr. Roy Byford is good as the pompous Mr. Spettigue; and Mr. Theo McCauseland Stewart as Sir Francis is smart; and Mr. Sydney Compton as Brasset is capital. The Lancashire Sailor precedes.

Colosseum Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Wm. Eastwood.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company in Her Road to Ruin is here. Miss Beatrice Edwards appears as Jess Willoughby, and she does so with great success. Miss N. Bonser impersonates a trio of characters in a clever manner; Miss Alice Bowes makes a dainty May Willoughby; Mr. Henry Wolsten a manly Frank Temple; Mr. Heaton Grey a capable Tom Wells; and Mr. A. Bradley acts well as the villainous Philip Hardy. Mr. Dane Clarke as the Bishop presents a capital study. Some excellent comedy comes from Miss Marie Wright as Jennie Crackling and Mr. Harry Talbot as Billy Boots.

Royal Theatre of Varieties. — General-Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kilrow.—At the head of the bill here stands May Henderson, the dusky comedy queen, with clever songs and dances; and Maude Mortimer, who sings delightfully. Stelling and Revell are smart on the horizontal bars; the Brothers Webb in musical selections are well received; J. G. Scatter causes hearty laughter with smart patter; and Allan Shaw is clever in coin manipulation. Lee and Kingston are droll in their comedy act; and the Brothers Madison, comedians, deputise for Barrett and Knowles and do well.

Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Nuttall.—Fred Curran is well received for his quaint songs; the Pichel troupe of acrobats successfully perform daring feats; the Great Morimura introduces novel illusions; Pete and Minnie Lee are excellent in a clever sketch; the Gentrys also cause much amusement in Bits; Vardon is smart in his ventriloquism; and Fame and Fortune are versatile. The Dottoscope concludes.

OXFORD.—East Oxford Theatre.—Lessees, Miss Winifred Stuart and Mr. C. Watson Mill; Manager, Mr. Frank Stuart; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. W. Thompson.—A good all-round variety company is holding these boards this week. Some excellent and up to date animated pictures, shown at frequent intervals, are in great favour. Lytton and Bland are very good in their dialect and dancing speciality; Sam Voss causes amusement; and Cosselly does some marvellous jumping, and also, with Evelyn, a clever wire act. Bob Gates does well as eccentric comedian; and Harry Carsdale, rustic comedian, secures unbounded applause for his clever imitations of various animals.

PAISLEY.—Paisley Theatre.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—Mr. William Greet's company, under the managership of Mr. W. A. McNeill, is drawing large houses here with The Sign of the Cross. Mr. Cyril Austin-Lee distinguishes himself by a striking embodiment of Marcus, and a telling rendition of Mercia is given by Miss Constance Little, who acts with much sweetness and charm. Mr. C. Yorke submits a carefully-studied and artistic rendering of the part of Nero; as Tigellinus and Licinius Mr. Charles Aldred and Mr. J. Weatherall perform excellently; Glabrio is admirably impersonated by Mr. Frank Wood; Mr. Harry Jones makes a capable Philodemus; Viturius is ably accounted for by Mr. Arthur Rudd; and as Servilius and Strabo Mr. H. Thurston Harris and Mr. G. W. Ruff do themselves great credit. Miss Lily Ward is admirably suited as Berenice, giving an effective and convincing embodiment of the part; Miss Cissie Carlton acts with a just perception of comedy in the rôle of Dacio; the Poppœa of Miss Beryl Hamilton is entirely satisfactory; and as Ancaria Miss Mary Newcombe submits a talented impersonation. Mr. Walter Fleet as Favius and Mr. Clifton Yates as Titus acquit themselves creditably; Mr. R. Chapman as Melos is praiseworthy and Stephanus is affectingly and sympathetically portrayed by Miss Edith Drayson.

Hippodrome.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Douglas F. Bostock.—Home from the Honeymoon, a farcical comedy sketch, presented by Mr. Arthur Jefferson, is the leading attraction here this week, and provides fun in abundance. The Derrington Family of acrobatic trick cyclists perform in a wonderfully clever and daring manner; Walter Emerson scores with his quaint songs; Maud Hillman and Maurice Russell submit an entertaining and original vocal comedy duologue, The Somnambulist; Will'e Stopit is very funny and amusing in his acrobatic comedy and dancing turn; Harry Marlow and May Manton are highly successful in their comedy sketch Winning a Wife; Alf. Holt as an American mimic and sifteur has a flattering reception; Harry Claff, assisted by Alice Tremayne, is well received in his burlesque on pantomime, The Demon and the Fairy; and the Bioscope shows some excellent pictures.

Town Hall.—Proprietors, Magistrates and Council.—W. F. Frame, "the man you know," paid a visit with his company on Saturday evening. The well-known Scotch comedian was in his happiest vein, and kept his large audience delighted. The company otherwise was good, and included Maud de Velin, vocalist; A. F. Hands, top-boot and sand dancer and club swinger; Burnetti, instrumentalist; George Belrose, baritone vocalist; Brull and Hemsley, comedians; and Mons. Argo, animal mimic.

PENZANCE.—St. John's Hall.—Mr. Robert Macdonald's Dairymaids company appeared here for two nights this week, and record houses gave the talented company, which included Miss Isa Bowman as Peggy, an enthusiastic reception. Messrs. A. J. Rogers and Son are to be congratulated on bringing such good things so far west, and there is every evidence of their enterprise being encouraged.

PETERBOROUGH. — Empire.—Manager, Mr. A. Darville Vernon.—Captain Devereux, with his dog sensation, The Canine Streets of London, forms the principal attraction here. Ivy Dene is a capital comedienne and dancer, Will Owen a silent jester, Mlle. Zelda a novel instrumental lady, and Percy Johnson an eccentric comedian. The Emson Girls are expert dancers, the Gelders magicians and entertainers, and Bennett and Martell funny in The Shipwrecked Mariners.

New Hippodrome.—Lessees, Messrs. Fred Karno and A. H. Edwards; Manager, Mr. Frank Gallagher.—The Hippodrome reopened on Monday evening under entirely different management, a capital programme being provided. Astley's American Circus, introducing the great riding machine, created roars of laughter; Ivy Proudfoot is a dainty comedienne; and Captain Ellis and Son, instrumentalists, singers, and dancers; Chas. Sloman, comedian; Eadie and Ramsden, in their musical comedy duo; and Cliff Ryland, who correctly describes himself as "the essence of quaintness," are all very clever. Frank R. Burdett's company in the military sketch Muting, and the Hippodrome pictures complete.

PLYMOUTH.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—Mr. F. R. Benson's company occupies the boards here this week, and on Monday Hamlet was presented, and received a very scholarly representation. In the title-rôle Mr. Henry Herbert was particularly successful, and the young actor had a grand reception; as Claudius Mr. James Berry was extremely good, particularly during the progress of the murder play; as the loquacious old Chamberlain, Polonius, Mr. Arthur Fayne did well, and also essayed the rôle of First Gravedigger with success; Mr. Everard Vanderlip lent distinction to the part of Horatio, and Mr. Bernard Limpus dramatically portrayed Laertes. As Ophelia Miss Gladys Vanderzee was seen to advantage, particularly in her mad scene; and Miss Violet Farebrother as Hamlet's mother did extremely well. The other plays submitted during the week were Romeo and Juliet, Richard III., Twelfth Night, The School for Scandal, and The Merchant of Venice.

Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—Mr. Leonard Gautier's animated toyshop, in which he introduces highly-trained ponies and performing dogs, is highly appreciated. The Harvey Boys as District Messengers excel with amusing dialogue and comedy boxing; John F. Burke and company are successful in the musical comedy Leave It To Me; Tom Bryce, assisted by Miss Bryce, presents a musical sketch, in which the fine voice of the lady is heard to advantage; Steeley and Dowton, burlesque artists, and Harry Taylor, Hebrew comedian, score well; and the juvenile Decima Brooke and Vernon's Imperial Bioscope complete a capital programme.

PONTEFRACT.—Alexandra Theatre of Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. Tom Diacoff.—"Excellent" may be written as to the bill this week. Imprimis are the Milsted-Bell Trio, in a comprehensive sketch, Three Sharps in a Flat, the individual members being each smart in their respective parts. Harding and Preston create real humour over the engagement of a "sub" by an editor; Marjutti undulates in most graceful postures; La Belle Tosca juggles on a rolling ball as easily as on terra firma; Hilder and Beatrice give some really good music; Harley and Hardon cause uproarious laughter with their jokes and antics; Neville Delmar is a refined comedian; and Mlle. Vanda is elegant and daring on the silver wire; Tom Moore, who provides further comedy, is an actor of ability, with a voice that an operatic singer might envy. The Bioscope continues to give every satisfaction.

PORTH.—Palace.—Proprietors, Poole's Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. C. W. Poole; Manager, Mr. Walter Bynorth.—The Hilgert Arkas company top the bill here, and deserve special mention for their equilibristic performance. The two Kays, in their scena, are most entertaining; Vickey Delmar, drum and bugle soloist, is a capital turn; Lily Lonsdale, comedienne, scores a success; the Columbia Comedy Trio evoke roars of laughter; Ernie Myers is a capital comedian; the Onox Duo of quick-change artists, Bert Danson, patter comedian, and the Palascope are other attractions in a capital programme.

PORTSMOUTH.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—This week we have the Follies, with new ideas, including Pelissier's Potted Plays, concluding with a burlesque of a benefit matinée, entitled Everybody's Benefit.

Prince's Theatre.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—Mr. Douglas Bruce's company is staging here for the week the successful drama The Girl Who Lost Her Character. Miss Violet Eunice Lawson, in the name-part, Molly Vernon, is excellent. Mr. Harold Macartney, as Jack England, is an able and effective soldier hero; Mr. Edward McLean sustains the part of the Rev. Robert Everton with ability; the unscrupulous ruffian, Captain Geoffrey Caversham is impersonated in a frankly brutal fashion by Mr. Richard Ferris, who is well supported by Miss Lydia Mannington as Marian Franklyn, the adventuress; James Sutton finds a satisfactory exponent in Mr. George Mitchell; Miss Sybil Hare as Rose Seymour plays with care; Miss Mary Poulton as Isabella Jones, and Mr. George H. Asquin in the part of Dick Punch fill the lighter side of the drama most admirably.

King's Theatre.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Claude Marner; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Thomas

Barrasford.—A programme of more than usual excellence is arranged for the week here. Le Roy, Talma, and Bosco, in Visions of Dreamland, submitted a particularly clever entertainment, full of mystic surprises; Reid and Power, in brisk comedy sketch, The Chambermaid, are smart; Adams and Ward, acrobatic comedians, are entirely satisfactory in their novel and lively turn; Lloyd Morgan, light comedian, had a flattering reception for his vocal effort; Miss Thierry's company, in ably mounted scena, A Daughter of the Revolution, gave an excellent and powerfully presented sketch of the period, and met with deserved success; Madge Temple, musical comedy queen, a very smart and up-to-date artist, contributed a meritorious vocal item; Heeley and Meeley, in their original scena, Two Lucky Tramps, were enthusiastically recalled; Violet Halls, a dashing comedienne, of capable vocal power, did well, and had a warm greeting. The animated pictures by the Barrascope give great pleasure by their amusing character.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Captain Warren Leigh; Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—A capital programme is offered here for the week. Macolm Scott, in his latest success, "The woman who knows," "The Directoire girl," and burlesque on Miss Allan's dance, "Salome," is most popular and scores heavily; an attractive turn is submitted by Teresa Da Silva, whose sympathetic and tuneful voice is heard to advantage; Cromo and Hamilton, in novelty burlesque, Artful Aladdin, are smart; Harry Bancroft is a capable actor-vocalist; Emmie Ames, star comedienne, with her Christmas tree ditty, gains favour; Frank Elliston and company, in Aunt Matilda, are most successful; Effie White, kaleidoscopic danseuse, in Spirit of the Cave, submits an interesting and pretty entertainment; Colonel Smythe and Miss Julie Wesson, exponents of rapid and accurate shooting, have a most effective exhibition. Payne's Bio. with new pictures portrays popular events.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris; Acting-Manager, Colonel Roberts, V.D.—Mr. George Dance's company heads the bill here in a musical comedy sketch of much merit, entitled The Burglar's Ball. Mr. Billy Stephens and the Misses Madge Soutter and Florence Hylton appear with success. Mr. Fred Hallam is an eccentric comedian of the approved style; Elton and Edwin, banjo duo, are a smart and capable pair; Miss Jennie Alexander, child comedienne and mimic, shows cleverness in her impersonations; Miss Peggy Lennie and Walter Hast have a poetic phantasy, A Sea Nymph; Miss Jessie Merrilees, in two pleasing vocal numbers, does well; the Flying Hanlons, in an aerial stage act, are to be highly commended for some brisk work; Mr. Fred Hastings is amusing in his monologue, Love, Courtship, and Marriage; and the Hippo. Pictures conclude.

PRESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Executors of the late Mr. W. Johnson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—Messrs. Sutton and Rayner's company, in a répertoire of plays, opened on Monday with Moths. Mr. Cecil Wynne gave a characteristic rendering of Zouroff; Mr. Raynor was excellently cynical as Lord Jura, and Mr. C. Lodge Percy gave a good account of himself as the Duke of Mull. Mr. Conrad Heywood sustained the part of Corrèze in a convincing manner, and Mr. Chas. Bickell was a capable Boris; Miss Nellie Statham gave a capital and careful rendition of the by-no-means easy part of Lady Dolly; while Miss Dorothy West-Symes as Vere won the sympathies of the audience by a really natural portrayal. Miss Cecilia Dare also is to be complimented on her clever rendering of the Duchess; Miss Henrietta Schrier as Fuschia Leach was excellent, though her accent was at times a little too pronounced for the true American. The play was capitally staged and well received. During the week the company will present Camille and Harvest.

PRINCE'S THEATRE. — Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—Mr. C. Watson Mills' company, including Miss Lillian Herries, is here for the first time in A Warning to Women. Mr. Leonard Lawrence gives a weird and powerful portrayal of Dr. Marcus Dread; Mr. William Vane is a very pleasing Shaun; Mr. C. O'Connor as Fergus McNaughton is manly and natural; Mr. Harry Douglas is most amusing as Lord Eversleigh, and raises many a laugh; Mr. Henry Rutland is a dignified Squire Kennion; Mr. Alec Finlayson is a typical Rev. Emmanuel Wallace; Mr. Oscar Power has plenty of scope for his Irish witticisms in the part of Mike McQuade, of which he takes full advantage. Miss Edith Rutland plays the part of Myles O'Moore, a cripple, very sympathetically; Miss Winifred Rutland is a most winsome Sheila Kennion; Miss Ellen Beverley has a part in Molly O'Moore which suits her admirably, and Miss Lillian Herries as Moira Kennion displays considerable power, and wins much applause for her excellent rendition of the part. The rest of the characters in a lengthy cast are all in good hands, who work hard, and the play is admirably mounted.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank E. Burdett.—An excellent performance is given by the Onlaw Trio in their Parisian novelty wire act, which includes some wonderful feats; Ada Jenner has a capital sketch, The Lady Barber; Jessie Jukes is a juvenile vocalist and dancer of much promise; another talented duo of juveniles are the Sisters Lotus, both of whom possess good voices. Rowland Hill gives a couple of his well-known songs, and some patter which strikes the right note; the Sisters Valli, in their unique musical and dancing act, prove themselves accomplished in a big-boot dance; Percy Curry, the original comedy man, is a favourite; Morny Cash, the Lancashire lad, is another clever comedian; Phil Herman, comedian and story-teller, succeeds in his efforts to amuse; and When the Cat's Away on the Bioscope concludes.

RADCLIFFE. — GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Sante; Acting-Manager, Mr. James Boothman.—A Country Girl in London is played in first-rate style by Messrs. A. Northway and Mr. W. V. Garrod's company. Mr. W. V. Garrod as Frank Gordon submits a distinctly clever piece of acting; the villain, Godfrey Clinton, is presented by Mr. G. Moreton Williams in forcible and finished style; the character of Mr. John Hamilton, by Mr. John S. Sheridan, and that of Job Smithers, by Mr. Clifford Marle, are well and ably sustained; and Heinrich Oppenheim is realistically portrayed by Mr. E. W. Avery. Miss Josephine Colona deserves unstinted praise for her rendering of Gwendoline Gordon; and Miss B. Kingston displays great dramatic skill in the part of Marjorie Hamilton. Mr. S. Perry and Miss Lesley Adair deserve commendation as Mr. and Mrs. Puddyphat.

RAWTENSTALL.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; General Business-Manager, Mr. A. B. Feather.—The latest attraction here is Mr. Walter Melville's company, in The Girl Who Took the Wrong Turning, and a most successful opening was made on Monday evening to another excellent house. Miss Jessie Belmore renders the title-rôle in a charming manner, and proves herself a clever young actress; Miss Nannie Meade is also very effective as the villainess, Vesta Le Clare, her impersonation being artistic; as Lucy Miss Zoe Davis gives an excellent portrayal; and as Poppy Slater Miss Marie Kildare supplies a sparkling impersonation. As Jack Fenton Mr. Frank R. Robertson gives an artistic delineation; Mr. Sidney Sarl is a clever Bill Slater; and Mr. F. Ronald Adair impersonates Will Mason in a fine, manly style, giving the part a breezy and at the same time, sympathetic air. As Johnny Walker, Mr. Fred Ingham evokes roars of laughter; Mr. Frank Denis as James Fenton gives a clever study; and as James Harcourt Mr. Raymond Wood is artistic. The scenery and dresses are elaborate.

RAMSGATE.—ROYAL VICTORIA THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jules Richeux.—The visit of the Moody-Manners Opera Company, in a fine répertoire, has proved an unqualified success. Faust was given on Monday evening, with Mr. John Child in the chief male part. His singing and acting, like that of Miss Rose O'Farrell as Marguerite, were keenly enjoyed, and the other members of the company contributed most creditably to the general excellence of the production. On Tuesday Madame Butterfly filled the bill, with Mr. Charles Carter playing brilliantly as the American Lieutenant. His vocalism is of a very high standard of musical merit. Miss Enriquita Crichton proved herself an operatic artist of marked talent as the Japanese girl, and the tout ensemble was first-class, recalls being frequent. On Wednesday a matinée performance of Il Trovatore was given, while Maritana filled the evening bill. The remainder of the répertoire consisted of Tannhäuser, Carmen, Rigoletto, and The Bohemian Girl.

ROYAL PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; Resident-Manager, Mr. Dan Forrest.—Venus, the late Lord Leighton's model, was the chief attraction in a programme of varieties put on on the first three evenings of the week, a number of studies being artistically carried out. Other names in the programme were those of Mlle. Daphne Dobson (danseuse), the Sisters Sligo (quartette), Lynn (the original singing newsboy), Dorothy, Joan, and Pic (step-dancers), Ærolia (on the silver wire), Coombes and Webb (banjoists), Leoville (trapeze artist), and W. H. Blackman (character impersonations). On Thursday Mr. Herbert Ralland's company commenced a three nights' engagement with Mr. Pinero's play, His House in Order—a really fine show.

MARINA THEATRE.—The popular picture shows here have been continued successfully, with entertaining variety turns interspersed. Thursday was set apart as a complimentary benefit to Mr. W. J. Attack, the courteous manager, who has done so much during this season to enhance the good name of the Marina and increase its popularity with the public.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Benton.—Mr. Geo. Edwardes' company is doing excellent business this week with The Merry Widow, which is drawing crowded houses. The play is sumptuously mounted and the dresses are superb. Miss Mysie Devine makes a most fascinating Merry Widow; Mr. Frank Greene is a stalwart representative of Prince Danilo, and sustains the part with conspicuous ability; Mr. Edward D'Arcy as Baron Popoff and Mr. Fred Fowler as Nisch are highly diverting; Mr. Ripley Evans uses a good voice to the best advantage in the character of the Viscount Camille de Jolidon; Mr. William Allison as the Marquis de Cascada, Mr. F. Pedgrift as M. de St. Brioche, and Mr. Robert Needham as M. Khadja all act well as the Merry Widow's admirers. Mr. Clifford Seyler is amusing as the jealous General Novikovitch; and Mr. Bert Edwards is very droll as the waiter at Maxim's. Miss Ada Thomas plays with much vivacity as Natalie; Miss Daphne Glenne as Olga, Miss Violet Hobson as Sylvanie, and Miss Lucie Donati as Prascovia take their parts well. The Girls at Maxim's are impersonated by a charming bevy of artists, and a powerful chorus and augmented orchestra do full justice to the melodious music of the play, under the efficient direction of the conductor, Mr. Ernest Vousden.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Howard Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. E. Draco.—The Four Maisanos, French musical clowns, provide an excellent and amusing turn. Some pretty illuminated effects are produced in Broughton's electric scena, in which Elsie St. Clair and the Sisters May appear. Madison and Webb are very diverting; Dolly Denton is a dainty comedienne; the Monte Carlo Girls dance with vivacity; Sam Mitchello is an amusing comedian and efficient step dancer; George C. Doughty and company appear in a capital sketch, entitled Captain Cupid; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Finden create much amusement in their sketch, A Desperate Remedy; and the Palace Bioscope completes an excellent programme.

ROCHDALE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Hague.—Alone in London occupies the boards here this week. The play finds favour with the patrons of the popular parts of the house. Mr. Harry McCleland makes a dignified Mr. Burnaby; Mr. Blundell Fenton is heard to advantage as Walter Burnaby; Mr. Percy Rhodes very cleverly impersonates the polished villain, Richard Redcliffe; and Mr. Percy Bell sustains with marked effect the pious fraud, Jenkinson. Miss Mary Stafford Smith is pathetic as Tom Chickweed; Miss Rose Grey acts well the part of Ruth Clifton; and Miss Theresa Osborne wins all hearts by her womanly acting in the part of Nan. Mr. Lonnen Meadows as Charley Johnson infuses a welcome element of humour.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves. — A good all-round programme is presented to the patrons here this week. Les Ados submit a refined display of muscular skill and strength; Brothers Obo are highly amusing with their patter and laughing song; and Carlos Menard is a violinist of no mean order, his tricks on the violin being both clever and amusing. The Legienes Troupe of acrobats; Bros. Harrison, comedians, &c.; Beau and Belle, in a vocal scena; W. B Roby, comedian; and the Empire Bioscope pictures complete the bill of fare.

ROTHERHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—Mr. Walter Melville's company is making a welcome return visit here with a Girl's Cross Roads, and is receiving well-deserved support. Miss Hilda Beverley as Barbara Wade is the central figure of the plot and to her clever acting the success attained is chiefly due. The mounting and scenery are of an elaborate character.

HIPPODROME, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J Edgar Fox; Resident-Manager, Mr. Claude Shayler.—Mr. Shaun Glenville heads the bill, and, supported by Miss Ada Tilley and Mr. Augustus Symonds, causes much amusement with a clever sketch, The Art of Deception. Miss Lilian Travellie is a pleasing ballad vocalist; and Messrs. Denby and Dent are smart comedians. An amusing musical comedy sketch, His Worship the Mayor, is introduced with great success, the title rôle being cleverly taken by Mr. Maitland Marler. Mr. Sidney Kearns being very smart as Jack Harcourt. Miss Marie Clayton is responsible for some pretty musical numbers, and Mr. Cayri B. Storrs is deserving of mention as Monty Fitz-Herbert. Miss Lalie Brooke has a pretty scena in Girls Past and Present, and Mr. T. C. Jaques is well received; Les Marbas are deservedly applauded for their humorous acrobatic turn; the Florias are seen to great advantage in a comedy wire act; and Mr. Sam Dalton is also deserving of mention.

RYDE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Charles Constant.—A welcome re-visit has been received this week from Mr. Norman V. Norman and his talented company. The Adventure of Lady Ursula was given on Monday. Mr. Norman in the part of Sir George Sylvester and Miss Beatrice Wilson as Lady Ursula Barrington both performed in delightful fashion. Mr. Norman Leslie as Mr. Castleton was also seen to advantage. The week's programme also included Nell Gwynn of Drury Lane, Still Waters Run Deep, and David Garrick

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. B. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Willard's company is appearing this week in The Midnight Mail, which continues to draw good houses. Mr. George Harvard wins hearty applause as Harry Steyne; Billy Brewer (the drunken stoker) is a capital study by Mr. Charles Carte; Mr. C. A. Wentworth as the unscrupulous Hassan Padisha makes a great impression; and Mr. J. Mann as Gerald Eustace does well. Mary Steyne is ably sustained by Miss T. Humphreys; Miss Daisy Clifford is an excellent Nancy Brewer; Lady Phyllis Eustace is charmingly portrayed by Miss Jeannie Weston; and Mr. C. H. Longden as Leonard Boyle and Mr. J. Wilkinson as Sergeant O'Flynn deserve much praise. The staging is good throughout.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—The electrical musical transformation act by Victor Morgan's company is a pretty and smart performance; Mme. Sims Reeves sings well a couple of her late husband's songs; a comical sketch is given by Mooney and Holbein, their patter and songs being very good; and the Katos Komikal Kidgets in their miniature theatre; Mario Wilton, comedienne and dancer; Webb and Branston, pleasing operatic duettists; Peter Bermingham, patter Scotch comedian; Daisy Martell, comedienne and dancer; Will Johnson, comedian; and Three Seebornes, clever acrobats, also give acceptable turns. The sacred concert on Sunday in aid of the local Lifeboat Fund was an immense success.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Son; General-Manager, Mr. H. Winstanley; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Wentworth.—Twice nightly The Stepmother, by Arthur Shirley, proves very acceptable as presented by William Holles and Nannie Goldman's company. Mr. William Holles represents Bob Bristow in a masterly manner; Danny is cleverly played by Miss Nannie Goldman; the title-rôle is well filled by Miss Eve Mansell; Miss Dorothy Duncan is a charming Amy Bristow; Mr. Eric Hudson makes a realistic detective as David Blake; and Miss Ida Taylor is good as Clara (the child). Miss Violet Agnew as Johanna Jones and Mr. Fred Dark as Timothy Yapp cause much laughter; and good studies are provided by Mr. Arthur Rodney as Abraham Wiggins and Mr. Wilton Reed as Luke Trixel.

OPERA HOUSE AND ASSEMBLY ROOMS, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Lester King.—My Wife's Dog, A Drama of Country Life, Puss in Boots, Reveller's Dream, Doctor's Experiment, The Magic Wand, and Sandwich Women are among the pictures this week. The illustrated song, "While life shall last," is well rendered by Mr. Tom S. Sherlock.

SALISBURY. — VICTORIA PARK. — Director of Entertainments, Mr. F. D'Alton Tebby; Manageress, Miss Jessie D'Alton.—Several thousands assembled to show their appreciation of these high-class entertainments when Mr. and Mrs. D'Alton Tebby (Miss Jessie D'Alton) took their third annual benefit. A long and varied programme was given. Miss Jessie D'Alton created quite a furore with her singing and illuminated serpentine dances. Miss Lilian Ramsdale's vivacious manner and dainty dancing made her success assured; Miss Beatrice Witham possesses a good voice, which was displayed in some suitable songs; Miss Edna Lynne also has a tuneful voice and a charming manner. Mr. Albert Laurence maintained his popularity in female impersonations; Mr. Bert Earle sang excellently; Mr. Wal Kent proved an amusing comedian; and Mr. Cliff Harrold performed the duties of pianist effectively.

COUNTY HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. Arthur Whitehead; Business-Manager, Mr. T Brinsmead.—A packed house welcomed Miss Inez Howard's company in The Soldier's Wedding. Mr. Roy Gordon as Jack, the hero, acted in manly fashion; and Mr. W. Carriden filled the rôle of Colonel Graham in a talented style. As Tommy Spratt, Mr. G. Berwick was highly amusing; Mr. David Urquhart played Charles Courtney realistically; Master Harry Thorpe as Teddy Munro filled his part cleverly; Miss Jean Wigney was charming as Nancy Lee, Miss Lena Gordon submitted a fine piece of acting as Julie de Beauvrais; Miss Evelyn Marrable as Lizzie Walker amused everyone, and as Peggy Munroe Miss Rita Rosslyn played with sincerity.

SEACOMBE.—IRVING THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Kiernan.—Mr. John Lawson and company are proving a strong attraction here this week with The King's Minister, The Monkey's Paw, and Humanity. The versatility of Mr. Lawson has full scope in the varying styles of the three pieces, and he acquits himself well in each case. The other members of the company, including Miss Lucille Sidney, Miss Buena Bent, Miss L. Bernhardt, Mr. P. Bioletti, Mr. S. Harde, Mr. St. Lawrence, Mr. G. P. Howell, Mr. Newman Cohen, Mr. G. Horton Tree, and Mr. G. Lubinoff, prove themselves highly capable in their respective parts. The interludes are filled by the Glenroy Troupe, in a clever speciality dancing act; Miss May de Rouse, comedienne; and the Bioscope.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. A. C. Harrison; Manager, Mr. Harry D. Lyle.—Mr. Julian Malvern's company, under the direction of Mr. Chas. M. Julian, is here this week, with I Defy the World. Mr. Percy Ballard impersonates the exacting part of Leon Darville in a thoroughly able manner; his impersonations are especially good. As the Count de Beaulieu, Mr. J. Leicester Jackson plays with excellent effect; Mr Frank Wheatley is a capable Andre; and Laroche is realistically drawn by Mr. Charles Conway. The humorous part of Samuel Wozzle is in the capable hands of Mr. Chas. M. Julian. Other good comedy parts are those of Najack and Bonchon, rendered by Mr. Dalton J. Bosher and Mr. Newton Pearce. As Pauline Delaport, Miss Blanche St. Albans is a delightful exponent of the part; Blanche Darville is skilfully impersonated by Miss Violet Craufurd; Miss Maud Lillian is a capital Maria Wozzle; and as Fanchette little Laura Marshall wins great praise.

SHEERNESS. — HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Sheerness Hippodrome Co.—The chief attraction here this week is The Book of Life, a clever and amusing act, which is proving successful; Les Belles Americaines are expert acrobatic dancers; Lozelle, comedy gymnast, provides an interesting turn; John Parrot is amusing in song and patter; and Lord, Murray, and Lord, in Fun in a Gymnasium, are accorded a hearty reception. Nellie Neil is an expert bâton manipulator; and Madge Bryce, comedienne, completes.

CO-OPERATIVE HALL.—Lessees, the New Bioscope Trading Co.; Manager, Mr. F. R. Griffiths.—There is an excellent series of animated pictures here this week. Worthy of special mention are The Nihilists, The Emigrants, In the Days of Rebellion, Mashing the Master, and The Music Teacher.

SHEFFIELD. — LYCEUM THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont. — Mr. Fred Terry and his company are appearing to crowded houses this week in The Scarlet Pimpernel.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—The Idol of Paris was played to a big audience on Monday by Mr. Jas. Beel's company. The scenery was effective and the costumes brilliant. Miss Annie Bell, in the title-rôle, sounded the entire gamut of feminine passion; Mr. Wilson Howard played with force and distinction the part of Phillipe d'Esterre; and other characters were well acted by Mr. Gordon Robey, Mr. Pringle Roberts, Mr. C. Roberts, Mr. Charles Stafford, Mr. Ellis Carlyle, Mr. R. Neill, Mr. R. H. Hamer, Miss Pharo Anderson, Miss Grace Noble, Miss Fitzhugh, and Miss Megonn

ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. William D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—The Fatal Wedding is a favourite play with local theatre-goers, and Mr. Bert Cootes' talented company were cordially welcomed by a crowded house on Monday. Mr. Cyril Melton made a quaint and genial janitor as Peter Schwartz; Mr. Frank Harrison was a typical New York "fast man" as Robert Curtis; Miss Ethel Kay acted with strong emotional ability as Mabel Wilson; and Mr. Cecil Melton was again the dignified millionaire, Howard Wilson. The "Little Mother" was cleverly represented by Miss Lulu Wohlmann; and Mr. Frank Ashley made a humorous officer, O'Reilly. The lively concert in the third act was contributed to by the Misses Sarah Rich, Marie Wilson, Edith Dews, Violet Dupré, Hilda Mahlert, Doreen Aberdare, Dorothy Payne, Dot Jeffries, and a chorus of well-trained vocalists. The Indian scena, "Caraboo," was loudly applauded.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—The Moss' Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—The comic stars of the variety world follow each other in rapid succession, the latest arrival at the palatial Charles-street theatre being that old Sheffield favourite, the popular and mirth-provoking character comedian, Mr. Harry Randall, in new songs and old favourites. Mr. Tom Foy and his company caused great merriment in the comic skit, A Yorkshire Lad in London; the well-known Proveanis do a smart and graceful cycling act; and other successful performers this week are the Sados, novelty artists; Miss Lola Patey, vocalist; the Barton and Franklyn Trio, musical and comedy entertainers; the pretty and lively Stella Girls; Takio, the clever Jap; and Miss Netta Starr, comedienne. Some good animated pictures are also presented.

THE HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. P. D. Elbourne.—The pièce de résistance on Monday was the delightful operatic absurdity, Happy Holland, which is well staged and admirably performed by Mr. Jake Friedman and a first-rate company; Beatie and Babs are two talented juvenile singers and dancers; the Two Falcons, comic tumblers, are repeatedly applauded; the Carmos are first-rate jugglers; the Saletos do a smart balancing act; and other pleasing turns are those of Messrs. Ingram and Irvine, comic boxers; Messrs. Nash and Noel, patterers; Miss Lillie Lassah, a vivacious serio-comic; and the Barrascope, with a pathetic dramatic film story, Too Old to Work.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. A. W. Turpin.—In addition to the artistic animated pictures by the Raymond Bio-tableaux firm, the company includes Mr. Frank Street, a comical jokist; Wake and Dean, variety entertainers; Guest and Newlyn, comic duettists and dancers; Mr. C. Jones, with heart-stirring illustrated Celtic ditties; and Mlle. Bartenelli, in a novel speciality act. Good business continues the rule at this cosy theatre.

ALBERT HALL.—Manager, Mr. J. Peace.—Mr. Joshua Dyson, with his pleasing costume concert company, diorama, and artistic animated pictures, and Swiss choir, is doing good business nightly.

CENTRAL THEATRE.—Lessees, The Jasper Redfern Co., Ltd.—Good pictures and a small, but talented, variety company are pleasing large audiences at this favourite resort.

THE PAVILION.—This renovated hall appears to have entered on a successful career as a well-conducted picture theatre.

SHREWSBURY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Licensee and Business-Manager, Mr. W. C. Dornton.—Messrs. Neville and Carnaby's hard-working and capable company is here this week with the romantic piece, Napoleon's Divorce, which proves a popular attraction. Mr. F. H. Neville makes a powerful Napoleon Bonaparte; Mr. John Loden as Joseph Bonaparte acts with ability; Mr. W. Ellythorne makes a capable Colonel D'Arville; Mr. C. Moore acts successfully as Duke St. Everard; Mr. J. Holt is an amusing Sergt. Baton; Mr. E. Shaw infuses plenty of life and fun into the part of Jules; Mr. F. H. Fortescue makes a good Pierre; Miss Veronica Clinton acts creditably as Marie Louise; and Miss Kate Randolph is a graceful and effective Josephine.

SMETHWICK. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor, Mr. C. Barnard; Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson.—Home, Sweet Home, is being played by Mr. Frank Lindo's company. As Stephen Armitage, Mr. Frank Lindo gives a manly interpretation; as David Armitage, Mr. D. Lawrence Doyle is excellent; Mr. Archer Brown is everything desirable as the Duke of Ancaster; and Mr. Helsby Wright is clever as Lucas Lyle. Mr. Norton Shields gives a capable impersonation of the Hon. Percy; and Mr. R. Walsh is good as Dick Redmayne. Miss Marion Wakeford as Joan is artistic; and Miss Maud Leslie Cudd is a clever exponent of Sybil Fay. Mr. Tom E. Lewis as Solomon Keary supplies an amusing diversion with his "bones" speciality. On Wednesday, David Garrick was played, with Mr. Frank Lindo as Garrick and Miss Marion Wakeford as Laura, supported by the full company.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—EMPIRE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Geo. Conquest and Richard H. Nerney; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—Mr. Charles Frohman's company (under the direction of Mr. Silvanus Dauncey) gave on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday successful portrayals of The Hypocrites, which drew capital support. Mr. H. Laurence Leyton impersonated the Rev. Edgar Linnell, and gained well-deserved honours; Mr. Ernest H. Ruston made a good exponent of Mr. Wilmore, and his son Leonard was creditably portrayed by Mr. John Dennys; Mr. Charles Tyrel as Sir John Plunget, Bart., was well suited; as also were Mr. Frederick Morland as Mr. Niveash, lawyer, and Mr. F. G. Thurstons as the Rev. Everard Daubeney, vicar. Miss Laura Graves used her abilities to advantage in the rôle of Mrs. Wilmore; Miss Muriel Pope sustained the character of Rachel Neve in successful manner; and Miss Muriel Mason as Helen Plugenet gave every satisfaction. The Idler was billed for Thursday and the rest of the week.

THE KURSAAL. — Secretary and Manager, Mr. P. T. J. Bacon.—This week's theatre programme, submitted twice daily, is of the usual excellent diversified character, which draws good support and gives entire satisfaction. The contributors include the Prince Milner Trio in pleasing displays of novel acrobatic hoop manipulating and wire walking; Miss Nellie Giles, operatic vocalist; the Two Dominoes, who provide much fun; the Walonells, two smart comedy gymnasts; Miss Daisy Reed, in song and dance; Mr. Arthur Stacey, top boot dancer; Miss Lottie Stone's Royal Troupe of vocalists and dancers; Bioscope pictures and the Café Chantant entertainments also add to the enjoyment. The Dahomey Warriors give a life-like description of the manners and customs of their country.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessee, Mr. H. E. Angless; Manager, Mr. Stanley E. Angless.—Mr. H. F. Maltby provides the attraction, and his clever company add greatly to the success they achieved the previous week by an admirable portrayal of Fraud, a play in four acts strikingly representing the adventures of a lady typist, which was thoroughly enjoyed on Monday and heartily received. Mr. H. F. Maltby gains much applause for his able characterisation of Robert Jones; Miss Mara Maltby is no less successful in her clever impersonation of Ernestine; Mr. Arthur Claremont is an able exponent of Leslie Parkington; Mr. Wyn Weaver makes a prominent character of Mr. Barnes; and Messrs. Brember Wills and Norman H. Tracey give good interpretations of the Rev. Stanley Kershaw, B.A., and Tommy. Miss Florence Wynn is well suited as Miss Butler.

SOUTHPORT.—OPERA HOUSE, WINTER GARDENS.—Proprietors, The Southport Opera House and Winter Gardens Co., Ltd.; Secretary and General-Manager, Mr. R. Singleton.—Mr. William Mollison's répertoire company, including Miss Evelyn McNay, opened here on Monday with a capital all-round performance of The Merchant of Venice. In his conception of Shylock Mr. Mollison scored a notable success, all the phases of the character being depicted with admirable effect; Miss Evelyn McNay presented a graceful, clever, and well-studied impersonation of Portia; Antonio was exceedingly well played by Mr. William Calvert; Mr. Archie W. Chappell assumed the part of Bassanio with great credit; Mr. Henry Deas did full justice to the rôle of Gratiano; Miss Gladys Brandon Gower was a highly commendable and piquant representative of Nerissa; Miss Edith Blair-Staples skilfully portrayed the character of Jessica; Mr. Murray Graham was well placed as Lorenzo, and other good impersonations were submitted by Mr. Whitford Kane as the Prince of Morocco, Mr. Leslie Lingham and Mr. H. Owen Taylor as Solanio and Salarino respectively, Mr. R. B. Drysdale as Lancelot Gobbo, and Mr. Harold Neville as Old Gobbo. Hamlet, As You Like It, The Bonnie Briar Bush, and David Garrick are also billed.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. John and Fred Coulson.—Edward L. Garside and J. Forbes Knowles' company is here in Her Marriage Vow. Mr. E. J. Collins gives a fine character-study of Daffy Daw; Mr. Charles B. Bedells powerfully portrays the villain, Gilbert Carlton; Ned Benton is ably depicted by Mr. J. Forbes Knowles; Miss Helena Walbran makes a charming Kate Walters; Hester Norton is pleasingly interpreted by Miss Nellie Shirley; Mr. Dan Ryan as Larry Leary and Miss Winifred Barton as Maggie Clare provide abundance of comedy, being ably seconded by Mr. Wilford Bailey as Eben Chubb and Miss Grace Ryder as Almira. Mr. John W. Ryder and Mr. W. Wilby are good as William Walters and Jim Burke; and the same may be said of Mr. W. Brooks as Jenks.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietors, The South Shields Empire Palace, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—Mark Sheridan, who has lost none of his characteristic originality, is awarded a warm welcome; J. P. Ling, a clever comedian and mimic, wins applause; Phil and Nettie Peters contribute a good comedy item; some first-class dancing is displayed by Aide Martine and Lottie Govell; Eugene and Willie provide a smart acrobatic musical turn; Marie Empress is a smart burlesque artist; Gus Le Clerq, a successful comedian; and the Bioscope completes.

Tivoli.—Proprietor, Councillor J. K. Hall.—Some excellent music is rendered by the Les Tafanos; the Fordyces contribute a refined comedy and dancing turn; and the Tivoliscope shows excellent films.

Cosy Corner.—Burton's comedians still maintain their popularity. Many new concerted items have been put on, and a new comedy, especially written by the prolific and versatile author-composer and proprietor Mr. Geo. Burton, entitled Muddled, Mixed, and Married. Mr. Burton has fairly caught the popular taste here.

STALYBRIDGE.—Hippodrome.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Fioni; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. A. Jackson.—Mr. G. Webber, basso, possesses a voice of remarkable range and quality, and delights the audience; Alf. Gibson is a quaint comedian; Lena Page, burlesque actress; Bennett and Stirling, American comedy duo; the St. Johns, instrumentalists and dancers; and Edna Francis, vocalist and dancer, acquit themselves with credit; and D. J. M'Carthy appears in his monologue, "The Coastguard."

ST. HELENS.—Theatre and Opera House.—Proprietors, St. Helens Theatre, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. A. McLeod Loader.—Driven from Home is being played here by Mr. Andrew Melville's company. Mr. Felix Pitt, the Anthony Raybrook, plays with considerable power; Walter Hatherleigh is in the capable hands of Mr. P. George Beresford; and Mr. Charles Burdon makes an acceptable villain in the part of Geoffrey Waring. A good character sketch of Willie is given by Mr. Percy Dawsone; and Mr. Harry Cornwall also is successful as Jabez. A good deal of fun is provided by Mr. Fred C. Imbert as John Anderson and by Miss Edith Leslie as Margaret. Miss Nancy Roberts doubles the parts of Laura Raybrook and Walter Hatherleigh, jun., and enlists the sympathies of the audience in both.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Sley, and Willmot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Walter Mould. A capital programme is provided this week. Clown Barker and Miss Rozsika present a highly-attractive show with their well-trained animals; as novel and eccentric dancers, Moon and Morris excite well-earned applause; the Raymond Trio, excellent dancers, play well on various instruments; Alf Ripon as a ventriloquist is one of the best; Florence and Lillian, who perform in their solos and duets upon the post-horn and violin, are loudly cheered; Ruby Bijou dances daintily in character; Alice Maude is a capital child mimic; and Martin Conway a favourite comedian.

ST. LEONARDS.—Pier Pavilion.—Entertainment-Manager, Mr. Elvey Thomas.—Angela is being presented here by Miss Florence Glossop-Harris and a specially-selected company. The wilful and wayward disposition of Angela is delightfully depicted by Miss Glossop-Harris; Miss Janet Warden plays the part of Mary Rembridge with a light and effective touch; Mr. Arthur Goodsall is clever in the character of Christopher Keswick; a clearly-drawn sketch of John Evesham is furnished by Mr. Cassels Cobb; and as Richard Evesham Mr. Frank Cellier is excellent.

STOCKPORT.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Revill, jun.—There is plenty to interest and amuse in The Woman Pays, which is being presented here this week for the first time. Mr. John Davidson's impersonation of the villain, Roger Marchant, is excellent; Mr. Phil Harper acts in manly style as Sidney Armstrong; Micky Maloney is amusingly played by the author, Mr. Frank M. Thorne; Cyrus Treadgold has a capital representative in Mr. George Butler; Mr. Dunlop Stewart acts with much ability as Luke Morland; and Mr. Claremont Gaskell is genuinely funny as Nathan Moss. Madge Armstrong is charmingly impersonated by Miss Maud Russell; Miss Kate Blair acts with power and effect as Nell Morland; and Polly Stokes is pleasingly portrayed by Miss Anna Walton.

Empire.—Proprietors, The Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.—Diamond and Beatrice, in their pleasing musical entertainment, are starring here this week with marked success; comical and clever is Harry Friskey, juggler; Lambeth and Robertson present an interesting sketch, Scots Folk's Wooing; smart acrobatic dancers are the Four Amarnths; Gus Harris, Hebrew delineator, commands applause; Karr and Kooney are mirth-provoking comedians; and Johnny Dwyer, comedian, Charlton, conjurer, and Shrillo, operatic whistler, contribute ably to the programme.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.—Castle Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. Imeson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Cecil Imeson.—Alfred Sutro's great play, The Walls of Jericho, is presented here this week by Mr. Arthur Bourchier's company. Mr. Alfred Goddard plays with power Mr. Bourchier's part of Jack Frobisher, and the part of Lady Alethea is in the able hands of Miss Nancy Beresford.

Hippodrome.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Stainton.—Mr. Sydney Bacon's company makes a return visit in the bright musical comedy entitled The Duchess of Tooting; The Schiavonys, acrobats, do some daring feats; Edgar Forrest and company appear in a humorous sketch entitled Sunshine and Rain; and other attractive turns come from Mlle. Renée, instrumentalist; Nancy St. John, comedienne; and Alix Lukos, in a protean scena. The pictures, as usual, are very good.

Grand Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. John Batty; Manager, Mr. Walter Batty.—Mr. M. Montgomery's stock company presents here this week a romantic drama entitled Sapho. It is well staged.

STOKE-ON-TRENT.—The Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; General-Manager, Mr. H. F. Miller.—Kennedy's Kiddies are seen in a most entertaining vocal and terpsichorean scena; Bert Terrell, smartly tailored, renders his Dutch songs in good style; the Eeduns appear in a picturesque vocal scena, The Spider, with success; Burke, Andrus, and Frisco present their spectacular absurdity; the Behans' quick-change act is good; some wonderfully trained ravens are introduced by Melia and Mozarabar; and Sam Redfern, Matt Wilkinson and Co. in On the Flip-Flap, and the Bioscope, are also in the bill.

STOURBRIDGE.—Alhambra Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Douglas C. Phelps.—We are receiving a visit from Messrs. Travis Green and Arthur Hinton's company with Home, Sweet Home. Miss Lydia Audre as Joan has an important part in the success of the drama; Mr. Arthur Hinton as Stephen Armitage plays capably. Little Hilda Vokes as Dora speaks her lines intelligently; Mr. Fred G. Ray as David Armitage, Mr. Charles Clifford as Duke of Ancaster, Mr. David Beatiee as Lucas Lyle, Mr. Rupert Larry as Lord Silvermore, and Miss Laura Wright as Sybil Fay, add in a great measure to the success of the performance.

STROUD.—Subscription Rooms.—Manager, Mr. H. J. Twitchett.—Miss Inez Howard's company, under the direction of Mr. Henry Chattell, was here on Saturday, with The Soldier's Wedding. Mr. Roy Gordon was a natural and manly Jack Brown; Mr. W. Carridens (Colonel J. Graham) was a well-sustained effort; Master Harry Thorpe was excellent as the Saucy Nipper; Nathaniel Lee was effectively played by Mr. Willis Collins; and Mr. David Urquhart as the villain acted with skill and ability. Miss Jean Wigney was a sympathetic Nancy Lee and Miss Lena Gordon gave a clever impersonation of Julie de Beauvrais. Mr. Geoffrey Berwick as Tommy Spratt and Miss Evelyn Marrable as Lizzie Walker created plenty of amusement.

SWANSEA.—The Grand.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Oswald Brooks; Acting-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. Walter Dean.—The Dairymaids was introduced to a Swansea audience this week by Mr. Robert McDonald's company. Possessing a delightful personality, Miss Empsie Bowman is a most winsome Peggy, her singing, too, being excellent. Winifred is in the hands of Miss Vera Crichton, whose voice is agreeably mellow and sweet; Lieutenant Sam Brudennel is finely impersonated by Mr. R. Telford, whose dancing is remarkable; Mr. J. Scott Melville's Lieutenant Meredith is a capital performance; Miss Nellie Bowman as Eliza, and Mr. Dan Agar as Joe Mivens, not only dance inimitably, but score heavily in their duet. Miss Carrie Lacey greatly distinguishes herself as Lady Brudenall, and Mr. Bernard Vaughan's conception of Dr. O'Byrne, R.N., is exceedingly good.

The Star.—Manager, Mr. William Coutts; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. J. Powell.—The Ugliest Woman on Earth is attracting well this week. In the title-rôle Miss Beatrice Homer's acting reaches a high standard; Jack Merriman is excellently played by Mr. Philip Darien; and Mr. Leyton Cancellor achieves great success as the villainous Hubert Gold, as does also Mr. Leonard Thackeray as Antonio Luchese. Miss Gertrude Harrision gives a telling portrayal of Rose Courtenay; Mr. Freddie Bensley (Tubby Herrica) and Miss Nellie Jackson (Aggie Brown) excel with their humour.

Empires, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. P. C. Rowe; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. H. Lennon.—George Gilbey, who shares the place of honour here this week with Dutch Daly, scores in the rôle of Spouty, the goalkeeper, a skit whose humour is really excellent; Dutch Daly's concertina solos are as usual great, and jokes are also well told; Henry Coutts is seen to distinct advantage in his protean sketch, Outflanked; Albert Christian's fine baritone retains all its old power, his songs being much enjoyed; Fred Elton introduces a musical speciality, On Board an Ocean Liner, which brings out his talents fully; Kate Cohen, in Tosti's "Good-bye," is something to remember; and the Three Cape Girls' dancing is particularly good. Johnny Walker is an agreeable humorist, and the Bioscope, as usual, is up to the mark.

SWINDON.—Empire Theatre.—Proprietors, The Wiltshire Entertainments Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Alfred Manners.—An interesting programme here this week includes Billy, a marvellously educated horse; Alice Maydue, comedienne, is received with loud applause; Three Donals present some clever feats on the silver chains; Reel and Butt, comedians, are good; the Calcotts, musical comedy duo, execute some banjo selections with marked ability; Miss Billie Burford, comedienne, is pleasing; a clever turn is that of Maud and Gill, who introduce their acrobatic dogs in an eccentric mélange act. The Empire pictures are amusing.

TON-Y-PANDY.—Royal.—Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General-Manager, Mr. S. Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. H. Watson.—Mr. E. H. Knight's company is presenting The Lighthouse Robbery here. Mr. H. Herne gives a creditable rendering of Tom Manly; Mr. W. Annesley rouses the ire of the "gods" as William Farren; Mr. H. Lewis submits a capable study of Uncle Davie; as James Hammond Mr. P. Beresford is well placed; Mr. S. Foster is highly diverting as Sam Kidder; Miss Hilda Baynton interprets the part of Ruth Prescott in a winning manner; and as Tom Manly's mother Miss Ida Millais merits praise.

Hippodrome.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Will Stone.—Good programmes and business still obtain here. Fancourt and Rubie are well applauded for their sketch; Martino is a clever contortionist; the Deroneys, comedy artists, provide an acceptable turn; Chas. Gayne scores heavily; Whyman, on the roller skates, and Tom Russell, quaint comedian, also appear.

TORQUAY.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. W. H. Mortimer; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Pearse.—The well-known farcical comedy The Lady of Ostend is being presented here this week by Mr. Lionel Brough and company. The amusing character of Dick Whortles is admirably taken by Mr. William Spray, whose representation of the unfortunate young merchant is thoroughly appreciated; no less successful is Mr. Robert Bolder, who introduced some genuine humour into the part of Joseph Carbury; Mr. Lionel Brough takes the rôle of the Baron, and his performance is excellent in every respect; Mr. William Macready does well as Toby Krockitt; and the parts of Dorothy Whortles and the Lady of Ostend respectively are well filled by Miss Barbara Glyn and Miss Kitty Develin.

Princess Pier Concert Hall.—Proprietors, The Torquay Town Council; Manager, Mr. A. T Tremlett.—Packed houses are attracted here nightly by the Gaieties, under the direction of Mr. Wilson James. Miss Gertrude Hart has a soprano voice of much charm, and her fresh and dainty manner win her repeated encores; Miss Ruby Wilson is a fascinating comedienne, who at once becomes popular; Mr. Percy Watson is an excellent tenor, and is frequently applauded; Mr. Alan Stainer contributes some clever ventriloquial and humorous sketches, which evoke hearty laughter; Mr. Harry Collman does well at the piano; and Mr. Wilson James thoroughly delights the audience with his amusing songs and character-sketches.

TREHERBERT.—Opera House.—Proprietors, Messrs. Poole's, Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. N. Stephens.—Miss Winifred Chalmers's company opened here on Monday with The Master Criminal. Mr. Henry L. Osmond as Telford Lestage proved himself to be a capable and talented character actor; Mr. Ed. Avinal as Philip Manners is to be complimented upon his rendering of this difficult part; Mr. J. C. Carlyle made a capital Ben Beaudy; Mr. Chas. Tolcher as Gentleman Jim was also good; Mr. Harry Cooke caused roars of laughter in the part of Tommy Dale; Miss Winifred Chalmers as Cecile did well; Miss Frances Carlyle played effectively the part of Mrs. Manners; Miss Mabel Tremaine gained applause in the part of Pegg Perks; and Miss Violet Lytton as Mabel Manners proved herself worthy of the part.

TYLDESLEY.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. W. Brierley, A. Brierley, and W. German; Manager, Mr. W. W. Brierley.—For the second week in succession Mr. Lingford Carson's company occupies the boards here. On Monday The Heart of a Hero was presented to a large and enthusiastic house. The members of the company enhance the reputation which they gained last week.

WAKEFIELD.—Opera House.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Mr. John Leopold and company are appearing here this week in the pantomimical absurdities, New Frivolity and The Houseboat, which create much merriment. Mr. Watson Hume is excellent as Oliver Buckwheat; Mr. Willie Leopold is irresistibly funny as Sammy; Mr. John Leopold is good as Daniel Teething; and Mr. Charles Goff is seen to advantage as Jules Vermiglio. Miss Amy Hall is capital as Lucy, and the remaining parts are well filled.

Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—Miss Alice Raymond and her players present a delightful musical scena, entitled A Night in Egypt; the Eltenas give a clever performance on the rolling globes; the Princellas, in a comedy act, are smart; Mint and Mart, artistic paper manipulators, merit applause; the Camerons, comedy artists, are popular; and Miss Amy Bellwood is a dashing comedienne. Mr. Dick Bradley, tramp trick cyclist, completes a good programme.

WARRINGTON.—Royal Court.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred J. Reece.—Charles Frohman's company in The Hypocrites is here, under the direction of Mr. Silvanus Dauncey. Mr. A. B. Imeson as the Rev. Edgar Linnell gave a natural and impressive impersonation, and his passionate outburst at the close of the third act was a dramatic triumph. Mr. A. S. Barber made a convincing Mr. Welmore; and as Leonard Mr. King Fordham admirably filled the part. Mr. Charles Hurley was successful as Mr. Nocash; and the Rev. Everard Daubenay was cleverly acted by Mr. Cecil Brooking. Mr. Sidney Hamilton was a dignified Sir John Plugenet; and Messrs. Hanworth Browning and Douglas Jeffries were well placed as Blaney and Goodyer respectively. Miss Amy Ravenscroft as Mrs. Wilmore submitted a fine portrayal; Miss Gladys Harvey was distinctly successful as Rachel; and Miss Gladys Pumell made a sweet and lovable John Plugenet. The inquisitive Mrs. Blaney was capably impersonated by Miss Florence Stanton; as Mrs. Linnell Miss Madge Severne met with approval; and Miss Violet Hurley was good as Patty.

Royal Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jack Waters.—Some excellent films are shown here this week. The Macdermotts are seen to advantage in a speciality turn, their singing and dancing being much admired.

Palace and Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. G. D. Bradbury.—Good business is again the order here. The Ten Loonies head the bill in their musical sketch Dotty; Lawrence Barclay is a capital comedian, and his songs are all well received; Jack Lane's eccentricities at the piano are decidedly good; Georgina Middleton has a soprano voice of excellent range; Mabelle May is a dainty comedienne; Jimmy Laurie has plenty of good patter; Gibbon and Belle are seen to advantage in an acrobatic pot-pourri and dancing speciality act; and the pictures are again of a high-class quality.

WEDNESBURY.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Battersby; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. Kuner.—Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company is here in The Worst Woman in London. Frances Vere is effectively enacted by Miss Sidney Crowe; Miss Polly Marsh infuses all her ability and energy into the part of Matida Parker; Mr. Herbert Skardon as Jack Felton evokes hearty applause; Mr. George Gaisford does full justice to the part of Vincent Lyle; and as James Millford Mr. F. Vernon Travers gives an able impersonation. Remarkable success is achieved by Miss Dorothy Haigh in her representation of Ruth Milford.

WELLINGBOROUGH.—Corn Exchange.—"Not a dull moment" is the verdict of the many who are visiting Mr. C. W. Poole's Myriorama this week. A very fine variety turn is given by the Royal Banzais; and the magic of Amasis is of a finished order. Sydney Bach as the Welsh landlady at the piano is extremely funny; the Eight Bramusas give a musical performance that gets a good reception; and Harry Raymond's dances are worth seeing.

WEST BROMWICH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. Nightingale.—Mr. Geoffrey Fulton's company is drawing good houses with the drama entitled A Girl Redeemed from Sin. Mr. J. Monkhouse portrays the character of Will May in masterly style; Mr. Clinton Baddeley is all that could be desired as Ernest Sylveston; and the same remark applies to Mr. Victor Knight in the character of Jim Jaikes. Mr. Phillippe Orr displays great talent as Robert Denham; Mr. Gifforde Reynolds presents a clever character-part in that of Samuel Lee; Miss Olive Fulton does herself great credit as Nancy Lee; Mrs. Mac is well played by Miss Gertie Pawle; and Miss Ada Oxley is good as Peggy Grey.

New Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Player.—The Norman and Leonard Trio head the bill here this week, and present a clever and interesting entertainment; Will and Roze submit a smart comedy acrobatic turn; Ernest Heathcote is a droll comedian; roars of laughter greet Harry Rogerson's clever impersonation of actors; Griffin and Ardell entertain with some novel eccentricities; Bessie Herbert is good with her descriptive songs; Spry and Monti create roars of laughter; Will Vay's Juveniles quite catch on with their comedy and pathetic scena, Life in the Slums; and some very interesting pictures are shown.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—Grand.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. Herbert E. Feather.—The visit of Miss Nora Carton and her company in Captain Drew on Leave is a welcome one. Miss Cynthia Brookes' portrayal of the rôle of Mrs. Moxon is a triumph; Miss Nora Carton endows the character of Miss Mills with charming grace; Mr. C. B. Vaughan's acting of the part of Captain Drew is excellence itself; a capable rendition of the character of Mr. Moxon is presented by Mr. Tom Mowbray; and success is achieved by Mr. Gerald Venning as Chester Hasell and Mr. Wilcox Cadogan as Ernest White.

Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr A. E. Dobney.—A musical treat is provided by the Five Fernons, expert xylophonists; in a refined pot-pourri the Three Arleys perform some clever cycling feats, in which they introduce trick-cycling dogs possessed of marvellous intelligence; Helen Martin sings some pretty ballads with engaging sweetness; Hyde and Cody perform some remarkable eccentric feats with bewildering rapidity; the simultaneous dancing of Burns and Bentley is clever; the Sisters Cora are loudly applauded for their dancing; Charles Banks is an amusing entertainer and introduces a clever performing dog, Woof; and Raymond's Bio-tableaux conclude the programme with some capital films.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—Knightstone Pavilion and Opera House.—Manager, Mr. W. Payne.—Miss Lena Ashwell's company is an exceptionally strong one, and was given a most enthusiastic reception on Monday in Diana of Dobson's. Miss Violet Vorley looked very attractive, and gave an interpretation of Miss Diana Massingberd which was replete with artistic touches; Miss Hilda Francks was extremely good as Mrs. Cantelupe; and another very sound performance was that given by Miss Pamela Hope as Mrs. Whyte Fraser. Miss Cicely Oates showed exceptional talent in doubling the characters of Miss Jay and the old woman; Miss Violet Joyce (Miss Smithers), Miss Dorothy Bell (Miss Kitty Brant), Miss Margaret Dudley (Miss Morton), and Miss Constance Hibberd (Miss Pringle) gave fine portrayals of their respective characters. Praise must be given Mr. Briscoe Owen for his Victor Bretherton; and Mr. Phillip Sanders' Sir Jabez Grinley was worthy of high encomiums. Mr. John Appleby's Constable Fellowes deserves eulogy; and Mr. William Hays did well as the waiter. The piece was preceded by a pretty curtain-raiser, entitled A Fire of Straw. Mr. H. Benet's company in Sergeant Brue is billed for the last three nights of the week.

Grand Pier Pavilion.—Manager, Mr. John H. Stevenson.—The Strolling Players were vociferously received here on Monday. Mr. Gilbert Fernie made the hit of the evening with his song, "The Mountains o' Mourne"; Mr. Hugh Lloyd sang in masterly style "Thora," and nothing could be cleverer than his ventriloquial interlude. Mr. E. Stuart James was warmly encored for his singing of "At the piano"; Miss Maidie Harrison, a dainty little lady, received an ovation for her rendering of "Lindy Loo" and her terpsichorean efforts; Miss Marie Magnus sang exceptionally well; and Miss M. Gerrard, a talented comedienne, excelled in her humorous songs and sketches. The Pathé Frère's pictures are loudly applauded.

WEST STANLEY.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mark H. Lindon; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Kelly.—Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company had a good reception on Monday, when they presented The Lancashire Lad. David Elmore is acted very effectively by Mr. A. Alexander; Miss Stanley Burt is an ideal Jessie Wincote; Mr. T. G. Vane portrays Max Carlton to perfection; Miss N. Oliver cleverly plays the part of Lorna Wincote; Mr. Percy Maitland acts well as Jen Wincote; John Willie Wardle is a good study by Mr. Rob Anderson; and Mr. George Watson creates roars of laughter as Tim-o'-the-swilltub. The variety entertainment on the Pier, Blackpool, in the third act, is well sustained. The play is capitally staged.

Victoria Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. T. C. Rawes; Stage-Manager, Mr. George W. Montrose.—The Wakeman Quintette, song harmonisers and sketch artists, head the bill here in a very good turn; Oakdene, comedy ventriloquist, has a cordial reception; Mlle. Omega is a tuneful vocalist; the Moxon Trio, acrobats, are clever in their unique act; Clarke's Nippers do a smart club-swinging act; Doyle and Fenwick, vocalist and champion clog dancer, submit a smart and refined show; Master Fenwick is an expert clog dancer. The Vicoscope concludes a very fine show. Crowded houses on Monday greeted this fine company.

WHITEHAVEN.—Market Hall.—Lessees, The Edison Picture Co.; General-Manager, Mr. Victor Branford; Resident-Manager, T. Urwin.—Another strong programme of pictures is provided here this week, including Don Juan, Olympic Games, His Only Friend, Put Pa amongst the Girls, Invisible Fluid, The Shirt of a Happy Man, The Mummy, Mysterious Flames, and A Game of Hide-and-Seek. Also appearing here is Mons. Cavalli, ventriloquist.

WHITSTABLE.—Theatre and Assembly Rooms.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. B. Reeves.—Mr. Jack Rowland gave his first annual popular concert here on Wednesday evening, there being a crowded house. Mr. Chas. Kay, a popular comedian, sang "A muddled melody" and several other of his own songs; Miss Enid Earle was a complete success with "Bobby, dear" and "Isn't it like a man?" Her charming manner and clever accompaniments on the piano have materially assisted her in gaining the popularity she has enjoyed here this season. One of the best turns was Mr. Jack Rowland's clever character impersonation of Chevalier's "Fallen Star," for which an encore was demanded, "The old bachelor" being substituted. Mr. Rowland has scored heavily, both as an artist and as manager of the New Pavilion, Tankerton. Miss Hedda Hirleman's "Il Bacio" was a real musical treat. Mr. Edwin L. Britnell was the accompanist. Items were contributed by Miss Norma Russell, Mr. Ernest G. Cox, L.R.A.M., Mr. Edward Thorpe, and Mrs. Charles Dodsworth.

WIDNES.—Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Jas. Kiddie.—The new drama, The Old Home, is here this week, the company being that of the author, Mr. Roland Yorke. Quite the outstanding feature of the performance is the Daddy Dean of Mr. J. H. Clyndes of Royal Divorce fame. It is a really fine piece of character acting; Miss Grace Jones is a charming heroine, playing with dignity and a true conception of the character; Mr. Ellerslie Pyne is fairly convincing as the Parson, the Rev. Eric Armstrong; Mr. Roland Yorke is polished and debonair as the scoundrelly Lord Avondale; Mr. Fred L. Connynhame as Sammy created much hearty laughter; another fine piece of character acting comes from Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite, as Bridget Donoghue. Elaborate scenery is carried by the company, and some charming set pieces are seen.

WIGAN.—Royal Court Theatre.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—A capital all-round production of Amasis is attracting large audiences here. Miss Winifred O'Connor excels in her charming impersonation of the Princess; Miss Burnege as Natis, by her charming manner and sweet singing captivates the audience; Mr. W. H. Denny, a humorist of the most entertaining description, is a big success as Pharaoh; Mr. Brodie, who appears in the rôle of Sebak, is "a fellow of infinte jest"; Mr E. McKeown as Prince Anhotep is responsible for a brilliant impersonation, his singing being exceptionally good; Mr. Frank Attree as the Court embalmer makes the most of his opportunities; Mr. A. Stroud (Cheiro) and Mr. F. Wood (Captain of the Guard) also appear with success.

The Hippodrome.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—Harry Roxbury, the well-known comedian, makes a welcome reappearance in The Prince of Monte Carlo; Oswald Williams is an original illusionist; the Sisters Henderson are excellent musical speciality artists; and a very acceptable equilibristic performance is given by Sylvene and Florence. Ted E. Box is an excellent comedian, his whistling being highly appreciated; J. H. Greener remains a week longer, and his song, "Down the Maypole Mine," is again a huge success; Sadie Simpson, comedienne; Morander and Darius, and a special display of animated pictures complete an interesting programme.

The Empire.—Lessees, The New Bioscope Trading Co.; District-Manager, Mr. Harold Hunt; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Marco.—The pictures this week include Poverty and Honesty, The Lazy Man, A Man in a Thousand, Good Medicine, &c. Lonzo Brown, coloured comedian and sand dancer, meets with a cordial reception.

WOLVERHAMPTON.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. C. Barnard; Resident-Manager, Mr. Gerald Spencer.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company, in At Cripple Creek, is proving a strong attraction here this week. Mr. Henry Hare's fine stage presence and elocutionary powers are admirably suited to the part of Joe Mayfield, which he plays in a very able manner; Mr. C. E. Johnson is sufficiently villainous as Martin Mason, as also is Mr. Roy Jackson as Manuel Alvarez; whilst Mr. Reginald Harley-West as Wahketah gives a good character-sketch of a Red Indian. Mr. C. E. Preece as Ben White (a nigger) and Mr. Will Hook as Reggie Harwood, are responsible for a large portion of the comedy element. Miss Constance Elgin as Dynamite Ann is both impressive and effective; Miss Daisy Carlton plays quietly, but none the less effectively, as Belle Gordon; Miss Norah Dillon works hard as Sarah Lively; and little Rosie Hopkins makes a charming Little Tatto. The play is well mounted.

Empire Palace, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Weston.—The Donaldson Brothers head the bill here this week in Sports in the Jungle, which is very effectively staged and highly amusing. One of the best turns is that of the Three Laurels, who are responsible for an acrobatic speciality act as clever as it is original; Ike and Will Scott keep the audience in good humour with their songs and clever patter; Harry Brown is a clever coloured comedian and eccentric dancer; Harry Leybourne as a lady impersonator submits an acceptable turn; Nita Clem gives some impersonations; and Selby and Myers, comedians, complete the bill. An entirely new series of pictures are shown on the Bioscope.

WORCESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Le Warde.—Worcester theatre patrons are fortunate in having provided for them thus early a return visit of Mr. Chas. Frohman's company in that greatest of dramatic successes, Leah Kleschna. A work of intensely human interest, it appeals in the fullest sense for the sympathy of an audience. The characters are drawn with masterly skill, and though the incidents presented are of a thrilling character, the extremes of melodrama are never reached. Miss Bessie Rignold is as capable an exponent of the part of Leah as ever; her natural impersonation is enhanced by a singular charm of manner, and she exercises a restraint in the more impassioned scenes which serves only to deepen the impression of her powers. Mr. Wm. Clayton is an inimitable Kleschna; and Mr. Gilbert Heron as the faithful Schram is responsible for a clever character-study. Mr. Hamilton Deane is a distinguished Paul Sylvaine; and in strong contrast is the Raoul of Mr. Algernon Hicks, an unsympathetic part in which he does well. The small part of General Berton is entrusted to Mr. Chas. Barrett; and those of Mme. Berton and her daughter Clare are in the capable hands of Miss Ethel Russell and Miss Emmie Wallace respectively. Mr. Barrett doubles the part of the French journalist, Valentine Favre, very successfully; and Miss Dorrie Turner is delightful as Sophie. The play is elegantly staged and dressed, and is not likely to lose its charm by repetition.

WORTHING.—Theatre Royal.—Manager, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—On Monday Mr. Fred Mouillot's company presented The Beloved Vagabond. Mr. Arthur Royston gives a manly impersonation of Parogot; Mr. Ramsay Macbeth does well as Asticot; Mr. Alfred Drayton capably portrays the part of Lord Rushworth; Mr. Warburton Gamble capitally presents the Comte de Verneine; and Miss Nita Faydon makes Blanquette a living character study. On Thursday Mr. Payne Seddon's company presented The Mystery of Edwin Drood.

YORK.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. S. Dacre.—Mr. George D. Day's company has drawn large audiences this week with The Prodigal Son. The doings of Magnus and Oscar Stephensson thoroughly arouse the interest of the audience; as Oscar Mr. Albert Ward gives a most polished rendering, acting throughout with much force and skill; and Mr. H. J. Crane presents a rugged impersonation of Magnus. In the dual rôles of Thora and Elin Miss Pauline Emeric is well placed; the disagreeable part of Helga finds an able exponent in Miss Pearla Gardener; Mr. Jackson Hayes gives a capital character study of Stephen Magnusson; and Miss Kate Osborne makes Aunt Margaret an amusing personage.

Opera House and Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brooke.—A programme of all round excellence is presented this week. Messrs. Bellew and Stock's company head the bill with a capital sketch, entitled An Outside Chance. Every detail of the piece is followed with the keenest interest, and is enthusiastically received; Miss Dorothy Watson, a host in herself, scores tremendously with her songs; Walter Aubrey, coon vocalist and dancer, is well received; the Cecilias are lady instrumentalists of unusual merit; Miss Mi Narom is loudly applauded for her catchy and up-to-date songs; Walter Buxton uses his fine baritone voice to advantage; another good turn is the Merry Vagabonds, in their gipsy encampment. Kerr and Koe, patter comedians and dancers, create roars of laughter; and Datas, the human almanack, is repeatedly applauded for his prompt answers to the numerous questions which are asked from all parts of the house. Rita Rhylle, a clever dancer and comedienne, completes the programme.

"THE CALL OF THE NORTH."

(FROM OUR NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT.)

The Call of the North, a play in four acts, by George Broadhurst, recently produced at the Hudson Theatre, New York, is founded on a story by Stewart Edward White, entitled "Conjurers' House." The dramatist has retained the principal characters of the novel, and has condensed the central episode so that the action consumes but a couple of days, while the comedy element has been "elaborated." The play deals with life in the Hudson Bay country. Ned Trent (Mr. Robert Edeson), a young free trader and trapper, who has been caught trespassing for the third time, is brought into a station of the Hudson Bay Company. Galen Albret, the factor of the post, is a hard, unfeeling man, who enforces his authority by sending to certain death any man who is caught poaching on his preserves. This is effected by turning the culprit adrift in the trackless forest without a gun. Failing death by starvation and exposure, Men-En-Gan, a trusty Indian, will give him his quietus in some remote spot. Trent is sentenced to start upon "la longue traverse," as the punishment is called. But he plays upon the susceptibilities of Virginia Albret, the factor's daughter, and makes her believe he is in love with her in order to obtain a rifle. But he is playing with edged tools. In making believe he realy falls in love with the girl, though hating her father, and when he is captured again in the third act and the rifle is found in his possession, the question arises who has been a traitor—who gave him the gun? This is more important than Trent's escape and his defiance of the factor's power. The latter offers Trent his life and liberty if he will tell who provided him with the rifle. As for the traitor, he will be hanged at the gibbet, and Trent will meet with a similar fate if he refuses to tell. He is granted a respite of one minute, and at the end of that time he has nothing to say. The last act represents the council chamber where the investigation is proceeding. Who betrayed the company? Trent remains silent, and he is about to pay dearly for his loyalty to the girl he loves when she confesses that it was she who furnished him with the rifle. The factor is about to send her on "la longue traverse" with Trent when it comes out that Trent's father was sent to a similar death on a trumped-up charge. It was to avenge his father that the young trapper came into this territory and defied the company. In view of this disclosure, and for the sake of his daughter, the factor relents, while Trent's desire for revenge is forgotten in the joy of possessing his sweetheart. Mr. Robert Edeson's Ned Trent is an earnest and forceful embodiment of a manly and optimistic young American; and the various characters of the story are ably portrayed, Miss Beatrice Prentice being particularly praiseworthy in the rôle of the French-Canadian girl, Julie Bagneau. Mr. Robert Peyton Carter and Mr. David Torrence as an amusing pair of Scotchmen, and Mr. Burke Clarke as the taciturn Indian Men-En-Gan, also deserve special mention. The critics discovered a number of faults in this "book-play," and its success seems to depend almost entirely upon Mr. Edeson's personal popularity.

Miss Maude Western has let the English fit-up rights of the original Prodigal Son to Mr. J. A. Hybert, who has booked a long tour until next Easter. The Scotch fit-up rights are held by Mr. F. Luard.

A confetti fête and fancy dress carnival will be given at the Crystal Palace on Wednesday, Oct. 14. The success of the last fête was all that could be desired, and it is to be hoped that the next one will be even more largely attended.

It is gratifying to learn that the Crystal Palace management have decided to give some more concerts, in which the great organ and the band will be combined. Arrangements have been made for the next concerts to take place on Thursday, Sept. 24, Thursday, October 1, and Saturday, Oct. 3.

The Great National Brass Band Festival will take place at the Crystal Palace on Saturday next, for which a monster and extremely interesting programme has been arranged. Mr. Henry J. Iles is again directing this wonderful gathering of musicians from all parts of the country. Eight years ago, when the first festival took place, twenty bands entered. This year as many as 150 bands will be heard, and the value of the prizes is £2000. Besides a concert of massed bands in the Centre Transept, concertina bands will be heard in the theatre. In addition to the 1000-guinea cup, presented by the Crystal Palace Company, numerous other prizes are being provided.

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Sept. 14,
MR. H. B. IRVING AND COMPANY.

Much interest was created by the first appearance in Western London of Mr. H. B. Irving in a round of the plays in which the late Sir Henry Irving had made himself so conspicuously famous. The nightly receptions of Mr. Irving have been most enthusiastic, and must have been gratifying to him, and go to show that he is destined in the near future to step into the place of his revered father, and become the head of the stage, to which, indeed, his undoubted talent will entitle him. The audiences have been large and highly critical. On Monday evening Hamlet was given, with Mr. Irving in the title-rôle and Miss Dorothea Baird as Ophelia. For Tuesday night The Bells was announced, and with the very vivid recollection possessed by many of those present in the audience of the Lyceum and earlier performances, it was most interesting to watch Mr. Irving's interpretation of a part in which he challenged so much criticism, for Mathias, the Burgomaster, was a character which Sir Henry Irving had made entirely his own. It will suffice to say that the audience was perfectly satisfied on the point, and vouchsafed the young actor every encouragement. The curtain had to be raised time after time in response to repeated calls, and at the termination of the performance the loudest of cheers proclaimed his distinct triumph. Leopold Lewis's very grim and weird play consists of Mathias, and Mathias only, all the other characters being very subsidiary. Mr. Eric Maxon made a bright and manly Christian; and Dr. Zimmer found a capable representative in Mr. B. A. Pittar. Mr. Charles Dodsworth was excellent as Father Walter; and Mr. Tom Reynolds an amusing Hans. The Notary and Fritz were well played by Mr. C. Stevens and Mr. Frank Randell. The President of the Court was admirably undertaken by that experienced actor, Mr. Frank Tyars. Mr. J. Patrick Curwen was good as the Clerk of the Court; and Mr. Arthur Curtis gave the necessary element of mystery to the part of the mesmerist. Miss Eily Malyon made a gratifying success as Catherine; Sozel was cheerily represented by Miss May Holland; and Miss Phyllis Embury made an engaging Annette. On the same evening, King Rene's Daughter was given. In it Miss Dorothea Baird played Iolanthe in a charmingly pathetic manner, and showed that her talents, too, are beyond question. Mr. Frank Tyars gave tone and dignity to King Rene; Mr. Eric Maxon displayed unquestionable ability as the impassioned Tristan; as Count Geoffrey, Mr. Arthur Curtis was effective; and Mr. Frank Randell a satisfactory Sir Almeric. The scenery and appointments were quite adequate. On Wednesday night Louis XI. was played; Charles I. was performed at the Thursday matinée; and on Friday night and on Thursday evening and to-night The Bells and King Rene's Daughter were billed for repetition.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, Sept. 14, the Comedy, by Mrs. Musgrave, entitled
"OUR FLAT."

Our Flat seems to enjoy an undying popularity with certain sections of the play-going public. That the return visit here has been a welcome one has been nightly evinced by the splendid attendances throughout the week. Mr. Wilfred Shine still most amusingly impersonates Nathaniel Glover, the eccentric theatrical manager, playing throughout in a purely farcical spirit and scoring an emphatic success. Miss Louie Tinsley also is an excellent representative of the comic slavey, and very humorously enacts the part, sharing with Mr. Shine the principal honours of the play. The praiseworthy and unexaggerated delineation of the precocious Clara Pryout by Miss Effie Byrne merits a particularly high commendatory tribute. Mr. Chas. Steuart is good as Reginald Sylvester; and as Clarence Vane Mr. Cecil Newton contributes an excellent impersonation. Miss Daisy Atherton invests her portrayal of Margery Sylvester with sweetness and charm; and Miss Sylvia Morris is effective as Lucy McCullum. Miss Florence Tyrrell sustains the part of Mme. Volant, the fashionable dressmaker, in an able manner; and Mr. Fred Knight's Mr. McCullum is played with a full appreciation of the possibilities of the part. Messrs. J. Carl Lyle (Dairyman), S. B. Mayne (from the furniture stores), and John Morris (Hall Porter) complete an excellent cast. The rollicking farce is preceded by a tale of the French Revolution, entitled Citizen Morot, which is suitably interpreted by Messrs. Henry Doughty, Cecil Newton, Fred Knight, and S. B. Mayne, the only lady in the cast being Miss Florence Tyrrell.

THE BRITANNIA.

On Monday, Sept. 7, the Drama, by Lewis Gilbert, entitled
"MYSTERIES OF LONDON."

Another successful production is to be recorded to the credit of Mr. Montgomery and his capable company who are playing the well-known drama Mysteries of London. Mr. Harry Tresham claims first honours for his very fine impersonation of the clergyman Philip Conway, who is an excellent specimen of muscular Christianity. It would be indeed difficult to obtain a better representative of Victor Levigne than that presented by Mr. H. Ryland Leigh, who gives an excellent portrait of the evil-disposed Frenchman, and his broken English is very good. He has an able confederate in Mr. C. Alan Himeson as William Rawson, who acquits himself well in an uncongenial character. Mr. Ivan P. Gore as Reuben North, Mr. W. S. Clerke as Muller, and Mr. Herbert Young as Robert Best make the most of their opportunities in smaller parts. Of the ladies, too much praise cannot be bestowed upon Miss Ethyle Murray for her conception of the adventuress Sybil Grey alias La Zaleska, whose better nature asserts itself at the end. A charming and petite Lina North is found in Miss Lalla Stanhope, who acts pathetically the much-persecuted heroine. The lighter vein of the drama is again in the capable hands of Miss Florrie Barnes as Liza and Mr. H. G. Brandon as Dick Copping. These two artists work remarkably well together, and are the cause of many a hearty laugh. The drama is elaborately mounted, and great credit is due to the resident scenic artist for some excellent cloths. The programme is brought to a close with some good pictures shown by the Barrascope. Last week we mentioned Mr. Fred A. Fowler as Mr. Montgomery's manager. This gentleman is representing Mr. Barrasford's interests in this theatre.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, Sept. 14, the Drama, in Five Acts, entitled
"THE 10.30 DOWN EXPRESS."

An excellent company, under the direction of Mr. Horace Stanley, is holding the boards at the Shakespeare Theatre this week with The 10.30 Down Express, an exciting play which appeals strongly to lovers of popular drama. The plot is interesting, and the piece teems with exciting incidents interwoven with amusing episodes. The acting, too, is worthy of warm praise, and the scenic effects are admirable. Mr. Horace Stanley takes full advantage of his many opportunities in the rôle of the true-hearted bluejacket Sam Wagstaff, and his clever drollery keeps the audience in continuous merriment whenever he is on the stage. He is well supported by Miss Kate Kilpack, whose excellent delineation of Peggy Potts adds materially to the humour. A sound performance of the rascally James Inderwick is given by Mr. F. Wilberforce, who acts with convincing force throughout. Mr. T. Arthur Plummer is a manly and straightforward Jack O'Malley; and Mr. William Hayward as Seth Coomes gives a capital character-study of a broken-down gamekeeper. Mr. Chauncey Morris is efficient as Huntley Mason, a detective; and Mr. Alaric Burton as Cuthbert Leigh is sufficiently stern and dignified. Mr. Arthur E. Francis is amusing as Bletherley Baggs, a bailiff's man; Miss Cora Linda, a prepossessing Bessie Leigh, acts pleasantly throughout; Miss Evelyn M. Walton in the part of Letitia Leigh shows the true comedy spirit; and Miss Josephine Lee is satisfactory as Olive Coomes.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, Sept. 14, for the first time in London, the Drama, in Four Acts, by C. Watson Mill, entitled
"THE LOVE OF THE PRINCESS."

Prince Conrad Ramona..MR. WILSON COLEMAN
Count Nicholas Danillo..MR. ERNEST E. IMESON
Josef, King of Ilarnia .....MR. E. H. DOBELL
Lieut. Orians .....MR. BECKETT BOULD
Lieut. Zaroff .....MR. GRAHAM WINSFORD
Prince Regent of Narava ..MR. W. F. STIRLING
Duke Scarfe .....MR. GEORGE ANTLEY
Boris .....MR. EDGAR MORGAN
Stephen .....MR. ERIC WILDE
Carlos .....MR. JAMES AUSTIN
Lady Irene Ramona .....MISS NELLIE GARSIDE
Constantia .....MISS ELLEN ELMAR
Princess Idalia .....MISS WARD

Exalted personages again figure in the above play, which was introduced to London on Monday, having been originally produced at the Grand Theatre, Nelson, on April 13 last. In it are to be found kings, princes, dukes, and countesses; but it is to a princess that most importance attaches. Idalia, Princess of Narava, has a quartette of lovers, all inspired by more or less estimable motives. One is the King of Ilarnia, a monarch of evil disposition and repute, who wishes to marry her, and thus gain the adjoining principality of Narava; another is Lieut. Zaroff, an officer whose parentage is unknown, who idolises the Princess from afar; and the third is Count Nicholas Danillo, who wishes to possess himself of the lady and the throne to which she is heiress. It is, however, upon Prince Conrad Ramona that the lady's choice falls. Conrad has lost his fortune at gambling, and resigns his commission as commandant in the King's Guards. He is about to seek extinction in suicide, when the Princess intervenes, and Conrad is thus added to the total of her admirers.

A marriage has been arranged between the Princess and the King of Ilarnia, who comes to claim his bride. She recoils from him, but under his threat to declare war upon her country in the event of her refusal the Princess consents to accept the betrothal ring. The bells announcing the event reach the ears of Conrad, who had been in hiding, and he comes to save his love from her impending fate. There is a scene of sentiment akin to that of the balcony in Romeo and Juliet, and Conrad and the Princess are clasped in a fond embrace when they are discovered by the King, whose steps have been directed thither by the unscrupulous Danillo. Conrad is immediately thrust into prison to await torture. Meanwhile, the King has discovered in a nun from a neighbouring convent the wife with whom he contracted a marriage some years before and deserted, leaving her with an only son. He gives orders that Conrad's eyes shall be burned out, but the Princess begs the devoted Zaroff to save her betrothed, and he resolves to do so by taking Conrad's place, lending the latter his cloak in which to escape. Presently an ear-piercing shriek is heard from the torture-room, and Zaroff emerges, his forehead seared with the burning irons, but not too much disfigured to prevent the King recognising him as the son whom he had deserted.

The persecution of the Princess is continued in the last act by Danillo, who, having disposed of the King, breaks into the Palace, and thrusts his unwelcome attentions upon her; but a timely appearance is made by Conrad, who soon despatches his enemy. Finally Zaroff, less injured by the heated irons than might be imagined, pairs off with Conrad's sister, and Conrad takes his place by the Princess's side on the throne of Narava.

Thrilling scenes are numerous in the piece, which aroused the audience to the greatest enthusiasm. The military character of the play lends itself to elaborate costuming, and the uniforms of the various principals were very striking. No expense had evidently been spared in staging the work, and the admiration it gained was proportionately great. Mr. T. Edward Ward's company, to whom the piece is entrusted, is a strong and capable one. Miss Ward made a fragile and picturesque figure of the Princess, and appeared in some elegant dresses. She acted with extreme delicacy and impressiveness, but occasionally allowed her emotion to overpower her voice, with the result that some of the lines were lost. Mr. Wilson Coleman had the exacting rôle of Conrad, and did it complete justice. He has a commanding figure, an open countenance, and vigorous methods, which combined to win admiration throughout the house. The Count Danillo of Mr. Ernest E. Imeson was replete with sinister touches. He made a particularly impressive appearance in his uniform as Commandant of the King's Guards, and his craven attributes were thus made all the more apparent. The profligate King of Ilarnia was skilfully represented by Mr. E. H. Dobell, who made up realistically as the debauched monarch weakened by disease, and his acting throughout was very intense. Mr. Beckett Bould revealed decided dramatic ability in the part of a cheery Lieutenant of the King's Guards. He has a telling voice, and his elocution is particularly to be praised. Complete sympathy for Lieut. Zaroff was won by Mr. Graham Winsford, who infused much expression into his delivery; and the Prince Regent of Mr. W. F. Stirling was an artistic piece of work, sound in every detail. The Lady Irene of Miss Nellie Garside was a well-conceived assumption, agreeably varied by some light comedy business; and Miss Ellen Elmar bore herself with dignity and declaimed her lines effectively as the Sister of Charity. The fun of the piece flows through channels unusual to melodrama. It is chiefly entrusted to a Duke Scarfe, an accomplice of the villain, who helps with marked cards to cheat the hero out of his estates. The part was played on fantastic lines by Mr. George Antley, whose antics and eccentricities as the foppish nobleman created unbounded laughter. Brightness was also infused into the play by the acting of Mr. Edgar Morgan, who made Conrad's servant a great favourite. The reception accorded by a large audience to The Love of the Princess was unmistakably favourable.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Sept. 14, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Walter Howard,
"THE PRINCE AND THE BEGGAR MAID."

The booking of Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company in The Prince and the Beggar Maid for the opening week of its suburban tour is a feather in the managerial cap at this fine playhouse. The original scenery is being carried, the uniforms are brilliant, the dresses lovely, and as with the strong cast engaged the performance loses nothing by comparison, it is safe to predict that the success of the piece at the Lyceum will be repeated on tour. Chief acting honours may be awarded to Miss Annie Saker as Princess Monica; her engaging presence, fluent diction, and sympathetic acting endearing the character to the audience from start to finish. Another prime favourite is Mr. Hubert Ford as Prince Olaf. Handsome of appearance, and possessing a most agreeable delivery, he suits the part splendidly. Mr. Graeme Campbell makes the part of the crippled Prince Michael outstanding by his graphic impersonation, the career of the unlucky Prince being followed with deep interest. Mr. Ivan Cleveland makes a commanding figure of the scheming Prince Hildred, and is responsible for a powerful and incisive performance. Mr. D. Lewin Mannering is altogether admirable as Captain Hector, and Mr. Reginald Payne plays Lieut. Karl Stromberg with much ability. Mr. Edmund Lea is a soldierly and convincing Colonel Wellenberg; Mr. Francis Hawley is an impressive Bishop of Illyria; and Nathan, the dumb servant, is well played by Mr. J. E. Gardner. Miss Dido Drake shows the possession of much histrionic skill in her performance as Camiola, and though, in our opinion, she is much prettier in skirts than as the beggar boy, she is always a dainty and winsome personality. Miss Isla Vayne is a charming and girlish exponent of Viola; while other parts are all in quite capable hands.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 14, the Drama entitled
"THE SINS OF SOCIETY."

The seating capacity of the Kennington Theatre has this week been tested to the utmost, and at every performance the curtain has risen upon a full house. The attraction is the Drury Lane drama The Sins of Society, by Cecil Raleigh and Henry Hamilton, and seldom before has so magnificent a production been offered to Mr. Robert Arthur's Kennington patrons. As Noel Ferrers Mr. C. F. Collings proves himself an actor of sterling merit, and deserves high praise. All commendation must be given to Mr. Vassall Vaughan, who plays Sir Dorian March in effective style. The part of Mr. Morris finds a worthy exponent in Mr. Frederick Annerley; Mr. Blake Adams as James Hogg is excellent in every way, his ineffectual attempts to become an athlete in order to win the hand of Lady Goldbury being humorous in the extreme. The rôle of Lady Goldbury is admirably sustained by Miss Pattie Brown; Miss Grace E. Leslie gives a clever rendering of the part of Lady Marion Beaumont; Miss Dorothy Giles wins the suffrages of all by her charming impersonation of Lady Gwendolen Ashley; Miss Mabel Murray as the Hon. Mrs. Murgatroyd, Miss Janet Hodson as the Duchess of Danebury, Mr. Arthur Ransom as Mr. Thesiger, Mr. James Percy as Captain Carruthers, Mr. George E. Brandram as Bates, Mr. Edward P. Gee as Parker, Mr. George A. Brandram as Sergeant Wraugham, and Mr. Edwin Palmer as Rev. Martin Hope advanced appreciably the interests of the piece.

GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, Sept. 14, the Comedy, in Three Acts, by Hubert Henry Davies, entitled
"THE MOLLUSC."

Miss Annie Hughes is delighting Fulham playgoers with a capital representation of H. H. Davies' sparkling and ingenious comedy. Miss Hughes herself plays the part of Mrs. Baxter, "the mollusc," and gives a delightful representation of that perplexing personage. Mr. Athol Stewart is well suited in the part of Tom Kemp, playing with freshness and vigour, insomuch that he had won all hearts before the play was half over. Mr. Wylie A. Thompson as Mr. Baxter acted well as a counterfoil to his robust brother-in-law. Miss Lilias Waldegrave, who played the governess, Miss Roberts, is the fortunate possessor of a charming personality, and her acting is characterised by uncommon grace and sincerity; she makes the most of a very attractive part. Altogether, the clever little play was capitally staged and acted, and delighted most appreciative houses. The Mollusc was preceded by the evergreen Bit of Old Chelsea, in which Miss Annie Hughes repeats her well-known success as the flower-girl—a part which she has made peculiarly her own, for it gives full scope for her original turn of comedy. She is well supported by Mr. Alick Chumley as Jack Hillier.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 14, the Romantic Play, by Ben Landeck and J. Wilson, entitled,
"FROM SLAVE TO PRINCESS."

Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company is this week at the Dalston Theatre, in the play entitled From Slave to Princess, which keeps the audience interested from start to finish. Mr. Reginald Huntworth is dignified as King Adrian. Mr. Austen Milroy as Prince Julian (in love with Vera, the slave, afterwards a Princess) goes through the various exciting scenes which fall to the share of the hero of the piece in a way which makes him not only the observed, but the admired of all observers, and he has to acknowledge many a hearty round of applause. Miss Dorothy Hart plays Vera, and shares with Mr. Milroy the enthusiasm of the audience. Miss Agnes Verity as Princess Claudia, plays the jealous and vindictive woman to the life, bringing at times a considerable amount of power to bear upon her acting. The humorous touches in the play are given by Mr. Harry Benson as Patrick O'Brien, "from Ould Ireland," and Miss Kitty Sinclair as Amelia (maid to Princess Claudia). Miss Sinclair and Mr. Benson take part in a song and dance, "Sambo," which is decidedly to the taste of the spectators, who are not at all backward in "asking for more." Mr. Arthur Elwyn is impressive as Michael Bordoni, a chief of police (also a spy and traitor), and Mr. Dermont Fitzgibbon makes a dashing Lieut. Alexis. Others in the cast include Mr. Fred Killiard, Mr. Fred Clifford, Mr. J. Leoni, Mr. C. Brooke, and Mr. F. Curtiss.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Sept. 14, the Drama, entitled
"WHY MEN LOVE WOMEN."

This popular play of Mr. Walter Howard's met with a favourable reception from Brixtonians on its presentation this week at the pretty theatre of Mr. Fred Melville's. Miss Ellen Snow's talented company is responsible for a capital production, and well merits the applause so lavishly bestowed by playgoers. Miss Snow gives a clever and spirited interpretation of the character of Violet Livingstone; Mr. Oliver Rogers lends distinction to the important part of Gerald Fielden; the villainy of Captain Staniloff is forcibly shown by Mr. Lionel Gadsden; Mr. H. Carter Slaughter stands out prominently for his pleasant acting as Tommy Fitzherbert; Mr. Weldon Atherstone is a dignified and impressive Maharajah; Mr. Harwood Roberts does excellent work as Orlando Figgins; Miss Nita Owen is deserving of praise for her acting as Birdie; and Miss Freda Vaughan is delightfully funny as Baby. Both these ladies provide plenty of humour. Miss Maud Court, in the rôle of Muriel Zoluski, played with grace and feeling. Miss Beresford-Glynn is entertaining as Mrs. Figgins. Why Men Love Women is nicely staged. Mr. Will T. Taylor is ever to the fore as Mr. Fred. Melville's urbane acting-manager.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, Sept. 14, the Two-act Drama, entitled
"A LOST WOMAN."

This concise little two-act drama met with every success in Marylebone this week. As the Rev. Harry Tracy, Mr. Harry Barford played in his usual free-and-easy style; Mr. Harry Hiller enacted Felix Lascelles in a convincing and vigorous way; Mr. Frank Kingsley scored as Louis Cordelle; Mr. Fred Boustead powerfully portrayed Philip Gray; Mr. Brien McCullough was responsible for a most artistic and impressive delineation of the miser, Emile Lousaine; and Mr. Fred G. Brooke deserves every credit for his realistic and pleasing portrayal of Pierre Cousset. Miss Beatrice May impersonated Phyllis Gray with every distinction; Miss Clarice Shirley did well as Celestine; Miss Georgie White was successful as Phœbe; whilst Miss Dora Deane displayed plenty of go and energy as the designing Mme. Satan. The piece was followed by some capital animated pictures; two tastefully-rendered illustrated songs by Miss Jean Theobald; and a clever little playlet, entitled The Scapegrace, in which some good work was done by Mr. Fred G. Brooke as Dick Crawford, Mr. Harry Hiller as Bernard Conway, Mr. Fred Boustead as Stuart Henderson, Mr. Frank Kingsley as Dr. Prescott, Miss Beatrice May as Alice Chester, and Miss Dora Deane as the adventuress, Sybil Austin.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, Sept. 14, the Drama entitled
"MAN AND WIFE."

Mr. Walter Howard's successful dramas at the Lyceum Theatre have prepared the Peckham public for further successes from his pen, and certainly Man and Wife is a worthy successor to his other excellent work seen at this theatre. Messrs. Van Biene and Traynor's company exploit the piece to the best advantage. Mr. John F. Traynor, who has much physical advantage in his favour, is a manly representative of the fisherman hero, Paul Revere. Mr. Edward M. Hamilton gives a capital rendering of the rôle of the black-hearted and passionate villain, Captain D'Esparre; the twins, Bambo and Bimbo, are amusingly enacted by Messrs. E. Hall-Eldon and George Vining, but both gentlemen are at times somewhat inclined to overdo the humour of their parts. Mr. Ambrose Horton makes a tall and soldierly Sergeant Jacques; and Mr. George Rammell is excellent as the upright Colonel Latour. Miss Kate Hallam acts with sincerity and feeling as the sorely-tried young wife, Marcelle Revere; while Miss Millie Doris is a pretty and piquant village maiden as Rosette. The blind mother, Ruth Revere, is well enacted by Miss Violet Temple; and the difficult rôle of the self-sacrificing cripple Jean is done full justice to by Mr. George Overs. Mr. Edward Leslie is good as the Priest. The piece is mounted with care, and the whole production is received with much favour by enthusiastic audiences.

THE NEW LYRIC, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Sept. 14, the Drama entitled
"TWO LITTLE SAILOR BOYS."

This interesting drama is meeting with much success at the above house. Mr. H. E. Herbert gives an excellent rendering of the part of Commander Tregarthen; in the unpleasant character of Lieut. Redstone Mr. Horace Booth does well; Mr. C. W. Spencer appears to advantage as Admiral Grey, and Mr. H. M. Clifford is good as Capt. Tom Yorke; Miss Blanche Steele in the heavy part of Lola Grey does capable work; Miss Muriel Dean is a charming Mildred Grey, and Miss Effie Crawford and Miss Ivy Millais as Cyril Grey and Tom Yorke, the two little sailor boys, both display much ability. Mr. Sydney Fiennes gives a clever character-study of Jim Royston, a burglar. Plenty of fun is infused into the characters of Ben Baxter and Jack Jolly by Mr. Tom Sinclair and Mr. Fred Acton respectively. The play is well mounted, and the uniforms and ladies' dresses are excellent throughout. Success will no doubt continue to follow Mr. Hallatt whilst his productions are so satisfactorily toured.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, Sept. 14, the Musical Comedy entitled
"FLORODORA."

A large and enthusiastic audience welcomed the first visit to the Pavilion of the ever-popular Florodora, which, with its sparkling music and merry quips, passes the evening pleasantly along. Mr. Charles Constant, who is responsible for the performance, has brought together an excellent company, who one and all work with a vigour and goodwill, while the scenery and mounting are in admirable taste, and the dresses handsome. A strong chorus render the music with good effect under the direction of Mr. R. Hartman, and the general-manager for Mr. Constant is Mr. Johnny Clegg, whose smartness and urbanity is recognised by all. As the ubiquitous Anthony Tweedlepunch Mr. Gus Danby is the life and soul of the piece, and there is never a dull moment when he is on the stage; Mr. Jack Parker makes a capital Cyrus Gilfain, acting with vigour and dancing with much neatness. The Dolores of Miss Daisy Lake is a portrayal of great artistic merit, and her numbers are rendered with faultless taste. Miss Lillie Blythe presents a portrayal of Lady Holyrood that is replete with piquancy, and deservedly meets with great commendation. Mr. Martin D. Pitt acts Frank Abercoed with animation, and soon becomes a great favourite; and Miss Louie Danby is a sweet and charming Angela, singing and dancing with much daintiness. Mr. Stanley Bartram is heard to advantage in "A military man"; Mr. Emlyn Davis does all that is possible as Leandro; and Miss May Phillips is pleasing as Valleda. The number "Tell me pretty maiden" gains rapturous applause, and is repeatedly encored. The enterprising management of the theatre are to be congratulated on obtaining this valuable engagement, and good business is the result.

THE CORONET.

On Monday, Sept. 14, the Play entitled
"THE CHRISTIAN."

Mr. Wentworth Croke's company is presenting the new version of Hall Caine's celebrated work The Christian, with new and elaborate scenery, at Notting Hill Gate this week. Miss Daisy Scudamore is a charming and lively exponent of the complex character of Glory Quayle, and enters thoroughly into the spirit of the part which she becomes so well. Mr. Roy Redgrave as John Storm acts with much latent strength. His suppressed excitement betokens the tumult that rages within his breast, and his fierce struggle against the world, the flesh, and the devil is graphically and realistically portrayed. Mr. Wilfred Noy does very well as the impetuous and self-willed but right-hearted Horatio Drake; and Mr. Herbert Hewetson is duly sinister and sarcastic as his friend and coadjutor, the polished profligate Lord Robert Ure. Mr. Fewlass Llewellyn acts with fervour, and is singularly eloquent as Father Lamplugh. Miss Molly Hayden is excellent as the kind-hearted, big-souled Mrs. Callender; Miss Cora Deane contributes a very pretty and touching impersonation of Polly Love, whose childlike faith and innocence are so foully abused, and her performance wins her much commendation. Mr. John J. Hooker is very well cast as the worldly-wise and hypocritical time-server Archdeacon Wealthy; Miss Florence Hunt is good as Black Meg; and Mrs. Harriet Russell as Mother Kent, Mr. Fred Goodyear as Bert, Miss Kitty Symons as Lady Robert Ure, and others are well in the picture. Mr. Jack Parson is business-manager for Mr. Wentworth Croke.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, Sept. 14, the Drama, in Three Acts, entitled
"HAND AND GLOVE."

This stirring old Surrey drama is the principal attraction at the Kingston playhouse this week, and has been attracting crowded houses nightly. Miss Maude Stewart Drewry makes a successful appearance in the trying rôle of Lady Lexboro', and Mr. J. J. Bartlett also scores heavily as the villain of the piece, Colonel Raven. The low comedy business is well sustained by Mr. Arthur Williams and by Mr. Buckstone Clair in the respective parts of Timothy Hand and Titus Glove, their drolleries causing no end of merriment. Excellent work is also put in by Miss Jessie Duncan as Judith Maxwell, by Mr. Charles Carey as Dr. Pullman, and by Miss Alice Mosley, the latter of whom gives a charming impersonation of the child Lucy. The play is followed by the comedietta, The Simple Life, originally produced at the Royal County Theatre, in which the parts were admirably portrayed by Mr. E. Dagnell, Miss Molly Pearson, and Miss Drewry. Both plays were admirably staged.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

"AT THE WORLD'S MERCY."

A Musical Comedy-Drama, in Four Acts, by Carr Loates, presented for the first time in London at the Theatre Royal, Stratford, on Monday, Sept. 14.

Captain Frank Manley .....MR. LEO RODWAY
Jabez Barber .....MR. CARR LOATES
Morris Goldstein .....MR. G. D. KNIGHT
Charley Smart .....MR. JESS BOXER
Slouching Sam .....MR. WILL GRIFFIN
Dan .....MR. W. LEONARD
Alice Lloyd .....MISS MOLLY BEE
Skittles ..... } MISS CISSIE MILFORD
Kitty Knott ..... }
Mrs. Rouke ..... MISS CLARA HALL
Dot .....MISS KATHLEEN SAUNDERS
Rosie .....MISS ALICE HUNTER

It seems rather late in the day to give a special notice to this piece, in view of the fact that it has had a highly-successful continuous run for three-and-a-half years, without, we understand, a week out. But there is some justification for the manner in which At the World's Mercy has been so well received by provincial audiences, for the story the author, Mr. Carr Loates, tells us, is absorbingly interesting, and it has the further advantage of being extremely well told by that gentleman's able company and under his supervision. Moreover, the mounting of the play and the general scenery give evidence of the fact that the producer has spared no money to procure for his production a most artistic series of stage settings. Mr. Loates treats us to a well-laid plot in a drama which is replete with many stirring, humorous, and pathetic scenes and incidents. It deals with the trials of Alice Lloyd, the heiress to a fortune, who suffers much misery and discomfort—being finally blinded—at the hands of Jabez Barber, an unscrupulous solicitor, who stops at nothing in his endeavours to obtain certain documents which shall give him possession of the money. He fails in his object, however, his evil plans being invariably thwarted by Captain Frank Manley, of the ss. Duttnor Castle, to whom Alice is betrothed. The principal interest lies, however, in the characters of Skittles and Dot, two of those homeless children in London, who are thrown on "the world's mercy." Skittles, whom we first meet as a stowaway on a vessel at sea, ragged and grimy, utters sage comments on the treatment of his class. His pathetic appeal for kindness and sympathy, and education as to right and wrong, instead of the harsh measures meted out by prisons and reformatories, meets with warm appreciation from the audience, who evidently share his sentiments on the matter. His introduction into the piece creates a very pleasant diversion in the story. Miss Cissie Milford undertakes with distinct success the dual rôle of Skittles and Kitty Knott, as the former submitting a remarkably vivid characterisation of the poor stowaway, and as the music-hall artist furnishing quite an attractive "turn." Mr. Leo Rodway is a manly hero; and Mr. Carr Loates acts with convincing forcefulness in the part of Jabez Barber. Miss Mollie Bee is an engaging personality as Alice Lloyd, and portrays the part with quiet sincerity. Mr. G. K. Knight as a scheming Hebrew, Mr. Jess Boxer and Mr. Will Griffin as Charley Smart and Slouching Sam respectively, and Mr. W. Leonard as Dan, all render a good account of themselves. Miss Kathleen Saunders as the child "Dot" proves herself to be a juvenile actress of considerable talent, and other female rôles are capably undertaken by the Misses Clara Hall and Alice Hunter.

PROMENADE CONCERTS.

On Wednesday evening, Sept. 9, another work by an English composer was produced by Mr. Henry Wood. Mr. B. Luard-Selby, the author of "A Village Suite," is a Kentish man, having been born at Ightham in 1853. In 1881 Mr. Luard-Selby was organist at Salisbury Cathedral, and afterwards organist at Rochester Cathedral. There are four movements in "The Village Suite," "The Village Festival" containing peaceful and gentle harmonies, while in "In the Water Meadows" some attempt is made to give the effect of spring coming after the sombre winter. This movement, although far too long, is melodious and ably scored for the orchestra. "God's Acre," the third section of the suite, contains solemn and appropriate music; and the lively finale, "At the Smithy," gives a good idea of a busy time at a country blacksmith's, with, as the great Wagner has it, a clever forge motive for the orchestra. At the conclusion of the suite Mr. Luard-Selby was well received, and twice recalled to the platform. The programme of Wednesday's concert also included Weber's "Euryanthe" Overture, Brahms's Symphony, No. 3, in F, Overture "Leonora," No. 3 (Beethoven), and Tschaikovsky's March, "Slave." Mr. M. Wolters was the solo violinist, and Mrs. Harriett Foster and Mr. Lloyd Chandos the vocalists.

At the Queen's Hall on Thursday, Sept. 10, the programme included Richard Strauss's "Don Quixote," a work thoroughly characteristic of this strange composer. In spite of much that is fantastic, weird, and harsh in "Don Quixote," there is at times music of a charming and harmonious feeling, in marked contrast to the other portions, and Mr. Wood most skilfully brought out all that was best in this remarkable composition. The violoncello solo was admirably played by Mr. Jacques Renard. A new song, with orchestra, by Mr. Montague Phillips, was also given on Thursday evening, entitled "Fidelity," which proved to be a well-written and attractive work. It was finely sung by Miss Clara Butterworth, the fortunate possessor of a beautiful mezzo-soprano voice. Both composer and vocalist were recalled several times to the platform. The other vocalist was Mr. Cynlais Gibbs; and on Thursday the orchestra were heard in Mozart's "Le Nozze di Figaro" overture, the symphonic fantasia, "Francesca da Rimini," of Tschaikovsky, Schumann's Symphony, No. 1, in B flat, Humperdinck's overture to "Hansel und Gretel," and Wagner's overture to "Tannhäuser."

Mr. Colonne conducted the Tuesday evening Promenade Concert at Queen's Hall, and a most hearty reception was given to the famous French conductor. Mr. Colonne will conduct at Queen's Hall on Tuesdays, Sept. 22 and 29, while Mr. Wood is directing the rehearsals for the Sheffield Festival, and the New Symphony Orchestra will be under the charge of the French conductor from Oct. 5 to Oct. 9. On Tuesday evening an excellent performance of Wagner's Rienzi overture was given, followed by Saint-Saëns' "Suite Algerienne," in the three movements of which the composer gives impressions of a "Journey to Algiers," an effective "Moorish Rhapsody," and the "Reverie at Evening." The suite was admirably played, and the conductor twice recalled to the platform. Delightful also was the orchestral rendering of Saint-Saëns' symphonic poem, "Le Rouet d'Omphale," Berlioz's scherzo, "Scène d'Amour," and "Fêtes des Capulets," from Romeo et Juliette, Lalo's "Norwegian Rhapsody," and the overture to Auber's Crown Diamonds. Two flute solos, "Pastorale" and Concert-Etude, "The Bee," written by Mr. Fransella, were most skilfully executed by the composer; and the vocalists, Miss Edith Kirkwood and Mr. Peter Dawson, were much applauded in Verdi's aria, "Caro Nome," from Rigoletto, and "She alone charmeth my sadness" (Irene), Gounod.

"BUTTERFLIES," at the Apollo Theatre, reached its 150th performance on Wednesday evening amid much enthusiasm. The swing and verve of this merry musical play is quite remarkable, and it is no matter for surprise that it is one of the few spring productions to survive the "dog" days.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

SIR CHARLES WYNDHAM returned to town early in the week, and has been busily superintending preparations for the production at the New Theatre of Mr. Roy Horniman's new comedy, Bellamy the Magnificent, the first performance of which is announced for Oct. 1. Rehearsals of Mr. Hubert Henry Davies's new piece, Lady Epping's Lawsuit, in which Miss Mary Moore reappears at the Criterion, are in active progress.

MRS. D'OYLY CARTE has given general satisfaction by the announcement of her intention to replace Iolanthe in her répertoire of Gilbert and Sullivan operas at the Savoy. The revival will be made on Monday, Oct. 19, and the cast will include Mr. Rutland Barrington, in his original part of Lord Mount Ararat, Mr. C. H. Workman, Mr. Henry A. Lytton, Miss Clara Dow, Miss Jessie Rose, and Miss Louie Réné. Until October 19 The Mikado and H.M.S. Pinafore will be played. Later in the season Mrs. Carte will revive one of the other Savoy operas.

MR. ARTHUR COLLINS found that difficulties attendant on the reconstruction of the stage at Drury Lane would prevent the adequate representation of The Marriages of Mayfair on Thursday, and accordingly postponed the production until Monday next. Seats already booked for this weeks' performances will be exchanged on application at the box-office.

AMONG the novelties secured by Mr. Collins for the production were half-a-dozen ravens, which were to fly about the spacious stage; but other counsels have prevailed, and the feathered tribe will be represented by pheasants and partridges, which will be utilised in the scene of the Home Coverts. The superstitious would consider that the raven is rightly banned from the stage, and history contains several records that maintain that these are birds of ill-omen. According to Macaulay Cicero was forewarned of his death by a raven which entered his room on the day of his murder and pulled the clothes off his bed Shakespeare, too, had no love for ravens, judging by his frequent uncomplimentary references to the ebony-hued bird.

MRS. BEERBOHM TREE was among the notable assembly at the wedding of Mr. Winston Churchill and Miss Hozier at St. Margaret's, Westminster, on Saturday. Included in the long list of presents to the bride are a set of hairpins joined by jewelled chain from Mr. and Mrs. Beerbohm Tree and Miss Viola Tree.

MISS LENA ASHWELL, it is generally admitted, studies the comfort of the humblest of her patrons. When she reopens the charming little Kingsway Theatre three weeks hence with Mr. Wilfred Coleby's new play, The Swayboat, it will be found that one of the chief of many structural alterations that have been made during the summer recess has been the conversion of the hitherto uncomfortable gallery, with its narrow knifeboard seating, into a convenient and commodious upper circle. Miss Ahwell has decided slightly to increase the price of admission to this section of the house, being fully convinced that her regular supporters in the upper tier, from whom she has throughout her whole career experienced so much kindness and encouragement, would receive more than compensation in the better accommodation provided.

THE Gaiety Theatre, Dublin, has been bought by the Dublin Theatre Co., the Chairman of which is Mr. David Telford. Negotiations, which have been carried on for a considerable time with the lessees of the Gaiety, have resulted in the sale, for a sum, it is said, of £40,000. Possession will not be handed over until May 1 next. The intention of the Theatre Royal Company is to carry on the house as heretofore, with occasional seasons of hippodrome. One result of the sale will be to prevent in future the appearance in both houses simultaneously of stars of the first magnitude. Mr. Frederick Mouillot will be the managing-director of the Gaiety.

MRS. MICHAEL GUNN, who has for so long a period been associated with the fortunes of the Gaiety, will have no interest in the new theatre, and will retire from active participation in theatrical affairs in Dublin. The Gaiety, it may be recalled, was opened on Nov. 27, 1871, when Mrs. Scott-Siddons spoke a dedication. The piece was She Stoops to Conquer, with Mr. Lionel Brough as Tony Lumpkin, followed by the burletta La Belle Sauvage, in which Mrs. John Wood appeared. The theatre was in the hands of Mr. John Gunn, who had Mr. Edwin Hamilton for coadjutor, and the foremost attractions of the day were provided, the Carl Rosa Opera Company being a leading feature.

MR. JOHN GUNN died in April, 1877, and for ten years the control of the Gaiety remained in the hands of his brother Michael. In 1896, when Michael's health first began to fail, the management of the Gaiety devolved upon his nephew, John Gunn, and after the death of Michael in 1901 the control of the house passed for a time into the hands of the Associated Managers of the United Kingdom. Some time afterwards, however, Mrs. Gunn was appointed manageress.

MR. WEEDON GROSSMITH has mislaid a motor—not, we hasten to say, the ubiquitous automobile, but a property boiler, which he has utilised effectively in many a "screaming" production. The boiler is not an article easy to overlook, as it is 5ft. high, and has a whistle a foot and a half long. Accompanying it, tied up as it were in the same parcel, were a life-size oil-painting of Mr. Grossmith in the character of Jack Sheppard, signed by himself; and a black and white drawing of the comedian smoking, signed by the artist, Mr. Jule Goodman. Anyone who gives information as to the whereabouts of the articles will be rewarded.

A CIRCUMSTANTIAL account of the discovery and the loss of the boiler is given by Mr. Grossmith. "I picked it up," he said, "at Sheffield some years ago, a bargain, for £20. The whistle is a real locomotive whistle and was in good screeching order when I last saw the boiler. It imitated a locomotive beautifully, and was an effective member of my company when I was touring in the provinces with my own play, The Cure, in which Mrs. John Wood had a part. We got the boiler to work up to 200lb. pressure and it blew off steam across the stage in imitation of a locomotive, and then in the last scene it shook down a jerry-built house.

"THE boiler was particularly wanted for a scene with a steamboat in The Early Worm at Wyndham's. I told Mr. Curzon," said Mr. Grossmith, "that I had the very thing; but, when I came to look for it, I could not find it. The fact, of course, is that I have had no use for it for about three years, and it has been stored somewhere. Nobody seems to know where, and when I caused inquiries to be made at the Midland Railway, the answer was that, about two years ago, someone called in my name and took it away."

MR. AND MRS KENDAL will make one of their only too rare appearances in London next week, during which they will appear at the Marlborough. On Monday they will introduce to the Metropolis Mr. Herbert Swears' play, The Whirlpool. Wednesday and Friday evenings will be devoted to The Elder Miss Blossom, which was produced at Cardiff on Feb. 22 last.

MR. J. BANNISTER HOWARD'S autumn season at the Crystal Palace opens on Monday, the 28th inst., with The Dairymaids, played by Mr. Robert Macdonald's company. The combination, which has been specially rehearsed by Mr. Robert Courtneidge, is of exceptional strength, having in the cast such well-known names as Miss Empsie Bowman as Peggy, Miss Nellie Bowman as Eliza, Miss Carrie Lacey as Lady Brudenell, Mr. Dan Agar as Joe Mivens, and Mr. Richard Telford as Lieut. Sam Brudenell. The dresses are from the original designs by M. Wilhelm, and all the scenery and properties are exactly the same as at the Queen's.

DURING the vacation Mr. Howard has had the stage and theatre thoroughly overhauled. He has had new scenery painted, and an improvement which his patrons will appreciate very much is the new installation of heating apparatus throughout the theatre. A new cloakroom, too, has been added. In view of the Franco-British Exhibition Mr. Howard decided some time ago that it would be wiser to commence his forthcoming season rather later than usual. Mr. Howard's bookings for the Crystal Palace Theatre include Beau Brocade, Miss Annie Hughes in The Mollusc, Uncle Tom's Cabin, The Belle of Mayfair, Peter's Mother, The Beloved Vagabond, and The Merry Widow.

MR. HOWARD'S pantomime at the Crystal Palace at Christmas will be entitled Robinson Crusoe, and for it he has again engaged Miss Lillie Lassah as Dick and Miss Venie Clements as Polly Perkins. In addition to this, he is producing two other pantomimes during the forthcoming season—namely, Cinderella at the Theatre Royal, Plymouth, and last year's Crystal Palace "annual," The Forty Thieves, which will start a season at Cheltenham and then be transferred to Bath.

MR. HOWARD'S three years' lease of the Crystal Palace Theatre expires next February; but so satisfied have all parties been with the successful conduct of affairs in that direction in the past, that the company has just granted him a fresh lease.

MISS NETTIE WARE, the well-known actress, has sustained a severe shock by the death, owing to a lamentable accident, of her husband, Mr. William Austin Hibbert Ware, which occurred at Richmond on Monday morning. Mr. Ware, who was a barrister, was walking home on Saturday night, accompanied by his favourite wolfhound, on a lead. By some means the dog twisted the lead round its master, and brought him to the ground. How long he lay there unconscious is not known, but when some passers-by came up to render assistance, the dog snarled and growled, and would not let them approach his recumbent master. An urgent message was sent to Mrs. Ware, who came at once, and called the dog off. The unfortunate gentleman was taken home, where it was found that he was suffering from concussion of the brain, from which he died.

AT the inquest held on Wednesday, Mrs. Ware said that after dinner on Saturday Mr. Ware and a friend went up to the Star and Garter Hotel, where the dog was kept in the stables, and took it out for a run. The next she knew was when she was called to Friars-lane to find her husband on the edge of the pavement in a pool of blood, with the dog standing by. He was taken home, gradually got worse, and died early on Monday. The medical evidence showed that death was due to rupture of a blood-vessel on the brain, and a verdict of accidental death was returned. The jury also expressed sympathy with the widow.

THE funeral took place yesterday morning at Mortlake. A Requiem Mass was celebrated at St. Elizabeth's, Vineyard Park, Richmond, by Father FitzGibbon. Many people connected with the legal and theatrical professions were to be seen in the church. Subsequently, the funeral cortège, consisting of a hearse covered with beautiful wreaths, and five or six carriages, wended its way to Mortlake, where, in the Roman Catholic Cemetery adjoining the Church of St. Mary Magdalene, the remains of the deceased were interred.

THE principal mourners were Mrs. Nettie Ware (widow), Mrs. Wm. H. Ware (mother), Mr. Rust (cousin), Mrs. Hincheliffe (mother-in-law), Miss Stewart (cousin), Mr. H. C. Bateman, and Mr. Walter Williams. The two last-mentioned were old friends of the deceased.

FATHER FITZGIBBON officiated at the graveside service, in which he was assisted by Canon Hogan, of St. Mary Magdalene's. The coffin bore the inscription:—

WILLIAM HIBBERT WARE,
the loved husband of Nettie Ware, who passed away September 14, 1908, aged 36.

THE floral tributes were both numerous and beautiful. That from the widow was a broken harp made of white flowers, and it bore the message, "Gone from sight, but never out of memory. From his broken-hearted wife." Other wreaths were sent by Mrs. Ware (mother of the deceased), "Edith, Alice, Carol, and Maud" (cousins), Mrs. Hinchcliffe, Mr. Walter Williams, Mr. William Bates, Mr. Jack Cleverley, Mr. J. Wertheim, Mr. and Mrs. Thompson, Mr. Forsyth, and the Star and Garter hostelry, Richmond. One from a lifelong friend (Mr. H. C. Bateman) was sent "in ever loving remembrance of our dear Bill from Mux."

MR. MARTIN HARVEY'S revival of The Corsican Brothers is proving powerfully attractive at the Adelphi, where it might well run much longer than originally announced. Mr. Harvey, however, does not wish to alter his plans, and so Saturday, Oct. 3, will be its last performance there for the present, the following Monday being the date chosen for the production of Mr. Stephen Phillips' version of Scott's "The Bride of Lammermoor," entitled The Last Heir.

"THE CORSICAN BROTHERS" will next week be preceded by Ib and Little Christina. The playlet, which is in three panels, is by Basil Hood, with incidental music by A. Bruhns, and was first produced at the Prince of Wales's Theatre in 1900 with Mr. Martin Harvey as Ib, Miss Eva Moore as Christina, and Miss Phyllis Dare as the child. In Monday's revival the parts will be played by Miss Mary Rorke, Miss Coleridge, Master Bobbie Andrews, and Miss Rita Redhead, with Mr. Harvey in his original part of Ib.

MISS DECIMA MOORE, who has contributed so conspicuously to the brilliant success achieved in the provinces by Mrs. Dot, under Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's management, roused the house to such enthusiasm at the beautiful new theatre at Stockton that she was compelled to respond to the cry of "speech." "I want to thank you all," said Miss Moore, "in Miss Emma Hutchison's and our own behalf, for the wonderful reception you have given us this week. We think you have all liked Mrs. Dot—(cheers)—and you will be glad to hear that you will shortly see other companies of Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison's in Mrs. Ponderbury's Past, Lady Frederick, by same author as Mrs. Dot, and Brewster's Millions, with its wonderful ship scene, in which Mr. Percy Hutchison will himself appear. I now want to thank Mr. Imeson for the great courtesy he has shown us in his magnificent new theatre, of which Stockton is so justly proud."

MR. CHARLES MANNERS has received an abundance of encouragement at Birmingham this week in his laudable efforts to establish grand opera at popular prices. On Monday, the Theatre Royal overflowed with patronage, and Herr Eckhold, the principals, chorus, and orchestra were each and all singled out for ovations in turn. Mlle. Zelie de Lussan as Carmencita was specially greeted after her absence from the company. Mme. Fanny Moody drew another enthusiastic house on Tuesday as Madame Butterfly, this being indeed a portrayal of striking beauty and a joy to the audience.

WE regret to announce the death of Mr. Thomas Ballard, scenic artist, which took place on Sunday, the 13th inst. He first gave Mr. W. Hann valued aid by painting some beautiful figures upon a balcony in a palace scene for Babil and Bijou at Covent Garden in 1872. He had before this painted many beautiful ceilings and pictures over the prosceniums of the new theatres then building in London and the provinces. Whenever Mr. Hann had pictorial act-drops, which now seem to have gone out of fashion, or interiors requiring figure decoration of a high order, to do, he always, if possible, availed himself of Mr. Ballard's valuable services, and he is much indebted to his great taste and refined work for the general effect of some of his (Mr. Hann's) best scenes. His kind and gentle disposition endeared him to all who knew him.

THE wedding of a popular English actress and vocalist took place in Brussels on Wednesday, when Miss Tita Brand was married to M. Emile Cammaerts, a Belgian writer, and author of a new version of Tristan and Yseult. In addition to being a highly-esteemed tragedienne, the bride has the distinction of being the daughter of the famous prima donna Mme. Marie Brema. She accompanied her mother to Bayreuth in 1894, 1896, and 1897; and, while Mme. Brema was singing Kundry in Parsifal, Ortrud, and Fricka, acquired a dramatic education by attending all the rehearsals, both at the house of Mme. Wagner and in the Festspielhaus.

MISS BRAND made her début as Olivia in Twelfth Night with Ben Greet's Pastoral Players at the Botanic Gardens, Regent's Park, on June 11, 1901, and subsequently played many Shakespearean rôles under Mr. Greet's management. An important step in her career was made in 1903, when she toured with Mr. George Alexander as Huguette in If I Were King. At Christmas of that year she played the Fairy Queen in Water Babes at the Garrick, and afterwards fulfilled several engagements at the West End, including that of Gloria in Bernard Shaw's You Never Can Tell at the Court. In the spring of 1906 she went on tour with Mr. F. R. Benson, and since then has given numerous recitals in England and on the Continent. We join with our readers in wishing the newly-married pair health and happiness.

MR. HARRY NICHOLLS will produce, and appear in, the new romantic costume drama, entitled If We Only Knew, written by himself and Mr. Chas. Ross, at the Fulham Theatre on Monday, Sept. 28. It is scarcely necessary to recall the many triumphs achieved by Mr. Harry Nicholls during his long engagement with the late Sir Augustus Harris at Old Drury. His Horatio Spofkins, the lawyer's clerk, in Human Nature, his convict in Youth, his Captain Danby in A Life of Pleasure will be enjoyably remembered. As a pantomime actor he was equally successful, perhaps his most brilliant creation in that direction being that of Cissy, the little girl in The Babes in the Wood, when his lifelong friend, the late Herbert Campbell, was the boy Babe. His name is also identified with many successes at the Adelphi, notably as Private Jupp, the Cockney Scotchman, in One of the Best, and as Burgess in The Fatal Card.

MR. NICHOLLS has done valuable work, too, as a pantomime and song writer, and is part author of the popular farcical comedy Jane, and of the Gaiety successes A Runaway Girl and The Toreador. With such a record Mr. Nicholls may confidently anticipate a favourable reception of his new play, for which the music has been specially written by Mr. John Crook (composer of Peter Pan, &c.), the scenery specially painted by Mr. E. G. Banks, and the costumes supplied by Messrs. Angel and Son. The piece itself is of an intensely dramatic nature, with a strong love-story, and an excellent comedy part for Mr. Nicholls.

THE Waldorf Theatre, which has been taken over for a lease of twenty-one years by Mr. Henry R. Smith, was let through the medium of Mr. F. J. Ronald, estate agent and auctioneer, of Belgravia-chambers, Victoria-street. Mr. Smith will open the theatre early in November with a new musical play, entitled Miss Blossom of Brittany.

THE series of surprises in the matter of theatrical marriages has been supplemented by the announcement of the wedding of Miss Marie Studholme, the popular musical comedy actress, and Mr. Harold Giles Borrett, which took place at the Marylebone Registry Office on the 4th inst. The wedding was a very quiet one, only a few friends being present. Miss Studholme was appearing last week in My Mimosa Maid at the Pleasure Gardens, Folkestone, where she had an enthusiastic reception.

THE bride was born at Eccleshill, Yorkshire, and did not come to London until she was fifteen. She went on the stage at the age of seventeen, and for a year played small parts with Charles Wyndham at the Criterion. Later she devoted herself almost entirely to musical comedy, in which she first appeared at the Gaiety. In 1899 she toured in the title-rôle of San Toy, and on returning to London was given leading parts at the Gaiety and other theatres under Mr. George Edwardes' management. One of her most recent creations was that of the title-rôle of My Darling, produced by Mr. Seymour Hicks. The bridegroom is one of the five sons of Major-General H. C. Borrett, of Lancaster Lodge, Bath-road, Reading, and has also played minor parts in musical comedy.

AT the last council meeting of the Theatrical Managers' Association, Mr. H. Cecil Beryl, late of the Theatre Royal, Brighton, was unanimously elected an honorary member. Mr. Beryl was one of the original members of the Association, and in its earlier days was its honorary secretary.

MISS EVELYN MILLARD has achieved so substantial a success with Idols that it will assuredly adorn the Garrick stage till the end of the popular actress's season, which extends right through January. Another theatre will then, in all probability, be secured to continue the run. Meanwhile Miss Millard has acquired a new comedy by Mr. Robert Hitchins, the author of "The Green Carnation," "The Call of the Blood," &c., which she will produce in the spring. The piece is modern in character, and provides a smart society part for Miss Millard.

"A CIGARETTE MAKER'S ROMANCE" has just been produced at the Standard Theatre, Johannesburg, with conspicuous success, by Mr. Leonard Rayne's company, and has been witnessed by crowded audiences. Mr. Norman Partriege in Mr. Martin Harvey's part of Count Skariatine, Miss Godart in Miss de Silva's original rôle of Viera, and Miss Annie Leaf and Mr. Charles Howitt as Akulina and Dumnoff, are especially praised for their performances in Mr. Charles Hannan's play.

MR. ARTHUR BOURCHIER will produce his new play, An Outsider, by "Mayne Lindsay" and Captain Robert Marshall, at the Theatre Royal, Manchester, on Oct. 15. In addition to Mr. Bourchier and Miss Violet Vanbrugh the cast will include Messrs. Charles Bryant, Arthur Whitby, and L. Quartermaine, Miss Henrietta Watson, and Miss Pamela Gaythorne.

THE Actors' Association have found new premises at 353, Strand, which have lately been occupied by some enterprising ladies who figured in a recent popular case, and opened a restaurant under the picturesque title of "Ken's Cabin." The place is admirably situated, and is only a few doors distant from the Association's present habitation. The removal will take place on the 29th inst.

THE performance of The Adventure of Lady Ursula, by Mr. Norman V. Norman's company at the Theatre Royal, Ryde, on Monday was honoured by the presence of Princess Henry of Battenberg and her son Prince Alexander and suite, who occupied front seats in the dress circle. Her Royal Highness stayed until the close of the performance, when through her equerry she expressed to the management the gratification the entertainment had afforded her.

MR. ERNEST G. BATLEY, who is playing Tom Norman in Her Second Time on Earth, has been re-engaged by Mr. Walter Melville for his new production. Miss Ethyle Murray, who is sustaining the heavy leads at the Britannia, will in future be known as Ethyle Gordon Murray.

MISS FLORRIE GREEN, who was especially engaged by Mr. James Willard for the title-rôle in his new drama, The Girl with the Angel Face, has scored a success at every theatre visited. Miss Green is only seventeen, and must assuredly enjoy the distinction of being the youngest leading lady at present appearing before the British public.

THE charge of having carried on a theatrical employment agency without registering it, which was brought against William Cecil Watson, described as a dramatist, at the Guildhall Police-court last week, and remanded, was on Wednesday withdrawn. The defendant was accordingly discharged.

MISS EMMA AND MR. PERCY HUTCHISON'S Lady Frederick company continue their triumphant tour, and on Monday opened at the Spa Theatre, Scarborough, to a brilliant assemblage of well-known people at present staying at this beautiful Spa. Miss Mabel Love's reception in the name-part was gratifying in the extreme, and many calls were awarded her at the termination of each act.

MR. HALL CAINE'S biography is to be published jointly by Mr. Heinemann and Messrs. Collier and Co., on Oct. 1, under the title of "My Story." As a record of success achieved under adverse circumstances, the work will have the moral value of an incentive to youth, and as a picture gallery of notable literary men of the past generation it possesses the importance and the charm which attach to the well-told tale of one who has been in personal contact with those who figure in the narrative.

MR. H. LOUIS WILSON has been appointed acting-manager at the Castle Theatre, Richmond.

MR. AND MRS. HOWARD L. TRACY (Miss Babs Stuart), who are at present playing Sidney Clifford and Clarissa in What the Butler Saw, have been engaged by Mr. Oswald Brooks for the spring tour of The New Housemaid, playing Bertie and Dulcie (lead). They open at the Grand Theatre, Swansea, in New Year's week.

THE Dramatic Debaters have extended the date of the closing of their play competition from the 21st to the 30th inst. Only one-act plays written by members, it should be remembered, can be considered. "Costume" plays can be admitted, provided the competitor undertakes, in the event of success, to provide the dresses. A reading fee of 5s. for each play submitted is required.

MR. C. ADOLF SEEBOLD, one of our most enterprising South Coast managers, took his annual benefit on the 9th inst. at the Theatre Royal, Worthing. The prices for admission had been raised; but, notwithstanding, packed houses were to be found both afternoon and evening. The Benson company occupied the boards, and Twelfth Night and The School for Scandal were the plays selected. The admirable way in which they were presented was attested by prolonged applause. At the closing performance Mr. Seebold was the recipient of gratifying proofs of his popularity. Numerous presents were received from his staff, and habitués seemed to vie with each other in enthusiasm. Mr. Seebold has raised to a high standard the dramatic entertainments of Worthing, and his genial manner at all times has earned him many lasting friendships.

AT Penge Petty Sessions on Tuesday an application was made for the transfer of the full-licence for the Crystal Palace, held by Jesse H. Cozens, to George Oscar Starr, the general manager of the company. The solicitor stated that Mr. Cozens had ceased to be the secretary of the Crystal Palace Company, and the directors desired that all the licences should be held by Mr. Starr, who held the stage play, music, and dancing licences, and was now permanently engaged as manager to the Crystal Palace Company. A police inspector said there was no objection to the transfer, and the application was granted.

MESSRS. HERBERT SKARDON AND H. SHERWOOD MARTIN have been meeting with wonderful success with their production of The Way of the World, which commenced on May 4, and has toured continually since. It is booked up, with very few exceptions, till 1910.

THEY are asking in Jersey whether the author of The King of Cadonia and The Early Worm is the young Jerseyman who first took the name of Keith Lonsdale and then dropped the Keith for Frederick, his real name being Frederick Leonard. The brilliant success which is attending the gifted young dramatist's work in the metropolis well justifies the curiosity exhibited.

A FEW days ago the following appeared in the Personal columns of the Daily Mail:—"Mr. Martin Harvey begs to thank 'Dusty Rhodes' and 'Weary Willie' for very kindly returning his pocket book." While motoring through Newmarket Mr. Harvey had the misfortune to lose his pocket book, containing several valuable papers and a number of postal orders, amounting to a considerable sum, which had been received, in return for his autograph, for theatrical charities, together with a number of postage stamps. "The Corsican Brothers" who found it took everything that could be turned into money except the pocket book, to pay their expenses, as they expressed it, for a bad day at the races, and yet they were kind enough to return the remnants, with the request for an acknowledgment in the paper mentioned.

"THE GIRLS OF GOTTENBERG" made an immediate success on its production in New York, Miss Gertie Millar securing chief honours as Mitzi. Mr. James Blakeley and Mr. Lionel Mackinder also won high encomiums.

RAPID progress is being made in the reconstruction of the New Theatre, Oxford, and in order that it may be completed early in October, night gangs have been put on. The circle and gallery are nearly finished, and the building is in the hands of the decorators. The plans were designed by the eminent architect, Mr. W. G. R. Sprague, and the theatre when reopened will have seating accommodation for another 300 people.

MR. C. C. DORRILL, the managing-director, has filled all dates this year, and doubtless excellent business will be the result, since the bookings include Mr. James Welch in When Knights Were Bold, Messrs. Glenister and Ingram's company in Jack Straw, Mr. Edward Terry, Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch, Miss Hook of Holland, Mr. Percy Hutchison's companies of Brewster's Millions and Lady Frederick, Mr. Edward Compton, Mr. Leonard Boyne in Raffles, the D'Oyly Carte Opera Company, The Thief, Charley's Aunt, Tom Jones, The Beloved Vagabond, and Dear Old Charlie.

THE Royal Court Theatre, Warrington, was offered for sale at auction by Mr. W. H. Robinson, at the Albion Hotel, Piccadilly, Manchester, on Tuesday afternoon. The attendance included Mr. William Johnson (one of the proprietors of the theatre), Mr. Frank Macnaghten (managing director of the Warrington Palace and Hippodrome), Mr. Bradbury (resident manager), and Mr. McLeod Loader, resident manager of the St. Helens Theatre. The auctioneer said the reason for selling the theatre was owing to the serious illness of one of the partners (Mr. Joseph Potter), who wanted to realise the property. The bidding started at £10,000, and the subsequent offers were £11,000, £11,500, £12,000, £13,000, and £13,250, at which figure it was knocked down to Mr. Joseph Beecham, of St. Helens, who, it was stated, is interested in the St. Helens Opera House. The purchaser has to take over all the bookings from the date of the completion of the purchase.

MISS MOUILLOT, the hon. secretary of the Amateur Players' Association, is about to broaden the scope of her work by the production of plays by unknown authors. With this view she is establishing a "Dramatic Productions Club," which will present at the Court Theatre at least six new pieces during the season of 1908-9. Performances are to take place on the first Sunday (evening) and Monday (afternoon) of each month, commencing Dec. 6 and 7. Sunday evening performances will be open to members alone; but on Monday the public will be admitted.

MR. CECIL A. COLLINS and his company will next week present the late Henry Pettitt's famous drama Hands Across the Sea at the Dalston Theatre. It is twelve years since the thrilling play was revived, and it should appeal with renewed force to all lovers of sound melodrama.

THE new version of The Christian, by Hall Caine, which was recently produced at the Lyceum Theatre, will visit the Kennington Theatre next week. The success of The Christian in the past has been quite equalled by the new version, the business done both in the provinces and suburbs being remarkable.

MISS VIOLET LEY, the Mrs. Dan of Brewster's Millions, was called upon at short notice last Tuesday to take up her old part of Lady Mary Crewys in Peter's Mother at the Grand Theatre, Douglas. Mr. Hutchison's two companies being in "opposition" to each other in the town, the gentleman was fortunately able to avail himself of her services.

FOR the eighth time in succession Mr. Percy Hutchison has succeeded in breaking all the Hutchison records. The event was achieved this week at Douglas, where holiday people have nightly packed one of the largest theatres in the kingdom. On Wednesday the performance was witnessed by Lady Raglan and the Lord Lieutenant, who at the conclusion of the performance expressed his great approval to Mr. Chas. Fox and Mr. George Clarkson. The famous ship scene has caused quite a sensation. Next week the company start their first visit to the large cities, commencing at Dublin.

ALL rights possessed by Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh in the Bullock version of East Lynne have been relinquished by the gentlemen mentioned. They have been acquired by arrangement with Mr. Pitt Hardacre by Mr. Tom Watt, who will tour the play under the direction of Mr. Cecil Elgar.

MR. G. P. HUNTLEY has engaged Mr. Wallace Stranack to look after his interests at the Hicks Theatre. Mr. Stranack will enter upon his duties as business manager on Thursday next.

THE Bandmann company, playing Amasis, Miss Hook of Holland, and The Merry Widow, has been enjoying record business at Bombay. For the performance of the last-mentioned piece, rows of 2s. seats were sold at 5s.; standing room went at 3s.; and seats in the passage fetched 10s.

NUMEROUS congratulations have been received by Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Dudley Bennett, to whom a son was born on Thursday. Both mother and child, we are glad to say, are doing well.

MR. HARRY BATTERSBY, for so long lessee of the Theatre Royal, Bilston, in which he has now parted with his rights, took his farewell benefit on the 10th inst. An enthusiastic committee of local gentlemen, working under the auspices of Sir Henry Norman, M.P., and Sir Alfred Hickman, had ensured the success of the undertaking, and the theatre was packed in every part. A long programme was gone through, the principal items being Mr. F. B. Woulfe's company in Robin Hood, the production of a dramatic episode, entitled Who is Guilty? by William Melvyn and William Miller, and a quantity of "turns" supplied by the variety profession. Mr. John Male, C.C., in a feeling little speech, voiced the regret of the Bilston public in losing Mr. Battersby, and then proceeded to present the beneficiaire with a number of tokens of regard from various bodies in the town.

WE regret to record the death of Mr. Edmund Cuthbert, which took place on Sunday last, at Sunderland, after only a few days' illness. Mr. Cuthbert was for several years past connected with the Hardie and Von Leer's Two Little Vagabonds company, among the members of which he was held in high esteem. The funeral took place at Bishop Wearmouth Cemetery on Tuesday.

"THE VILLAGE BLACKSMITH," presented by Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company, met with a most enthusiastic welcome on its first visit to Falkirk last week. The Grand Theatre was crowded to its utmost extent on Monday, Friday, and Saturday, thus breaking all drama records for these three nights. The Village Blacksmith is in its fifth year of continued success.

THE football season has begun, and ardent followers of the sport, of which there are many in the profession, will soon be in keen pursuit of the ball. For those who like to look on an exciting contest is sure to be provided at Fulham to-day, when Fulham and Birmingham will compete. The kick-off is at 3.30. The home team consists of Skene, Lindsay, Charlton, Collins, Parsonage, Suart, Threlfall, Dalrymple, Harrison, Brown, and Lipsham.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Mr. Alexander Explains.

MR. GEORGE ALEXANDER, in a letter to the Weekly Dispatch contradicting the rumour that he is retiring from the stage this season, says: "There is no reason because I take an active part in the government of the County of London and may seek parliamentary honours in the future that I am giving up my life's work. I have no wish to become a professional politician, and the combination of actor and member of Parliament only means working more hours in the day, more weeks in the month, and more months in the year, and taking less sleep and indulging in less pleasure."

Late for Lunch.

"I KNEW that Marie was going to be married to Mr. Borrett," said Miss Studholme's mother to a Daily Chronicle representative last week, "but I certainly did not know the ceremony was going to take place when it did. In fact I am sure no one excepting themselves were aware of it. That morning I had an appointment, and as I was leaving the house rather hurriedly to keep it I casually asked my daughter—she is my only child—'Will you be back to lunch, dear?' She said she would not."

Adding an Act.

"DURING the time that I was manager of a Liverpool theatre, worked on the two-houses-a-night system," writes Mr. Butler Stanhope, "a well-known actor, who was formerly the lessee of this theatre, came to 'star' in a weird and romantic drama entitled The Three Red Men. On the Monday morning when I saw it rehearsed, I mentioned that I thought it would not play long enough for the time required. 'Oh!' he said, 'with all my business, &c., it will be quite long enough.' At night the drama concluded at a quarter past eight o'clock, and the 'star' repaired to his dressing-room, so we had half an hour to fill out somehow. It was a costume play, and there was a lady condemned to death in it, so I told the ladies and gentlemen I should add another act on it. I fixed on the last act of Esmeralda; and we arranged it to fit in by altering the names, &c. We started with the performance. The star actor dressed in a room looking on to the stage, that had a small window. When the star heard the performance going on, he popped his head out through the window. I shall never forget the look on his face as he said, 'What in the name of goodness is the matter? The play is over.' 'Oh,' I said, 'it's all right; we were over too soon, and we're playing another act.' 'But,' he exclaimed, 'you've ruined my drama; you do wonderful things in this two-houses-a-night theatre'; but the last act went on all right, and there was a special call, and the star ran down the stairs, and in a half-undressed state took a call in front of the curtain."

Mr. Phillips's Appearance.

"PEOPLE who persist in expecting poets to look like maniacs with hair unkempt are usually disappointed," says the Mirror "when they first set eyes upon Mr. Phillips. I heard of a man who attended a dress rehearsal of Ulysses, and when Mr. Phillips, tall, short-haired, clad in a sporting tweed, was pointed out to him, he naively exclaimed: 'That a poet! Why, he looks quite a gentleman.' One thing poetical, however, there is about Mr. Phillips, and that is carelessness. He writes poetry on scraps of paper which he crams anyhow into his pockets and very often loses."

An Author on the Bench.

"A FEW years ago, at the revival of La Tosca," writes our Paris Correspondent, "a curious surprise awaited us. In the last tableau, when Mme. Sarah Bernhardt throws herself upon the dead body of Mario, we recognised in that gentleman one of our colleagues of the theatrical Press. I forget what prompted him to impersonate the corpse, but the affair at the time created much amusement. Something similar has again occurred. The other night, at the Ambigu, in the scene in the criminal court in Roger la honte, we saw on the Bench, among the assistant judges, a tall, good-looking young man, whose face seemed familiar to us. And then the rumour went through the house that this distinguished super was M. Serge Basset, of the Figaro, a well-known playwright and author. In reply to questions, M. Basset informed us that he is writing a work on matters connected with the stage, and that he intends to act the super in several theatres to collect the material he requires."

Not an Easy Life.

"THE idea that a girl has only to be pretty to attain success in the histrionic art is utterly false," writes Mr. Seymour Hicks in an article on "The Hardest-worked Profession" in Cassell's Saturday Journal. "If she had the face and figure of a Venus she would never gain popularity unless she had the gift of acting as well. The fact that many of our leading actresses are beautiful women does not at all disprove this. It merely serves to show that, in addition to physical charms, they possess dramatic ability to a large degree. The furthest a pretty girl can reach on the merit of her good looks is the front rank of the chorus. What is really more important than good looks on the stage is a sound constitution, as it is most essential that an actor or actress should keep themselves in uniformly good health. There can be little doubt that to those who seriously intend doing their best to rise to the top of the profession, and who possess some talent, the first few years are the hardest ones of their careers. This period is usually spent on tour, and it is during this apprenticeship, when one sees the seamy side of stage life, that the good are sifted out from the bad. In conclusion, I should like to remark that before entering the ranks of the most overcrowded profession on earth, be sure you possess the necessary ability and are fitted for the career, and give up all idea of an easy life."

The Corsican Brothers.

MM. GRANGE AND MONTEPIN'S Frères Corses, which Mr. Martin Harvey has selected for the opening attraction of his present season, is a play of which many versions have been seen in this country. The earliest was one made by Dion Boucicault, and produced at the Princess's Theatre in 1852, with Charles Kean as the two brothers. This proved so popular that no fewer than six other adaptations were staged at various other London theatres during the same year. They all, however, achieved only brief runs. In December, 1860, Charles Fechter put up a fresh version at the Princess's. This was revived in 1864, and a couple of years later Fechter transferred it to the Lyceum. In 1876 the Princess's audience saw the play for the third time. Boucicault's old version was revised for the Lyceum in 1880. Eleven years later Irving put the piece in the bill again.

Some Burlesque Versions.

"THE CORSICAN BROTHERS" has been the subject of numerous travesties and burlesques. Among the earliest of these attempts was one entitled O Gemini; or, the Brothers of Co(u)rse, from the joint pens of Gilbert à Beckett and Mark Lemon, produced in 1852. A second, called The Troublesome Twins, by Henry J. Byron, was performed at the Globe Theatre in 1869; and a third, written in collaboration by Sir F. C. Burnand and H. P. Stephens, The Corsican Brothers and Co., Limited, formed the Gaiety attraction of 1880. Other musical comedy librettists who have travestied the play are Mr. George R. Sims and Mr. Cecil Raleigh.

"THE HOUSE OF PIERRE."

Piece, in One Act, by Julie Opp Faversham and Kate Jordan, played for the first time in London at the Adelphi Theatre on Monday, Sept. 14.

Pierre ..... MR. MARTIN HARVEY
M. Crapeau ..... MR. CHARLES GLENNEY
Jaques ..... MR. ALFRED MANSFIELD
Cora ..... MISS MAUD RIVERS
Blanche ..... MISS BESSIE ELDER
Lizette ..... MISS N. DE SILVA

The House of Pierre is a strong and rather harrowing little play, the unpleasantness of which is only slightly atoned for by a dénouement which comes in the nature of a surprise. It is, however, full of dramatic power, and gives opportunity for some excellent acting. The scene of the piece, which was first performed at the Theatre Royal, Dublin, in June last, is a peasant's cottage near Marseilles. Pierre, a poor quarryman, has met with an accident which has made him blind, and he and his wife Lizette have been in danger of starvation. She has tried in vain to support him and herself by lace-making, and has latterly procured money by less respectable means. When the curtain rises, Lizette enters in a carnival dress, and, with every appearance of guilt and mystery, changes it for her ordinary attire, first depositing a considerable sum of money beneath the hearthstone. She is evidently oppressed with a sense of shame; and when the blind Pierre enters she unfolds to him a plan for their emigration. To this he almosts consents; but a band of carnival revellers in costume, with a rich debauchee, named Crapeau, at their head, enter to demand the money which Lizette has obtained from the latter. There is a very painful scene, in which Pierre struggles for a while against belief in his wife's guilt, and almost strangles Crapeau in indignation. Lizette returns Crapeau his money, and he is induced to depart, leaving the husband and wife together. Lizette pleads her case eloquently, and it is evident that Pierre could forgive her anything except adultery. When she cries, "Not that! No, not that!" he clasps her to his bosom, and the curtain descends on a note of interrogation. The piece would have been more entirely effective in its appeal had the audience been earlier apprised of the comparative innocence of the heroine. Up to the close, all the sympathy of the audience was with the supposedly-injured husband, and there was a strong feeling against the apparently dissolute wife, which might have been different if the audience had been taken into the confidence of the authoresses from the first.

The House of Pierre was played with great skill and power. Mr. Martin Harvey gave to the part of Pierre just the right touch of manly pathos, and his onslaught on Crapeau was very strong and passionate. The part could hardly have been better played. Miss N. de Silva treated the difficult rôle of Lizette with real dramatic strength and vivid energy, her pleading to Pierre being full of emotional expression, and her acting throughout being keen, spirited, and sensitive, and full of bitter indignation. Mr. Charles Glenney's Crapeau was the ideal of gross and selfish materialism, the make-up and attire of the "respectable citizen of Marseilles" being admirable in their well-calculated effect. Mr. Alfred Mansfield, Miss Maud Rivers, and Miss Bessie Elder played the masquers with alertness and attention, and every detail of the dressing and mounting was supplied with commendable care. Mr. Harvey is doing excellent and artistic work in the presentation of these one-act pieces. By acting in them himself, and allotting parts in them to able and experienced members of his company, he is proving that the lever de rideau may be made a valuable and important part of an evening's entertainment, instead of a mere "stop-gap" or inconsidered prelude to "play the people in" with. We were glad to see that the audience were all in their places when the curtain rose on The House of Pierre on Monday.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Would you very kindly allow me to assure Mr. Scott Phipp that I certainly did not have the highly artistic and successful musical comedy now running at the Apollo Theatre in my mind when I wrote you my previous letter. There are several kinds of musical comedy, and I was referring more especially (or, rather, intended to convey) to that class of play which is a disgrace to dramatic art, an insult to our intelligence, and harmful in every degree to the English stage. It may interest Mr. Scott Phipp to learn that I was present at the initial production of Butterflies, and I experienced much that was highly pleasurable, whilst it was sheer unalloyed delight to witness the incomparable performance of our leading comedienne, Miss Ada Reeve, who, like a true artist, always adorns and elevates every play she may be acting in. I am sure nothing can be said against this excellent production whatever, and as a humble dramatic author I trust we may see many more of its genre, and by the same talented company who now occupy the Apollo Theatre and its very capable and highly artistic management. Two friends of mine from the country visited this theatre only last week, and I quote their words from a letter I have just received, and which is now beside me. "We were charmed and delighted with the piece, and we certainly mean to recommend all our friends in the country to see it when visiting London, for we feel sure they will be satisfied, and also fall in love with Miss Ada Reeve, as we did because of her absolutely sweet and highly artistic performance." I have not had the pleasure of seeing the recent addition to the cast of Miss Monkman in her dances, but I feel sure they must be artistic and delightful to witness. I have read, however, of the adverse criticisms as regards her dancing; but when I read them I was at once reminded of that story which is told of the great Dr. Samuel Johnson, who, on being interrogated by a certain ill-conditioned person—presumably a prude on the prowl—if he did not think a certain great work of art then being exhibited in London, and which was creating a great sensation, was not indecent. "No, sir," thundered out the great man and hater of all Puritanical hypocrites and shams, "but your question is."

I trust Mr. Scott Phipp will therefore now rest assured that I do not decry musical comedy of such a high-class character as is being presented at the Apollo Theatre, and that I am the very last person to write a word which would cause the loss of employment to anyone in the dramatic profession; but that in legitimately criticising the slushy plays and the mongrel and degrading musical comedies that have been produced, such malignant growths should be instantly cut down, and he who advocates such, I respectfully contend, has the best and highest interests of the theatre at heart and also the great dramatic profession to which I have the honour to belong.—Yours faithfully

WALTER STEPHENS.

London, W., Sept. 14, 1908.

"JACK STRAW"—SECOND CENTURY.

To the study of the pessimistic utterances that are being continually poured out in the Press by the superior critics when writing of the condition of the stage in this country, the most pleasant antidote may be found in Jack Straw, a particularly clean, clever, bright farce from the pen of Mr. Somerset Maugham, who, notwithstanding the wicked and unappreciative actor-manager and the forces that are supposed to keep young writers for the stage outside the charmed ring, finds his name billed in connection with three great London successes. Jack Straw is a lesson in cheeriness, and while as exhilarating as champagne, it is devoid of buffoonery or the slightest suspicion of double entendre. Its 200th performance was celebrated on Wednesday evening, when a large audience, refreshed and invigorated by its breeziness and brio, testified by their attitude of frank enjoyment to the wholesome humour of the comedy. How delightful is the naïveté of Mr. Charles Hawtrey in the title-rôle. He has such a way with him has Charles—a way that has made his advancement to popularity as easy as his acting. Mr. Hawtrey is a monument of unruffled calm, and he makes us feel that the grand duke masquerading as a waiter has laid to heart the maxim that gives such power to the ruler of men—"be self-possessed." His sway is irresistible, and that we should feel it to be so on the other side of the footlights is a strong testimony to the strength of his individuality in a part that exactly fits it. There are many happy moments in the course of the performance, but the greatest fun is to be derived from the actor's complete enjoyment of the dilemma in which his hosts are placed in the final act.

Miss Lottie Venne, during a long career devoted to Thalia, has progressed from soubrette parts to the middle-aged ladies of comedy. As Mrs. Parker-Jennings she brings out the droll significance of every line of her part, and the affectation of haughtiness (without the "h") on the part of the nouvelle riche is exceedingly rich and unctuous. Genuinely droll are her trepidation and uneasiness in the last act, when Mrs. Parker-Jennings learns that her guest has been waiting on her at the Grand Babylon Hotel.

Parvenus on the stage generally show more gaucherie and bad form than they do in real life; but the manner of Mr. Parker-Jennings and his "'orrid 'abit" of pricing his cigars to his friends are quite familiar in real life; and it is the duty of Mr. R. Whyte, jun.—a young actor who has made his mark in low comedy—to make the solecisms of the character extremely laughable, and he quite succeeds.

Mr. Percy Goodyer is also able to suggest the fact that young Vincent Parker-Jennings, notwithstanding his University training, has failed to grasp the essentials of good form, and is still an unlicked cub who never quite realises when he is snubbed. The character is not an easy one to play, and the young actor does exceedingly well.

Mr. Louis Goodrich, too, is surprisingly good as the Marquis of Serlo, the young peer, who in spite of appearances to the contrary, is quite altruistic in his ideas.

Mr. E. Holman Clark's Ambrose Holland, the confidant and friend of Jack Straw, is always agreeable and amusing, making an excellent foil, and being especially valuable in the more boisterous humour of the last act.

Miss Vane Featherston is always pleasant in characters that require presence and breeding, and her Lady Wanley supplies an excellent background in its ease and complete composure to the fussiness and precipitancy of the Parker-Jennings family; and the character receives an excellent interpretation. Miss Maud Cressell quite realises the description of "pretty girl" applied to Ethel Parker-Jennings by Jack Straw, and in the interviews with that gentleman shows considerable power and ability. Miss Mona Harrison makes the most of her one chance as Mrs. Rosie Abbott; Mr. Charles Troode is irreproachable as the Rev. Lewis Abbott; Mr. H. R. Hignett as His Excellency Count Adrian von Bremer has all the weight and dignity that becomes the rôle of an ambassador; Miss Joy Chatwin is quite effective in the part of Mrs. Withers; and Mr. Vincent Erne as a waiter and Mr. Norman Wrighton as the servant complete the adequacy of the cast. Mr. Walter Hann and Son are responsible for the two admirable sets of the three acts. The chief piece is preceded by Breaking it Gently, chiefly remarkable for the excellent impersonation of an unsophisticated and honest work girl by Miss Mona Harrison, who displays conspicuous ability. Mr. Herbert Clark, the cheery and courteous manager here, may be congratulated not only on a great success, but on one that sustains completely the high traditions of comedy that have always obtained at the little theatre in the Strand.

Riches and the Drama.

THE London theatres, says the Mail, are at present holding up the mirror to reflect the doings of the well-to-do and powerful. In the following table the principal characters at fourteen theatres are described:—

Haymarket.—Wealthy bachelor and baronet's widow.
Garrick.—All the characters are rich.
Adelphi.—All are in good positions in life.
Gaiety.—Wealthy Englishman and rich Cuban girl.
Daly's.—A prince, ambassador, and millionairess.
Criterion.—People of means.
Wyndham's.—Man about town, duke, and millionairess.
Vaudeville.—Archduke and millionaire's family.
Savoy.—Two plays; one has a country's ruler, the other a First Lord of the Admiralty.
Prince of Wales's.—A king, duke, and princess.
Lyric.—A cavalier, duke, king, and princess.
Apollo.—Wealthy Bohemians.
Comedy.—Very rich widow and her aristocratic friends.
The Playhouse.—A naval and military set.

MR. EDWIN DREW has sent us a little book called "Grandmother's Wedding Bonnet, and Other Pieces." He gives the following account of the conditions under which the principal poem was written:—"It was a beautiful autumn day, and I was spending a few hours with a beloved relative, now in eternal rest, when I was taken into an old room, semi-dark through the ivy clinging in and over the window. Some old things were shown me, all telling of lost friends, and then a quaint antique chest was opened to show me, in excellent preservation, my dear 'Grandmother's Wedding Bonnet.' This ballad was written the same evening, and simply claims expression of natural feeling from a heart touched by the past while I spent a few hours in the pretty village of Ovington, Hampshire, where grandmother's things were kept by a loving daughter." Other items, all suited for recitation by the author himself and others, are "The Puzzled Priest," a comic piece, "Aunt Dorothy's Fan," "Life's Contradictions," and "Christmas in the Cradle."

"LADY DOLLY AND THE DECALOGUE."

Play, in Three Acts, produced at the Pier Pavilion, Paignton, on Thursday, Sept. 17.

Sir John Markham .... MR. PENNINGTON-GUSH
Lord Deveril ..... MR. CHAS. SEWELL
Hamilton Dereham, LL.D..... MR. ROBIN SHIELS
The Hon. Reginald Anstey
MR. FRANK MEDHURST

Mrs. Audrey Braun ..... MISS SARA DUDLEY
Fanchette ..... MISS EILEEN CONSTANCE
Dolly, Lady Markham ..... MISS ELSIE ROBERTS
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Lady Dolly and the Decalogue, by "Joseph Fletcher" and "Marcus Ellis," might be considered a problem play. The story centres in the town life of Lady Dolly Markham, a young married Society lady, who is led away by many admirers, and who leads the fast life which is now so often looked upon as being characteristic of Society. The scene of the first act is laid in the drawing-room of Lady Dolly, it being her "At Home" day. In this act we are introduced to Mrs. Audrey Braun and her neice, the Hon. Margaret Anstey, a rich heiress, whose younger brother, the Hon. Reginald Anstey, is much petted by Lady Dolly. Lord Deveril, who is passionately in love with her, and Capt. Stacey have been gambling with her for high stakes at her favourite game of Bridge. Sir John Markham receives an intimation, through Dr. Dereham, of his (Sir John's) appointment as a Cabinet Minister. Sir John Markham is left alone with his wife, and asks her seriously to give up the life she has been living, and, above all, to break off her connection with Lord Deveril. This she promises to do, and shortly afterwards feigns illness, and thus succeeds in obtaining permission to go to the country for a rest, she having previously arranged with the Hon. Reg. Anstey to go with him to his sister's country house for a holiday.

The scene of the next act is the country house. Lady Dolly and the Hon. Reginald are visited by his sister Margaret, who stays at the house. After all is locked up for the night, Lady Dolly being unable to sleep, is sitting up reading. Lord Deveril breaks into the house, implores her to elope with him, and tries to tempt her by offering her a pendant similar to one which she has much admired. She refuses, and he seizes her in a passionate embrace. Sir John Markham is heard at the door, and he sees Lord Deveril trying to make his escape through the garden. An emotional scene between Sir John and his wife follows. Eventually she calls for assistance, and Margaret Anstey comes in, thus surprising Sir John, who was not aware of her presence in the house.

In the third act, we are taken back to Lady Markham's town house. The Hon. Margaret tries to persuade her to remain with her husband, who has made arrangements to take his wife abroad and give up all prospects of a brilliant career. Lord Deveril calls and asks for a private interview with Lady Dolly, but this Margaret will not permit. It transpires that Lady Dolly is in his debt for a considerable sum, lost to him in gambling, and Margaret gives him a cheque for the amount, and bids him go. Lady Dolly repents, and Sir John, acknowledging the love he has always felt for her, promises to do all in his power to restore her to her position in Society.

The character of Sir John Markham was excellently acted by Mr. Pennington-Gush, who exhibits much energy and vigour; he deserves high praise for his performance. Miss Elsie Roberts's rendering of Lady Dolly was exceedingly good. She certainly showed considerable ability, and her tactful handling of the part won unstinted applause. Her pronunciation was also clear, and her attractive manner made her in every way suitable for the part. Miss Florence Mitchell appeared in the rôle of the Hon. Margaret Anstey, and made it a capital study, her performance in the last act, where she is seen as the peacemaker between man and wife, being particularly good. Mr. Chas. Sewell did well in the unthankful character of Lord Deveril; and Mr. Martin B. Pedlar was a typical Capt. Stacey. Mr. Robin Shiels supplied a clever study of Dr. Dereham; and Mrs. Audrey Braun was admirably represented by Miss Sara Dudley, who made the most of her opportunities. At the conclusion of the performance Mr. Pennington-Gush and Miss Elsie Roberts had quite an ovation, and there were calls for Mr. John A. Thomson, and the authors, all of whom bowed their acknowledgments.

"ALGERIA."

(FROM OUR NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT.)

Algeria, a musical play in two acts, recently produced at the Broadway Theatre, New York, is beautifully staged, and Victor Herbert was evidently in a most tuneful mood when he composed the music, for the score is rich in melody. Four numbers deserve particular mention, namely, "Rose of the world," "Twilight in Barakeesh," a bewitching waltz called "Ask her when the band is playing," and a dreamy refrain, "Love is like a cigarette," in which half a dozen girls are suddenly transformed into illuminated smoking tables. Above each girl's head an incandescent light sheds a soft, mellow glow, and on the tables, invitingly displayed, are circlets of liqueur glasses. Another number, richly costumed, introduces a stageful of girls in bird of paradise dresses, the display of colours being most beautiful and artistic. Zoradie, Sultana of the Barakeesh, a powerful tribe of the desert, is in love with a mysterious poet who eventually turns out to be a French army officer. The humour of the piece arises from the mistakes made by the Sultana's retainers in trying to discover the identity of the author whose verses have so charmed the Sultana. Three French army deserters fall under suspicion, and each aspires to the happiness of becoming Zoradie's sweetheart. The action takes place in the Sahara Desert and at an old palace outside the walls of the city of Algiers. The first act closes with a realistic sirocco that evokes enthusiastic applause, and a Mardi Gras festival in the second act affords opportunity for some very dainty and pretty effects. Miss Sophie Brandt as Zoradie, Miss Harriet Burt as Millicent Madison, M.D., and Miss Florence Nash as Mrs. Billings F. Coolings carry off the chief vocal honours. Mr. George Leon Moore sings a tenor rôle admirably; and Mr. William Pruette is very popular as the Governor-General of Algiers. The humorous situations are provided by Messrs. George Marion, Ernest Lambart, and William Cameron. The first pretentious musical play of the season by native authors, Algeria has made a distinct hit. The book was written by Glen MacDonough.

THE Brighton Sacred Harmonic Society has unanimously decided to accept the invitation of the Corporation to unite with the municipal orchestra at a musical festival to be held in the Dome, Royal Pavilion, in January next. It is proposed to open with Sir Edward Elgar's "Dream of Gerontius," which the composer himself will conduct. It is also intended to perform "Elijah," the third act of Tannhäuser, the second act of The Flying Dutchman, and the third act of Lohengrin. The municipal orchestra will be increased from forty to sixty.

AT the Metropole Theatre, Gateshead, Allan Wilkie's accomplished company appears in a répertoire which includes Richard III., Hamlet, Romeo and Juliet, The Merchant of Venice, The Sleighbells, David Garrick, and Othello.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

Minutes of the meeting of the Council, held at 409, Strand, on Tuesday, Sept. 15. Present: Mr. Robson Paige (in the chair), Mr. H. W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Messrs. Franklyn Walford, Chris Walker, Clarence Derwent, C. F. Collings, Misses Agnes Imlay, Marion F. Lind, Rose Mathews, and Mr. Hubert Blount (secretary).

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

The secretary read a letter from an applicant for membership, and also a letter from an actor with reference to an alleged bogus manager. He was instructed to acknowledge the receipt of the letter and inform the writer that the Council were unable to take any steps in the matter as the applicant was not a member. He was also instructed to ask him whether there was any member of the company belonging to the A.A., and if so to ask him or her to send full particulars. The secretary read a letter from Messrs. Davies and Tait, stating that instructions had been given to the solicitors of the Cabins, Ltd., and that a draft of the agreement had been sent to Messrs. Mote and Sons. The hon. solicitor read the draft agreement, and the Council instructed the solicitor to make several alterations in it before they could accept same.

The following were elected members: Miss Marjorie Richardson and Miss Edith Churchill.

The secretary reported eleven engagements made since the last meeting of the Council.

The secretary informed the Council that he had not received any further communication from the provincial manager as to the insanitary state of some of the dressing-rooms, and he was instructed to write to the manager pointing out to him that he had not answered their letter.

The secretary was instructed to place a notice in the room to the effect that the A.A. are leaving the present premises on Sept. 29, and, subject to the agreement being approved, will move into the rooms at 353, Strand.

The Council instructed the secretary to place the bogus actor's name (which was furnished them by the Actors' Union), in the Bogus Actors' Book.

ACTORS' UNION.

The usual weekly meeting of the Actors' Union took place on the 10th inst., when the following were present:—Messrs. Mannering (in the chair), E. Y. Rae, F. Rawson Buckley, Royce Milton, and J. W. Braithwaite. Letters were received from the following:—Messrs. Fred F. Loyd, Jerrold Heather, J. Hastings Batson, George P. Lester, James English, Cecil G. Calvert, Francis Chamier, Paul Lovett, and Maitland Stapley.

Letters and telegrams were read from the General Secretary, who was attending the Congress at Nottingham, and it was proposed to leave the matters contained in them over until his return. In reply to a letter from Mr. Harry C. Momber the Secretary was instructed to inform him that the executive committee could not move from the standpoint they had taken up.

Mr. Frank Gerald presided at the usual weekly meeting of the Actor's Union held at Hummum's Hotel on Tuesday afternoon. There were present Messrs. J. W. Braithwaite, Sydney N. Hallows, A. W. Norman, Alfred Terris, Edwin Wilde, J. T. Dilsen, W. H. Vernon, C. Calvert, Robt. M. Taylor, Leslie Hall, Harwood Roberts, and Albert Hayzen, and Mesdames Bessie Armytage, Dorothy Barrington, Walter Bentley, Mary Bessle, Amy Coleman, Florence Creagh, Gladys Everard, Molly Haydon, Kitty Marion, Ellen M. Sanders, Emma Stockley, and Gwen Stuart.

The chairman, after dealing in the accustomed manner with the rules and objects of the Union, referred briefly to the proceedings at the Trades Union Congress last week, at which it was decided not to recognise the Artists' Protection League as a trade union. He stated that the visit of himself and the secretary of the A.U. to the Congress at Nottingham had proved abortive. On that subject he should allow no discussion in the open meeting. He considered that the matter was one which should be dealt with at the private meeting. For whatever had or had not been done he was freely prepared to answer at the proper time, as well as in regard to his conduct in all respects. The meeting then assumed a private character.

NEW AGENCIES.

Mr. Gordon Wilson, 16, Nile-street, Preston, was appointed agent. Mr. Gregson, Commercial Hotel, Accrington, was appointed agent for that town. The Liverpool Agency, which has been closed for some time, will be reopened on the 28th inst. The address will appear in next week's issue of The Era.

A letter was read from a member stating that her manager had not paid her salary, and the Secretary was instructed to place the matter in the hands of the Union Solicitor.

A member was advanced the sum of 20s. from the benevolent fund to enable him to join a company.

A member of the executive committee who sent in his resignation from the committee was written to and asked to reconsider his decision.

One new member was elected, and four resignations were accepted with regret.

The Secretary reported two engagements made during the week.

Miss Collier's Hat.

THE hat, says an Express interviewer, was the size of a small cartwheel. It hid the top of the Sheraton table in Miss Constance Collier's drawing-room. It was large and black, and trimmed with electric blue ribbon. Miss Collier looked at it despairingly. "It won't go anywhere," she said to the Express representative, who had called to ask her about her plans for America, whither she sailed on Saturday last.

"I SHOULD have had a trunk specially built for it," she mused. "Excited? Oh, very. I've never been to America before, though Mr. Frohman has asked me again and again to go. (I wonder if that hat would go in the big brown trunk.) I'm going to play with William Gillette in Samson, Henri Bernstein's play. I play the part of the wife, an excellent part, with fine opportunities. (I can't very well leave it at home; it suits me so much.)

"OH, yes, about America. I hope to play some Shakespeare parts. Anyhow, I'm taking with me costumes for Viola, Beatrice, Juliet, and Cleopatra. (I might put a strap round it and carry it in my hand as a hold-all.) This luggage is a terrible business. I intended taking one trunk and a coat and skirt, but look over there," said Miss Collier, grimly. "That's my hand luggage." This is what the representative saw:—One hand-basket, one tea-basket, golf clubs, two cloaks, one carpet bag, one hold-all, one jewel-box, one fur coat. "In the other room," Miss Collier said, in an awed voice, "are ten trunks of clothes and one big trunkful of hats."

"AND that?" asked the Express representative, pointing to the mammoth hat that would go nowhere. Miss Collier threw up her hands in despair. "It's a tragedy! It's the hat that suits me best, and I can't put it in anywhere." "Why not wear it?" the Express representative suggested reverently. She gave a little cry of joy. "What an excellent idea! I'd never thought of it."

SKATING has become a very popular pastime in Rhyl, the attendance at the Rink being very satisfactory. On Wednesday evening a successful bicycle and skating carnival was held, at which several valuable prizes were given.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE PALACE.

The holding capacity of the beautiful building in Cambridge-circus is insufficient to meet the demands made at the box office, and for several months now Mr. Alfred Butt has been giving two matinées per week in view of the tremendous business that is being done. That the crowded houses are drawn by the unique entertainment presented by Miss Maud Allan there cannot be the shadow of a doubt, and though it is easy enough to be wise after the event one must give credit to Mr. Butt for the judgment and perspicacity that led him to make such a successful engagement—the most successful in the history of the Palace. Miss Allan does not flash and glide about the stage in a whirlwind of colour, or regulate her movements, her steps, or her gestures according to the teaching of the schools. In fact, her attitudes are entirely opposed to the elementary rules of the art of the ballerina; and untrammelled by conventionality, she gives rein to a poetic instinct, a natural grace, and, more than all, perhaps, to an innate comprehension and a soulful interpretation of the rhythmic spirit of the music which she elects to illustrate. Her dancing to the strains of Mendelssohn's "Spring song" realised the joy of a nymph of Arcadia in the awakening of Nature; but there is something more fantastic in Miss Allan's interpretation of the "dance of the sugar-plum fairy" and "the reed-pipe dance" from Tschaikowsky's "Casse Noisette" suite. In its fanciful figuration and bold rhythm the music evidently appeals to her, and the result is another delightful exhibition of her dancing, which is exquisitely accompanied by the orchestra under the direction of Mr. Herman Finck.

A new entertainer at the piano is found in Miss Beatrice Lindley, a comedienne whose excellent work on the stage gives a cachet to her songs, which she interprets with much sprightliness and humour. We like, too, the archness of her interpretation of the song, "Simple Wisdom," by Montague Ring, which is the concluding item given by Miss Lindley, and which brings about her recall to the stage. Miss Gladys Marsden, who is making her first appearance this week at the Palace Theatre, presents a series of impressions of well-known actresses. These impressions will be much truer to the originals when Miss Marsden conquers her nervousness and becomes distinct. Like most imitators, the new-comer lays great stress on certain details of the mannerisms of her models—details that seem to be mechanical when used at the will of another, with merely an echo of the voice of the original, and minus the passion of the scene which vivifies gesture. The "impression" of Miss Edna May was decidedly the best. The Palace Girls "helter-skelter" down on to the stage on a specially-arranged slope, and dressed in pretty pink dresses they sing of the joys of mountaineering. Later, in a topsy-turvey mood, they accomplish the "danse des jambes en l'air," an aerial movement that is executed with much precision.

Early in the evening Mr. Carter Livesey and Miss Lilian Rosebery present the skit, Would-be Actors, with comical results that elicit much laughter. The success of the trifle is as conspicuous as on its first visit to the house. Nipper Lupino Lane dances well; and the practical fun of Spissell Brothers and Mack, in an acrobatic act, Scene in a Café, is quite refreshing. Mlle. Juliette's seals do wonderful things in balancing balls, and appear to enjoy their performance as much as the audience. Mr. Arthur Prince is repeating the success of former engagements here; and Miss Dorothy Gould also entertains.

Included in the new series of "Urbanora" animated pictures at the Palace Theatre is a film which has quite a little history of its own. Mr. Charles Urban was photographing some microscopical objects for a new Natural History set, when a "common or garden" bluebottle, the familiar disease-carrier unbeloved of Sir James Crichton Browne, became transfixed by its wings to a sticky fly-paper which was on the table. The vigorous leg-work of the big fly instantly suggested humorous possibilities to our leading cinematographer, and, as a result, a much-magnified "Balancing Bluebottle" is seen on the screen juggling with a ropewalker's pole (which is a wisp from a coat broom), a large circus ball (a pilule of bread), and a monstrous dumb-bell (made of two bread pills and a small splinter).

THE TIVOLI.

With his blushing honours thick upon him, Mr. Harry Lauder may be said to be entertaining right royally at the Tivoli—a house that has made him such an enormous favourite that standing-room to hear his songs is at a premium. His latest song, "He was very, very good to me," does not stand on the same category as "The saftest o' the family," "Stop yer tickling, Jock," or "I love a lassie," with which he wound up his turn at the cosy Strand house on the night of our visit. The Tivoli must be regarded as a popular sphere for the stars to shine in, for there is no stint of them in the programme. Early in the evening Mr. Will Evans burlesques in his own broad style the Salome dance, causing prolonged laughter by his antics. Soon after we encounter Mr. John Le Hay, in his diverting creation, Poor Beggar! a character-sketch that enables him to show his genuine comedy powers to much advantage. We remember Mr. Le Hay as a ventriloquist, and a very delightful one, too; but in his latest essay he makes us understand the excellent stuff of which good comedians are made.

A precisely similar remark applies to Ernest Shand, who returns to one of his favourite strongholds to find himself most heartily welcomed in his genuinely comic sketch of the working-man who abuses roundly the chief provisions of the Licensing Bill, and succeeds in being funny all the time he is doing it. Mr. Shand has another song in which the quiet effects of his comedy are enjoyed. It is entitled "What will the vicar think?" Mr. Wilkie Bard, a humourist of the very first water, has found another song that offers excellent scope for his drollery. It is called "I'm here if I'm wanted." Herein the one and only Bard burlesques a policeman, whose belief in the "rest cure" is not to be disturbed by alarums and incursions on the part of burglars or any other "fearful wildfowl." Some hilarious moments may be enjoyed, too, when Mr. Bard sings "Not in these trousers," a specially well-written number.

Daisy Dormer, that winsome and dainty little artist, wins all hearts with "Carolina Brown" and "Anywhere will do," her success being completed by a wonderful dance; and much charm distinguishes Miss Margaret Ashton in her two songs—one of which makes a special appeal to those in front. There is nothing very remarkable about the entertainment of Mr. William Dillon; but the musical speciality act of Roma and Romani gives one pause, their genuine talent being discovered in the excellent way they present artistic instrumental selections without any resort to the trickery of the buffoon. Mr. Leonard Barry has returned with his artistic Franco-British entertainment, in which he compares character types of London to those of la ville lumière. Thus he enables us to judge of the peculiarities of our own hansom cabby and those of the Paris cocher. The two have one thing in common—an ever-present desire to secure just a leetle more than their proper due, either by an additional pourboire or an extra sixpence. Human nature is very much alike in London and Paris. Mr. Barry is particularly clever in his interlude, which is quite away from the ordinary music hall groove. Other turns in the long programme directed by the popular Mr. Joe Wilson, are Sam Mayo, the immobile comedian; the Two Anartos, musical comedians; Miss Maidie Scott, a fascinating character comedienne; Miss Cressie Leonard, burlesque artist; and Les Frasettis, who play the violin, the xylophone, and the harp with much taste and skill.

CHELSEA PALACE.

The scenic resources of the Chelsea Palace have been supplemented by a handsome drop-cloth, which is provided with curtains through which the artists may take a call. It has been in frequent use this week, for all the contributors to the bill have deservedly won recalls. The greatest enthusiasm has prevailed during the occupancy of the stage by Mr. Joe Elvin in the sketch Deaf. As the cheery boy-in-buttons who abuses his deaf master until he learns that he has suddenly recovered his hearing the king of Cockney comedians has a part in which his humour is fully developed, and roar upon roar of laughter has resounded throughout the house during his presence on the stage. Mr. Elvin is well supported by his company in a performance of a most exhilarating character. The art of dancing is presented in agreeable form by the Royal Delomes, a comely maiden daintily attired and a gentleman in evening dress, who indulge in some expert stepping marked by much regularity and neatness. Their speciality is found in "The Phantom Clogs," which are displayed on a darkened stage and appear to be a couple of pairs of boots dancing in space, until they are eventually found to belong to the artists just mentioned. The illusion is an ingenious one, and is skilfully carried out.

One of the newest and cleverest of low comedy artists is found in Miss Millie Payne, who has received a warm welcome back to Chelsea. She strikes an original vein of humour in her song, in which the refrain "So early in the morning" is used with effect, and her satire on "The Directoire Girl" is broadened into quite a humorous study. Mr. Walter King sends the audience into convulsions of laughter with his quaint exposition of woe in the character of a henpecked husband; and Witty Wattie Walton also receives evidences of his mirth-creating powers in his patter as a page-boy, which he succeeds by some cleverly-conceived impersonations of Scotch, Irish, and French character.

An item welcome to the variety stage is presented by Miss Ethel Newman in the monologue "Our Wedding Day." It is a sketch which has done excellent duty at the concert hall and at charity matinées, and the success with which Miss Newman meets well justifies her selection. She renders the piece with much animation and variety of expression, and its humorous effect on the audience is unbounded. Miss Marie Blythe lets her powerful voice ring in a couple of chorus songs which win the ear of the audience, one having the refrain "Don't put your umbrella up before it rains" being particularly enjoyed. Mr. Will Driscoll, who first extols "The Bachelors' Paradise," gives afterwards a powerfully effective rendering of the descriptive ballad "His one redeeming feature," for which he is deservedly encored. Vocal eccentricities are indulged in by Leslie, Lyn, and Willro, who vary their comicalities with some harmonious trios. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope is now the medium of the moving picture at Chelsea, and much interest is excited by a waterfall scene in winter, which is followed by a humorously conceived scene in a barber's shop. Mr. J. Norman Berlin, the esteemed manager, has now an able coadjutor in Mr. George B. Andrews, who has taken up the position of acting-manager.

HOLLOWAY EMPIRE.

Last week's programme at this popular hall fully sustained the high standard that characterises its amusement catering, and the seating capacity was severely taxed as a consequence. Tom Edwards, with his companion Curly, was at the bottom of bill, and he submitted a remarkably clever ventriloquial act that very fully deserved the flattering reception accorded him at the end. Arthur Lennard was one of the two items at the top, and did well in two songs, the latter (in the guise of an old Guardsman) being the more effective. Mr. Hubert Carter and company presented a tabloid version by Mr. Louis Cohen of Davy Garrick. Mr. Cohen has utilised Robertson's play with considerable skill, and presents smoothly and speedily all the better known episodes of the original, including the famous dinner scene. Mr. Carter himself as Garrick gave an entirely acceptable performance, and well earned the lavish applause that greeted his efforts. The gentleman (not billed) who enacted Ingot also gave a capital character-study, and Chivvy and Ada also found capable exponents. Mrs. Stanislaus Calhaem, who played Araminta, was excellent, and her performance was quite up to that high standard that is associated locally with her acting. Altogether the item must be described as a great success.

Miss Olive Armisole did well in a song, as did Miss Kitty Clinton. The Warsaw Bros. in a comedy musical act were responsible for a great deal of laughter, and proved themselves to be good instrumentalists. Harry Grey made a hit in an anti-Suffragist song, and for his second item gave his well-known burlesque on the lady making her first appearance in public to sing "Sweet Chiming Bells"; he gains an immense reception at the close. Syd May, the mimic, does altogether admirable studies of Chirgwin, Robey, and Lauder, and for an encore presented his burlesque skit on Hackenschmidt. The Molasso Quartette gave a singularly clever display of cyclonic dances, all the members of the troupe being equally clever and agile. The Bioscope was very good, and Mr. Camp's fine orchestra gave invaluable assistance during the evening.

THE EMPRESS.

A place for the musical comedietta is always found by Mr. Nelson Francis, and many are the novelties that have first gained the ear of the public at Brixton. Among his latest introductions is the farcical operetta entitled Old Knockles, which used to be a feature of the German Reed entertainments at the old St. George's Hall as long ago as 1884. It was written by Mr. Arthur Law long ere he established his reputation as a humorist by the writing of The New Boy, and the music is from the melodious pen of Alfred J. Caldicott. In the hands of Mr. Edmond Faber and company the piece gets effective representation, Mr. Faber excelling most in the part of an old fisherman, in whose cottage the action passes. Mr. Faber is a particularly fine baritone, and his singing of the fine old ballad "Hearts of Oak" was greatly enjoyed. Miss Rose Meers played charmingly as a novelist in search of material, who induces a collector of china to pay old Knockles £50 for a dish of no value. Miss Meers has an excellent voice, but, probably through nervousness, her intonation was at fault, and the delivery of her dialogue was by no means as distinct as could be desired. A similar fault attached to the rendering of Bellworthy, the collector referred to, represented by Mr. Henry Edmunds; but he was of assistance in the trio which concludes the piece. There is also a mocking duet for Old Knockles and the novelist which is very agreeable.

Mr. Chas. C. Ommanney and company are seen in a reproduction of the sketch The Last Shot which deals in dramatic fashion with an episode of the American Civil War. It shows how a captain in the Northern Army finds in an escaped prisoner whom he is hunting the betrothed husband of the lady with whom he is himself in love. The captain surprises the pair exchanging vows of fidelity, and decides to allow the Southerner to escape. The prisoner will not permit his rival to make such a sacrifice, but the captain is determined, and going to the door of the house in which the piece passes receives a fatal shot from the oncoming enemy. Mr. Ommanney makes a striking figure of the captain, and acts with fire and energy. Mr. Sidney Kearns is a gallant and manly Southern officer, a little too emphatic, perhaps, in his actions; and Miss Maggie Byrons gives a sympathetic rendering of the girl. Another sketch of dramatic worth is that of The Light in the Window, which is admirably played by Mr. Fred Winn and a highly competent company.

A favourite of the bill is Miss Millie Hylton, who changes from low comedy to refined burlesque in her songs, "If I wasn't a perfect lady" and "Meet me under the golden dome." The latter has an irresistible refrain, and the desire of the audience to hang on to it was seen in several encores and numberless repetitions after the artist had left the stage. Miss Cressie Leonard is a captivating comedienne, and secures much favour with "Who's the lucky boy?" and another taking lyric; Miss Daisy Jerome repeats her former success, quite an ovation being accorded "Do-re-mi-fah"; and Miss Esme Gordon, comedienne, is also popular. A variety début is made with agreeable results by Miss Kate Walbran, the well-known actress, who makes a captivating appearance in an elegant principal boy's costume, and renders "Only a Boy" with excellent effect. Mr. Tom Costello, who receives a hearty welcome, is provided with a couple of widely-contrasted numbers, appearing as a much-married man with a well-stocked household and in the scena "Homeland, Good-bye," the refrain of which is enthusiastically re-echoed. A striking item of the bill is furnished by the introduction of Jack Johnson, the coloured pugilist, who claims to be the heavy-weight champion of the world. He is of massive proportions with an enormous reach, and it is difficult to imagine an ordinary man standing up to him for any length of time. His sparring exhibitions create great enthusiasm. The programme also includes Vasey and Ramsey, in The German and His Butler, Oliver Martyn, comedian, and Ruffell's pictures.

CROUCH END HIPPODROME.

An extremely well-filled house was the order of the evening upon the occasion of our visit to this cosy hall on Monday. Foremost in a long programme was the incomparable king of jugglers Paul Cinquevalli, with his marvellous exhibition of skill. The usual monotony of juggling turns is, with Paul Cinquevalli, entirely dispensed with, for he has a jewel in the shape of an assistant, whose clever by-play creates roars of laughter. Among the many interesting numbers in the current bill we may single out for special commendation Harry Tate's company, in Fishing. It is a very energetic company, that sends its audience into roars of laughter. It is a highly diverting turn, and is one of the hits of the evening. Mr. Arthur King received his well-earned share of applause for his contributions, "You know" and "Who's the lucky boy?"; Devon and Earle meet with a tremendous reception for their wonderful dancing exhibition; Miss Lena Brunton is well to the front in popular favour with her song, "Old pal," after which she gives some capital imitations of well-known music hall artists. Haig and Novel provide a welcome diversion with a comedy act. Their dancing is clever, and the extraordinary acrobatic movements of Tom Haig bring down the house. Jock Campbell is making a decided hit here. The son and two daughters of the late celebrated Arthur Lloyd are appearing in a drawing-room sketch, entitled Little Charlie; or, The Twin Sisters, with great success. Another notable success is Tom Yorke, a refined coster and character comedian, his second contribution, "It isn't always money that brings you harmony," being most favourably received. The juvenile Sisters Marion charmingly render "Our dear old home" to the tune of Chirgwin's "Blind Boy," and "Alice, where art thou?" and are well received.

A comedian with a style quite his own is Barney Armstrong. His first song, about the "Cuckoo," is provocative of much hilarity, and he is ably assisted by a diminutive comical assistant. In the second song, "Something's gone wrong with my band parts," he has an altercation with the conductor, and finally with the whole of the orchestra, who eventually pelt him with his band parts. The turn altogether is novel, and gets a tremendous reception. Miss Lilian Lea also earns merited applause for her singing of "Colombo" and "Queen of Old Samara," and the entertainment is brought to a close by the Imperial Bioscope with some up-to-date films. Since the reopening after the summer recess, the orchestra, now under the very able direction of Mr. Archie Howells, has been considerably augmented, and gives entire satisfaction to audiences and artists alike.

STRATFORD EMPIRE.

A visitor to any performance at this comfortable variety theatre usually sees a full house, and this is particularly encouraging to the energetic and courteous manager, Mr. E. J. Macdermott. Heading a well contrasted bill this week is Mr. Walter Passmore and his company in The Constable and the Pictures, an exhiliarating and amusing trifle in opera bouffe form which admirably serves as a vehicle for the volatile humour of Mr. Passmore as a Village Constable, in which rôle he works unflaggingly, and his efforts to amuse are hugely appreciated. Miss Mary Fraser successfully appears in the part previously played by Miss Agnes Fraser, and valuable support is rendered by Mr. Charles Childerstone.

Mr. George Bastow is cordially received in his first item, "They won't know I come from the country," one of the cleverest of this comedian's bucolic characterisations, and plenty of applause is bestowed upon his second song, "The oldest inhabitant," a ditty in similar vein. That old favourite "The Galloping Major" is his concluding number, and at the conclusion of his turn Mr. Bastow has many times to bow his acknowledgments. Eddie Hayes and Mona Wynne are clever and original duettists and dancers, their prowess in the latter being very evident, and their turn is responsible for some of the heartiest applause heard during the evening. The Lyric Quartette are very tuneful vocalists, and their unaccompanied part-singing affords great pleasure, while the very fine pictures which illustrate their songs is a novel and agreeable acquisition.

Mr. Theo. Bouwmeester successfully presents a pathetic little playlet of strong interest, entitled Who is Guilty? in which seven of the nine characters are played by himself. Each is a distinct characterisation, and Mr. Boumeester displays marked skill as a protean actor. Austin Boyd and Trixie Gilfain are an entertaining comedy duo, who provide a pleasing turn, which tells of a couple touring in Switzerland. Their motor breaks down, but, not discomfited, the lady seeks out some character costumes they have brought, and then and there give imitations of various nationalities, while the gentleman goes off and returns as a brigand. Miss Gilfain's impersonations and bagpipe display are exceedingly clever, and Mr. Boyd's tenor singing is a vocal treat. A very agreeable act is that contributed by a young lady who elects to be known as La Danseuse, who displays much terpsichorean ability in a series of dances suggested by a number of dolls left her by a fairy visitant in Santa Claus. Mr. Frank Couch has his hearers on the best of terms in some racy topical patter, and his singing and well-groomed appearance win general commendation. The Bioscope pictures are, as usual, an enjoyable feature of the programme, this week's series including The Unlucky Winner, an amusing farce. Early comers are regaled by the orchestral selection, which is rendered with much expression under the able bâton of Mr. Albert Whipp, Mus.Bac.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

AMUSEMENTS IN ROTTERDAM.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

ROTTERDAM, SEPT. 14.—The fall and winter theatrical season has begun in earnest. At the Grand Theatre Manager Van Eysden put on Simone, from the French of Brieux, for the opening programme. The setting and details of the original production in Paris were closely followed, and the play carefully cast, so that a satisfactory result was obtained. Your Parisian correspondent gave a full account of the play on the occasion of its production in the French capital. The plot, as The Era's readers therefore know, deals with the question as to whether a husband has the right or not to kill his faithless wife. Eduard de Sergeac thinks he has, and avails himself of it, but conceals the fact from his only child, a daughter, who grows up thinking her mother died from a fall from a horse, and not by her father's hand. The two leading, and, indeed, almost the exclusive rôles, are those of the father and daughter, Simone, and they were interpreted respectively by Mr. and Mrs. Tartaud. The latter was very painstaking, and in some scenes effective, as the sensitive and rather high-strung young creature, but the part can scarcely be considered one of this fine actress's best efforts. Mr. Tartaud scored a success, and a well-deserved one, as Sergeac, acting with vigour, sentiment, and power. Messrs. de Jong, Melsert, and Faassen are also entitled to kindly mention.

BESIDES the already established companies, and besides the foreign stars and combinations that are to compete for public favour during the present season, a number of new companies, dramatic and musical, have just been organised. Foremost among these is the dramatic company, "The Stage," under the joint-management of Messrs. Willem Royaards and Willem Stumpff, jun. The names of these gentlemen are so well known and so popular here that they offer sufficient guarantee for the stability and worth of the new organisation. Willem Royaards is the leading actor, stage and artistic manager; whilst the business interests are to be handled by Mr. Stumpff. The headquarters of "The Stage" will be Amsterdam, but performances are to take place weekly in this city on the "off-nights" at the Grand or Tivoli. The initial performance occurred at the Grand last week, when the classical tragedy, Adam in ballingschap ("Adam in exile") was given. This work is one of the many tragedies written by Joost van den Vondel (1587-1679), the great classic poet of the Dutch stage, or, say, the Shakespeare of the Netherlands. The second performance of "The Stage" was at the Tivoli Theatre, the programme consisting of Bernard Shaw's Mrs. Warren's Profession, translated into Dutch by Mrs. Simons-Mees. Mevrouw Warren's Bedryf was a notably interesting performance, as it presented the double attraction of the reappearance, after a year's absence, of Mrs. Van Kerchhoven, Rotterdam's favourite emotional actress. The occasion was taken advantage of by her friends and admirers to tender Mrs. Van Kerckhoven a veritable ovation. A triumphal climax was reached after the strong final scene of the third act, when the array of flowers literally filled the space before the footlights. Mrs. Van Kerckhoven's conception of Mrs. Warren was a most forcible one, meriting unstinted praise. Willem Royaards was the Sir George Crofts of the cast, his interpretation of the character being completely well-balanced, finished, and telling. Miss Staas enacted Vivie with great care, but was unable to cope with the difficulties of this complex personality. Mr. Arnoldi as Frank was boyish and vivacious, a trifle too much so, indeed. The entire performance ran smoothly, the play creating impression as a good dramatic work, but by no means as a convincing argument of the theories brought forward.

ALBERT VOGEL, the reader and elocutionist, has returned after a tip-top successful tour in the Dutch East Indies. He has added several new numbers to his répertoire, and will commence his series of entertainments ere long.

A NEW Dutch opera and comic opera company has also entered the field of competition, and bids fair to capture public approbation. The managers are Messrs. Pamvels and Kreeft, the first being a popular tenor, and the second, the comedian par excellence for comic opera. This new company will be giving a series of performances in this city at the end of the month.

PERFORMANCES are also announced by the French Opera Company from the Hague, special engagements having been made for extra evenings with Mesdames Sigrid Arnoldson and Gemma Bellincioni.

LOUIS BOUWMEESTER has decided not to return to the Dutch East Indies as yet, and meanwhile will be seen as "star" throughout the country, playing a round of his famed impersonations, supported by Messrs. Van Lier's dramatic company.

"WHIZZING THE WHIRL," which caused such a sensation at the Middlesex recently, is now in the sole hands of Fred J. Little, who is booking it in conjunction with Dana Royal, the world's champion, who has secured the patent rights for Great Britain.

NUMEROUS requests from influential quarters, emphasising the success of the Hungarian Exhibition, Earl's Court, have decided the directorate of the London Exhibitions, Ltd., to postpone the closing date until Saturday, Oct. 3. Important scientific, educational, and business institutions all over the kingdom have combined to induce the management to comply with the demand.

MR. HARRY LAUDER, during his forthcoming tour in America, will be advertised in a novel and distinctly attractive manner. The advertisements, which consist of life-size figures of Mr. Lauder in most of his popular characters, are the invention and have been made by Mr. J. W. Askew, stage manager of the Palace Theatre, Carlisle. They are fine pieces of workmanship, and beautifully coloured. A large consignment has been dispatched this week in advance of Mr. Lauder, and there is no doubt they will prove a very effective boom.

THE other evening Mme. Gense, a music hall singer engaged at the Paris Olympia, behaved in so extraordinary a way on the stage that she was asked to leave the theatre. Without changing her stage dress, and without putting a hat on, she jumped into a motor-car, and drove to the Châtelet Theatre, where she sought out the manager, and cried to him, "You must lend me fifty francs. As you see, I have not even clothes to my back." Then, before he even had time to answer, she was off again in her motor to another theatre, the Nouveautés. Not being received there, she went home, refused all food, and wrote strange letters by the dozen to everyone she knew. She has now been placed in a private asylum. It is believed that her dementia is due to heavy financial losses.

THE Clydebank New Gaiety Theatre has during the vacation been endowed with all the most up-to-date methods, and was opened on Monday as a music-hall by that enterprising manager Mr. A. E. Pickard, of the Glasgow Panopticon, on the two-houses-a-night system. Both houses on Monday night were packed. The top-liner, Mr. Barney Vox, ventriloquist, kept the audience in good fettle while he occupied the stage; Miss Lillie Hayles excels as a dancer; the Three Neros in a speciality act caused much laughter; Mr. Arthur Bentley's whistling was especially good; and Mr. Pickard's celebrated American Bioscope was much appreciated. Mr. A. E. Pickard at each house came before the footlights, and in a brief speech thanked the audience for their support.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, Sept. 17.—This remarkable work of the famous Dutch dramatist was produced some four years ago at the same theatre, under Dr. Lindau's management, but disappeared from the bill after only a few performances. It is remarkable for two reasons—the caustic dialogue and the brutal depravity of nearly all the characters. Again and again one is tempted to ask the object of the production of such plays, in which there is scarcely one redeeming point. Pancras Duif, an old smith, who has saved a considerable fortune by hard work, has been a widower for twenty years, during which time he had no opportunity to consider the practicability of a second marriage. Now, however, he is resting on his well-earned laurels, and feels the need of a partner for the remainder of his days. His choice falls upon his housekeeper, Marianne, a worthy soul who would make him happy if Fate permitted. Duif's family, nevertheless—his children and their husbands and wives; in short, all the relatives he is blessed with—range themselves against poor Marianne with all the brutality they are capable of. It transpires she is not a widow, as she said, and her child was not born in wedlock, which knowledge the family make use of to hound her from the house. Poor Duif is even more to be pitied than she, for to secure themselves his fortune his thankless kindred endeavour to prove him insane. The gloomy piece was well acted, but a long run will certainly not be accorded to it.

THE New Schauspielhaus is giving its usual good and varied programme—something for all tastes. A revival of Goethe's Faust was attended with excellent results, the Gretchen of Fräulein Maren, one of the most sympathetic young actresses we have, being quite above the average impersonation of this grateful rôle. The scenery, too, was highly commendable, the roomy stage with its modern improvements lending itself to plays of this description better than the older theatres.

AT popular prices, this theatre gave last week two very entertaining little comedies—Wilhelm Jordan's Durch's Ohr and the one-act piece, Blau, by Herr Max Bernstein, the clever Munich barter who defended Maximilian Harden in the recent famous trial, and whose pen is as facile as his tongue. Blau is not new, nor can it be ranked among the author's best works, but it serves to pass an hour very pleasantly. A young painter, light of heart and with a pretty wit, who has just returned from Italy, pays a visit to a lawyer friend. The latter is not at home. The merry man of the brush is taken for the lawyer by a new client, and plays the rôle to such advantage that he ultimately wins for himself a charming bride and a wealthy father-in-law. The acting was bright, and the audience applauded warmly.

ERICH SCHLAIKJER'S new three-act play Ausserhalb der Gesellschaft (outside society) was produced on Tuesday at the Neues with a strong cast. It is the story of Harald, a struggling young actor, who falls in love with Jadwiga, a Russian queen of the half-world, whose toy he becomes for a spell. She pours out her ill-gotten wealth upon him until he learns her utter baseness, when he leaves her to begin his struggles again, a sadder and a wiser man. The play met with a cordial reception, the manager returning thanks on behalf of the absent author.

GUSTAV WIED'S amusing farce Zweimal Zwei ist Fünf has passed its 200th performance at the Kleines.

IN the Court of Bankruptcy on Tuesday the case of Norman J. Norman, theatrical manager, came before the Court at a sitting for public examination. The accounts showed liabilities £5,487, of which £4,162 was expected to rank, and assets £3,602. The debtor said that he was an American, and came to England in 1898. In 1901 he commenced business as a tourist agent and theatrical manager at 33, Haymarket, S.W., but later discontinued the theatrical business owing to the growth of the tourist agency. In January, 1906, he removed to 23, Haymarket, and continued business as "Normans" down to December, 1907. He then sold his connection to a company in consideration of £250 in cash and a commission on all business derived from his customers.

EARLY in 1907 he joined another person, who had taken a lease of the Shaftesbury Theatre, and agreed to work with him and share the profits equally. In April, 1907, the "New Shaftesbury Ltd.," was registered, with a nominal capital of £14,000, to take over the lease, &c., he (debtor) being appointed business manager at a salary of £10 a week, but the company only ran for a short period. From December, 1907, to July, 1908, he acted as manager of the theatre, and was to receive a half-share of the profits and £5 per week for expenses, but the business was not a success. He attributed his failure to want of capital, heavy expenses of the premises, 23, Haymarket, and slackness of trade. The examination was closed.

THE meeting of shareholders of the Ayr New Gaiety Theatre was held on the 11th inst., and after considerable discussion the motion was carried "that the business and property of the company shall be sold, and that the directors be empowered to expose the said business and property for sale by public roup at a price of not less than £5,000." It was pointed out that, as the theatre was paying well, and the prospects for the future were bright, it would be a pity to sell immediately, as there would be nothing left for the shareholders after the guarantors had been paid. It was accordingly resolved that in the meantime £5 debentures be issued bearing interest at 5 per cent., and that also an effort be made to raise a bond on the property of £4,000 or so. Before the meeting broke up some £1,600 was intimated as against debentures.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

[We do not answer inquiries by post. In all letters the names and addresses of inquirers must be given as a guarantee of good faith. Initials only or pseudonyms will be used in the answers if so desired.]

HARRY STEYNE.—My Sweetheart has never been played at the theatre named.

THOMAS ASKHAM.—The point is discussed on page 57 of Mr. Strong's book. Without a stage-play licence you could not legally give sketches. There has been arrived at, we believe, an understanding that sketches not exceeding thirty minutes can be given. But while the law remains as it is they are still clearly illegal, though it must be admitted that the law is often contravened on this question.

W. T. (Brighton).—The name of the lady who played the part of Leah in Leah the Forsaken (produced on Oct. 1, 1863, at the Adelphi) was Miss Kate Bateman, who afterwards became Mrs. Crowe. You will find that her name is placed first on the front page of "The Era."

J. C. G.—Peep o' Day was first acted at Drury Lane Theatre on Easter Monday, 1863, after having been represented for 346 nights previously at the Lyceum. Mr. Hermann Vezin played Harry Kavanagh at the Lyceum, and the late Henry Loraine was the representative of the part when the piece was transferred to Old Drury.

PETER HIGGINS (Portobello).—Arrah-na-Pogue was produced in 1864, and therefore is presumably free. Consult Strong's book on copyright published at this office, price 3s. 6d.

J. B. TEMPLETON.—We have already answered your query in our issue of Sept. 5, when we expressed our regret that we were unable to give you the information you desired.

R. TAIT.—A Greek Slave was produced at Daly's on June 8, 1898; The Geisha at the same house on April 25, 1896. See notice above.

MISS LORD LUMLEY.—You may get all necessary particulars by writing to Mr. Douglas Stuart, secretary to the M.H.A.R.A., and enclosing addressed envelope for reply.

E. DENNETT.—Tom Ward, the clog-dancer, won the champion belt on June 11, 1881. He came out at the old Oxford Music Hall, Newcastle-on-Tyne, as a pupil of Tony Handford. He commenced his professional career at the age of fourteen, and appeared later at the Tyne Theatre, Newcastle, in The Yellow Dwarf pantomime, and at Birmingham in The Ice Witch. His last appearance was on the stage of the Newcastle Gaiety Theatre. He was at one time a member of the Moore and Burgess Minstrels.

THE "skating" season opened at the Roller Skating Rink, Exhibition Buildings, Newcastle-on-Tyne, on Saturday last, and there seems every prospect of the "rink" becoming more popular than ever. Mr. C. P. Crawford is doing all possible to ensure the comfort and pleasure of the patrons of this most pleasurable form of amusement, and everything points to a successful season.

At the King's Theatre, Gateshead, Bob Hutt and company (who "top" here this week with The Captain of the Boys), are great mirth-provokers; Marguerite Ismay and her troupe of white coons present a dainty vocal and dancing scena; the Moncktons score once more in Two in a Flat; Arthur Boyne is a genuinely funny comedian; an entertaining comedienne is Yvonne Lamor; Baines and Reed present a comedy acrobatic act; Little Vi Adele, comedienne and dancer, and pictures by Vernon's Bioscope are also on the list.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT
FOR
ACTOR AND COMPOSER.
BY ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B.

Copyright confusion is, like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr. Albert A. Strong's new work, entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr. Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his textbook on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" Office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee

Mr. A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes," which is at present required.—St. James's Gazette.

NOTICE.

BASKERVILLE PRINTING WORKS, CAMBRIDGE-ST., BIRMINGHAM.

We have to announce with deep regret the death of Mr. William Albert Upton on Sept. 5, 1908.

Messrs. Arthur Heaton, of Shadwell-street, Birmingham, and James Baskerville Upton, the Son of the late Mr. Upton, have been appointed Directors of the Company, and Mr. Heaton has been elected Chairman.

It is intended to constitute as Departmental Directors, Messrs. C. H. Tebbutt, J. E. Penzer, T. Boyard, and T. R. Barr, who have for so many years conducted with conspicuous ability the departments with which they have been associated. In this way it is thought that the serious loss which the firm has sustained will be best met, and a Staff created which will use their utmost endeavours to continue the Company's business with the efficiency and success which have distinguished it in the past.

THE ERA

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1908.

SHAW AND IRVING.

It will be remembered that, soon after the death of Sir HENRY IRVING, Mr. BERNARD SHAW published in the Neue Freie Presse an article on the deceased actor which contained several serious errors, created a great deal of indignation, and gave Mr. SHAW excellent advertisement. In this article the writer stated that IRVING "compelled the Court to knight him by publicly and explicitly demanding that he, as the head of the London stage, should be treated as the peer of the President of the Royal Academy of Arts, who is always knighted in London as a matter of course." These statements were a most unfair and ungenerous perversion of ten lines in a speech made by the late Sir HENRY IRVING at the Royal Institution. Mr. SHAW, in depreciating the dead actor, described him as a lad with his head full of nothing but romances, pitchforked into a City office, and leaving it to go on the stage as a member of the stock company in a provincial town where the theatre was abhorred as the gate of hell, and playing the piano on Sunday considered an unpardonable crime by most of the respectable citizens. "Imagine him"—went on Mr. SHAW—"after picking up his profession technically in this way, wandering about for a few years, buying the Burgtheater"—this of course, was an imaginary parallel to IRVING'S taking the Lyceum—"and becoming its absolute and sole director and proprietor, with romantic millionairesses placing large sums at his disposal for costly productions, and you will get some idea of IRVING'S position in London."

As we remarked at the time, Mr. SHAW appeared to be absolutely careless and indifferent as to the accuracy of any statement that he makes in print, so long as the person about whom it is made was dead and could neither contradict him nor resent his attack. We were unable to believe that a love of truth was the only influence which dictated this attack; and we remarked in a leading article: "We should like to know if Mr. SHAW ever gave Sir HENRY the offer of any of his—Mr. SHAW'S—plays. If he did so offer them, and they were refused, the fact may account for the animus of the article, though it cannot excuse its inaccuracies."

In the following week, Mr. SHAW wrote to us a letter in which, gratifying our desire for information whether he had ever offered one of his plays to Sir HENRY, he said: "I did not. Far from refusing any play of mine, Sir HENRY IRVING embarrassed me very considerably by spontaneously proposing to produce The Man of Destiny at the Lyceum Theatre. I, of course, showed my sense of the compliment, and of what was due to Sir HENRY'S position, by placing the piece at his disposal; but the project was never carried out."

We accepted Mr. SHAW'S statement at the time in good faith; but a new light has been cast on the question by the publication by Messrs. HUTCHINSON and Co. of the admirable autobiography of Miss ELLEN TERRY, entitled "The Story of My Life." In Chapter XIV., which is headed "Last Days at the Lyceum," Miss TERRY writes as follows:

In Mr. Shaw's A Man of Destiny there were two good parts, and Henry, at my request, considered it, although it was always difficult to fit a one-act play into the Lyceum bill. For reasons of his own Henry never produced Mr. Shaw's play, and there was a good deal of fuss made about it at the time (1897). But ten years ago Mr. Shaw was not so well known as he is now, and the so-called "rejection" was probably of use to him as an advertisement!

A Man of Destiny has been produced since, but without any great success. I wonder if Henry and I could have done more with it!

At this time Mr. Shaw and I frequently corresponded. It began by my writing to ask him, as musical critic of the Saturday Review, to tell me frankly what he thought of the chances of a composer-singer friend of mine. He answered "characteristically," and we developed a perfect fury for writing to each other! Sometimes the letters were on business, sometimes they were not, but always his were entertaining, and mine were, I suppose, "good copy," as he drew the character of Lady Cecily Waynflete in Brassbound entirely from my letters. He never met me until after the play was written. In 1902 he sent me this ultimatum:—

"April 3, 1902.

"Mr. Bernard Shaw's compliments to Miss Ellen Terry.

"Mr. Bernard Shaw has been approached by Mrs. Langtry with a view to the immediate and splendid production of Captain Brassbound's Conversion.

"Mr. Bernard Shaw, with the last flash of a trampled-out love, has repulsed Mrs. Langtry with a petulance bordering on brutality.

"Mr. Bernard Shaw has been actuated in this ungentlemanly and unbusinesslike course by an angry desire to seize Miss Ellen Terry by the hair and make her play Lady Cecily.

"Mr. Bernard Shaw would be glad to know whether Miss Ellen Terry wishes to play Martha at the Lyceum instead.

"Mr. Bernard Shaw will go to the length of keeping a minor part open for Sir Henry Irving when Faust fails, if Miss Ellen Terry desires it.

"Mr. Bernard Shaw lives in daily fear of Mrs. Langtry's recovering sufficiently from her natural resentment of his ill-manners to reopen the subject.

"Mr. Bernard Shaw begs Miss Ellen Terry to answer this letter.

"Mr. Bernard Shaw is looking for a new cottage or house in the country, and wants advice on the subject.

"Mr. Bernard Shaw craves for the sight of Miss Ellen Terry's once familiar handwriting."

The first time he came to my house I was not present, but a young American lady who had long adored him from the other side of the Atlantic took my place as hostess (I was at the theatre, as usual); and I took great pains to have everything looking nice! I spent a long time putting out my best blue china, and ordered a splendid dinner, quite forgetting the honoured guest generally dined off a Plasmon biscuit and a bean!

Mr. Shaw read Arms and the Man to my young American friend (Miss Satty Fairchild) without even going into the dining-room where the blue china was spread out to delight his eye. My daughter Edy was present at the reading, and appeared so much absorbed in some embroidery, and paid the reader so few compliments about his play, that he expressed the opinion that she behaved as if she had been married to him for twenty years!

The first time I ever saw Mr. Shaw in the flesh—I hope he will pardon me such an anti-vegetarian expression—was when he took his call after the first production of Captain Brassbound's Conversion by the Stage Society. He was quite unlike what I had imagined from his letters.

When at last I was able to play in Captain Brassbound's Conversion, I found Bernard Shaw wonderfully patient at rehearsal. I look upon him as a good, kind, gentle creature whose "brainstorms" are just due to the Irishman's love of a fight; they never spring from malice or anger. It doesn't answer to take Bernard Shaw seriously. He is not a man of convictions.

It will be noticed that the two accounts of The Man of Destiny incident differ considerably. Mr. SHAW, on the one hand, represented himself as a much-sought-after author, "embarrassed" by the proposition spontaneously made by the leading actor of his day to produce one of Mr. SHAW'S plays at the Lyceum. Miss TERRY'S account of the matter is that Sir HENRY IRVING considered Mr. SHAW'S piece at her intercession, and found that for certain reasons it would not do. We leave to our readers to choose which account they will accept of an incident which would be absolutely unimportant except for its connection with HENRY IRVING'S career. From the passages which we have quoted it seems that, however greatly Mr. SHAW was "embarrassed" by a proposition to produce one of his plays in 1897, he was "pushing" them pretty spiritedly in 1902.

STAGE CHILDREN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Your correspondent "Curiosity" can easily be satisfied. No "relaxation of rule" has taken place as regards the Lyceum. The magistrates, if applied to, are not empowered to grant a licence to any child under six to perform upon the stage, either in London or the provinces. It would be useless to ask for a licence for Pete's baby. Of course, any management allowing an infant to appear is most properly liable to punishment under the ordinary law for cruelty (providing the cruelty is proved); but it is pretty certain that in this instance those in authority are well prepared to rebut such a charge, were it made, by the strongest medical evidence, that there was no cruelty.

It may be taken for granted that the police do not interfere when they know they have no real cause, as such a proceeding would be utterly unnecessary, and, moreover, doomed to failure beforehand.—Yours faithfully, SPECTATOR.

ELLEN TERRY AND THE KEANS.

"The Charles Keans, from whom I received my first engagement," says Miss Ellen Terry, in "The Story of My Life," now published in book form by Hutchinson and Co., "were both remarkable people, and at the Princess's Theatre were doing very remarkable work. Kean the younger had not the fire and genius of his wonderful father, Edmund, and but for the inherited splendour of his name it is not likely that he would ever have attained great eminence as an actor. His Wolsey and his Richard (the Second, not the Third) were his best parts, perhaps because in them his beautiful diction had full scope and his limitations were not noticeable. But it is more as a stage reformer than as an actor that he will be remembered. The old happy-go-lucky way of staging plays, with its sublime indifference to correctness of detail and its utter disregard of archæology, had received its first blow from Kemble and Macready, but Charles Kean gave it much harder knocks and went further than either of them in the good work.

"It is an old story and a true one that when Edmund Kean made his first great success as Shylock, after a long and miserable struggle as a strolling player, he came home to his wife and said: 'You shall ride in your carriage,' and then, catching up his little son, added, 'and Charley shall go to Eton!' Well, Charley did go to Eton, and if Eton did not make him a great actor, it opened his eyes to the absurd anachronisms in costumes and accessories which prevailed on the stage at that period, and when he undertook the management of the Princess's Theatre, he turned his classical education to account. In addition to scholarly knowledge, he had a naturally refined taste and the power of selecting the right men to help him. Planché, the great authority on historical costume, was one of his ablest coadjutors, and Mr. Bradshaw designed all the properties. It has been said lately that I began my career on an unfurnished stage, when the play was the thing, and spectacle was considered of small importance. I take this opportunity of contradicting that statement most emphatically. Neither when I began nor yet later in my career have I ever played under a management where infinite pains were not given to every detail. I think that far from hampering the acting, a beautiful and congruous background and harmonious costumes, representing accurately the spirit of the time in which the play is supposed to move, ought to help and inspire the actor.

"Such thoughts as these did not trouble my head when I acted with the Keans, but, child as I was, the beauty of the productions at the Princess's Theatre made a great impression on me, and my memory of them is quite clear enough, even if there were not plenty of other evidence, for me to assert that in some respects they were even more elaborate than those of the present day. I know that the bath-buns of one's childhood always seem in memory much bigger and better than the buns sold nowadays, but even allowing for the natural glamour which the years throw over buns and rooms, places and plays alike, I am quite certain that Charles Kean's productions of Shakespeare would astonish the modern critic who regards the period of my first appearance as a sort of dark-age in the scenic art of the theatre.

"I have alluded to the beauty of Charles Kean's diction. His voice was also of a wonderful quality—soft and low, yet distinct and clear as a bell. When he played Richard II. the magical charm of this organ was alone enough to keep the house spell-bound. His vivid personality made a strong impression on me. Yet others only remember that he called his wife 'Delly,' though she was Nelly, and always spoke as if he had a cold in his head. How strange! If I did not understand what suggested impressions so different from my own, they would make me more indignant.

"'Now who shall arbitrate?
Ten men love what I hate,
Shun what I follow, slight what I receive.
Ten who in ears and eyes
Match me; they all surmise,
They this thing, and I that;
Whom shall my soul believe?'

"What he owed to Mrs. Kean he would have been the first to confess. In many ways she was the leading spirit in the theatre; at the least, a joint ruler, not a queen-consort. During the rehearsals Mr. Kean used to sit in the stalls with a loud-voiced dinner-bell by his side, and when anything went wrong on the stage, he would ring it ferociously, and everything would come to a stop, until Mrs. Kean, who always sat on the stage, had set right what was wrong. She was more formidable than beautiful to look at, but her wonderful fire and genius were none the less impressive because she wore a white handkerchief round her head and had a very beaky nose! How I admired and loved and feared her! Later on the fear was replaced by gratitude, for no woman ever gave herself more trouble to train a young actress than did Mrs. Kean. The love and admiration, I am glad to say, remained and grew. It is rare that it falls to the lot of anyone to have such an accomplished teacher. Her patience and industry were splendid.

"It was Mrs. Kean who chose me out of five or six other children to play my first part. We were all tried in it, and when we had finished, she said the same thing to us all: 'That's very nice! Thank you, my dear. That will do.'

"We none of us knew at the time which of us had pleased her most.

"At this time we were living in the upper part of a house in the Gower-street region. That first home in London I remember chiefly by its fine brass knocker, which mother kept beautifully bright, and by its being the place to which was sent my first part! Bound in green American cloth, it looked to me more marvellous than the most priceless book has ever looked since! I was so proud and pleased and delighted that I danced a hornpipe for joy!

"Why was I chosen, and not one of the other children, for the part of Mamilius? some one may ask. It was not mere luck, I think. Perhaps I was a born actress, but that would have served me little if I had not been able to speak! It must be remembered that both my sister Kate and I had been trained almost from our birth for the stage, and particularly in the important branch of clear articulation. Father, as I have already said, was a very charming elocutionist, and my mother read Shakespeare beautifully. They were both very fond of us and saw our faults with the eyes of love, though they were unsparing in their corrections. In these early days they had need of all their patience, for I was a most troublesome, wayward pupil. However, 'the labour we delight in physics pain,' and I hope, too, that my more staid sister made it up to them!

"The rehearsals for A Winter's Tale were a lesson in fortitude. They taught me once and for all that an actress's life (even when the actress is only eight) is not all beer and skittles, or cakes and ale, or fame and glory. I was cast for the part of Mamilius in the way I have described, and my heart swelled with pride when I was told what I had to do, when I realised that I had a real Shakespeare part—a possession that father had taught me to consider the pride of life!"

MME. META ILLING has obtained the rights of The Chinese Lantern, by Laurence Housman, and of Mr. Hopkinson, by R. C. Carton, for the English Theatre in Berlin.

"LOVE WATCHES."

(FROM OUR NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT.)

Love Watches, a comedy in four acts, by MM. R. de Flers and G. Caillavet, adapted by Miss Gladys Unger, made an instantaneous hit at the Lyceum Theatre, New York, on the 27th ult., and Miss Billie Burke scored a personal success of the first magnitude. The play derives its title from the remark that a woman can be safeguarded only by love, and that love watches over the heroine, Jacqueline, continually. M. Carteret and the Marquise de Juvigny have adjoining country houses at Dieppe. The former has a beautiful young daughter, Jacqueline, who is impulsive, spoiled, but altogether charming; while the latter has a nephew, Count André de Juvigny. Jacqueline is in love with André, who knows nothing, however, of her sentiments. This is the situation when the Marquise, after a consultation with M. Carteret, in whose daughter she has taken a motherly interest, declares that it is time for Jacqueline to marry, and announces that she has selected a husband for the girl. The man of her choice is Ernest Augarde, a scholarly and somewhat bashful young gentleman who appears to be better adapted for companionship with books than with the fair sex. The Marquise has arranged everything to her own satisfaction without consulting Jacqueline and Count André, but these two suddenly engage themselves to each other when Jacqueline, in her simple, frank, and impulsive way, tells André that she is in love with him. Knowledge of their engagement is extended to others when Ernest Augarde, who has nerved himself up to the point of proposing to Jacqueline, approaches her for that purpose, and learns that she has promised herself to André. The young people marry, and they are settled down very happily after their honeymoon in Paris when Jacqueline hears for the first time that her André has had a little affair with her cousin, Lucie de Morfontaine, a young widow, whose pet name for André was "Snoodles." When André returns after a brief absence, Jacqueline greets him hysterically by this same pet name, and makes him promise never to see Lucie again. He has hardly made the promise, however, when Lucie calls on him, faints in his arms, and compels him to see her home. The moment that Jacqueline hears of this from a servant, she proceeds to carry out the threat she has made that if she ever finds her husband disloyal to her she will get even with him within the hour by giving herself to another. So she writes notes to the several members of her family, advising them that she has left her husband and gone to find solace with another man. Jacqueline hastens to the humble flat of Ernest Augarde, where she surprises this timid and erudite gentleman and whither she is pursued by her father and others. Ernest is an old friend of the family, and is quite harmless, in spite of his secret love for Jacqueline. Her coming puts him in a flutter, and he is beginning to feel that at last he is engaged in a real love affair when the arrival of the various relatives sends her into hiding and upsets all his hopes. Augarde's condition of mind and his eccentricities are both humorous and pathetic, and Mr. Ernest Lawford's excellent portrayal of this character is an important factor in the success of the play. After the relatives have departed in ignorance of her whereabouts, Jacqueline decides that she is in love with her husband after all, and goes home. First, however, she promises Ernest that she will never mention having been at his house, and he promises to win back her husband for her. Upon reaching home, however, she blurts out where she has been and the name of the man with whom she has been experimenting in revenge. The family regard the whole thing as a joke. Ernest arrives to find that André is the only one who does not know. So when the husband returns, Ernest sets about making good his promise to Jacqueline. He tells André that his wife has found out about Lucie, and shows him one of the notes in which Jacqueline announced her intention of going away. Moreover, he declares, she has spent the entire afternoon with another man. André is heartbroken at the revelation, whereupon Jacqueline bursts into the room and denounces Ernest for his cruelty to her husband. Ignoring her promise, she informs André that the man she has visited stands before him. Whereupon it is the husband's turn to laugh, with Ernest standing disconsolately by. However, the latter presently consoles himself with a typist who has long been devoted to him, and whom he decides to marry.

In addition to Miss Burke and Mr. Lawford, who score heavily, the cast includes several other good players. Mr. Cyril Keightley, from London, appears as Count André de Juvigny, and his sincere and manly bearing makes a distinctly favourable impression. Mr. Stanley Dark, Mr. W. H. Crompton, Miss Kate Meek, and Miss Louise Drew also acquit themselves well in important rôles.

"THE TRAVELLING SALESMAN."

(FROM OUR NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT.)

The Travelling Salesman, a comedy in four acts, by James Forbes, has been well received at the Liberty Theatre, New York. Mr. Forbes wrote that phenomenally successful comedy The Chorus Lady, and now he has turned out another entertaining play that bids fair to enjoy a long term of popularity. The scenes are laid in a small Indiana town at Christmas time. Beth Elliott, a young woman employed at the railway station selling tickets and sending telegrams, has a small piece of property that is about to be sold for taxes. Franklin Royce and his employer, Martin Drury, mean to buy it when the sale takes place, because they know that the railway company will want it by-and-by for a new branch line. Bob Blake, a commercial traveller, or "drummer," who sells ladies' suits, alights from a train without his trunks, his belongings having been put off at another station. Beth becomes acquainted with him, and in the course of conversation tells him all about her little property. At the Elite Hotel in the second act, Blake and his friends start a poker game, and are joined by Franklin Royce, who is jealous of Blake's friendship with Beth, and who takes too much to drink. When he begins to talk about his plan to buy Beth's property Blake makes him helplessly drunk and hurries away to attend the sale. In the next act Royce and Drury make it appear that Blake has merely played with the girl's affections in order to obtain possession of her property. Beth is told that she can buy it back within six months and is offered a cheque for the necessary amount with a large sum added if she will sell to Drury. She consents to do this, and refuses to listen to Blake when he tries to speak with her. He contrives, however, to checkmate the pair of schemers, and in the end Beth and he come to a happy understanding. Blake is at the telephone as the curtain falls, ordering the hotel people to "send up one minister and two witnesses." The play is brimful of humour of the slangy, colloquial kind, and the characters are most divertingly drawn. Mr. Frank J. McIntyre as Bob Blake and Miss Gertrude Coghlan as Beth Elliott play their parts cleverly; and the other rôles are in capable hands.

MR. MONTAGUE BEAUDYN'S tour of A Traitor Prince will commence on Oct. 5, and is already booked far ahead. The entire production will be new, and a powerful cast and clever troupe of dancers have been secured. The same manager's play, The Power of a Wicked Woman, will commence its tour on Nov. 2.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

"MAM'ZELLE TROMPETTE."

Operetta, in Three Acts, by MM. Desvaillères and Monconsin; music by M. Hirleman; produced at the Folies-Dramatiques on Sept. 15.

Paillette	MLLE. MARISE FAIRY
La Môme Carabine	MLLE. JANE DYT
La Baronne	MLLE. DE LUZA
Rosalie	MLLE. JANE ARELIE
Le Capitaine Duruchard	M. JORDANIS
Martignol	M. CHADAL
Canasson	M. FERNAL
La Citanguette	M. FODOT
Briguard	M. BARLAY
Le Colonel	M. MONTY
Lamirette	M. MOREAUX

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, Sept. 17.—M. Debrenne, the manager of the Folies-Dramatiques, brought out Mam'zelle Trompette, a harmless operetta, by MM. Desvaillères and Monconsin, for which M. Hirleman wrote the music. The plot is of the simplest description. Martignol, a pupil at the Saumur Military Academy, has, whilst on a visit to Paris, met Mlle. Paillette, a little actress, and has fallen violently in love with her. But the young lady, although she has lost her heart to the handsome youth, has resisted his advances. Why? Because she has not yet completed her twentieth year. For it is an unwritten law among the ladies of Paillette's family that they are to remain virtuous until they have attained that age. Paillette's grandmother "succumbed" on her twentieth birthday. Her mother did the same; and Paillette wants to remain true to the family traditions. But three hundred and sixty-four days having elapsed since she was nineteen, she unexpectedly calls on Martignol at Saumur, and makes an appointment with him at the Château de la Citanguette, in the neighbourhood, where she is engaged to take part in a fête. Martignol, although under arrest for a slight breach of discipline, escapes over the walls of the college, and mixes with the guests at La Citanguette, followed by Canesson, a trumpeter, who has an intrigue with Rosalie, one of the maids at the château, where, to his terror, Martignol also meets Captain Duruchard, the director of the Saumur College. Duruchard, supposed to be a woman-hater, is a great admirer of the fair sex, and has come to the fête to have some fun. Fortunately, the terrible captain recognises neither Martignol nor Canasson, both in plain clothes, and mistakes the former for an operatic singer, and the latter for an eccentric young nobleman. This, of course, leads to all sorts of incidents, too numerous to describe. Paillette dons Cabasson's uniform to return with Martignol to Saumur, but is caught by the captain, who orders the pseudo-trumpeter under arrest. The captain, furious at having been bamboozled, is on the point of meting out severe punishment to Martignol and Cabasson when Paillette intercedes on their behalf and cajoles the irate warrior into forgiving them their pranks. The music is rather colourless, but melodious in some parts. The work was well acted, especially by Mlle. Marise Fairy, who proved herself a first-rate operetta diva. M. Jordanis gave a droll sketch of the amorous captain; and the other rôles were also well sustained.

THE London Press has already fully reported on the fearful drama at the Ambigu when M. Jules Stein shot M. Freygefond, the manager. The latter is still in a critical condition, but we hope he will recover. In the theatrical world, however, where M. Stein is well known and very much respected, the greatest commiseration is felt for him and his young wife. Nobody, of course, thinks of excusing M. Stein for having attempted the manager's life; but there can be no doubt that he was driven to despair by the treatment he received at the hands of the Ambigu management. It is a distressing story. M. Stein lived in Tourcoing (near Lille), where he was established in a small way of business. A year ago he made the acquaintance of M. Freygefond, who offered him the post of secretary at the Ambigu. M. Stein, who had been writing several plays without ever hoping of seeing them produced, blinded by this vista of glory, accepted the post, and at once settled in Paris. He then bought 20,000 francs worth of shares in the Ambigu. After a while, M. Grisier, the manager-in-chief, resigned his post, but M. Freygefond retained his position. M. Stein, feeling himself quite secure, advanced another 2,700 francs to M. Freygefond, when, to his horror, the latter informed him that his services as secretary were no longer required. In vain did Stein plead that the money he had sunk in the concern was all he possessed, and that all he had to live upon was the scanty salary paid him by the theatre. M. Freygefond expressed his deep regret, but added that there was no chance of the Ambigu management altering their decision. Two well-known journalists, to whom Stein told his melancholy story, promised to interfere on his behalf, and, noticing that he was labouring under terrible excitement, made him promise to keep quiet until he heard from them. Unfortunately, Stein did not follow that advice. On that same day, towards midnight, he went to the theatre, when a fearful scene took place between him and M. Freygefond, ending in the fatal revolver shots. When Stein will come up for trial these and other facts will be brought forward.

PARISIANS are taking a thorough liking to English songs, especially if accompanied by an appropriate dance. English girls, therefore, are frequently crossing the Channel to try their luck in the French capital. Among the latest arrivals is Miss Prissie Herold, a sprightly young comedienne, who sings capitally and is an accomplished dancer. Miss Herold, who appeared quite recently in the revue at the Bouffes, now performs at the Moulin Rouge, where she meets with a well-deserved success.

VICTOR MASSE'S sentimental opera, Paul et Virginie, has been revived at the Gaieté (Lyrique Municipal). It was brought out in 1876 at the Opéra-Comique, with Capoul and Mlle. Ritter, and had a long run. To-day the public is less sentimentally inclined, and it remains to be seen whether they still feel interested in the fate of the two lovers.

CONTRARY to what has been reported, the Variétés will not open its doors next week. Whilst the rehearsals of the new piece are in progress, Le Roi, last season's success, will again be given.

DUMB-SHOW PLAYS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I have had my attention called to an answer to a correspondent in the columns of one of your contemporaries as to the necessity for obtaining the licence of the Lord Chamberlain for the performance of dumb-show plays.

The journal in question informs the correspondent that there is no need to obtain the Lord Chamberlain's licence.

This is quite an error, as under Section 23 of the Act of Parliament 6 and 7 Vict. Cap. 68, "pantomime," which includes dumb-show plays, is expressly enumerated as being a stage-play within the meaning of the Act, and requiring the Lord Chamberlain's licence.

It seems that in the case of dumb-show plays it is usual to submit a full scenario and description of the situation, stage business, &c.

I apologise for troubling you, but I think such a misunderstanding should not be allowed to go uncorrected.—Yours faithfully,

ALBERT A. STRONG.

London, E.C., Sept. 14, 1908.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

As a counter move to the agents' action in refusing to meet the artists in respect to a revised form of percentage contract, the Variety Artists' Federation executive has issued an order to its members not to pay any commission to agents until the present dispute is settled.

This ultimatum is the outcome of the action of the agents, who were invited to meet the Federation Executive on Thursday—an invitation that the majority accepted. But none of them turned up, and the sub-committee appointed to meet them learned that they had met overnight and signed a resolution to take no notice of the V.A.F., and to treat them with contempt.

The following letter was then sent by the Federation to the agents:—"Sir,—After the deliberate insult you, in combination with your brother agents, have offered to the Variety Artists' Federation this day by wilfully absenting yourself from the arranged meeting, we wish you to clearly understand that you must be prepared to bear the consequences of the drastic methods which have now been put in force against you throughout London and the country. It may not be long before you realise your mistake in daring to set at defiance representatives of 4,000 earnest and determined workers of the music-hall profession.—Yours, &c., MONTE BAYLY."

The Federation have drawn up a form—in reality a charter, to be signed by performer and agent—which allows the agent a commission not exceeding 10 per cent. on an engagement, and on any continuous prolongation of the same, but not on any subsequent engagement that the performer may get through his own or another agent's efforts.

That the artist does change his agent is well known, and, as has been pointed out by Mr. Walter de Frece, "after a man has been found a chance by one agent and proves a success, along comes another who offers him better terms. Surely it isn't fair that the first agent should have the fruits of his work taken from him in this way."

MR. HUGH J. DIDCOTT, who in the early days of the Syndicate pioneered the artists to salaries commensurate with the rapidly-growing taste among the middle classes for variety entertainments, expresses, on his own behalf, the opinion that the "instructions" issued by the Federation are in restraint of trade.

MR. JOE O'GORMAN is reported to have said that "No manager will engage an unknown artist until he has seen that artist perform." This is not a fact. A manager will often engage a Continental turn on the report of a reputable agent.

"COPPELIA" at the Empire will be replaced about the middle of October by the new ballet, now actively in preparation, which is to bear the title of Paris. To Colonel Newnham-Davis is due the credit of the original idea. The music will be by Mr. Cuthbert Clarke, and the arrangement of the dances by Mr. Fred Farren.

The first scene represents the exterior of the Grand Opera; the second the "Place," which forms the starting-point of the Champs-Elysées, and from which a glimpse can be caught across the Seine of the Invalides; the third takes us into the regions of Montmartre; and the fourth reveals the liveliness, the colour, the brilliancy, and brio of an artists' ball in the Moulin Rouge. In this M. Wilhelm's inventiveness will have full scope, and 120 dancers will crowd the stage, dressed in colour designs, for which Wilhelm has long been famous.

The apotheosis of the great Napoleon in the second scene suggests the creation of the "Spirit of Glory," impersonated by Mlle. Kyaksht, who will be the central figure in the new production. It lends itself admirably to the introduction of a military review, wherein a battalion of St. Cyr cadets figure prominently.

The foundation of the scenario is based generally upon the desire of a millionaire Britisher to see something of the more uncommon sights of la ville lumière. He puts himself and his family under the guidance of a student played by Mr. Fred Farren, and it is under his production that the Smith family are inducted into the mysteries of the Café de Néant, of L'Enfer, and other similar resorts in Montmartre.

MR. FRED FARREN will be responsible for the actual production, and other established favourites who will appear will include Mlle. Zanfretta, Miss Elise Clerc, Miss Phyllis Bedell, Mr. T. Walls, and Mr. Jameson. The exact date of the production has not been fixed.

While leaving the ceremony of laying the foundation stone of the new variety house at Edmonton on Wednesday, Mr. Edward W. Mackney, the celebrated comedian of a generation ago, who is over eighty years of age, was knocked down by a bicycle and severely injured.

The reconstruction of the amphitheatre of the Palace Theatre, Shaftesbury-avenue, which was put in hand six weeks ago, has now been completed, and on Monday next it will be again open to the public. It will now be possible for a perfect view to be obtained from every seat. This part of the house has been entirely redecorated and fitted. The price of admission will remain as before, 1s.

MRS. JOHN LAWSON has been paying a return visit to the Hippodrome, Rotherhithe, this week with The Devil's Sunday, and the holding capacity of this hall has been severely tested during this week. Mrs. Lawson will produce shortly a new sketch, from the pen of Mr. J. J. Spencer Sutcliffe. The title is very novel, and it promises to be one of the best things ever done by this talented lady.

MISS MAIDIE SCOTT is finding London work no sinecure. Last week she worked the Tivoli, Oxford, and Paragon, and deputised for the top of the bill at the London Pavilion. This week she appears at the Tivoli, Oxford, and Tottenham.

MR. LENNOX BARRY has secured an important post with one of the leading American vaudeville syndicates, and sails for New York shortly in order to take over the management of one of the largest halls in that city. Mr. Barry's many friends in this country are tendering him their sincere wishes for his success.

The New York Times says:—"We are having a Salome epidemic. Half-dressed women in all the variety theatres are doing the dance of seven veils and joyfully receiving a human head (in papier-maché) on a platter. The cartoonists have taken up the daughter of Herodias. What we most object to in this Salome epidemic is the shockingly bad taste of it all. It is rampant vulgarity."

Several revivals of Macbeth are promised during the coming season, and the eerie nature of the manifestations of the weird sisters appeal strongly to Mr. J. N. Maskelyne, who is busily engaged upon the witches scenes for his own stage at St. George's Hall. He will introduce some novel effects of a necromantic and mysterious character. It will be interesting to compare the work of the famous illusionist with that of the scenic artist and stage-carpenter.

The opening performances at Devonport Hippodrome were in every respect a complete success, and if the standard set on Monday is maintained, the theatre is assured a prosperous history. The majority of the members of the Borough Council demonstrated their goodwill by their presence at the second "house."

MR. ALFRED MOUL (chairman of directors), on behalf of his colleagues, the directors of Hippodrome (Devonport), Limited, and himself, spoke from the footlights, and said it was his duty and his pleasure to thank all who by their presence had assisted at their first performance, to give them the heartiest possible welcome, and to express their satisfaction at knowing that those who were responsible for the erection of that theatre had met what he was quite sure, from those who had told him and knew, was a long-felt want in the borough.

The Palace, Clacton-on-Sea, is now closed, but will open again shortly.

The Tynemouth Palace is to be sold by auction on Wednesday, Sept. 30, at the Station Hotel, Newcastle-on-Tyne, at 3 p.m.

MISS COSSIE NOEL, who used to delight us by her performance with the Leopolds in Frivolity, is now Mrs. De Silva, and takes up the management of the Villiers Hotel, Elliott-street, Liverpool, on Monday week.

MR. H. H. WATSON, late of the Bordesley Palace, Birmingham, assumed on Monday the duties of acting-manager at the Theatre Royal, Ton-y-pandy.

MISS LETTY LINGARD, the new burlesque actress, charming songstress, and dancer, who has been scoring all along the line in the provinces, returns on Monday to the Hippodrome, Hastings.

The Grand Theatre, Glasgow, will re-open on Monday next under the proprietorship of Moss' Empires, Ltd. The house, which was built in 1867, has been thoroughly renovated, and will open with a revival of Alfred Cellier's Dorothy, with Messrs. Hayden Coffin and Arthur Williams in their original parts.

The magistrates at Gainsborough on Tuesday last held a special meeting to consider the application for a full stage-play and variety licence for the Empire Hippodrome, which they granted, with permission to allow smoking in all parts. The hall is a very handsome one, and will fill a much-needed want in Gainsborough.

ADELER AND SUTTON (RHYL), LTD., has been registered as a company, with a capital of £5,000, in £1 shares (2,000 Preference). Its objects are "to acquire the business carried on at Rhyl by A. L. Lewis (professionally known as Edwin Adeler) and W. G. Sutton, to take over the premises known as Adeler and Sutton's Pavilion and Grounds, and to carry on the business of theatre and hall proprietors, &c."

The New Hippodrome, Peterborough, which was sold last week, was reopened on Monday under the control of Messrs. Fred Karno and A. H. Edwards with a capital variety programme. Messrs. Karno and Edwards were the debenture holders and the principal creditors of the vendors. Originally known as Sylvester's Hippodrome, the place was closed in consequence of the Sylvester Hippodromes Syndicate going into liquidation.

The King's Theatre and Hippodrome, Dundee, which is being erected in Cowgate and St. Andrew's-street, Dundee, has been leased by the King's Theatre and Hippodrome, Dundee, Ltd., to the United County Theatres, London, Ltd., of whom Mr. Alfred Moul, of the Alhambra, London, is the chairman. The latter company being the proprietors of a large combination of theatres, can ensure the very best theatrical companies being brought to Dundee to the new house, which will be one of the handsomest and most comfortable in Scotland. The King's Theatre is to be opened in December.

The report of the directors of the Star Theatre of Varieties, Ltd., Dublin, presented to the shareholders at the fifteenth ordinary general meeting of the company on Friday, states that the profits for the year, inclusive of interest on investments and transfer fees, after the payment of all working expenses, and writing off £1,234 8s. 1d. to the reserve fund, amount to £2,253 12s. 3d. Deducting from this amount the interest on debenture stock and income stock, there remains, with the £682 2s. 8d. brought forward from the previous account, a sum of £1,626, which it is proposed to allocate as follows:—The payment of one and a half year's dividend at 6 per cent. on 10,000 Cumulative Preference shares, less income-tax, £854, leaving to be carried forward to the next account £772.

The Royal Theatre of Varieties, Warrington, a freehold property, was offered for sale at auction by Mr. W. H. Robinson at the Albion Hotel, Manchester, on Tuesday. The theatre, which has a dramatic licence, was built in 1883, re-seated and decorated in 1907 by Messrs. Dean, of Birmingham, and contains pit and pit stalls, centre circle and side circles. During the past four and a half years it has been run on the two-houses-a-night system. The first bid was £1,500 and the last £2,000, and the auctioneer announced that the lot would be withdrawn. We understand that the property was subsequently sold by private treaty to Mr. Harry Carver, of Eccles.

MR. ARTHUR WILLIAMS this week has been appearing at the County Theatre, Kingston, as Timothy Hand in Paul Meritt and George Conquest's melodrama Hand and Glove, a part that he played in the original production of that piece at the Grecian Theatre on May 25, 1874. On that occasion the late Mr. George Conquest was the Titus Glove, and the two characters reminded our critic of the time of Tricoche and Cacolet in the famous French farce of that name.

During the fire at the Winter Gardens, Morecambe, on Tuesday night last, Miss Lord Lumley (Mr. Harry Liston's colleague) in her hurry to escape, with some of her valuable gowns in her arms, was met on the back staircase by some unknown person, who asked: "Where are you going, Miss?" "To take these gowns into the street," replied Miss Lumley. "But do you know you have no gown on?" said the stranger. It was true. Miss Lumley, in the moment of general panic was rusning out of the burning building with simply her skirts on. Fortunately the fire was extinguished very quickly, and before she had time to return to her dressing-room to take out two trunks of wardrobe.

The staff of the Empire Palace, Wolverhampton, together with their friends, had their annual outing on Sunday last, and journeyed to Bridgnorth in brakes. On arrival an adjournment was made to the Falcon Hotel, where an excellent dinner was served, some sixty ladies and gentlemen sitting down. After the loyal toast had been disposed of Mr. Frank Weston, resident manager, proposed "The Directors," coupling with it the name of Mr. Walter de Frece, who had expressed his regret at being unable to be with them, a feeling that was shared by everyone present. Mr. Ferguson, after replying for "The Visitors," proposed the health of Mr. and Mrs. Weston. After dinner an enjoyable trip was made down the Severn and back to Bridgnorth. A pleasant drive back to Wolverhampton concluded a happy day.

MISS MARIE LOFTUS will go to America in January under contract to Mr. William Morris.

MRS. CHARLES WARREN (Miss Rachel Lowe) presented her husband, the energetic hustler and manager for Witmark and Son, in Shaftesbury-avenue, with a fine baby boy on Saturday last.

Many congratulations and good wishes will be showered upon Mr. Will Oliver, who will be married this morning by special licence to Mrs. Katie Theurer, who has been "Spot's" manageress since the dissolution of partnership between him and his old-time friend Tom Holmes, who journeyed on Thursday night from Dundee expressly to be best man to his old partner.

In former years Mrs. Theurer has been manageress of Ye Old Royal, the Crown Hotel, and Cross Keys, all in Birmingham; the Swan Hotel, Bedford; and later the Old White Horse, Brixton. With Mr. Theurer, her late husband, she shared the responsibilities of the proprietorship of the Masons' Hall Tavern, E.C. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Will Oliver will travel to Brighton, where they will stay at the York Hotel for a holiday, that will, of necessity, be brief, as business compels an almost immediate return to Spot Lodge. To the evergreen Will and his wife we wish many happy years.

A COPYRIGHT performance of The Willow Pattern Plate, a Chinese musical romance in four tableaux, composed, written, and arranged by Eugenie Magnus, was given at the Empire, Camberwell, on Wednesday. The piece will very shortly be seen at a West End hall with Mr. Crauford Kent as principal tenor.

MR. DUNDAS SLATER, the manager of the Coliseum, has instituted a series of pianola recitals of the great masters interpreted by such performers as Emil Sauer, Backhaus, Edvard Grieg, &c., in the beautiful terrace tea-room. These recitals take place daily one hour before the performance commences and during the interval, and are free to patrons visiting the theatre. Next week Mme. Yvette Guilbert commences a short season at the Coliseum.

MISS HENRIQUETTE MAUDE, the little New Zealand girl, who made her first appearance at a Canterbury anniversary a year and a half ago, has been achieving a series of triumphs on tour, and comes to the Euston on Monday with her novel act. Miss Maude has appeared in more theatres and halls than most young artists of her age, and though she came quite unknown to these shores it looks as if her future contracts, which are many and important, will keep her in this tight little island for some considerable time. She is producing as a scena the poem "Lasca," by Frank Desprez.

MR. GEO. ROBEY is a disciple of philately, being the owner of a very fine collection of postage stamps. He has promised to exhibit his collection at the Hulme Town Hall, Manchester, on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, Feb. 18, 19, and 20, during the Philatelic Congress, which is to be held in conjunction with the Manchester Exhibition in 1909.

MME. YVETTE GUILBERT has selected Monday next as the date of her appearance at the Coliseum. To Mr. Oswald Stoll she has announced the fact in a characteristic letter. She writes:—"After having spent a few weeks in lovely Folkestone and a few weeks in Bagnolles de l'Orme, in our beautiful Normandy, nothing more than a souvenir remains of the serious illness which befel me during my last stay in London, and which frightened me so much. But it remains also the very agreeable obligation to fulfil my engagement at the Coliseum, which we had to postpone owing to that illness. I am ready, my dear Mr. Stoll, to begin my performances at the date you suggested, that is, on Sept. 21. Please will you make it known to the London public, otherwise I might risk to be reproached that I am abusing the kind hospitality of the London public by coming too often!"

The Camden Theatre, now the Camden Hippodrome, was opened on Monday by the London Theatres of Varieties, Limited, with a programme of biograph pictures. A large audience filled the auditorium to watch a varied selection of pictures. The management is in the hands of Mr. Harry N. Wentworth. Sunday performances are also to be given.

MR. HARRY J. BRETT, who was for many years acting-manager of the Crown Theatre, Peckham, has been appointed manager of Mr. Geo. Dance's handsome Richmond Hippodrome and Theatre.

MISS MILLIE HYLTON has now returned to the London variety stage with some capital songs and thirty new frocks, by Louise, of Paris. She is noted for her exquisite taste in dress. Recently, however, whilst playing in the French capital, her pride in this direction received a decided shock. The papers had duly praised her songs and dresses, and the usual shoal of congratulatory letters came by each post from admirers in front. Then one day a parcel came by special messenger, who, after getting a signature for it, vanished.

On opening the parcel, Miss Hylton found it to contain a dozen pairs of very dainty gloves of one colour, and a note, which ran as follows:—"Charming madame, you, who are so exquisitely dressed, will pardon the writer in pointing out one defect in an otherwise perfect ensemble. The colour of the gloves you wear is out of keeping with your costume, if you will permit me to say so. They are just one slight shade too brilliant. Let me, in pointing out this defect, remedy it. Please accept the enclosed box with every assurance of my esteem and regard, and, believe me, any orders that come through your recommendation, I shall have pleasure in allowing you 25 per cent. commission on!" Then followed the enterprising Frenchman's business card. On second thoughts Miss Hylton has worn all those gloves.

MISS GLADYS MARSDEN, who is now making her first appearance at the Palace Theatre, made her first professional appearance on the regular stage at the Hicks Theatre, where she gave a number of impressions of popular players. She has since played with Mr. Beerbohm Tree, Mr. George Alexander, and Mr. H. B. Irving.

MISS MADGE TEMPLE will be appearing shortly in a novel song-scena at the London Coliseum. The song itself is entitled "Come and see my rainbow," and is from the pens of Charles Wilmott and Hermann Darewski. A special scene is being painted for Miss Temple, and one can easily imagine that with Mr. Bertie Shelton responsible for lighting effects something remarkable as well as pretty will result.

Thick and fast arrive the MSS. of songs that people in all parts of the country are writing for Miss Winifred Hare to sing in pantomime next Christmas. Miss Hare devotes two and sometimes three hours daily, to wading through the fresh arrivals, and then reposts those that are absolutely unsuitable. Up to the moment of writing she has kept back five, and of these, one written by a young lady of seventeen, hailing from Mayfield, Sussex, is at present favourite. It is called "I am so glad to meet you," and, besides being tuneful, is smartly written and humorous. On Dec. 15 Miss Hare will make her final decision respecting the award of the £100.

The general meeting of the Tivoli Football Club took place on Aug. 22, when Messrs. E. Price and A. S. Beavon were elected captain and vice-captain respectively. The Tivoli expects to have a very busy season, which opens with a match against Mr. Hedge's XI. on Sunday, Sept. 20.

Music hall and theatrical football will be much stimulated by the formation of the Music Hall and Theatrical Football League, the first meeting of which took place on Sept. 13, when it was announced that Mr. Harry Tate, always a good sportsman, had generously promised to present a very fine silver cup, to be competed for. Some ten clubs have already promised to join, but there are still a few vacancies, and clubs wishing to come in are requested to apply as early as possible to the Secretary, Tivoli Football Club, Tivoli Theatre, Strand, W.C.

Next week the variety show in the centre transept of the Crystal Palace will be given twice daily, and will include the Three Röhrs, in daring and novel feats on a revolving globe. Mr. Charles Röhr offers £50 to any man who will perform his last trick. Tom Alvantee, the king of the sliding wire, will also be seen in his sensational "Slide for Life."

The directors of the Empire and Mr. Harry Hitchins have been inspired by an unusually happy idea. A "farewell Genée" matinée" will be given at the Empire on Tuesday, when, as a graceful compliment to the departing artist, the directors are issuing invitations to a number of leading actors and actresses who, by reason of their evening engagements, have been denied the privilege of witnessing Mlle. Genée's delightful performance in Miss Dora Bright's pantomime play, The Dryad.

The programme will consist of the second act of Coppelia, with Mlle. Kyaksht in the title-rôle, followed by Mr. Arthur Croxon in his mimetic entertainment. After the Opera will be presented by Mr. Robert Pateman, Mr. Vernon Steel, and Miss Evelyn D'Alroy. Subsequently in The Dryad Mlle. Genée will take farewell of her friends for something like a twelvemonth at least.

In the Vacation Court on Tuesday morning, Mr. Bischoff applied, ex parte, on behalf of the Alhambra Theatre Company for leave to serve Miss Cissie Loftus with notice of motion for an injunction to restrain her from appearing at the Coliseum, or any other theatre in London, in alleged breach of her contract with the plaintiff company. The learned counsel also asked for an interim injunction over next Wednesday, restraining Miss Loftus in the terms of the notice of motion.

Counsel stated that the defendant, in May, 1898, entered into a contract with the plaintiff company for an engagement for twelve weeks, and for a further engagement for a period of four weeks, at the option of the plaintiffs, the defendant's engagement to commence on May 15, 1899. Her salary was to be £85 a week, and her performances were to consist of her well-known imitations. Before the date of the performance of the contract Miss Loftus had a good offer to go to America, and applied to the plaintiffs to be released in some way from the contract. After some correspondence the plaintiffs agreed to the defendant going to America on condition that she performed her contract when she returned before appearing at rival establishments in London.

The defendant returned to England in 1902, and appeared with the late Sir Henry Irving in Faust. The subject of the old contract was again revived, and there was an interview between the defendant and the plaintiffs' manager. It was arranged that the question of the old contract should remain in abeyance because the defendant intended to go again to America. It was also arranged that if she returned to the music-hall stage she should fulfil her engagement with the plaintiffs.

MISS CISSIE LOFTUS had since come back to England, and had entered into a contract with the Coliseum Company at a salary of £250 a week. The plaintiffs accordingly asked for the injunction. Counsel said he was told that there was a possibility of the defendant appearing at the Coliseum next Monday. Mr. Justice Coleridge gave leave to serve the notice of motion, but refused the injunction.

AUSTIN LENTON and Agnes Lane, after a most successful trial trip in the provinces with their new musical comedy act, Unconsidered Trifles (a novelty being played in a front scene), will be seen on Monday next at the Standard, Pimlico. The piece is writen by the well-known pantomime author, Harry McClelland, the music being by Fred G. Leake.

LITTLE Mirzka Gynt, to whom we referred last week, is the son of a minister of the Jewish religion—a Pole—driven by persecution from his home in Warsaw, and almost in destitution in London. He was really discovered by Miss Alice Lloyd and her husband, Mr. Tom Macnaughton, who were pioneering through the East End Mr. Morris, the American variety agent, Mr. Leventhart, an American attorney, and Mr. Krandt, a director of the Monte Carlo Company.

The party were struck by the boy's voice in the ballad "Why do I ask you if you love me?" and Mr. Kandt telephoned to Mr. Goodson, variety agent, and advanced the boy some money to keep him off the streets. He has since been in the provinces for a week, and has charmed everyone. On Wednesday he sailed with his father to New York, where he appears for the first of twenty weeks in America at a salary of £40 a week. Mr. Stoll has booked him for his forty-eight-week tour in England at the end of his American trip, subject to the boy's right to renew his American contract if he desires it.

MR. WEBB, who has been stage-manager under Mr. Richard Wake and Mr. T. S. Dickie at the Standard, Pimlico, has been appointed by Mr. Henri Gros to a similar post at the Chelsea Palace.

A GREAT success has been made during the week by Mr. Bernard Mervyn and his company in the sketch Treachery at the Battersea Palace. The plot deals with the selling of the British plans to the enemy, and the endeavour to fasten the crime on a fellow soldier, who is court-martialled, but of course is cleared in the final scene, by the confession of the real culprit. The sketch is played in three scenes, placed in Ladysmith, the last scene being a very realistic set representing outside Ladysmith.

MR. WILLIAM EYRE, of Messrs. Francis and Day's staff, and a prominent member of the Stockwell Angling Society, fishing at Chertsey a few days back, caught a fine Thames trout of 4lb. It being three days over the season for trout-catching, the fish was carefully returned to the river.

On the occasion of Mr. Harry Lauder's flying visit to Southsea on Wednesday of last week, when the great comedian appeared at a special matinée at the South Parade Pier, the band was conducted during Mr. Lauder's items by Mr. Walter Johnson, the chef d'orchestre of the London Tivoli, who journeyed specially down for the purpose, and who was personally congratulated by the Mayor of Portsmouth on the verve and fire he infused into the orchestra.

MR. HARRY BAWN, the managing director of the new Edmonton Variety House, has taken offices at 18, Adam-street, Strand, W.C.

MISS ALEXANDRA DAGMAR is leaving town for a special week's engagement at the Grand Theatre, Birmingham, at the conclusion of which she returns to London.

"THE STEPMOTHER," a sketch of great drawing power, has been rebooked by Mr. Henri Gros and Mr. W. Gibbons. The sketch is played by those well-known and talented artists Mr. W. Holles and Miss Nannie Goldman.

MISS ADELE LEVEY is engaged to play the part of Prince in the production of the Cinderella pantomime at the Pavilion Theatre, Mile End, at Christmas. Miss Levey, with Mr. Frank Lilliput, has been scoring a success with the sketch Find the Lady First at the Empire, Hackney.

ROMA AND ROMANI have at last reached the goal of their ambition, and are presenting their refined classical musical act at a leading West End hall—the Tivoli to wit—where they remain for five weeks. All lovers of good music have a rare treat in store. They are also at Euston next week.

MISS ESTHER PALLISER, who played the Lady Rowena in Arthur Sullivan's Ivanhoe when that opera was produced at the English Opera House in 1891, will make her first appearance on the variety stage at the Empire, Holborn, on Monday evening.

The snake charmer, Osca, engaged with Bostock's Jungle at Earl's Court, who was bitten by a rattlesnake on Tuesday evening, has had a remarkable recovery. The manager of the Jungle stated on Thursday that the crisis was now passed, and the man's life no longer remained in danger.

DR. WALFORD BODIE, after a few weeks' rest at his Highland home, the Manor House, Macduff, has resumed work again, opening at the Palace, Kilmarnock, where he is breaking all records to packed houses, the Palace being filled at early-door prices. Mr. Cumming has offered him two return dates at £200 per week for his own act alone. Owing to his enormous success, a special matinée is being arranged.

DR. BODIE, before leaving Macduff, made an offer to the Town Council of Banff and Macduff to take over Duff House, late the home of the Duke of Fife; also the land, comprising many acres. The Laird of Macduff has also opened in the town his marine baths and hydro, which have been largely patronised by visitors from all parts of the country.

The staff of the Palace Theatre, Bow, held their annual outing on Sunday, when a most enjoyable day was spent at Broxbourne. The dinner was under the chairmanship of Mr. Frederic Baugh (general manager). Amongst the numerous visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Hyman, Mr. and Mrs. F. Durham, Mr. Edelsten, Mr. Herbert, Mr. C. Relf, Mr. Judge, Mr. Cohen, and Mr. Jones. The arrangements were carried out by Mr. J. R. Warren, honorary secretary.

M. CLEMENCEAU'S well-meaning circular abolishing the humiliating practice for artists of passing a saucer round among French music hall audiences for pennies after each "turn" has safeguarded their dignity but thrown many of them out of work. Owing to the new measure, 300 managers of provincial cafés-concerts, rather than pay their companies higher wages, shut up shop, and about 2,500 men and women singers were deprived of employment.

As a result of the increasing excess of the demand over the supply, wages went down. "Artists" formerly making £2 or £3 a week were cut down to £1, and thousands of unfortunate so-called divettes are offered 1s. 6d. a night. The cause of the unhappy smaller fry is being taken up by the heads of the profession, chiefly by Dranem, who is working hard at meetings and by canvassing for help to come to the rescue of his humbler colleagues.

These are often compelled to sign iniquitous contracts, by which they may frequently be discharged without notice and cannot ask for their pay before at least a fortnight of their engagement has run. The system of fines, too, is oppressive and tyrannically carried out.

Owing to the great popularity of Loie Fuller's "Ballet of Light" at the London Hippodrome, this beautiful number will be retained in the programme during next week. La Loie Fuller will shortly produce her long-talked-of "Garden of Eden" ballet, with Signorina Teresa Cerutti as principal dancer. The Gaudsmidts and Marstro and Oretto join the Hippodrome bill next week.

LITTLE BABY SOPHIE, the new child star, who is appearing with such enormous success at the Zoo, Glasgow, this week, has placed all her business, so her manager, J. E. Wildash, informs us, in the hands of H. Skivington, of Brisbane-street, Greenock. Sophie is fast booking ahead.

MR. W. D. MACKENZIE and company in their novel and interesting entertainment, Moments with the Masters, were at the Concert Hall of the Crystal Palace last week. The entertainers include Misses Maidie Taylor, May Brockett, Messrs. Septimus Munday, Charles Thomason, and Master Charles Oldfield. Master E. Brockett, who is described as the "human ocarina," is a remarkable prodigy, and an excellent répertoire of gems from the operas was given with a chorus of fifteen voices, the company being completed by Mr. Frank E. Knight, the organist, Miss Constance Simmons, the pianist, and Mr. Sydney F. Simmons, the manager and musical director. A really excellent entertainment.

The latest quotations of music-hall shares are as follow: Alhambra, 1½; Canterbury, ½; Empire, 15s. paid, 1½; Empire, 10s. paid, 1; London Pavilion Ordinary, 3½; London Pavilion Preference, 4½; Metropolitan, 11s.; Moss' Empire, 4¾; Moss' Empire, 5 per cent. Preference, 3¾; Oxford, 6; Palace, 18s.; Tivoli, 5; and Variety Consolidated Theatres, 7-16.

MISS MAUD ESMOND has settled to play the title-rôle Dick Whittington in Newman Maurice's forthcoming pantomime at the Brixton Theatre. Miss Esmond is a great favourite in this part of London, having played in pantomime at the same theatre last season. She is at present touring the variety theatres and reaping applause everywhere for her charming rendering of the popular songs "Oh, Johnny, there's a locket in your pocket" and "Don't put your umbrella up before it starts to rain," which she will specially feature in pantomime. Both are issued by the Star Music Co.

WILLIAM CLEGG, eighteen, a newsvendor, was remanded at Bow-street on Wednesday charged with stealing two sovereigns, a diamond ring, and two watches, valued at £51, the property of Mr. Van Cleif, an American actor. The prosecutor said the property was taken from his dressing-room at the Coliseum on Sept. 5. The prisoner was temporarily engaged by him. When arrested the accused said he did not take the diamond ring, but he took the other property because Mr. Cleif refused to pay his wages. In reply to the magistrate Mr. Cleif said the prisoner was regularly paid for each performance, and there was nothing due to him.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

AMONG the notable numbers just acquired by Messrs. Francis and Day for publication are three songs written, composed, and sung by Mr. James Moran, the Scottish comedian who made so great a hit a short time since at the London Coliseum, and was retained there for a second week. The titles of the songs are "Maggie Brown," "The Duke of Invertartan," and "Coal."

THE taking number which that charming artist Miss Millie Hylton has been singing so successfully and which, with the title of "Meet me under the Golden Dome," was written by Charles Wilmott and Hermann E. Darewski, has been issued by Messrs. Francis and Day. Another song from the same pens, entitled "In the Vineyards of Italy," will shortly see the light in sheet music form.

MR. WILKIE BARD'S truly humorous song, "I'm here—if I'm wanted," a number which bears on every line the unmistakable hall-mark of Frank Leo, will shortly be issued by Mr. David Day's firm, who have also secured Mr. Tom Costello's laughable item, "I got married to a widow," by Joe Burley and Maurice Scott.

To the growing catalogue of dance novelties which Messrs. Francis and Day are bringing out the following have been added during the past few days:—"Dolce Dream" (waltz), by Arthur Morris; "La Gitana" (waltz), by T. Almond and Luke Cavendish Everett; and "On Parade" (military two-step), by Luke Cavendish Everett.

AMONG novelties in the song line just being published by Messrs. Francis and Day are: "Bombardier," a splendid march song, by R. F. Westbarr and H. E. Darewski, jun.; "If you mallee me," a Chinese love song, written, composed, and sung by Miss Helen Trix; "I always think of someone," also by Miss Helen Trix; "Under the silvery moon with my ballooning girl" (sung by Billy Williams), by Terry Sullivan and Harry Gifford; and a fine chorus number, written and composed by Herbert Darnley and Will Godwin, and sung by the latter, entitled "When you've turned the corner."

MR. GUS ELEN'S song "The coster's pony," by H. E. Pether, is among the latest additions to Messrs. Francis and Day's series of "Sixpenny Pops."

MR. CHARLES COLLINS has been responsible for many fine songs, but has surpassed himself in the pretty number which was issued a few days since by Messrs. Francis and Day with the title of "Give me your blessing, dear mother." The number tells in simplest language a semi-pathetic story with a happy ending, and has a singularly taking single chorus.

MIRZKA GYNT, the wonderful Polish "boy busker," who was recently discovered by Alice Lloyd and Tom McNaughton, and through their instrumentality engaged by Mr. William Morris for his American vaudeville houses, has just sailed to the States, where he will specially "feature" two of the Monte Carlo Publishing Co.'s publications, "Why do I ask you if you love me?" by Pelham and Rule; and "Ever Thine," by John P. Harrington and Julian W. Kandt.

MISS MARIE LLOYD, who is achieving such distinction at the Oxford and Empire, Islington, nightly, with Messrs. John P. Harrington and Orlando Powell's popular song, "The Directoire Girl," has also scored a signal success with the same writers' latest number, "I can't make my eyes be good." Messrs. Harrington and Powell have several other commissions in hand for the same gifted artist.

"FROM POVERTY STREET TO GOLDEN SQUARE" is being eagerly snapped up for pantomime exploitation, and is still going "great guns" with Miss Kate Carney, who sings it at all her "turns" nightly. The Monte Carlo Publishing Co. are to be congratulated on the possession of so pronounced a success.

MISS ALICE LLOYD, who sailed for America on the Mauretania last Saturday, took with her yet another song from the facile pens of Messrs. John P. Harrington and Orlando Powell, entitled "Which end?" which she purposes introducing into the Ziegfeld piece specially written round her, The Bonnie Belles of Scotland. This makes the fifth consecutive number which these popular authors have written for the English star's American exploitation in the same piece.

MISS CLARICE VANCE, who sailed for America this week, took with her—in addition to the three songs which Harrington and Powell have specially written and composed for her, viz., "Mother-in-law," "Limericks," and "Salome, go home!"—two other numbers, entitled "The baby calls her ma" and "Everything's an 'extra' in the season," both of which latter are published by the Monte Carlo Publishing Co.

MISS JOSE COLLINS, who made a most pronounced success at the Hippodrome, Margate, when she opened at that popular house with Mr. John P. Harrington's "My Cuban girl" and "Looking for the lovelight," on Monday night, was somewhat astonished, on turning her "searchlight" on to one of the male occupants of the stalls whom she was addressing in endearing terms, to discover that that gentleman was none other than the author of "Lovelight" himself. Mr. Harrington, mightily amused, "played up" to the fair artist in no half-hearted manner, to the intense enjoyment of the overflowing audience.

MISS FIFI GORDON and her troupe of girls have achieved success at the Hall-by-the-Sea, Margate, with the Monte Carlo Publishing Co.'s song, "My tiny firefly," by Macdonald and Meher. Mr. John P. Harrington, the Berners-street firm's popular "placer," has been busy this week "fixing" Miss Fifi Gordon with other tuneful numbers for immediate exploitation.

MR. JOHN P. HARRINGTON, while holiday-making in Cliftonville, has yet allowed no grass to grow under his feet, for not only has he fixed Miss Alice Lloyd up with two more numbers for her American campaign, with melodies by Mr. Orlando Powell, but he has also, assisted by the latter gentleman, commenced writing an entirely new répertoire of comedy songs for Mr. Reg. Beauchamp, who will open in London immediately on the completion of his Margate engagements.

MISS EDIE ANDERSON will specially "feature" Messrs. John P. Harrington and Joseph Tabrar's comedy coon song, so successfully sung by Miss Bijou Russell, entitled "I must trouble you to pack your trunk to-night," one of the Monte Carlo Publishing Co.'s most striking publications.

MISS YVONNE LAMOR, who has been winning golden opinions everywhere with the Monte Carlo Publishing Co.'s eccentric coon song "The coon's conscience," by Barnes and Weston, is about to exploit a second Monte Carlo coon song, "Come an' make a fuss o' me," by Tom McNaughton and Joseph Kandt, of which report speaks most highly.

MISS MAUDE MORTIMER, who has been appearing with great success at the Royal Theatre, Oldham, has introduced a new song, "A Little Seed of Love," written by B. McDonald and Jas. Tate, and published by Feldman and Co. The song has proved a big hit.

FEDERATIONS AND FUNDS.

THE Committee of the M.H.A.R.A. met on Wednesday. Mr. Fred Herbert (Vice-Chairman) presided. Messrs. Harry Blake, John McNally, and Arthur Gallimore were also present. Mr. Bray acted as Secretary pro tem. in the absence of Mr. Douglas Stuart, now on his holiday in Manxland. The action of the Liverpool representative in registering the telegraphic address for that office as "Amusement, Liverpool," was confirmed. It was proposed by Mr. Harry Blake that a line be added to the application forms, making it compulsory for members to keep the office posted with a permanent address where letters would always reach them.

MISS MELINDA MAY, Secretary of the Music Hall Ladies' Guild, 61, New Oxford-street, W.C., begs to thank Mrs. Harry Smith for gift of very handsome cushion (through the sale of same it is hoped to swell the funds of the Guild); also Miss E. G. Clarke, A.C.U., for parcel of clothing, and an anonymous donor for clothing from Harrogate. Miss May would be grateful for further gifts of clothing from ladies and gentlemen. Through so much help being given lately it is urgently needed. All are welcome to the receptions, which are held every Wednesday at the above address from three to five o'clock.

"LIFT-EM'S, LIMITED."

A Pantomimical Absurdity, by Chris. Davis, produced at the Holborn Empire on Monday, Sept. 14.

That versatile sketch writer, Mr. Christopher Davis, the widely-read and entertaining "Chris" of our contemporary, the People, has given the music-hall-going public many hours of delightful recreation. He is in his most irresponsible mood in Lift-Em's, Limited, and the result of his trifling is that we are treated to a most laughable playlet. Mr. Snipe, the manager of Lift-Em's, Limited, a modern grocery and provision establishment, overhears the assistants making rather rude remarks upon himself, and he peremptorily dismisses them all. As they are going there enters the shop a Piccadilly Johnny, who tells one of the countermen that he has found it necessary, in order to conform with the wishes of an uncle, to go into business. Therefore he will pay the sum of £50 if he may be allowed to stay in the shop and pretend to be managing it as his uncle enters. He is expecting the latter any moment, and instructs the assistant, who poses for the time being as Snipe, to shout "Uncle!" when that relative arrives. Many ludicrous scenes occur, and the Johnny's way of serving the customers is diverting, to say the least. Various people come and go, and it would be difficult to describe the antics of some of them. Anyhow, the whole sketch is hugely enjoyed by all who witness it, the fun going merrily from beginning to end. The Six Brothers Luck may be congratulated not only on having secured a "winner" from Mr. Davis's pen, but on their production of it, and the general liveliness and merriment they infuse into their actions.

TOM COSTELLO is at present featuring with exceptional success a new Irish emigrant song-scena, by A. J. Mills and Bennett Scott, entitled "Homeland, good-bye." During the past week patrons of the Empress, Brixton, and Duchess, Balham, Theatres have testified to their appreciation of Tom and his popular songs by according him a warm welcome. "Homeland, Good-bye," is published by the Star Music Co.

THE NEW EMPIRE, EDMONTON.

An interesting ceremony took place at Lower Edmonton on Wednesday, when the foundation stone of the new Empire was laid by Mrs. Harry Bawn ("My Fancy"), in the presence of an assembly which included Mr. Harry Bawn, Mr. J. Sparrow, Mr. and Mrs. Balding, Mr. E. B. Marshall Frost, Mr. F. Alexander, Mr. A. Bernstein, Mr. Ben Kirk, sen., Mr. Ben Kirk, jun., Mr. S. Kirk, Mr. E. Giles, Mr. F. F. W. Oldfield, Mr. S. Presburg, Mr. A. Macey, Mr. Percy Ford, Mr. Gus Sparrow, Mr. A. J. Barclay, Mr. Fred Neiman, Mr. Leo Fritz, Mr. A. Appleyard, Mr. Hamilton Hill, Walton and Lester, Mr. Leon Bassett, Mr. Fred Millis, Mr. C. Lilburn, Mr. and Mrs. Nutt, Mrs. and Cissie Dryden, Mr. and Mrs. Henderson, Mr. A. J. Ainsley, Mr. Fred Villars, Mr. J. Healey, Mr. E. W. Mackney, Mr. T. Finney, Miss Montague, Mr. Victor Leon, Mr. F. E. Stafford, Mr. and Mrs. Childs, Mrs. W. Wolfenden, Mrs. England, Mr. Joe Lawrence, Miss Gladys Hawthorne, Mr. G. Holle, Mr. T. Green, Miss Jenny Milles, Mr. Arthur Haines, Mr. Thacker, Mr. Redfern, Miss Vona Clifford, Mrs. Brown, Mr. Fred Durban, Mr. Geo. Brown, Mr. C. Maddin, Mr. and Mrs. Dann, Mr. J. Neilson Enfield, Mr. and Mrs. Jones, Mr D. Weston, Mr. Masey, Mr. Fred G. Brooks, Mr. Wilfred Howard, Mr. Tom Vaughan, Mr. E. Carhart, Mr. L. Gustave, Mr. J. Munro, Mr. Ardwick, Mr. Mathews, Mr. Maidment, Mr. G. Crump, Mr. Wal Briscoe, Mr. F. Kohler, Mr. L. Kitchen, Miss C. B. Pepi, Mr. and Mrs. Giles, Mr. Bowden, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, Mr. S. Bartlett, Mr. and Mrs. Gautley, Mr. and Mrs. Postlethwaite, Miss Mason, Mr. Giles, Mr. Hand, Mr. Lee, Mr. Arnold, Mr. G. Aytoun, Mr. and Mrs. F. Hardie, Mr. Angelo Asher, Mr. and Mrs. G. Marriott, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Montague, Mr. H. V. Tovey, Miss Kelsey, Mr. B. Smith, Miss Rose Tooley, Mrs. Tooley, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lester; and Mr. B. Ballard, Mr. B. Woodger, Mr. C. Shedden, Mr. R. Jewell, and Mr. R. Arnold, of the Empire Staff.

"MY FANCY," [Photo by Victor Leon

The Lady Mason, who well and truly laid the Foundation Stone of the Edmonton Empire, Wednesday, Sept. 16, 1908.

The Empire is within a stone's throw of the Lower Edmonton Station of the Great Eastern Railway; and the company, which is called the Empire, Edmonton, Ltd., has for its managing-directors Mr. Harry Bawn (chairman), Mr. Jesse Sparrow, Mr. Henry Balding, and Mr. E. B. Marshall Frost. Though only thirty-five days have been spent on the work of erection, the walls are more than half finished, and a good idea can be gained of the plan and dimensions of the new building.

This new variety theatre is situated in the best possible position in New-road. The building is being erected from the designs of Mr. Bertie Crewe, the well-known architect, who has specialised in this particular class of building, and who has now done considerably over forty theatres and music-halls. Messrs. Kirk and Kirk, of Westminster, are the contractors, a firm who have probably built more theatres than any other, and have amply demonstrated the fact that they thoroughly understand the work by the quick progress they have made with the building, having had, up till Wednesday last, only thirty-five working days. The opening is now assured to take place some two or three weeks before Christmas. The site is admirably adapted for the purposes of a music-hall, being open to public ways on three sides, thus allowing exits to be provided on all sides of the auditorium. The elevation is very simple, but effective, being carried out in English Rennaisance style and constructed in Bath stone and dark red bricks. The principal features of the elevation will be the entrances to the stalls and circle, and another unusual feature is the roof. This will be continued in a straight line from end to end of the building, thus doing away with the usual ugly high roof over the stage and back of gallery. An ornamental iron and glass verandah will also be fixed right along this main front, and with this lit up at night, and with numerous arc lamps on the heads of the pilasters, the effect will be most attractive. The entrance to the stalls will be in the centre, down two flights of marble mosaic stairs. The circle entrance is at the right-hand corner, up a staircase partly constructed of marble and the rest carpeted; and the pit entrance will be at the back, under a covered right of way. Extra early door entrances will also be provided to each part of the house. There will be no gallery here, the directors considering that the house would be amply large enough without this, thus enabling Mr. Crewe to design a flat ceiling over the whole of the auditorium, a quite unique feature in a theatre.

The decoration of the interior will be in Empire style, in colours of cream, white, and gold. The proscenium opening will be square, with a decorated cornice over, the same cornice being carried round the side walls over the boxes. The side walls will be divided up into three bays by decorated pilasters and columns, those nearest the proscenium being the private boxes, of which there are two, the two farther bays, which match these, being the entrance to the boxes; the centre bays on the stalls level will be the exits, filled in with paintings over. The ceiling, as mentioned, will be flat, and hexagonal in shape, divided by decorated ribs into panels, and filled in with paintings. The tableau curtains and draperies to boxes will be in shades of crimson plush, specially designed to be in keeping with the scheme of decoration, and the chairs will also be crimson in colour. All the carpets and floor coverings will be in shades of blue. Tip-up armchairs will be provided in the stalls and circle, and the seating in the pit will be upholstered, with padded backs. In all parts of the house plenty of knee room will be allowed between the seats, and wide gangways at the sides and down the centre will be provided. There will be eleven rows of stalls and pit stalls, fourteen rows of both pit and circle, with spacious promenades at back. The circle is constructed on the latest suspensory system, two thin columns in the pit only being used to support it. Large saloons will be provided for each part of the house, also ample retiring-rooms and lavatories; a suite of offices is also provided for the management in the front of the house, from which all parts of the theatre are accessible. The stage is of ample dimensions to take any sketch or combination on the road. The dressing-rooms are in a separate block at the back, and are seven in number, all well furnished and lighted, and installed with hot and cold water. The proscenium will be fitted with an iron and asbestos fireproof curtain, with a water-sprinkler over, and four hydrants will be erected on the stage and four more in the auditorium. The lighting will all be by electricity, with a standing service of gas in case of failure. The ventilation will be by means of electric fans and air ducts, and so arranged that the air in the auditorium can be cleared six times an hour.

The seating is as follows:—Stalls and pit stalls, 395; pit, 650; circle, 480; boxes, 10; 1,535 in all, and with ample standing-room for 500 or 600 more. The following are the dimensions of the house:—Auditorium, 67ft. wide by 80ft. deep; stage, 26ft. deep by 68ft. wide, with a height to the gridiron of 45ft.

Great praise is due to the energy and judgment of the builders, Messrs. Kirk and Kirk, whose names are famous for their connection with the Duke of York's and Daly's Theatres, the Euston, and places of amusement at Bath, Bristol, and Colchester.

Mrs. Bawn, whose appearance in the company of her husband was the signal for an outburst of applause, was introduced by Mr. Jesse Sparrow, who said he hoped the new Empire would be as great a success in its sphere as "My Fancy" had been in hers. Mr. Kirk then handed Mrs. Bawn the trowel with which she was to lay the stone, the inscription on which was as follows:—

EMPIRE, EDMONTON.
THIS FOUNDATION STONE WAS LAID BY
MRS. HARRY BAWN ("MY FANCY"),
SEPT. 16, 1908.

Mrs. Bawn, amidst humorous remarks from her friends, spread the mortar with great deliberation and aplomb, giving the regulation taps with the mallet, and declaring the stone "well and truly laid" in a clear and audible voice. Mr. Sparrow then thanked Mrs. Bawn for laying the stone, and hoped that the Edmonton Empire would now go ahead and prosper. Mr. Harry Bawn thanked those present for assembling in such numbers, and also expressed his gratitude to Mr. Bertie Crewe, Messrs. Kirk and Kirk, and the British workman, remarking that the transformation in thirty-five days of a dirty grass plot into what they saw before them was a "record." Mr. Kirk, sen., in responding, said he hoped to have the place ready to open in Christmas week, and Mr. Munro, Mr. Bertie Crewe's representative, apologised for that gentleman's unavoidable absence. The proceedings were viewed with great interest by the workmen who had been engaged on the building, and who occupied a "coign of vantage" on the top of one of the walls. The trowel was presented to Mrs. Bawn by Messrs. Kirk and Kirk, and the mallet, the gift of Mr. Bertie Crewe, was handed to her by Mr. Munro. A beautiful bouquet was also presented to Mrs. Bawn by the directors.

MUSIC HALL HOME.

The general meeting of the friends and supporters of this charity took place at the Palace, Camberwell, on Thursday. The chair was taken by Mr. G. P. R. Burgess, in the absence of Mr. Harry Barnard. Among others present were Messrs. Leon A. Bassett, W. S. Bassett, C. C. Cornish, Percy Ford, Joe Lawrence, A. E. Chapman, H. Thacker, and Benj. Woodger (secretary). The minutes of the previous meeting were read and passed, and the chairman also read the report and balance-sheet, which were adopted, on the proposal of Mr. Percy Ford, seconded by Mr. Leon Bassett.

Mr. Thos. Barrasford was re-elected president, and a similar honour was accorded to the vice-presidents. Mr. Barrasford sent a note of regret that he was not able to be present. A telegram was received from Mr. Jimmy Traynor, which ran as follows:—"Sorry not able to be present. Hope for successful meeting." Messrs. Douglas White and Ted E. Box also sent wires. Mr. Harry Barnard was re-elected treasurer after a hearty vote of thanks had been passed to him for his services during the past; and a vote of thanks to all ladies and gentlemen for past help, proposed by Mr. Joe Lawrence and seconded by Mr. Bert Chapman, was unanimously carried, as was a special resolution of thanks, proposed and seconded by the same gentlemen, regarding the M.H.A.R.A. donation. Mr. Percy Ford proposed and Mr. H. Thacker seconded the appointment of the secretary (Mr. Ben Woodger), who has been conducting the duties of his office to the entire satisfaction of the executive and friends of the Fund. Mr. Woodger briefly returned thanks. Thanks were also given to Mrs. Fruin for her able services as matron of the Home, to the auditors, Mr. Arthur R. Welchman, chartered accountant, of 9, Old Jewry-chambers, and to Mr. P. A. Lennon, and the directors of the Camberwell Palace for the use of their hall for the meetings. A vote of thanks to the chairman closed the proceedings.

A letter was read from Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, manager of The Era, who wrote:—"You have my assurance that I will do all I can to make the New Year (1908-9) Fund a great success." The balance-sheet and report have already been inserted in our columns.

MISS MAIDIE SCOTT has no vacant dates left for the next three years. Her pantomime engagement this Christmas has been fixed up at the Marlborough, Holloway, where she is to appear as principal girl.

MR. DAN ASHTON, the Lancashire collier, will appear at the Palace of Varieties, Manchester, with a new, original, and up-to-date Sunday scena, founded on the facts of the Wigan colliery disaster, in aid of the widows and orphans.

LORD LEIGHTON'S Venus, after a lengthy stay in Paris, opened out at the Royal Palace, Ramsgate, last Monday, Sept. 14, in the new sensation, written by her manager, Mr. L. Austin Millais, Salome Revelations.

MISS DAISIE MORELL has just produced three original numbers of which she holds the sole rights, viz., "Is that a Man?" by G. Stevens, "An Old-fashioned Chimney Corner," by Alfred Glover, and "Just Push Yourself Along," by Glover-Kind.

MR. HARRY LAUDER has accepted another song that's going to be a winner from his old friend Frank Folloy, entitled "Am courting Leezie Lindsay noo." The stirring music is enough to make the audience get up and dance the Hielan' fling. Mr. Folloy also wrote and composed for Mr. Lauder "Rob Roy Macintosh" and the famous "Stop yer ticklin', Jock."

AN excellent programme has been arranged for the variety entertainment which is being given at the Holborn Town Hall on the 25th inst. in aid of the St. Marylebone Hostel, which provides a temporary home for domestic servants who are ill or out of work. Among other artists who are generously giving their services are Miss Marie Lloyd, Miss Sybil Arundale, Miss Grace Arundale, Miss Marie Gros, Miss Ella Lane, Miss Ada Martine, Miss Russell, and Mr. Alec Hurley. Full particulars may be obtained of Miss Edith Higgens, 98, Crawford-street.

BY suddenly becoming insane whilst watching a variety entertainment at the Hippodrome, Blackpool, late on Tuesday night, Joseph Binns, a middle-aged visitor from Bradford, caused an excited rush to the doors. Frederick Drabble, police officer, who was in the theatre, informed the Blackpool magistrates on Wednesday, when Binns was charged with being of unsound mind, that people were first alarmed by him shouting, "They're killing me; they're cutting my head off." During the rush to the doors witness ran up to the gallery, where he found several men holding Binns down. Dr. Vintner having spoken as to the deranged state of his mind, Binns was detained, and later handed over to his wife.

MR. LINDON TRAVERS' benefit at the Tynemouth Palace, announced for Wednesday last, was under the patronage of the Mayor and Mayoress of Tynemouth. The special programme included the Wellesley Band, by permission of Captain Baynham; H. G. Amers and the Band of the Northumberland Hussars, by permission of Col. Bates; concerted items by Mr. F. R. Duberley's company; Miss Maud Jay, from the Seymour Hicks Dress Rehearsal company; Mr. Morris Harvey, Miss Kathleen Severn, Mr. Bernard Russell, Miss Florence Foster, Mr. Derick Knowles, Fred Vallance (magician), Messrs. Harland and Rollinson, with eccentric musical act; the Brothers Bradshaw, Master Prince Simpson, and others.

THE PROTEST OF HENRI GROS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Since leaving London I have read the warning to artists on page 13 of The Performer of Aug. 27. While reserving any right I may possess against this mode of procedure, I desire without prejudice to stigmatise this notice as a deplorable interference with the ordinary methods of doing business in the establishments over which I hold control, viz., the Euston, East Ham, Metropolitan, Chelsea, South London, Walthamstow, and Tottenham. For many years I have lived on good terms with the artists whom it is my business to engage, and only in two flagrant breaches of contract have I had to take proceedings, and then have done so in the mildest form. To be now publicly told that artists have to be careful when coming to business terms with me is prejudicial to the establishments where I am entrusted with the interests of my shareholders, and I look upon it as an unwarrantable proceeding meant to prejudice my business evidently in favour of some rival company. The mountain of prejudice which the Federation endeavours to create is founded upon presumption.

When some few weeks ago the Federation went before the Arbitrator with one of my colleagues on a contract to which a rival company objected, the Federation interfered to protect the latter, and they found out their mistake. Just before that period a full-page advertisement had appeared in some of the professional papers, and the result thereof was that one of the artists on the point of signing contracts for 1913-14-15 in a fright went with his contracts to the Federation. The latter, without his sanction or his presence, and without giving me notice, produced these contracts on this occasion, although it had nothing to do with the dispute in question. The words that appeared in the margin stated "exclusive contract in conjunction with the Oxford and Tivoli." These words were put in at my instigation, while in the same margin appeared the names of the halls where the artist was allowed to appear, being "the only ones" he stipulated for. Now, sir, the terms asked by this same artist were conceded to him at his own request, and formed the basis of negotiation with which he was perfectly satisfied, and as he was to appear repeatedly under these contracts within the eight months' bar at our establishments, he was naturally prevented from appearing in the barred area at other establishments.

When making his terms he distinctly stated that he wanted to play nowhere else. The prejudicial interference of the Federation before the Arbitrator made Mr. Askwith observe to my colleague that if I liked to discuss the matter with him and the interested party he would be willing to hear me, but until then he stated that the matter written in the margin had better be left out. When my colleague called my attention to this observation, I immediately agreed to strike it out, declining to waste time on a matter that was, after all, of secondary importance. Although I have strong doubts that I was within my rights, taking into consideration the reading of B. and C. under the Arbitrator's Award as to future contracts (barring clauses), I challenge the Federation to bring forward one single marginal clause in any of my contracts prejudicial to artists' interests, or contrary to the award, except it be permission given them to perform at an earlier period than that laid down by the Arbitrator at rival establishments within the barred area.

During the strike I strenuously opposed arbitration; as President of the Entertainments Association I naturally was ruled by the majority and gave way, and after giving my evidence before Mr. Askwith in plain unvarnished language towards of the end of the proceedings, when his award was given I immediately complied with it by having my contracts altered. I now challenge the V.A.F. to produce a single contract signed by me which justifies interference with my business.

Let me state that the V.A.F. officials are particularly prone to point out for the benefit of artists any imaginary departure from the Award. This I do not quarrel with. It means their existence, and unless they played the game in this direction they could not hold their own. There is not a week passes that artists do not trespass upon the Award. They either do not send their bill matter (and it has now been legally decided on appeal that bill matter must be sent by every artist, for it does not mean so much the matter of advertisement as that it means the artist remembers his engagement and will be there to fulfil his contract), or they send their bill matter, are billed, and do not appear. Against the Award they continuously ask to change their time after the Friday, some as late as the Monday rehearsal, or even in the evening before the doors open, at the risk of upsetting the entire programme. Ninety per cent. persistently refuse to send their songs in, hence the vulgarity of some artists is not discovered until their songs are sung upon the stage, which may for nights escape the vigilance of the manager, and when they have done irretrievable injury to the establishment.

Vulgarity is still rife amongst modern comic singers. Some of them take the hint given in a proper manner, and profit thereby; others look upon it is an insult, and persist in airing their vulgarity. One notable instance is particularly in my mind. They persistently break the Award by declining to comply with Rule 7 of the regulations laid down in the contract by the Arbitrator: "Singers shall if required sing three songs." Frequently they strike the option clause 16 out of their contracts. In the majority of cases clause 12, which compels the artist to disclose engagements which interfere with the contract he signs, is ignored. He takes French leave, and appears within a few weeks of the fulfilment of his contract within the barred area, waxes indignant when called to account, and puts the manager to any amount of trouble, relying upon good nature or business pressure not to be prosecuted, or else innocently pleads ignorance.

What does the Federation do to curb these ladies and gentlemen, to bring them to the scratch, and make them fulfil their portion of the Award? Facts are stubborn things, and it will be a good thing for the profession in general when the V.A.F. take the beam out of their own eyes instead of hampering business and unwarrantably interfering with it, to the detriment of managers and artists alike.—Yours faithfully,

HENRI GROS.

Bad Nauheim.
Sept. 12, 1908.

ON Monday evening a large audience testified their appreciation of Mr. De Jong's efforts as musical-director at the Rhyl Pavilion during the season, the occasion being his benefit concert. The following artists were billed to appear: Madame Sadler-Fogg, Madame Dews, Mr. Howard Innes, Mr. Denbigh Cooper, and Mr. Watkin Hughes, Miss Louie James, soprano, and Mr. Howard Innes, entertainer, appear each evening during the week.

MESSRS. Adeler and Sutton's company is paying a welcome return visit to the Olympian Gardens, Rhyl, in an original yachting episode, entitled The Saucy Arethusa. Messrs. Jack W. Hughes, Bertram Noel, Kemsley Scott-Barrie, Dick Tubb, Norman Osborne, Cecil Warwick, Willmott Fowler; Misses Jessie Buckle, Margaret Cathcart, and Elaine Reed, all do well in their respective parts.

A COPY of "THE ERA" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps.

HENGLER'S CIRCUS.

Under the able management of Mr. Austin Fryers, Hengler's Circus is now prospering exceedingly; and long queues of people may be seen gathering in Argyll-street before the commencement of the afternoon and evening performances. Hengler's is the paradise of children, and it is well worth a visit to the circus to hear their musical laughter and to witness their intense delight with the entertainment so judiciously arranged and provided. There is no want of capital clowning, and the comedians of the company not only work hard, but with genuine humour and real drollery. All the old familiar feats of the circus are done, and done really well at Hengler's. The educated pony, who refuses to obey the ringmaster but hearkens to the voice of the clown, amuses the audience exceedingly; and Mr. Frank Stephenson does the jockey business very neatly and with great dash and spirit, his somersaulting being excellent. The Brothers Austin have some fine fun with piled-up chairs; and Mlle. Montero, a skilled and graceful haute-école rider, puts her beautiful horse through various paces of the manège, making him knock down chairs and set them up again and do a very clever dance to music. Spangneletti's dogs are experts at walking on their hind and fore legs and doing jumps while in the erect or inverted position, and they repeat their difficult feats on a rapidly-revolving table amidst the applause of the audience. The dog who "dives" from the top of a long ladder into a cloth held beneath receives quite an ovation. Those wonderfully-trained and quaintly comical creatures, Permane's bears, are viewed by the juveniles with a mixture of awe and rapture, and their amusing tricks are immensely admired. Mr. C. Austin keeps up cylinders and barrels on his feet in a perplexing and extraordinary way, and Miss Florence Transfield, standing on the back of a steadily-cantering steed, changes from one national costume to another as it careers round the circle. Mr. Tony Spring does some remarkable jumping in and out of barrels and over chairs, and an important item of the entertainment is a dramatic scena called The Despatch Bearer. Also on the programme are the names of those daring and expert flying gymnasts, Aerian and Ostara; and Mr. J. Evans, with his illustrated songs and a judicious selection of animated pictures, completes the entertainment. The management at Hengler's are proving that there is an opening in London for a circus conducted on the good old lines, which pleases the present generation old lines, which please the present generation tive to both young and old. Mr. Arthur Coomber is the courteous acting-manager of the show, and performs his duties with geniality and firmness.

"A RIDE TO WIN."

A Racing Episode, by Max Goldberg, Produced at the Empire, Croydon, on Monday, Sept. 14.

Tom Trueman ..... MR. JOHN F. PRESTON
Captain Denton ..... MR. W. H. BARLOW
Lieut. Smythe ..... MR. HORACE CUSTINS
Alf Blake ..... MR. F. C. BAILEY
Belle Trueman ..... MISS MABELLE F. BARLOW
Tilda Trueman ..... MISS ETHEL RAINFORTH

This stirring and dramatic play, in three scenes, was received on its first production with marked success, Mr. John F. Preston having done full justice to the drama by selecting an excellent company and providing capital scenery. The action of the play opens at the White City, is continued at a bookmaker's office, and concludes with a realistic scene at Sandown Races at which thoroughbred horses are introduced. The principal characters are Tom Trueman, a bookmaker; his wife, Belle; daughter by a former marriage, Tilda; Captain Denton, who is carrying on an intrigue with Trueman's wife; Lieut. Smythe, in love with Tilda; and Alf Blake, the bookmaker's clerk. Belle has committed bigamy in marrying Trueman, as she is the wife of Alf Blake. The secret is known to Capt. Denton, who uses the knowledge to force Belle to listen to his overtures. He also keeps a hold upon Blake, as the latter is liable to penal servitude for forgery, and Denton nas the cheque which would give Blake away. Trueman has a horse named Lightning in the Grand Steeplechase at Sandown Park, which is expected to win, and Denton, knowing this, has backed the horse for all he is worth. Trueman, overhearing a conversation between Belle and Denton, learns that his wife is playing him false, and in revenge scratches his horse Lightning from the race and ruins Denton. Trueman also heavily backs a horse called The Chief, which is owned and will be ridden by Lieut. Smythe, who is betrothed to Tilda. Before the race Denton hands Smythe a cheque in settlement of a debt, but by mistake hands over the cheque which would send Blake to penal servitude. The cheque is passed to Blake, and the latter, being now free, confesses that he is the husband of Belle, whose marriage with Trueman is therefore illegal. Belle is arrested for bigamy, and in an exciting race for the Grand Steeplechase The Chief, admirably ridden by Smythe, wins in a canter, Denton having come to grief at one of the hurdles. All is now clear for the future happiness of Lieut. Smythe and his promised bride, Tilda Trueman. Mr. John F. Preston made a fine robust Tom Trueman; Mr. W. H. Barlow gave a consistent performance as Capt. Denton; Mr. Horace Custins enacted Lieut. Smythe in the best possible manner; Mr. F. C. Bailey was forcible as Alf Blake; Miss Mabelle F. Barlow made a fascinating Belle Trueman; and Miss Ethel Rainforth a charming Tilda Trueman.

MASONS AT WORK.

On Thursday last Earl's Court Lodge, No. 3,098, held its first meeting of the session at the Trocadero, under the presidency of Mr. T. Leete, W.M.; Mr. S. W. Keene, S.W.; Mr. A. J. Taylor, J. W.; Mr. J. J. Gilbeart, S.D.; Mr. Oliver Sanders, J.D.; Mr. Harry Cox, I.G.; Mr. H. Hickok, Organist; Mr. W. S. Lyon, D.C.; Mr. Shiel Mussell, Secretary; and Mr. John Worth, Treasurer. The W.M. did a remarkable afternoon's work, having the whole of the ceremonies to perform, and subsequently installing Mr. S. W. Keene as his successor for the ensuing year, who invested the following gentlemen as his officers to assist him in managing the Lodge: Mr. T. Leete as I.P.M., to whom was presented a very handsome token of appreciation of his services during his year of office; Mr. Arthur Taylor, S.W.; Mr. J. J. Gilbeart, J.W.; Mr. John Worth, P.A.G.P. Treasurer; Mr. Shiel Mussell, P.M. Secretary; Mr. Oliver Sanders, S.D.; Mr. Harry Cox, J.B.; Mr. W. James, I.G.; Mr. Wolfe S. Lyon, L.R.D.C.; Mr. W. Hickok, Organist; and Messrs. Storold, Taylor, and Smethurst, Stewards.

During the evening opportunity was taken by Lieut.-Col. G. E. Blunt, P.G., Swordbearer England, P.S.S.G.W. Middlesex, the first Master of the Lodge, to present Dr. J. J. Orr with the regalia appertaining to the London rank, which had been unanimously voted by the members of the Lodge. At the banquet which followed, the W.M. expressed the great pleasure it had afforded the brethren and himself to see the way in which the duties of the S.D., in the absence of the appointed officer, had been performed by Mr. Harry Bawn, who had been initiated in that Lodge, and, he believed, held an important office in the Chelsea Lodge, to which many of their members had the privilege of being founders.

THOSE successful comedians Messrs. Harley and Melton have been re-engaged by Mr. Arthur Carlton for two years, making five years with that gentleman. Fred Higham is fast booking them up.

V.A.F. AND THE AGENTS.

The following resolutions in support of the Executive Committee's actions of Thursday in instructing the members of the Variety Artists' Federation not to pay any commissions to agents until the present dispute is settled, and to further not accept engagements from agents except on the V.A.F. Model Office copy, was carried unanimously at a meeting of between four and five hundred Federationists at the Bedford Head Hotel yesterday afternoon. The passing of the resolution was greeted with loud cheers and applause.

"That this meeting unanimously instructs the Executive Committee to enforce the Office Copy as submitted to us, as from Monday next, Sept. 21, 1908, and we hereby agree to loyally abide by and support its enforcement, and further pledge ourselves not to accept engagements from agents except on the V.A.F. Model Office Copy."

Proposed by W. H. Clemart, seconded by R. G. Knowles:—"That if by twelve noon, Friday, Sept. 25, 1908, the agents have not accepted this form of 'commission note,' the 10 per cent. be reduced to 5 per cent. and the clause authorising the managers to deduct the commission for the agent be deleted, and that every agent be notified to this effect." (Carried with one dissentient.)

Mr. Kendall Robinson, a staunch friend of Mr. Fred Miller, in sending a contribution to this Fund, testifies as follows:—"I have much pleasure in enclosing cheque for one guinea for the Miller Testimonial. I have known Mr. Miller for many years. Uniformly warm-hearted and open-handed, his kindnesses and 'good turns' to large numbers of those who were brought in contact with him at the Paragon and Canterbury can only have been limited by his physical capacity for doing them."

KINEMATOGRAPH regulations respecting the use of the kinematograph in theatres and halls, also the regulations respecting the use of limelight, can be had, price 1d. (by post 1½d.), from The Era Offices, 5, Tavistock-street, W.C. All those who handle the kinematograph or limelight should possess a copy of these regulations.

NEW DEVONPORT HIPPODROME.

The United County Theatres (Ltd.) have at length provided for a long-felt want in erecting a magnificent building in the chief naval arsenal of the British Empire. For years the only regular amusement has been provided by a theatre, but now the townsfolk will be enabled to patronise a first-class music hall. The site is very central, being situate in Prince's-street, a street which runs parallel with Fore-street, the latter of which leads direct to the Royal Dockyard. The building, which has been erected in an incredibly short period, is a very handsome structure, and fills every requirement of an up-to-date theatre of varieties. All the latest improvements have been introduced for the convenience and comfort of the patrons, and, in addition, it is easily accessible to all parts of the town. The exterior is a very pretty one, the front elevation being of terra cotta brick with Portland stone facings. There are stained glass windows, and a glass verandah extending the whole length of the front, while the approaches to the principal parts of the house are from this quarter.

The beautiful building is lighted throughout with electricity, electroliers being fitted in the roof and around the various balconies. Around the walls also are incandescent gas burners, which will be used only in the event of the failure of the electric current. The ground floor slopes gently from back to front, and there are three divisions, viz., orchestra stalls, stalls, and pit. The floor is covered with a heavy red carpet, and the seats, which are exceedingly well arranged, are all cushioned, the more expensive being, of course, more elaborately upholstered. There are three exits from the stalls and three from the pit, and the ground floor can be emptied in an expeditious manner. The circle is upholstered in a similar fashion to the orchestra stalls, and although there is plenty of stairway, this part will accommodate 500 people. Here, again, the exits are numerous, this part of the house being little above the level of the street. The gallery is a very commodious one, and the exits and entrances lead to a street at the side of the building. Altogether there is accommodation in the building for over 1,500 people.

Refreshment buffets are provided in each part of the house, and in addition two large waiting-rooms are provided. The Hippodrome is furnished with modern heating apparatus, and in all parts of the house there are electric fans. The wall decoration is red with a white dado, while the fronts of the balcony and stage are beautifully carved and gilded. Two large boxes at the side of the stage are magnificently furnished. The stage is 58ft. by 32ft., with a 26ft. proscenium, and it is provided with a fire screen and sprinkling apparatus, whilst all the doors leading to the stage are fireproof and self-closing.

The building has been constructed by Messrs. J. Parkinson and Sons, of Blackpool, while Mr. Bertie Crewe, of London, was the architect. Mr. H. Leigh has been resident-manager for the builder, and the general arrangements have been supervised by Mr. John Field, manager of the Palace Theatre, Plymouth, assisted by Mr. Angel Dodd in the stage work. Although the licensee and responsible manager of the new theatre, Mr. John Field, will still remain at the Palace Theatre, Mr. Herbert Taylor, acting-manager, will practically be in sole command. Mr. Taylor, who is thirty-three years of age and a native of Liverpool, is no stranger to Plymouth. He served for some time as secretary to Mr. C. F. Williams at the Theatre Royal, Plymouth, and afterwards became acting-manager. Since leaving Plymouth he has held other theatrical appointments, and he resigned from the managership of the Palace Theatre, Derby, to come to Devonport.

THE OPENING CEREMONY.

The finishing touches had been almost completed on Saturday last when, at the invitation of the directors of the Hippodrome Company, the Mayor of Devonport (Mr. R. Smerdon) attended to unveil the commemoration stone. Accompanying the Mayor were the majority of the members of the Corporation, together with the officials, and in addition there was a distinguished gathering of guests. The company first assembled at the back of the circle, where, at the call of Mr. Alfred Moul (chairman of directors), the Mayor, wearing his chain of office, took up his place near the veiled tablet. Mr. Moul thanked the Mayor in the name of the directors, and presented him with a silver trowel (suitably inscribed) and an ebony mallet. Amidst loud applause, the Mayor pulled a cord, and the tablet was exposed to view, and then, after employing the tools with which he had been presented, he declared the stone "well and truly laid."

The stone, which is of pink marble, bears the following inscription:—

"The Hippodrome, Devonport. Chairman of Directors: Alfred Moul, Esq. This stone was laid on Sept. 12, 1908, by R. Smerdon, Esq., Mayor of Devonport. Architect: Bertie Crewe, London; Contractors: Parkinson and Sons, Ltd., Blackpool."

The Mayor, in a tasteful little speech, said that the duties of the Chief Magistrate were multifarious, but nothing during his term of office had given him more pleasure than the present function. He wished the venture every possible prosperity.

After thanking the Mayor, Mr. Moul invited the company to lunch on the stage, where a recherché meal was partaken of. Mr. Alfred Moul presided, and he was supported by a distinguished company, including the Mayor, Messrs. F. Paul (Chairman of Watch Committee), Aldermen Whittleton, W. J. Waycott, C. Goodman; R. J. Fittall (Town Clerk), R. Littleton (Chairman of the Board of Guardians), S. J. Page (Plymouth Town Council), Isaac Pearse (Chairman of Stone house Council), and others.

After the loyal toasts had been heartily received, the chairman proposed "Prosperity to the Borough of Devonport." It was a town which possessed time-honoured associations and a worthy corporation, and its worthy Mayor would uphold the traditions of those who had been Chief Magistrate before him. He (the chairman) thanked them for the honour they had conferred upon the directors by placing the official mark of approval upon the work. A couple of years ago it did not seem necessary to provide additional entertainment for the people of Devonport, but he could now see that this variety theatre was not erected too soon. The company would see that the entertainment provided was clean, wholesome, and amusing, and he hoped there was a prosperous future both for the town and the newly-erected theatre. (Loud applause.)

The Mayor, in response, first returned his sincere thanks for the souvenir the directors had presented to him. They all wished the new venture every success, and all were agreed that the building was most gorgeous, being a credit to the architect and contractors. Previously the people of Devonport had had to go to Plymouth for their variety entertainments, but now such a thing would be no longer necessary. It was the duty of the Chief Magistrate to see to the town's varied interests, and as the representative of that important borough he was determined to see to all the interests that affected the welfare and commercial prosperity of the town. As a member of the Watch Committee he had inspected the building, and in his opinion nothing had been overlooked that would tend to the comfort of the patrons. He was sure, from Mr. Moul's remarks, that the theatre would be carried on in a clean manner, and would not lower the moral tone of the inhabitants of the town. (Applause.)

Mr. F. Paul, in submitting "Success to the Hippodrome," said that protests had been received from certain well-meaning people, but the Watch Committee had to study the larger interests of the town, and it was shown that the time had arrived when such a place was needed by the members of the community. A sum of £20,000 had been spent upon the venture, and all they could do now was to wish it every possible success. Mr. J. C. Tozer, who seconded, said it was strange that these people who protested against such a building in their own town were among the first to patronise the class of entertainment when away from home. (Loud laughter.) There was no reason why the Hippodrome should not become a flourishing concern and a great advantage to the town.

Other toasts included "His Majesty's Imperial Forces" and "The Architect and Builders," both of which were well received. During the lunch some excellent selections were played by the orchestra under Mr. J. W. Gleghorn, who will supervise the musical portion of the entertainment.

The opening performances attracted enormous crowds, and the second "house" on Monday night was patronised by upwards of fifty members of the Town Council. During the interval, Mr. Alfred Moul (chairman of directors) made a speech, and thanked the people for their extensive patronage. The Albert and Edmonds Comedy Troupe head the bill with a pantomime absurdity entitled Neighbours, and it evokes roars of laughter. Corman's clever juveniles prove a great attraction; while an excellent turn is provided by Jack Lorimer, a Scotch comedian, Conn and Conrad perform some clever feats on the "Barber's Pole," and Stella Stahl sings a couple of songs with good taste and expression. Russell Brandon proves a very clever dancing comedian, and Lily Flexmore executes some startling contortions. Altogether the new variety theatre has had an excellent send-off.

FOUR TIMES DEAD.

An interesting controversy is exciting the minds of many people in Glasgow at present, viz., whether or not James Taylor, the music-hall comedian of days gone by, is still alive. Taylor is remembered for two songs in particular, "Simple Simon" and "Sarah Walker," and prided himself on the fact that he was the only comedian ever put up at auction. The origin of the controversy took place a week or two ago, when an elderly gentleman entered a well-known theatrical resort in Bridge-street, Glasgow, attracted by the old theatrical portraits displayed in the windows, and after ordering a refreshment intimated that he was an old professional himself; in fact, none other than James Taylor, the "champion comic" of a generation ago, and said that, although four times reported dead, he was still to the fore. In conversation with the proprietor, Mr. Taylor referred to his first appearance in Glasgow at the old Scotia in the early 'sixties, and was astonished to hear that, as a boy, the proprietor had been present on that occasion, and still remembered the choruses of his two best songs, which he sang over, while the tears trickled down the cheeks of the old comedian.

In further conversation, Mr. Taylor freely mentioned many names associated with the Scotia in those days, such as Baylis, the proprietor of the hall, his wife, their daughter Jessie, her husband Colquhoun, and also a clever amateur comedian in Glasgow at that time, James Anderson, with whom Taylor was always very friendly, despite the fact that when the "champion comic's" services were sold by auction at the Mart, Glasgow, in 1866, and the Scotia was outbid by the Whitebait, it was James Anderson whom Baylis secured to run as a rival to his former star. A copy of the bill of this auction sale is still to be seen in the office of the auctioneers at Glasgow.

The impression created on the listeners to the old professional was such that no one doubted his bond fides; but the following day who should visit the Hampden but Mr. James Anderson, now a variety agent in Glasgow, and when he heard that James Taylor had been in there, and asking for him, ejaculated, "Impossible! the man is dead years ago," and later in the week brought Mr. Barney Armstrong to confirm this statement. Armstrong's contribution to the dispute was that he remembered the sale of Taylor's effects, including a wonderful fur coat, which was bought by someone and afterwards made into souvenir tobacco pouches, &c. The Glasgow correspondent of The Era was appealed to, and from the "Era Almanack" for 1896 he was able to give the date of Taylor's death as July 24, 1895. Then James Anderson wrote direct to The Era, and was given (in error) another date, Jan. 17, 1904, which refers to the death of a different man altogether—James G. Taylor, the Shakespearean comedian, of Mary Anderson's and other companies. Last week Mr. Charles Coborn was appealed to, and gave it as his opinion that Taylor was dead; but when an address was quoted as that of the mysterious old visitor—"James Turner, 294, City-road, London," another listener, Mr. Arnold Bell, was able to give the information that James Turner was a son of the famous James Taylor, and had also been a comedian for some years, and that this helped to confirm the genuineness of the claimant. There the matter rests so far, and the question is whether it is likely that anyone will masquerade as James Taylor for no apparent reason, or whether it is possible that this famous comedian is still amongst us, in spite of some apparent evidence to the contrary.

[Mr. James Taylor, music-hall comedian, died, as stated in the preceding article, on Wednesday, July 24, 1895, at Cane Hill Asylum, to which institution he was taken about five weeks before his death, which was caused by softening of the brain. For a long time the deceased comedian was associated with Miss Ada Alexandra (who died last year) in such sketches as The Dutch Girl, Simon, The Mason, &c. Into these sketches he introduced his impersonations of the stuttering witness, of the silly boy, and of Sarah Walker. When the partnership with Miss Ada Alexandra was dissolved, Mr. Taylor revived these impersonations in an entertainment, which he called Fun in a Nutshell. The deceased claimed the title of champion comic singer—a distinction he won in a contest at Weston's many years since. He was entertaining on the stage until a few months before his death, at the age of seventy. Mr. James G. Taylor, also referred to in the article above, died on Jan. 17, 1904, and was a comedian who played with Toole at the Gaiety.—ED., The Era.]

"PETER'S PICTURE."

A Farcical Comedy, by Mr. C. C. Horton, produced at the Bedford, Monday, Sept. 14.

Peter ..... MR. E. J. WALKER
Grigsby ..... MR. M. DREW
Tabitha ..... MISS CRUIKSHANK

This little comedy, which had its first production on Monday last, is an amusing trifle. Peter and Tabitha are a middle-aged couple, brother and sister. Peter has bought at Christie's a work of art, which his friend Grigsby, also a collector, much covets. When the picture arrives, Tabitha is much shocked at the Eve-like costume of the lady represented, and comes down in the night to put on more garments, making it appear like a Gainsborough. Grigsby also arrives, disguised as a burglar, to cut the picture from its frame. Peter discovers Grigsby and Tabitha, and promises not to prosecute the former for theft on condition that he marries Tabitha, a match he had long contemplated. The comedy is brightly played by all concerned. Miss Cruikshank was most amusing as Tabitha and Mr. Walker very diverting as the fussy Peter. Mr. M. Drew made an excellent Grigsby.

Holbeck Feast.

THE growth of a great fair is illustrated in the commanding position held in the show world by Holbeck Feast, Leeds. Fifty years ago Holbeck was a little cloth-weaving village outside of Leeds; to-day Leeds has grown to such an extent that it has absorbed not only Holbeck, but Beeston, a village two miles further out, on the south side. The population of Holbeck itself is greater three times told than the population of the whole of Leeds fifty years ago. The enormous development of the clothing and engineering trades, the staple industries of South Leeds, have at the present moment quite 200,000 workers engaged in the industries of the district. It will be readily seen that such an aggregation of human life makes Holbeck Feast one of the most important pleasure fairs in the United Kingdom. It is to the credit of the city of Leeds that, profiting by dearly-bought experience in the past, it has resumed municipal control of the pleasure fairs of the people.

IN 1869 Leeds fairs were, by a mistake on the part of the Corporation, abolished, with the result that private enterprise stepped in where the Corporation had failed, and Leeds fair was maintained upon private fairgrounds.

QUITE recently the great open space of Holbeck Moor, by arrangement between the Corporation and Lords of the Manor, was dedicated to the use of the public for ever, and amongst the conditions of the bargain one was the maintenance of Holbeck Feast. The present lessee of the ground is the well-known Yorkshire amusement caterer, Mr. Wm. Murphy, who holds it for a term of years directly from the Corporation of Leeds. Here, again, the Corporation has shown great wisdom, for it requires a showman to set out a modern fair under the best conditions. It is a pleasure to visit Holbeck Feast, and to notice the absolute good order and arrangement of the fairground.

A Suburban Fair in Full Swing.

IT was eight o'clock in the evening of Saturday, and the great day of the Feast, when we paid our first visit to the fairground. Our intention had been to walk round and get a general first impression of the shows and concerns in the throng of big business. We could not carry out our intention, for we found ourselves caught in the maëlstrom of contrary masses of human life, streaming into the fairground, or cross streams crowding up the show fronts. The only oasis that we could find out of this madding crowd was on the steps of a friendly roundabout, and even there we were subject to the rush of the crowd, endeavouring to find a vacant saddle on the wonderfully grotesque racing porkers.

WE were glad at last to extricate ourselves from the mass of humanity, and to make a strategical retreat to the rear, taking in as we retreated a vivid picture of the joy, the excitement, and the fun of a modern pleasure fair.

Avenues of Shows.

THE shows, great and small, are set out along the side of the great avenue that crosses the vast moor, from south to north. Entering the fairground from the south the first show was Mr. Wm. Murphy's pictorial palace, one of the most complete and superb cinematograph theatres in showland. The next exhibition was John Creighton's palace of light, a most beautiful cinematograph theatre, with elaborate outside decorations. The next in the line was Aspland's Wonderland, a superbly beautiful cinematograph theatre, and one of the great attractions of the fair.

IN the central position of the line of shows stood yet another magnificent cinematograph theatre—Messrs. Farrer and Tyler's coliseum of animated photography and empire of varieties. Four huge up-to-date shows, with a full blaze of electric light, powerful orchestraphones, attractive outside parades, and all the equipment of the most perfect up-to-date character.

STILL continuing the line of shows, George Procter's London circus, with the talented Procter family, and a capital company of equestrians and acrobats, gave to delighted patrons an opportunity of witnessing one of the most attractive circus performances now on the road. Lewis, the king of serpent experts, with his unique display of huge pythons in the snake jungle, afforded an example of American showmen enterprise of the most up-to-date character. Professor and Mme. D'Osta, in their occult demonstrations, in the lion's cage, was another feature of great novelty and strong attraction.

BALL'S midget exhibition, the charming Princess Lilliput, Bedford's freak pony, the wee McGregor, Westray and Sons' two ground booths—the miniature animal jungles, T. Wortley's two shows (the model colliery and the fine art exhibition), and Powell and Holdsworth's fine art gallery exhausts the list of exhibitions on the great show avenue.

Riding-Machines and Mechanical Novelties.

THE novel features of the great aggregation of riding-machines at this Feast were Messrs. Relph, Pedley, and Holdsworth's galloping porkers, a weirdly grotesque invention, and affording a double-motion action that seemed to be an endless source of uproarious fun to the great crowd of eager patrons. The second novelty was Beech's aeroplanes, an extremely ingenious machine, giving a motion of an exciting and exhilarating character, and the nearest approach at the present moment to aerial navigation on exhibition at our fairs. This machine was in great demand, and the inventor assured us that it has been a great success wherever it has been seen. Richard's Brooklyn cake-walk machine (Plinston Brothers and Taylor's patent) was also on exhibition for the first time at this feast, and did big business.

THE other machines in the front rank were Murphy's motor-cars, G. Marshall's motors, J. W. Waddington's motors and yachts, P. Collins and Sons' racing birds, and steam roundabouts by G. Redfern, C. Marshall, W. Waddington, and Church and Sons. There were sets of gem motors and horses by Messrs. Doubtfire, Gledstone, Johnson, and Seed. Powell's Alpine glissade, Dobson's ocean wave, and steam swing sets by Messrs. Burgin, Morley, and Amos. Steam yachts by Shaw and wheeling the whirl by Procter. Park swings, highfliers, and overboats by Messrs. Riley, Dobson, Thomas, Redfern, Leiske, and Messrs. Hughes.

Variety Frames, Throwing Games, and Novelties.

THERE were several long avennes of minor novelties, side shows, and entertainments of the most attractive modern character. These were provided by such well-known caterers as Messrs. Turner, Steward, Whatmore, Jameson, Doubtfire, J. Corrigan and Sons, T. Burgon, W. Houlds worth, J. Joy, Stores, Walker, F. Redfern, Wilson, J. Watson, Hall, Procter, Johnson, Dobson Seed, Thomson, Stone, Pullein, Powell, Houlds worth, Case, Birch, Saccomani, Veti, Riley, Stock well, and many others.

A Church Service at the Village Feast.

THE Church Times of the 11th inst. furnishes another interesting proof of church work amongst the show people. In an interesting account, it says:—"The service was not deprived of any of what have always been helpful aids to worship in church. The clergy and choir went forth from the chancel to the field (supported by the whole congregation) immediately after the blessing, singing "All people," with full vestments and an order of service in their hands, just as if it was one of the solemn services in church; and at once, as the procession went out of the church under the Calvary that is a feature at the west end, respectful groups of people lined the joyful way, and many others threw up their windows as if to pay their respects. When all had taken their stand, the short twenty minutes' service to God's greater glory and blessing of parishioners and travellers was proceeded with, midst much marked approval and heartiness. The priest-preacher spoke of God's love (pointing to Calvary), and His daily blessing on those who daily "hunger and thirst after righteousness" as they travel through the wilderness of this world. The people were blessed, and then the procession went back again to the altar, singing 'O God, our Help.'

"THE show people (many of whom are members of the Showmen's Guild) were no less hearty in accepting than were the clergy, who suggested that they might minister to them as their chaplains. The parishioners' estimation of the special effort in their midst of 'lifting up the Cross' is summed up in the general talk of it, that it was grand."

IN addition to the well-known work of the Showmen's Guild noticed from time to time in our "Showman World" page, it is interesting to find that the local clergy in various parts of the country are beginning to take a deep interest in the spiritual concerns of the travelling show people. The account we have given above is a proof of this growing interest in evangelistic work on the fair grounds. The service took place at a colliery village in County Durham.

Councillor Bostock of Glasgow.

THE Glasgow Evening Times of Sept. 10 has the following interesting paragraph concerning Councillor E. H. Bostock:—"The latest addition to the Town Council must have recalled memories of old-time menageries to elderly and middle-aged citizens. Wombwell and Manders had it all their own way for years; then, at George Wombwell's death, his big show was divided into three sections. These sections are owned by Bostock and Wombwell, Fairgrieve and Wombwell, and Edmonds and Wombwell. About 1870 M'Carthy, a tamer of wild beasts, was killed by lions in Manders's menagerie at Bolton. Parliamentary notice was taken of the shocking event, and wild-beast show owners had to cut out from their programme the performing lion and leopard exhibitions. A 'frost' struck the business. William Manders and 'Uncle' Fairgrieve sold out, leaving 'Aunt' Edmonds and the father of Councillor E. H. Bostock in the field. When Mrs. Edmonds died, about fifteen years ago, Councillor Bostock became the sole representative of the old Wombwell business."

A GENEROUS, and quite characteristic, act on Councillor Bostock's part is acknowledged this week in our advertising columns. The general-manager of Bostock and Wombwell's Menagerie received £90, to be divided as a bonus amongst the working staff of the show. It is generosity and thoughtful care like this on the part of employers that secures real interest amongst the workers.

Barnstaple Fair.

IN connection with the proclamation of Barnstaple Fair by the Mayor and Corporation, there is an interesting and quaint ceremony. After the usual speech-making, the Mayor's hospitality consists of copious libations of spiced ale and toast, prepared from a jealously guarded recipe, which has been in the possession of the Corporation for generations. This ceremony of hospitality is also remarkable for the large Elizabethan loving cups, exquisite examples of the silversmith's art, wherein the spiced ale is handed round to the civic guests. To the ladies present at the ceremony there is given toothsome Barnstaple fairings.

The White City, Old Trafford.

LAST Saturday was a lovely day, and the annual demonstration in aid of the National Lifeboat Fund was a great success. There was a procession through Manchester, which included a cycle parade, finishing up in this amusement park, where prizes were distributed by the Deputy Lord Mayor of Manchester (in the presence of several Mayors of neighbouring towns), to whom, on behalf of the Lifeboat Fund, Mr. J. Calvin Brown presented the White City's contribution to the fund (a cheque for £300, same as last year).

COUNTESS ROMANOFF is this week performing the Salome dance—made famous by the action of the Manchester Watch Committee—in one of the buildings in this amusement park.

PLEASURE FAIR AT AYR (N.B.).

This famous fair was held in Newton Park, under the expert management of Mr. George Green, and attracted vast crowds of eager sightseers.

There is one great advantage at Newton Park—when you get there; it is large enough to hold the ideal modern fair; there is space enough and to spare to display every show, every machine, every stall, every shooting gallery, to its fullest advantage. We only know one or two other places where the advantage of ground space is so ample as it is at Ayr. We refer to Hull and to Gloucester under their modern conditions. The ground is arranged in four-square form. One side of the huge quadrangle is occupied by shows big and little, one side by shooting concerns, and the two other sides by throwing games, stalls, and variety frames.

The centre of the ground is set apart for the big riding machines, and well and fully displayed they are. We have never seen a better-arranged or more carefully-thought-out plan of a fair than the one we saw last Saturday night, in all its magnificent display of moving charm of life and electric lighting.

The Great Line of Shows.

Principal amongst the shows were the cinematograph theatres of Mr. George Green and Mrs. Manders, Mrs. Johnson's Scottish circus, and Prof. Moore and school of boxers. There were sideshows in well-ordered variety along the great show line.

The World of Whirligigs.

What an amazing, bewildering, entrancing, whirling world it is! In very truth, the heart and centre of the fair. Here you pay your penny and you take your choice. Motor-cars, airships, flying ostriches, mountain ponies, gondolas, Roman chariots, galloping and jumping horses, helter-skelter, steam and manual swings, overboats, oscillating Japanese wheeley-whirley, all alight with golden glitter—the world of machine novelties ready to be yours for the open sesame of a "bawbee." This magnificent aggregation of steam and electric driven marvels of mechanical skill and invention consisted of the concerns of George Green (two sets), John Wilmot (two sets), Peter Swallow, J. Wingate, C. Baker, J. Howard, J. Wilmot, jun., Stevenson, Lawrence, S. Macintosh, and T. Codona, with juvenile and gem sets by Wilmot, Baker, and Swallow.

The Shooting Ranges and Galleries.

These were well displayed, and occupied nearly the whole length of one side of the fair-ground. Winchester ranges, shooting tubes, bottle and egg smashing batteries, by Messrs. Lawrence, J. Wilmot, jun., Sheeran, J. Day, Rostron, Dawson, Smith, Hughes, Merrick, Newton, and Irvine.

Throwing Games, Varieties, and Stalls.

These gave a most attractive display with an immense frontage, nearly two sides of the quadrangle. The up-to-date concerns of Messrs. Macintosh (2), Merrick (2), Kelly (2), Sheeran (2), Hiscoe (2), Knight (2), Wilmot, jun. (2), H. Irvine, sen. (2), J. Anderson (2), Smith (2), and single concerns by Messrs. Cooke-Nelson, Stevenson, Stevenson, jun., C. Irvine, H. Irvine, jun., Russell, J. Blockley, J. W. Kelly, J. Dobbin, Wm. Mrerick, jun., Dawson, Hughes, Bradley, Martin, and Mesdames E. Blockley and Newton. The refreshment booths were those of Hughes, Moore, and Galloway. At the principal entrance to the fair stood the well-known photo. van of J. Caddick and Son, the fair-ground photographers from the Fun City, Olympia, and famous on the great fair-grounds of the Empire.

Benefit for the Guild Funds.

For the second year in succession, the Scotch showpeople have given a benefit night to the Trade Defence Funds of the Showmen's Guild. This is doubly generous when we remember that Scotland is not included in the Movable Dwellings Bill now before Parliament. Inspired and led by such men as John Wilmot and George Green, the Scotch showmen recognise their duty to help English showpeople in the time of trouble, and to show their fellowship and their solidarity in the defence of the just liberties of travelling showmen in all parts of the Empire.

The Names of Contributors to the Funds.

The same plan, we understand, as obtained last year was followed again this—the first night's takings from every concern, big or little, shows, machines, or stalls, on the fair-ground being stated as follows:—

Mr. George Green	7	12	0
Mr. John Wilmot	6	16	0

The total amount was £36 11s. 7d.; and Mr. George Green sent a cheque for the whole sum to the Guild secretary.

The generous example of Scotland will, we trust, inspire others to rally to the trade defence movement, and to provide similar benefits.

Snake Charmer Bitten.

OSCA, the Arizonian cave dweller, was giving an exhibition of snake charming at Bostock's Jungle, at the Hungarian Exhibition, Earl's Court, on Tuesday last when he was bitten in the arm by a puff adder. Nothing was thought of the occurrence at the time, but eventually Osca became giddy and faint, and examination of the wound in the arm showed that a serious development had taken place. The arm was tightly bound above and below the wound, and with a sharp knife a portion of the flesh was cut away, and suction applied to extract the poison. Osca, however, after a gallon of milk had been practically forced down his throat, became unconscious, and remained so all the evening, despite the best medical attention.

YORKSHIRE SHOWMEN, IN COUNCIL.

Following the important committee meeting at Oldham Wakes, a gathering of Yorkshire showmen was held on Sunday, Sept. 13, at Holbeck Feast. The object of the gathering was to obtain the co-operation of the Yorkshire showmen in the action already determined upon by the Showmen's Guild. The meeting took place in Mr. Wm. Murphy's cinematograph theatre, and although it was called at very short notice, it was attended by the principal show proprietors and stall-holders at the Feast. Mr. George Wright was unanimously voted to the chair, and supporting him were the Rev. T. Horne (Guild chaplain), Mr. Wm. Murphy, Mr. Joseph Corrigan, Mr. T. Burgin, Mr. J. Joy, Mr. S. Doubtfire, Mr. W. Houldsworth, Mr. Westray, Mr Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. E. Ball, Mr. Turner, and others.

Rousing Speech by the Chairman.

In opening the conference to consider the Movable Dwellings Bill, he expressed his strong conviction that it was the bounden duty of every showman and stall-holder to thoroughly grasp the meaning of the detestable measure against which they were bound to protest with all the power and the vigour they possessed. He had no hesitation in saying that such a Bill had for its motive the destruction of their business and the invasion of their domestic life and the security of their homes. He begged them to consider what an insult it would be if at every town they visited their homes were subject to the intrusion of the police. He warned them that it would be the practical end of the show business if the restrictions set forth in the Movable Dwellings Bill became law. The extraordinary powers set out in the Bill would give local authorities unlimited power not only to harass and to hinder their business in life, but to extinguish already existing fairs, and to prevent them opening up new ones.

They would find themselves, if the Bill became law, bound hand and foot, and completely at the mercy of any local busybody or Jack-in-Office anxious to distinguish himself by a crusade against the popular amusements of the people.

The Bill an Attack on the People's Fair Rights.

It would be the duty of the executive committee of the Vandwellers' Society to put before the people of England the danger that threatened the popular fairs and open-air amusements of the working-classes. It was not sufficiently realised (he said) that the Bill was not only in the worst sense a class measure—aiming at the destruction of the life and business of the showman—but it was also a deliberate attempt to destroy the popular amusements of the people of this country—the amusements that they had so long enjoyed at the fairs, feasts, and wakes. It did not require any particular argument on his part to make it clear to his fellow-showmen that when they made—as they were bound to—the facts of the case fully known, that the people of England would rally to the defence of their old-time fairs. As they were already hard at work opposing the Bill as a body of organised traders, he had no doubt that they would be able to show, when they put their case before Parliament, that the Bill not only threatened them as a class, but that it also threatened the rights and liberties of the people of England.

He had no doubt that, as in other great centres of show-life, so at Holbeck Feast there would be a strong expression of opinion against the Movable Dwellings Bill. And in conclusion, he called upon the Rev. T. Horne to move a resolution in condemnation of the Bill and to set out in detail the work of opposition as already enterprised by the Vandwellers' Society.

The Rev. T. Horne on the Bill.

The Guild Chaplain warmly complimented the chairman on his excellent speech, setting forth as it did so clearly the subject matter before that important committee As fully instructed at the beginning of the year by the Guild executive, he had opened up negotiations with the promoters of the Movable Dwellings Bill, The result of his work had been that whilst important amendments mitigating the pressure of its proposals had been discussed in a most friendly spirit, he was obliged to report to them, as he had already done to a general committee specially summoned for that purpose at Oldham Wakes, that in all the great points of difference they had failed to come to an agreement. Putting the matter as concisely as he could, the Bill set up every county and county borough as a registration authority; every living van, if the measure became law, would have to be registered and inspected and brought under the complete control of the county authority.

There would be a body of regulations, and a standard pattern of living van would be adopted, and all vans not coming up to that standard would be declared unfit for human habitation. They would see at once what a serious injury this would be to many of their poorer brethren; in a great number of cases it would mean driving them off the road altogether.

Most Invidious Class Legislation.

He had no hesitation in denouncing the Movable Dwellings Bill as an example of gross class legislation. The ordinary law of the land provided for the proper control and inspection of all dwellings used for human habitation, without any distinction of kind or character; they were already under ample public control. All living vans, tents, or movable structures were as much under the sanitary law as permanent dwellings. The question naturally arose, what, then, is the object of the Bill? It was to make a tremendous change in the administration of the Health Acts, and to transfer all vans and tents from the control and inspection of the sanitary officer to the police authorities. The injustice and the invidiousness of this sort of class legislation will be at once seen when he reminded them that the thousands of single-roomed tenements in all our great towns and cities would still remain under the control of the sanitary officer, but that the showman's van, conditioned by the most perfect equipment for health, as living vans were, would be subject to the invidious distinction of being brought directly under police inspection and control.

The Inadequacy of the Proposed Amendments.

In the negotiations with the promoters of the Bill the Guild had strongly opposed the transfer of the administration of the Health Acts from the sanitary officials to the county police. The promoters of the Bill refused to drop their proposal as regards police supervision and inspection. That, in his judgment, was the most fatal blot upon the measure. But, in addition to the proposals to transfer to the police the administration of the Health Act, the promoters had refused to accept an exemption clause which would have clearly shown that it was aimed at gipsy and insanitary encampments of squatters of common lands

Another fatal refusal on the part of the promoters was that they rejected the suggestion of the Guild executive that the title of the Bill should be altered to "Gipsy Encampment Bill." Another matter of vital moment to the showground community was the prohibition clause—a clause which gave the local authorities power to prohibit or abolish fairs without the consent of the Home Secretary. He had repeatedly warned the Showman World that if the Bill contained but this one clause it would be necessary for them to oppose it. The promoters of the Bill were willing to consider an amendment which would limit the prohibition clause to encampments of living vans on other sites than recognised fair-grounds. If showmen were prepared to accept this amendment it would undoubtedly safeguard all the old charter fairs and the feasts and wakes of long-established use and custom. But they could readily see that it would be used against all that great number of new fairs, created to supply the popular demand in great industrial centres, during the past thirty or forty years. They would also recognise that the prohibition would apply to all private business and to all their winter quarters, and also prevent them extending their business by opening up new fairs.

The Future Work of the Showmen's Guild.

At the general commitee meeting at Oldham they had determined to oppose the Bill at every stage. Showmen had many friends in both Houses of Parliament, and if they failed to obtain its rejection in the House of Lords they had every confidence that they would defeat it in the House of Commons.

He was quite confident that the elected representatives of the people would reject a measure having for its object the penalising of a great national industry and the curtailment of the people's popular amusement. Most assuredly the whole body of fair-ground entertainers would unite to offer the strongest opposition to the Movable Dwellings Bill. He was also confident that the fighting fund for Parliamentary work would be generously supported. Last week at Ayr, in Scotland, the showmen gave benefit performances for the Guild Funds, and it was proposed at Oldham—and he had no doubt it would be endorsed by that meeting—that the showmen give a benefit to the Guild funds at the coming Hull Fair. He was glad also to announce that Mr. John Collins, the lessee of Rotherham fair-ground, had promised to support benefit performances at Rotherham Statutes Fair.

Parliamentary trade defence work in Parliament was at all times an expensive proceeding, and it was necessary that a special fund should be raised in order that the work of opposition may be carried to a successful conclusion. He would leave the financial consideration confidently with them, and concluded by moving "that this meeting of showmen and fair-ground traders engaged at Holbeck Feast protests against the Movable Dwellings Bill. We claim as lawful traders to be under and obedient to the ordinary laws of the Realm. We deny that special inquisitorial and liberty-destroying legislation is needed for our trade and business. If the promoters of the measure want to deal with them to penalise gipsy life, let them make their object clear in the Bill by exempting showmen and fair-ground traders from its proposed penalties and restrictions. This meeting determines to oppose the Bill at every stage."

The resolution was seconded by Mr. Wm. Murphy, and carried unanimously.

It was also resolved, on the motion of Messrs. J. Corrigan and J. Joy, that the showmen present at that meeting heartily approve and undertake to support the proposed benefit for the Guild funds at the forthcoming Hull Fair.

Successful Evening Meeting of the Guild.

In accordance with a custom of many years standing, the Vicar of Holbeck arranged a service for the showpeople. This year and last the Guild chaplain has been able to co-operate in the work of the local clergy. The vicar, the Rev. S. F. Sykes, and the senior curate, the Rev. E. N. Deane, visited every van on the fair-ground and left a notice of the forthcoming Sunday service. The notice paper read as follows:—"Holbeck Feast. You are invited to a Guild Service on Sunday, Sept. 13, at 8 p.m., in Mr. Murphy's Pictorial Palace. An address will be given by the Guild chaplain, the Rev. T. Horne. The Holbeck Church Choir will lead the singing."

Mr. Murphy's beautiful pavilion, seated to hold 500 persons, was filled to its utmost seating capacity. The chaste and beautiful interior decorations, brilliantly illuminated by powerful arc electric lights, transformed the show into a most appropriate chapel of ease to the parish church. The Holbeck Church choir and a considerable body of friends from the church congregation rendered heartily, as Yorkshire folk are so well able to do, the beautiful hymns of the Guild service. The Vicar of Holbeck intoned the service, and the Guild chaplain preached an impressive sermon on the subject of "The Good Samaritan," based upon the Holy Gospel for the day. The Guild chaplain particularly applied the lesson of neighbourliness as it is so very strongly illustrated in one of necessary conditions of the people's fair or feast. The feast (he reminded them) was the annual occasion for "neighbouring." We visited our friends and neighbours at the time of their feasts, and in their turn our friends and neighbours came to visit us at our feast. It was this spirit of "neighbourliness," so important a lesson of the Holy Gospel, that brought them together at feast time, and deepened and broadened the ideals of brotherhood and comradeship. Our individual lives were all the purer and better from this custom of "neighbouring." To the casual observer the noise, excitement, the fun and enjoyment of the fair, were the only things; but let them look beneath the surface of things obvious and they would find that these great principles of comradeship and neighbourliness were the strong formative and abiding traits in our national and social life.

The Vicar of Holbeck's Short Address.

The vicar earnestly begged his showman hearers to make use of the clergy if any necessity should arise during their short stay in his parish. Whilst he might, for the quiet carrying-out of his own parish work, hesitate to desire to have a Holbeck Feast Sunday every Sunday, he had no hesitation at all in desiring more frequent opportunities of meeting the showpeople. He felt that it was extremely difficult to know them and to enter into their life when he could only have that opportunity once a year.

He gladly welcomed them, and he heartily agreed with their efforts to amuse the people. He also welcomed the work of the Showmen's Guild into his parish, and was glad to have Mr. Horne, the Guild chaplain, with them. It was in such work as the service they were now engaged in that they hoped to find the uplifting not only of the showmen and the betterment of the amusements of the people, but that the Church of God should reach and miniser to the people whose business in life caused them to travel from town to town.

At the close of the service a collection was taken for the Holbeck District Nurses' Home Fund.

The Guild chaplain was the celebrant at the 8 o'clock celebration of the Holy Communion at the Holbeck Parish Church, and preached in the evening at St. Cuthbert's, a neighbouring church to Holbeck Moor.

Todmorden Wakes.

FOR the amusement of the crowds of pleasure-seekers at this fair were Col. Clark's Electric Coliseum and Variety Palace, John Whiting's Flying Gondolas, J. Ingram's freak show, Newall's stalls, and Wilson's throwing games.

Fasting Man at Aberdeen.

MONS. VICTOR BEAUTE commenced a six weeks' fast in Humber's Waxwork, Aberdeen, on Monday. The sealing-up ceremony was witnessed by a huge crowd.

FILM GOSSIP.

THE EUCHARISTIC PROCESSION.—For the first time in 350 years a Papal Legate landed on English soil to preside over the deliberations of the Congress, and Roman Catholic dignitaries, spiritual and temporal, assembled from all parts of the world to do honour to the occasion. Representatives of every class were present in enormous numbers, and the proceedings terminated on Sunday, Sept. 13, at the Westminster Cathedral, with Vespers, followed by a huge procession of the Blessed Sacrament. In the programme originally arranged, provision was made for carrying the Host in procession through the streets, but Archbishop Bourne announced at the last moment that this feature was abandoned by request of the Prime Minister of England.

THE great procession, however, took place, and a most imposing spectacle, witnessed by tremendous crowds, was provided by the Papal Legate, the members of the Pontifical Mission, cardinals, archbishops, bishops, abbots, general clergy, generals of religious orders and congregations, choirs, and distinguished laymen passing along the streets adjoining the Cathedral. The route was lined by 12,000 men specially invited for the occasion. The robes and vestments worn were most costly and elaborate, and the banners carried were rich and beautiful. Particularly favoured in choice of positions, the Urban operators were fortunate in securing exceptionally good pictures of this great function, and a history-making event was chronicled in a series of motion pictures which will command the rapt enthusiasm of devout Roman Catholics throughout the world. Not only was the procession depicted, but also the Elevation of the Host from a balcony altar over the great door of the Cathedral by his Eminence the Papal Legate, who pronounced the benediction of the Blessed Sacrament upon the thousands of people massed in the streets below. This picture is in itself unique, and was secured with very great difficulty.

THE PREHISTORIC MAN.—The "Hand of the Artist" has added to the world's happiness by the excessive laughter-compelling fancies it has depicted. "Created" is perhaps the better term, for the pictures drawn upon paper or canvas invariably take living form, step out of the canvas, and act more or less—generally less—rationally. In the PREHISTORIC MAN the author has excelled himself. The Artist in person is revealed in this series, where, previously, only his "Hand" appeared. In an idle moment he outlines upon a large sheet the figure of a conventional Prehistoric ogre of forbidding aspect and threatening demeanour, armed with a prehistoric stone hammer. To the artist's own dismay the creature becomes possessed of life and movement and walks out of the wooden frame, evidently looking upon the draughtsman as responsible for his being. He attaches himself to that unfortunate person and accompanies him wherever he goes. So disastrous is the havoc he creates in twentieth century streets, houses, and lanes, and so fearful the impression, that the unlucky artist in vain tries to escape. The gaunt, incongruous figure is not to be shaken off. After calamities innumerable and consternation unbounded, a happy idea suggests itself to the artist, who, returning to his studio, hastily draws a prehistoric animal, which also assumes life. The man, entering the studio in search of his artist friend, is seized between the fearsome jaws of the weird creature and swallowed whole. Only his stone mallet remains, and this the artist uses as a weapon, which cuts the inoffensive canvas upon which the creatures were drawn, thus increasing the illusion.

THE BALANCING BLUE-BOTTLE.—The original fly, accidentally anchored by its wings to a sticky fly-paper, instantly suggested, by the play of its legs, humorous and educative possibilities to the scientific kinematographer, by whose patient efforts marvellous results were secured. For instance, a magnified fly performs with a rope-walker's pole, and experiments with a circus ball (a pilule of bread), which he quickly twists with his feet. Then there are further demonstrations of the fly's marvellous muscular power in manipulating a log of wood, a shell, a cube, a cork ball, and a dumb-bell made from two bread pills and a small splinter, occasionally pausing to rub his hands. The fly's most remarkable display is that of rapidly twirling a ball of cork with another fly perched on the top. The second insect maintains his position by simply walking over the surface of the moving sphere, and shows no disposition to fly away. A very miniature Chippendale chair—made from a penholder—is occupied by the upright fly, whose wings, protruding from the rails, absurdly resemble the tails of a morning-coat. In this position he again performs cleverly with the dumb-bell. The film is both astonishing and interesting.

THE FOUNTAINS OF VERSAILLES AND SAINT-CLOUD, PARIS.—The Fountains of Versailles and the Cascade of St. Cloud, erected in 1676, by order of Louis XIV., are still the most marvellous in the world. The whole of the fountains play only on certain days of the year, and the pictures convey a most vivid and realistic impression of the grace and loveliness of the actual scenes. The waters gush, spirt, spray, stream, and spout in rills, cascades, falls, currents, and feathery, vaporous clouds of varied and studied, though apparently careless, design, exquisitely beautiful in every phase. While the admirable setting of park, pond, and sculptured marble lends added charm to the scene, the scintillating water, the beautiful shadow effects, and the delicate tints employed in toning the pictures will accentuate the fascination of the subject.

FLASH JAMES.—At Monte Carlo, amongst the cosmopolitan crowd, composed of all classes of people, a would-be gentleman is courting a wealthy young widow, the mother of a boy of ten. After a few months he succeeds in marrying her. It has not been very easy to win her, it is true, but now he thinks he will have the disposal of her money, and a broad grin can be seen on his face. Unhappily, he is a born gambler, and the discovery of his wife having made out her will in favour of her son makes him contemplate an awful crime. He will try and get rid of the boy by having him kidnapped and drowned; but a shepherd's dog, an unnoticed witness of the deed, rescues the child from death, and the husband, found out, takes justice in his own hands by blowing out his brains.

BROTHERS IN ARMS.—In this little drama we see two young men who are lifelong companions bidding their friends a fond good-bye as they leave their native village and go away to join the Army. One of the young men is in love with a pretty maiden, who accompanies them as far as the limits of the town. The men arrive at the barracks. The little fiancée comes to see them nearly every day, and brings them good things to eat from the old home. One day, while she is waiting at the gate to be admitted, she is astonished to see her lover go in another direction, accompanied by a gay-looking young woman. Soon his companion comes out and follows them. The next picture shows the party of three at a café, where they are enjoying some refreshments. One of the men leaves the table for a few moments, and seeing his companion kissing the woman's hand as he returns, he strikes his old friend in a fit of jealousy. An officer happens to come in at that moment and upbraids the pair for their conduct, and reports them to their superior officer, who reprimands them for their behaviour. The two young men, however, decide to settle the affair by fighting a duel. The young lover is severely injured, and is carried to the hospital. As he is carried in on the stretcher he passes his sweetheart, who forgets his treatment of her, and goes with him and assumes the duties of nurse. The victorious fellow joins the other young woman, and as they are going down the street the injured man sees his old chum in the company of the deceitful heart-breaker, and calls to him from the window. As soon as he hears the voice of his injured friend he hastens to him, leaving the girl outside. The friends forget the cause of their misunderstanding, and the peasant girl forgives the old wrongs and all ends happily.

A WELL-PAID SITUATION.—A group of merry students are busying themselves in posting the following bill on a pedestal waiting for its statue:—

"Office of Fine Arts."
"Situation as statue 5/- per hour.
"Perfect immobility is requested."

A peasant just up from his village, reads the poster, opens his eyes very wide, and asks for the appointment. His request being granted at once, he strikes an attitude and settles to his state of statue. Worried by the flies, children, watering-hoses, &c., and in spite of the policeman's entreaties, Giles does not move an inch, until the racket of an unskilful player dislodges him from his point of vantage and sends him rolling in the street, where he is picked up by the jolly students.

THE MYSTERIOUS KNIGHT gives us some clever trick scenes. A knight issues from a cloud of smoke, and by magic summons on the stage other knights and musketeers, very small and dainty, who have a free fight. The male and female warriors march past and presently disappear in the smoke.

THE CONSEQUENCES OF A GOOD DINNER.—A starveling, having procured a very good dinner, thanks to his craftiness, is punished for his greediness by a bad digestion. He falls asleep and dreams that his dinner comes back to its former shape among thrilling incidents; but two policemen march him off, and he will have plenty of time at the police-station to think and dream about his good repast. His adventures are most comically depicted.

IN view of the reported serious condition of Osca, the snake charmer (caused by the bite of a poisonous snake) at the Hungarian Exhibition, it is interesting to note that Messrs. Pathé Frères, the leading cinematograph manufacturers, have obtained, at heavy cost, by an arrangement with Mr. Frank Bostock, a unique and exclusive series of pictures in which Osca is seen performing with his pets, one of which is distinctly seen to bite him.

ROMANCE OF A WAR NURSE.—Wherever we have soldiers and fighting we of necessity have hospitals with nurses. This film shows us a nurse serving her country, and as a result meriting and meeting her great reward. We see two armies opposed in full battle array. One incident in the campaign is the stoppage of a carriage by an outpost. The lady occupant of the carriage is taken before the headquarter staff, and as a result placed in charge of the nurse. During the fighting that ensues the hospital catches fire, and the lady is wounded, and our nurse, whilst attending to her, discovers an important letter for "the good of the cause." In consequence of this, the nurse assumes the rôle of her patient by changing clothes, and leaves in the carriage for the south. Here she is met by mother and son without any suspicion. The son falls in love with the nurse, who hesitates. Meanwhile, she learns important news, and the original passenger in the carriage makes her appearance and denounces the nurse as an impostor, but the denunciation is not received in the spirit in which it is expected. It is, however, left to the captain to decide, and, being in love with the nurse, she is favoured by his decision. We, however, see explanations demanded and confessions made, which lead up to a happy reconciliation.

THE CHURCHILL WEDDING film, by Gaumont's, constitutes a record of film production. The wedding took place Saturday afternoon, and the film was shown the very same afternoon at the London Coliseum, where it was received with great applause. Gaumont's are well known for their smartness in producing topical events; not only that, they can always be relied on to be of the finest quality photographically. The subject shows Mr. Churchill leaving his home in Bolton-street, his bride leaving Portland-place, and excellent animated scenes outside the church.

THE EUCHARISTIC PROCESSION on Sunday forms another Elge topical subject. A comprehensive series of pictures are seen showing the vast teeming crowd at the mass meeting and procession. The views were secured from very prominent and favourable positions.

OF several good ones issued by this company, FIDO'S TAKING WAYS is probably the best. The "hero" is a little dog which picks up everything and anything that it can carry, and deposits all the articles in its kennel. In this way he makes off with an umbrella which a young lady has left leaning against a hut, a smock which a workman has just discarded, and meat, bread, poultry, and rabbits from various shops. The owners join in making an application to the police. Fido is chased home and brought to bay. All the stolen articles are found in his hut, and the indignant people are about to administer punishment when they are forced to dissolve into laughter by the dog suddenly rearing itself on its hind legs and begging.

IN FORCE OF HABIT a vagrant, who has been accustomed to picking up cigar and cigarette ends in the gutters, receives a lawyer's letter announcing that he has come into a fortune. In due course he becomes a member of good society, but habits of his old life are still strong in him, and at a ball he stows away all the gentlemen's cigar ends in his tail pockets with the result that his coat catches alight, his peccadillo is discovered, and he is hounded from the house.

INVENTIONS.

[The particulars furnished below of recent applications for patents are taken from the official records. Correspondence is invited with our readers on all matters relating to new ideas and inventions, with a view to affording them advice and assistance. Letters should be addressed to the Manager, Inventions Department, "The Era," 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, London.]

Inventors and others who have no business representative are invited to communicate with the Manager of the Inventions Dept. as above.

APPLICATIONS.

18,252.—Mary Esther Priestman, of Liverpool. New or improved devices for teaching swimming, for gymnastic exercises, amusements, and the like.

18,329.—Frederick Karno, of London. Improvements in or connected with means for fastening rails or battens to skeleton frames or the like, principally intended for use in connection with theatrical scenery.

18,341.—Frederick Meredith Clease, of London. Improvements in apparatus for promoting muscular or physical development.

18,401.—William Gordon Craigen, of Glasgow. New or improved appliances for facilitating the turning of leaves of music and the like.

18,428.—Thomas Daniel Ersser, of London. Improvement in cinematograph, optical lantern, and such-like apparatus.

18,431.—Paul de Champtassin, of London. Improved gymnastic appliance.

18,471.—William Laurence Parkinson, of Liverpool. Improvements in lantern or like screen supports.

18,508.—Friedrich Luithlen, of London. Improvements in means for illuminating interiors without the production of shadows.

18,533.—Alfred Edward Robbins, of London. Improvements relating to door-knobs for stage scenery.

18,612.—John Sibley Richardson, of London. Improvements in or relating to automatic recording mechanism for shooting and other exhibits.

18,689.—Joseph Cadman, of London. Improvements relating to rocking or mechanical horses, boats, vehicles, and the like.

COMPLETE SPECIFICATIONS ACCEPTED.

19,847.—Martyne. Formation and arrangement of railways and tracks for purpose of amusement.

22,880.—Norman. Targets for use in air rifle and other shooting practice.

8,712.—Rousselot. Stage noise cabinet.

ABRIDGMENTS OF SPECIFICATIONS.

10,224.—Boats, motor vehicles. Smythies, H. W., of Bognor, Sussex.

Relates to a combined motor vehicle and sailing boat. The vehicle (b), which may be driven by any type of motor and steered by suitable means, is adapted to receive a sailing boat (a) with a view to furnishing sail power for land propulsion, the power of the motor then being dispensed with or used in conjunction with the sail. Guides (d) and rollers (e) are provided, and either or both ends of the vehicle, hinged as at c, may be adapted to serve as inclined planes to facilitate the launching of the boat. When the boat has been launched its carriage may be used independently as a motor vehicle, and is provided with folding seats for such purpose. Instead of, or in addition to, the motor the carriage may be fitted with sail power independent of that supplied by the boat; the carriage is supplied with a hinged mast or masts and sails, and the like, which are stowed beneath or alongside the boat when the latter is in place. Such hinged masts also allow of the carriage passing under bridges or other obstructions. Brakes are fitted, and the wheels are preferably arranged relatively to the body, so as to counteract as far as possible the tendency to become overturned by side gusts of wind.

10,298.—Shooting ranges. Edwards, T., of Chippenham, Wilts.

The bull's-eye (N) is attached to a pivoted arm (C) carrying a marking pencil (S), which moves across a recording card (D) when the bull's-eye is struck by a pellet (I) from a spring gun (A). A striking-knob (O) on the arm (C) strikes against a spring upright (R), which throws the arm back and causes the knob to strike a projection on a spring clip, which is forced back for an instant and allows the card (D) to fall slightly to receive a fresh recording mark. The spring gun is mounted on a ball-and-socket joint (J) provided with a clamping screw, which is tightened by a rack attached to the pellet-ejecting spring rod (F), which slides within the gun. A spring trigger arm (Y) fixed to the gun engages with a projection (X) on the knob of the rod (F). A shield behind the target catches any stray shots.

A NEW GAME.

The days of Mitcham Fair are not yet numbered, and the small boy at this and like shows whose grin of triumph, ludicrous with delight, as he deftly pitches the metal ring on the peg of a board and thereby gains nuts or a walking cane, will be intensified in the future, as Mr. Ernest McKaig, in his improvement of the pastime, will further reward his prowess by the coincident ignition of an electric lamp.

The new contrivance consists of a horizontal or inclined plane of wood or other material (A) having a series of pins or pegs (B) projecting therefrom, of a convenient height and distance apart. Near each pin and slightly projecting are two electric wires (C), positive and negative, brought up through the inclined or horizontal plane (A) from an electric accumulator, main, or battery. These wires are spaced at a distance apart suitable to the size of the rings used, and at opposite sides of the projecting pins or pegs. The electric wires in turn connect to a series of lamps, bells, or arms (D), fixed upon the score-board (E), which may be placed at the back of the ring board or in any other suitable position. When the metal ring (F) falls upon and encircles a pin it touches the two wires, completes the circuit, and thus either ignites a lamp, rings a bell, or waves an arm.

TO STAGE MACHINISTS AND ELECTRICIANS.—The Manager will be pleased to receive particulars of any new stage appliances or ideas for same for illustration in this column.

Can You Invent?—Do you wish to know of prizes offered to inventors valued at £10,000, £4,000, £1,000, £400, £300, £200, and £100? Notes from Wales.

SEVERAL concerns extended their visit at Neath for a few days. Messrs. Wadbrooke and Seard produced some striking new subjects, also varieties, Little Violet, a pretty little girl actor-vocalist, being very much admired. Mr. Glover suitably described the pictures. Messrs. James Dooner and Sons introduced many novelties, which were greatly appreciated. The Floral Swings formed a great attraction, in which the Misses Dooner charmingly sang in graceful style. Gus, our old friend, acts as guide. Mr. Wm. Haggar, sen., provided several new subjects of an up-to-date character. The Misses Haggars execute some graceful dancing to delightful music. Mr. John Studt was to the front with some fine subjects. His merry paraders drew large crowds.

Kindly Act to the Poor.

ON Saturday last, through the kindness of Messrs. John and Henry Studt, Mr. S. White, and Mr. E. Danter, the workhouse people were given free rides on the machines ad lib. Mr. John North allowed them free shies at the cokernuts, and he generously presented them with one each. They were then entertained by Messrs. Wadbrooke, Dooner, Wm. Haggar, sen., Crecraft, E. Danter, and Mr. John Studt's new show. The pictures were much enjoyed by the old people; several good comics caused them much amusement. The managers of the various charitable institutions desire, through the columns of The Era, to heartily thank our showmen friends for their kind hospitality.

A Welsh Flannel Fair.

CLYDACH Pleasure and Flannel Fair was held on Tuesday last, and was supported by Messrs. Hy. Studt and Son's magnificent machines; Messrs. Wm. Haggar's No. 1 Bioscope, where some beautiful pictures—some of the latest—were shown, under the direction of Mr. Walter Haggar, who clearly describes the subjects in an efficient manner; Mr. John North, with cokernuts, shooters, Emmas, &c., had a hearty welcome from old friends.

Showman's Gift to Local Charities.

WHITE'S Electric Coliseum terminated its two weeks' successful visit to Maesteg on Tuesday evening, the 15th, that night being set apart for the benefit of the new Cottage Hospital Fund. The entertainment was under the personal supervision and patronage of the Town Council and Cottage Hospital Fund Committee. During the evening, the three local bands played some fine selections, and it would require the services of an ideal expert to adjudicate on the selections given. After the entertainment, Mr. Thos. Rees, chairman of the Council, proposed a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. White for his splendid generosity and noble deed, which was seconded by Mr. Nicholas, secretary to the Cottage Hospital Fund, who stated that the sum of about £40 had been realised through the generosity of Mr. White. The audience was delighted with the entertainment selected for this night's performance.

Oxford Fair.

IT is true of fairs, as of other things, there are fairs and fairs. St. Giles' Fair, Oxford, is without a doubt a high-class feast. A cursory glance at the style and quality of the concerns attending the fair demonstrates that the crowds patronising it are patrons of the better type, and with money enough to patronise or to purchase its superior novelties and expensive "fairings." To begin with, the four immense avenues of stalls, crowded with goods, along the broad boulevard of St. Giles'-street, would, if placed end to end, extend for over a mile.

NOWHERE else in England can we find so select and well-dressed an assembly as at St. Giles' Fair, yet, such a jolly crowd, well mannered, and withal entering into the fun and badinage of the carnival. As we traversed the full length of the "Broad," and endeavoured to take in the wonderful charm of the fair, the one thing that impressed itself most upon our mind was the perfect harmony of the setting or frame of the picture, the dear old College buildings, the friendly, warm, and sheltering walls, towers, and steeples, as we caught sight of them in the gaps between the shows, or towering above the highest-built fronts of the booths or whirling circles of steam or electric roundabout.

THE high-class cinematograph theatres were those of Wm. Taylor, Jacob Studt, Alfred Ball, Charles Thurston, and J. Chipperfield. All these concerns gave delightful displays of up-to-date animated photography, and both inside and out afforded immense delight to the endless stream of visitors. The side shows and minor amusements included Buckley's trained animals, W. Le Neve and Norah Sullivan (the Sandow experts of the fair ground), P. Collins's haunted house, Tom Taylor's school of boxers, and T. Knighton's academy of fine arts.

THE big riding machines were those of Messrs. Thurston, P. Collins, T. Clark, W. Wilson, and Mrs. Bird. There were on either side of the spacious boulevards of St. Giles'-street, on every available pitch, juvenile riding machines, park swings, toy and gingerbread stalls, throwing games, and the hundred and one necessary adjuncts of a first-class fair.

MR. BILLY ROSS and company are deputising for the Brothers Horne this week at the Palace, Camberwell, where they have met with wonderful success.

Look Out. Look Out. Look Out.

WANTED, Wanted, Wanted, Circus Proprietors, Hippodrome Managers, and Agents to Note that the Greatest Act before the Public of the World will shortly return to England.

The Royal Ohmys,
The Royal Ohmys,
The Royal Ohmys,

Greatest of all Acrobatic Equestrians, on Three, Four, and Five Bare-back Horses. The only act of the kind ever seen in a Circus Ring. The talk of every town in Denmark. Just had the great honour of appearing by command before H.R.H. the Crown Prince of Denmark and Royal Family. Complimented by H.R.H. and crowd of 3,000 people. Read what the Denmark paper says:—The Royal Ohmys' appearance before the Crown Prince has caused a sensation in Aarhus, and so delighted H.R.H. that, after their wonderful performance on three bare-backed horses, they were commanded to return before him to receive Royal congratulations. The Royal Ohmys return to England end of October, after fulfilling a six months' engagement with Bech. Olsen's Great Circus, Denmark. The Royal Ohmys have been the talk of every town visited by this great circus, and the Royal Ohmys are now the talk of Denmark. Bech. Olsen, Director, says:—Mr. Ohmy, your family are the finest performers I have ever seen. They have raised my circus above all the others in this country. They must come back to me next season, whatever the cost may be. This should prove to Proprietors and Managers what these Acts are like. Will be at liberty for the winter season end of October, with six good numbers. The most up-to-date acts before the public. RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follow:

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON,
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON,
Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

LIVERPOOL, MANCHESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT BULMER,
The Empire, Liverpool.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. ALBERT MITCHELL,
Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT.
MR. J. CHRISTIE,
Empire Theatre, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.
